SUB-COMMITTEE WILL EXAMINE SIR HERB. HOLT

Relation of Banks and Pulp and Paper Industry to be Investigated.

PAY OF EMPLOYES.

Amendment Passes Re Employees' Pay, But With Stiff Opposition.

OTTAWA, May 17. (CP).—After nearly two months' consideration before the banking and commerce committee of the House of Commons Bill No. 18, upon which will be based the overdue decennial revision of Canadian bank charters, was ready to be reported back to the House to-day.

There was no recorded vote on final adoption of the bill but Hon. Ian MacKenzie, (Lib., Vancouver Centre), expressed the opinion the committee had not accepted any important amendment nor dealt in any way with the matter of wider distribution of credit. He was opposed to adoption of the bill.

System Not Altered

While there were numerous amendments, none would alter essentially the system under which Canadian banks operate. The committee heard lengthy evidence from several advocates of radical social credit schemes, including the English economist, Major C. H. Douglas, and Gerald G. McGreer, Vancouver, advocate of a scheme somewhat different from the Douglas plan. None of these theories has reflected in the amendments to the bill.

Adoption of the measure by committee was without prejudice to competition of the investigations under the resolution of Major C. G. Power, (Lib., Quebec South), which formed the basis for much of the evidence secured by the committee. His resolution respecting the joint activities of banks and pulp and paper companies will be proceeded with next week.

French Forest Fire Explodes Old Shells

MULHOUSE, France, May 17.—(C.P.-Havas). Violent fires which to-day destroyed 125 acres of wood in Hartmanswellerkopf (Veil Armand) also caused the explosion of a vast quantity of war ammunition lying forgotten in old shelters built there during The War, shaking the whole district and bringing back vividly to the inhabitants scenes of the Great War.

Hartmanswellerkopf is the mountain in Alsace where for four years the battle raged incessantly and where the "Chasseurs Alpins" and the "Blue Devils" so greatly distinguished themselves against the German troops.

Co-respondents

PHILADELPHIA, May 17 (CP).—"The horses" are named co-respondents by Mrs. Irma E. Furring, 36, in her suit for divorce.

She charged that her husband was so engrossed in "playing the ponies" that he forgot food and clothing for his family, and finally disappeared.

BRITAIN WOULD BAN SHIPMENTS WAR MATERIALS

No Arms for Paraguay or Bolivia—Move to End Chaco Conflict.

APPEAL TO 17 GOV'TS.

Proposal Follows League Commission's Failure to Bring Peace.

GENEVA, May 17.—(A.P.)—Great Britain proposed today an embargo on shipments of arms materials to Paraguay and Bolivia as a move toward ending their war over the Gran Chaco jungle border area.

The momentous step was urged before the League of Nations council by Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal.

The Briton proposed that the embargo be made to apply to all arms destined for either of the South American belligerents.

Eden urged the council to send cablegrams today to those 17 governments whose cooperation would be necessary to make the embargo effective.

Urging these 17 to participate in the proposed embargo, he also appealed to all countries which are neighbors of Paraguay and Bolivia to make an agreement to stop all passage of arms through their territories.

The special league Chaco commission which failed in its efforts to settle the conflict recommended in its report to the council that an embargo be placed on arms shipments unless the countries agreed to arbitration.

Senseless War

Eden, speaking with great gravity, referred to the "senselessness" of the Chaco war with its great loss of life and untold suffering.

He pointed out that in some instances governments do not possess powers to put a embargo into effect. Where this is so Capt. Eden said he hoped they would find it possible to take the necessary legislative action as an emergency measure.

The speaker characterized the question of stopping sale of all armaments as "an issue of capital importance."

"It offers to all countries an opportunity to make a decision to end the hostilities."

The 17 countries alluded to by Eden are those engaged in the manufacture of arms.

He said Great Britain endorses the conclusions to be drawn from the report of the Chaco commission, adding:

"The essential thing is to make peace speedily. Great Britain be-

SIX BADLY HURT.

BRUSSELS, May 17 (A.P.). — Fourteen more men were feared killed to-day in a second explosion in the ill-fated Paturages au Fief mine where 43 were killed in a blast Tuesday night. Fire-damp exploded to-day while rescue workers were seeking the bodies of three men unaccounted for since Tuesday.

The rescue party consisted of 18 men. Six of them, seriously injured, were brought to the surface after to-day's blast. The other 12 were feared dead.

Last Tuesday's blast trapped 48 miners. Five of them were brought out alive. Forty bodies were recovered.

Main Building to Have 1,000 Foot Frontage—Option on 600 Acres.

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., May 17.—(CP)—Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb, Ontario Minister of Health and B. T. McGhie, Deputy Minister, were here today in connection with the possible erection of an Ontario Hospital for mental defectives. It was estimated the project would involve more than $1,000,000.

"A hospital will be erected, and will be for mental defectives," stated Dr. Robb. "I may say the government possess an option on property here, where we have men at work experimenting. The problem must be studied from various angles, such as transportation, population, elevation and accommodation to the general public, and I must confess that Smiths Falls is a good centre. The country, however, is lacking in elevation," he said.

The Ontario government has an option on 600 acres of farm land on the outskirts of the town, where men are at present experimenting, it was stated.

It was said that the hospital project involves erection of a main building with a frontage of 1,000 feet. Other buildings contemplated include a nurses home, and a power house.

Stevenson Chancellor Glasgow University

GLASGOW, May 17. — (C.P. Cable.)—Election of Sir Daniel Stevenson, who is 82 years of age, to the honorable post of Chancellor of Glasgow University by a slight margin over Lord Macmillan, the financial expert, was announced to-day.

Sir Daniel received 5,265 votes in the polling compared with 5,185 for Lord Macmillan, who is well known in Canada as head of the Royal Commission on Banking.

TOBACCO PROBE IS COMPLETED BY COMMITTEE

Private Investigator Might Be Appointed to Delve Deeper Into Question.

REBUTTAL EVIDENCE.

Tobacco Companies Not Getting Fair Deal, Liberal Member Declares.

OTTAWA, May 17 (C.P.).—The tobacco inquiry of the Parliamentary Price Spreads Committee was completed to-day, although it was hinted a private investigator might be appointed to delve deeper. The committee to-day heard mostly rebuttal evidence from independent manufacturers.

The Excise Act might hold the solution of independent manufacturers who claim the trade practices of the Imperial Tobacco Company have been unfair and unethical, Hon. H. H. Stevens, the chairman, said to-day. He referred particularly to one section under which a license could be revoked when a manufacturer made a sale "subject to the condition that the purchaser or consignee shall not sell or deal in goods of a like kind provided by another manufacturer or dealer."

The Excise Act was read by the chairman when one of the independent manufacturers, John Hughes, was on the stand. He said he had not been aware of it before.

Witness, discussing statements relating to price cutting by retailers, cited the case of Dan Peace of Hamilton. He had cut prices on the products of other manufacturers, and to meet this he had been allowed to cut prices on Imperial's products.

The matter of summoning the men who had accused Imperial of obscuring the advertising matter of the independents was again discussed. Mr. Hughes was diffident about their being summoned since they feared the consequences. Some members of the committee were insistent they should be heard.

BARRICADES USELESS

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

PARIS, May 17.—I saw six barricades rise from the ground and thrown down all within the short space of 20 minutes shortly after midnight on May 1. A seventh barricade held out till six o'clock in the morning when a mass assault of tanks and armored cars crashed over the piles of furniture which had previously been sprayed with "liquid-fire" by mobile guards dressed in bullet-poof vests and steel helmets. While this was going on thousands of pistol-shots were fired from roofs and windows on the advancing police-forces.

Throwing up barricades is almost an heriditary instinct with the revolutionary working-class elements in Paris. Nearly every square foot of ground in the older parts of the city has at one time or other been the scene of fierce struggles and is soaked with blood of the tumultuous generations of Parisians. The first thing they do when a riot occurs is to tear the cast-iron fences from around the chestnut trees on the boulevards; forge themselves spikes from the heavy bars in front of public buildings dig up the cobblestones; upset carts, street-cars and motor-buses throw bedding, barrels and

MASS BUYING HURT STANDARD CANADIAN JAMS

Public is Being More or Less Defrauded Committee is Told.

TOMATO INDUSTRY.

Quebec Canners Are Ruining Industry in Ontario and British Columbia.

OTTAWA, May 17 (CP)—In the purchase of preserved jams the public is being more or less defrauded, M. M. Robinson of Hamilton, for the Ontario Growers' Markets' Council, told the Stevens Mass Buying Committee here to-day. Jams are made and sold by some manufacturers as strawberry, raspberry, peach, pear, apricot, etc., in some of which, he said, less than ten per cent of the named fruit is used.

The use of from two-thirds to three-quarters of the quantity of fruit in the same amount of jam had seriously curtailed the growers' largest market. The price of fruit had been forced down below the cost of production and the growers were facing the necessity of operation at a loss or go out of the business in which all their life savings were invested.

Cheaper Products

"This has been brought about by the mass buying of the larger stores and chains demanding cheaper products and the desperate competition between manufacturers to compete for this big business," witness went on. "If the manufacturer does not submit, his plant stands idle and overhead eats him up, while his competitor, who does submit, is at least unloading his stock and saving on his overhead. In years gone by the jammers used to buy their berries or other fruits and rush them into jam with a large labor force. Now they cannot do this, as they do not know the quality of jam they will have to manufacture to suit the buyer's price, so they put it into fruit pulps or freeze it in cold storage and manufacture it again to order of the price quality demanded by the

ONLY PLACE AVAILABLE.

TORONTO, May 17 (C.P.). — A stern condemnation of hospitals and other institutions in Toronto for their lack of religious facilities was made to-day by Canon F. H. Hartley, rural dean of Toronto, in bringing in the hospital chaplains' report to the Anglican Synod today. He said at one hospital he had to give a sick woman her Communion in the washroom, there being no other place available.

"I asked the head nurse of the ward if there was no place where he could give her Communion," said Canon Hartley. "She told me—practically ordered me—to give the patient Communion in a washroom of the ward. Was that seemly, or proper, or fitting? I know that everything in Communion depends on the attitude of the person receiving it, but I do not think those circumstances are very helpful."

Canon Hartley declared there should be a small chapel in every hospital and institution where chaplains serve.

TWO MINISTERS DENY CHARGES

Cahan, Matthews Reply to Allegations Regarding Tobacco Tax Advance Tips.

RHODES TO BE CALLED.

OTTAWA, May 17. (CP).— With the incident of W. M. Stewart's charges that advance information respecting the cut in the cigarette tax in 1932 reached his competitors closed, the House of Commons committee on price spreads and mass buying to-day continued its probe of the tobacco business.

Yesterday two of the three ministers named by Mr. Stewart, president of the W. C. Macdonald Tobacco Company, appeared before the committee and entered denials. Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, said he had been in Europe the whole period and Hon. R. C. Matthews Minister of National Revenue, had been appointed more than a year later.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, is out of town but Hon. H. H. Stevens, chairman of the committee, said it would not be necessary for him to appear as it was obvious Mr. Stewart's allegations were based on a most unfortunate misapprehension.

The committee was informed the reduction in the tax was made retroactive for some three weeks so that no advantage could have been gained by any company getting a tip a faw days before the announcement anyway.

Yesterday the committee heard a denial from Earl Spafford, vice-president in charge of sales for the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, that his company was guilty of unfair tactics in connection with display advertising. The day before smaller tobacco manufacturers had complained of Imperial agents tearing down their posters forcing dealers to put Imperial products to the front in displays and other similar tactics.

Mr. Spafford said if any instances of these practises could be proven the agents responsible would be disciplined. They were not carried on with the cognizance of the company and he attributed the complaints to disgruntled dealers who had been disciplined for price-cutting.

Walton Followers Enjoy Opening Day

HASTINGS, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence). — The opening of the pickerel season on Wednesday brought a large number of visitors to the village mostly from Toronto and the United States. Both sides of the main bridge and dam were lined from the early hours of the morning until late at night. While none of the anglers were successful in landing any big ones, there were plenty of medium size hooked.

Among the many followers of the rod and line present for the opening were noticed Mr. and Mrs. Guy Mills of Ohio, P. German of Buffalo and C. F. Moser of New Hamburg, all regular summer visitors at Hastings.

Walter M. Fowlds informed The Examiner on Wednesday that he had been successful in having the Department of Game and Fisheries put 125,000 pickerel fry in near the tannery and the same number above the dam.

Japan Will Demand Equal Defence Rights

YOKOHAMA, Japan, May 17. — (AP) — Prince Fumimaro Konoye sailed for the United States today, primed to inform government leaders there that Japan at the 1935 naval conference will demand "equal right in national defense" and abandonment of the present ratio method of naval limitation.

The Prince was given last instructions, a high authority revealed, at a breakfast with Japan's naval war lords in Tokyo shortly shortly before his departure by train for Yokohama.

The youthful political leader, only recently installed as president of the House of Peers, sailed on the liner Asama Maru bound for San Francisco.

MARMORA A.Y.P.A. STAGES COMEDY

"Where's Grandma" Draws Large Crowd to Orange Hall, Springbrook.

BONARLAW, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Friday of last week the three-act comedy drama, "Where's Grandma?" was presented by St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. of Marmora in the Orange Hall at Springbrook, under the auspices of St. Mark's Church, Bonarlaw, and despite various other attractions in nearby towns, the attendance was good.

All the players were well suited to their roles. "Grandma" was played by Miss Marjorie Hudgins, Gretchen Blake by Miss Hilda Phillips, and Bob Blake by Mr. Norman Smith, and their acting was a good interpretation of the actions of the older folks, while George O'Neil and Miss Margaret Johnston as Jack and Carol Worley and Miss Fay Buskard as Lucy King acted well the roles of the younger generation. Miss Dorothy Lumsden played the difficult part of Arlene Truesdale in a very creditable manner, while Miss Annie Bailey and Randall Melville, as Dahlia and Midnight, blackface characters, kept everyone laughing and brightened up the whole play, which was very interesting from beginning to end.

Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, manager of the group, is to be congratulated upon the splendid performance.

After the play excellent music was furnished by Clarence McKeown and "Curly" Gibson, and both round and square music were indulged in, Mr. Ritchie Mason acting as floor manager.

Cake and sandwiches were provided by the ladies.

IRISH VILLAGE FETES FLIERS

HOP FOR ROME, FRIDAY.

ENNIS, Irish Free State, May 17 (C.P.). — Irish hospitality took the edge to-day off the impatience of Captain George Pond and Lieut Cesare Sabelli, fretting at delay in preparing the plane in which they were forced down on a projected New York-to-Rome flight.

While mechanics from the Baldonnel Army Airdrome at Dublin swarmed over the crippled plane in relays in a field near Lahinch, the fliers strolled about this quaint village where they were feted last night by the Chamber of Commerce They were given a dinner which lasted past midnight. Ennis is County Clare's biggest town.

The army mechanics started work on the big orange monoplane at dawn, hoping to complete repairs within two days and enable the airmen to hop for Rome before the end of the week.

Crowds of curious milled about the craft, still setting where the fliers landed on Tuesday night at the village of Moy, two miles from Lahinch.

Chief damage appeared to have been done to the undercarriage when the plane, named the Leonardo da Vinci, crashed into a sand bank in the landing.

KING SLACKENS HIS OPPOSITION TO MARKET ACT

Says Weir's Amendments Go Long Way to Removing His Objections.

OTHER CHANGES NEEDED.

OTTAWA, May 17 (CP)—A possibility the Natural Products Marketing Act might receive the official toleration if not the approval of the Liberal Party gave a new slant to-day to the position of the Marketing Bill in the House of Commons.

Yesterday Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal Leader, said the amendments to the bill proposed by Hon. Robert Weir Minister of Agriculture, went a long way towards removing his objections, and if a few more changes were made he would have no objection to the bill as a "measure of an experimental character."

The Liberal blockade of the measure continued yesterday however, and Mr. King spoke just before the House adjourned. Prospects of early enactment, therefore, appear to depend on whether the Government is prepared to make the further changes Mr. King wishes.

For one thing, he wants the powers of the marketing boards the bill contemplates limited, and the making of regulations made the duty of the Government instead of the boards.

One Good Move

One of the changes proposed already which meets his approval is along the same line, namely the placing of responsibility of the Government of the day which is responsible to Parliament and the people instead of in the hands of the somewhat irresponsible marketing boards.

This change concerns the establishment of offences in connection with marketing. Instead of determing what shall constitute an offence which carries the penalties provided in the Act, the board or investigating committee as the case may be must report to the Ministry which will then take whatever action it considers appropriate to define an "offence."

W. H. Moore, Liberal member for Ontario, stressed his firm opposition to the bill, describing it as heading straight to Socialism and involving a sweeping economic revolution.

Resolutions providing for the introduction of four more important bills are on the Order Paper and may be taken up to-day. These are the new Elections Act, a bill to launch a gigantic public works program and companion measures to provide farmers with relief from their debts and additional credits.

The Senate's long debate on the League of Nations arising out of Hon. A. D. McRae's motion that Canada should withdraw from the League and other international entanglements continued yesterday, with the one woman Senator, Hon. Cairine Wilson, and Hon. J. J. Hughes of Prince Edward Island, declaring their belief in the league.

League's Worst Fault

The league was not without its weakness, however, in Senator Hughes' opinion, and the greatest of these was its tendency to materialism. The Papal authority throughout the Catholic Church was an instance of how strong spiritual forces could be, said Senator Hughes, as it extended to 300,000,000 people of all races, colors and tongues, scattered throughout the whole world.

Mother's Day

Mother's Day was observed on Sunday in Lakefield and in practically every service it was featured in a greater or less degree and the fact stressed that women are recognized as free citizens only in the Christian world and the non-Christian nations regard women, even mothers as merely chattels. Special music featured the services in the Baptist, United and Presbyterian Churches with sermons on the same theme. In St. John's and St. Paul's Churches the sermons referred to the part of the mother in the home, the church and the community, her responsibilities and her part in the nation.

FINE PROGRAM.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 17. — Meeting in annual session at the home of Mrs. John Thompson on Thursday last, the Seymour East Women's Institute elected the following officers for the current year: President, Mrs. John Thompson; vice-president, Mrs. George Craighead; secretary - treasurer, Mrs Charles Hutcheon; press secretary, Mrs. W. A. Hume; district director Miss Edith Gibbons; directors, Mrs Jas. Shillinglaw; Mrs. Victor Taylor, Mrs. Roy Walker, Mrs. Henry Locke and Mrs. W. A. Hume; auditors, Mrs. Jesse Locke and Mrs. George Ingram.

The meeting, which opened with the Institute Ode, had an attendance of forty members, some new business being discussed, and a hearty invitation extended to the branch by Mrs. Sam Diamond, to hold the June meeting at her home on the English Line.

The following delightful program was given: Reading by Mrs. Thos. Weatherill, which was very witty and received many hearty laughs; a duet by the Misses Violet Atkinson and Verna Cassan, which was well rendered and received; the topic, "Making the most of life," prepared and read by Mrs. James Shillinglaw, which was a splendid paper and left a challenge to all who heard it and a reading by Miss Jesse Locke, "Jameson's League of Nations," which brought out the true value of real neighbors The National Anthem concluded the meeting.

Dairy Notes

CAMPBELLFORD, May 17 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — George H. Barr, director of dairying, Toronto, and W. B. Somerset, chairman of the Ontario marketing board, will meet with those interested in the activities of the cheese factory patrons on Friday evening, in the St. Lawrence Hotel.

Colored cheese brought 9¼ cents on the Belleville board on Saturday.

More factories each year are churning their whey cream and making butter for local consumption. Morganston and Menie factories are this year installing churns. Milk for cheese factory purposes must be well cared for and the whey cream, if properly churned, makes splendid butter.

George Van Volkenburg, accompanied by W. H. Smith, agricultural representative of Brighton, went to Toronto on Tuesday, where they conferred with the Department of Agriculture on matters connected with the dairy industry.

All the factories are in that splendid position of having no undergrade cheese reported as yet, and by proper and careful work on the part of all concerned, this happy condition might be prolonged for some time.

GILMOUR MEMORIAL CHURCH.

BRIDGENORTH, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence). — Members and friends of Gilmour Memorial Church enjoyed a special treat on Sunday when Dr. Jessie Allen, medical missionary of India, who is home on furlough, occupied the pulpit.

Her address was very appropriate for Mother's Day. She told in her introductory remarks how her mother and father dedicated her as an infant to the Lord's work in India, which she has successfully carried on for twenty-eight years. She also gave a splendid talk on how the medical missionary wins the people in India for the Lord and Master.

CAMPBELLFORD WILL HAVE NEW WEIGH SCALES

Work Started on Installation of New Scales, Bought for $450.

POSITION RECEIVED.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 17 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Replacing scales which the advance in truck make and capacity has made out-of-date and too small, work is being started on thei nstallation of a new and up-to-date set of town scales at Campbellford, following a resolution by the Town Council to purchase from the Fairbanks-Morse Company scales of a ten-tone capacity at a cost of $450, f.o.b. Campbellford. The company is allowing $25 on the old scales.

The complete cost of the installation and alternations will be in the neighborhood of $600, however, as alternation have to be made to the present building, although the present pit is of sufficient depth for the new machine. The present platform will have to be lengthened three feet on each end, and the shed roof raised and reshingled. Councillor J. R. Battisby chairman of the Parks Committee, will supervise the work.

Two officials of the company, Messrs. James and Boxer, secured the sale of the new scales, addressing the council on the merits of their product, and pointing out that the town of Campbellford had an excellent site for weigh scales. They were introduced to the council by J. C. Anderson ,local business man.

At the same session of the council a petition by Dr. O. C. Watson, and three other applicants, for the installation of a new sewer on Queen street ,was accepted. This matter will be taken up at the June session of the council, at which time action will be taken on the request of E. H. Greig for a cement sidewalk, connecting his house with the main highway. This had been promised by the council some years ago, he said, and filling had been placed, but owing to retrenchment on the part of the town he had not pressed for completion of the work. He felt, however, that as a taxpayer of the town he was entitled to this privilege. The council decided to view the site some time this week prior to taking action on the request.

believes the draft of a treaty proposed by the commission should be examined anew by the tyo parties (Paraguay and Bolivia) and be accepted."

Criticism Halted.

Previously, the council had choked off Ramon Caballero de Bedoya of Paraguay, as he was making a lengthy address defending Paraguay's attitude and criticizing the Chaco commission's report.

Francisco Castillo Najera, of Mexico, as chairman of counsel for the Chaco commission, insisted that when the draft of a treaty was submitted to Paraguay and Bolivia it was by the mandate of the council.

Answering Caballero, he said: "The reproaches against the commission are unjustified."

Najera said the prolonged war was not justified and declared the resolution of the Pan-American conference was a happy augury for a single front toward peace.

The rapid moving developments in the council meeting completely overshadowed a threat to break the back of the disarmament conference and rest its fate upon a decision of the council.

HASTINGS

Miss Ethel J. E. Robson of Denfield, Ontario will give a lecture on "The Challenge of Age" in Hastings' Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon, May 23rd. All members of the Women's Institute and their friends will be made welcome. A special business meeting will be held in connection with his "Summer Series of Meetings." As this is the first meeting of these series to be held in Hastings a good attendance is expected. No admission is asked.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamb of Omemee visited their daughter, Miss Jessie Lamb and attended the mother's and daughter's banquet held in Trinity United Church on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Dainard were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stewart of Foxboro on Sunday.

Miss Flora Metcalfe of Peterborough spent Friday evening as a guest at the mother's and daughter's banquet.

Special services were held at Trinity United Church on Sunday morning and evening. In the morning the pastor, Rev. H. J. Bell in charge, preached a Mother's Day sermon. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with many flowers. Special music was rendered by the junior choir under the direction of Miss Marjorie Scriver who presided at the organ. In the evening Rev. A. S. Cleland of Norwood gave a missionary address in connection with the special service arranged by the W.M.S. Miss Thelma Cleland of Norwood rendered a beautiful solo.

The cast from St. George's Church will present their play "The Private Tutor" in Westwood on Friday evening.

LEGISLATURE IS DISSOLVED

Premier made and it came through the open window of his automobile as he was leaving government house after a 20-minute conference with Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce.

Double Polling Day?

Saskatchewan's general elections are due shortly and they may fall on the same date as in Ontario, for it was reported the situation in the prairie province had a great deal to do with Premier Henry's decision of the election date. The premier will open the campaign in Toronto tonight.

Mr. Hepburn's resignation as a House of Commons member will be in Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King's hand today and will be presented to the speaker of the house the day before the official nomination day After completing arrangements for Russell, East Ottawa and South Renfrew conventions, Mr. Hepburn will leave for Welland and Niagara Falls where he will launch his fight for election Monday.

Liberals hope to have all their candidates in the field in a week, according to Mr. Hepburn. There are already 79 of his supporters nominated compared to 69 Conservatives. There are 12 Co-operative Commonwealth Federation standard bearers; one Independent Liberal; three Communists and one U.F.O. in the last house there were five Progressives; one Labor; one U.F.O.

Only 90 Members

There were 112 members elected in the last election Oct. 30, 1929 but deaths, resignations and appointments to other posts reduced this figure. The government's redistribution scheme cut the membership further and only 90 members will take their seats after this election.

Seven candidates were ushered into the fight last night and yesterday. They were Charles S. Giles, C.C.F. candidate for Cochrane; Howard Fraleigh, present members, Conservative candidate for East Lambton; Thomas Raycraft, Communist member for Windsor-Walkerville; Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, Conservative candidate for Sudbury; Angus John Kennedy, Conservative candidate for Temiskaming; Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, Conservative member for Brantford, and Frank Regan, C.C.F. candidate for Toronto St. Davids.

Debt Increases.

Ministers are dwelling upon the health and social services operated by the Government, and are defending the steady increase in debt incurred during the Conservative Administration.

Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal Leader, has been actively touring the Province with Hon Harry Nixon and other Opposition stalwarts, and has based his anti-Government attacks on the financial record, alleged mismanagement of Hydro, and, more recently, the "liquor tollgate system."

Since Confederation.

Of the eighteen Ontario elections since Confederation, Conservatives won seven, Liberals nine, Unionists one, and United Farmers one. The constitutions of the Legislatures have been as follows, the Premier in each instance holding office as Premier for the sessions subsequent to the election:

1894—Hon. Sir Oliver Mowat, Premier: Libedals, 49; Conservatives, 27; Patrons of Industry, 14; P.P.A., 2. Mowat resigned in 1896 to enter the Laurier Cabinet, and Succeeded.

1908—Hon. Sir James Whitney, Premier: Conservatives, 86; Liberals, 21; Labor, 1.

1926—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier; Conservatives, 74; Liberals, 17; Independent Liberals, 4; Progressives, 13; U.F.O., 3; Labor, 1.

1929—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier: Conservatives, 91; Liberals, 14; Progressives, 5; Labor, 1; U.F.O., 1. Ferguson resigned in 1930, and Mr. Henry was chosen as his successor.

In Saskatchewan.

WINNIPEG, May 17.—Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan, just before leaving for Regina last night, said the date for the Saskatchewan general elections likely would be announced next Monday.

Weddings

McKINNON—GALLAGHER.

MARMORA, May 16. — At the Sacred Heart church, Marmora, on Tuesday, the wedding took place of Helen, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gallagher of Marmora township and Frank, son of Mr. K. McKinnon of Madoc and formerly of Marmora township.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was daintily attired in a white sheer crepe gown, wearing a beautiful tulle veil with white shoes and gloves. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and maidenhair fern.

The bridesmaid was her sister, Mrs. Myrtle McCormick, who wore a pretty dress of monet blue, white hat, shoes and gloves and carried white and pink carnations. Mr. Charles Gallagher, brother of the bride, carried out the duties of best man. Rev. Father J. J. Keeley officiated.

During the mass, appropriate music was played by the organist, Miss M. McCarthy.

The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to immediate relatives, after which the happy couple left on a honeymoon to be spent at Toronto, Niagara Falls and other western points.

Obituary

ALEXANDER PIRIE

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD May 17. — There passed away at his Campbellford residence on Wednesday one of the pioneer farmers of Seymour Township in the person of Alexander Pirie, in his 86th year Born in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1848, he came with his parents to Canada at the age of nine years, settling in the township, having lived in the same locality for 76 years. Honored and respected by a very large circle of friends, he was a farmer of prominence, retiring from his life occupation last fall, when he came to Campbellford to live, taking up residence on Front street.

Fifty-seven years ago he married Rose Ann McGuire, who with one son and five daughters survive him. The daughters are: Mrs. Mary Flaherty of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Leo Patterson of Wisconsin, Mrs. C. W. Murphy of Santa Cruz, California Mrs. (Dr.) Darling of Detroit, and Mrs. Morris O'Connor of Ennismore; the son being John of Seymour.

He is also survived by eleven grandchildren. He was a member of the Catholic faith. The funeral will be held on Friday at nine o'clock, when requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Mary's Church, Campbellford, interment being made in St. Mary's cemetery, the Rev. C. J. Phelan officiating.

Trent River

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Beaton of the Knox Church manse, Havelock were visitors with Mr. John Boyd, Tuesday.

Mrs. Thomas J. Brown, Mrs. George Brooks and Mrs. Harry Mann attended the district executive meeting in connection with the Women's Institute, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Brown was the appointed delegate from Trent River branch.

Miss Jessie Mitchell and brother of Toronto spent Tuesday at "Raeden," cottage which is being wired for Hydro.

Mrs. Andrew Carnrite has leased her residence and property for two years to Mr. Howse, Sr. of Toronto, who with Mrs. Howse and son Edward and wife (formerly Lila Rutton) and son Paul expect to move their household effects within a week and take possession. Mrs. Carnrite and Mr. John Hay and Miss Alta are moving to Campbellford to take up residence with Mrs. Hay and children.

FALSE TEETH

"Stay Put" Says Druggist

"With my gums gradually shrinking I had difficulty keeping my plate in position with various denture powders. Most of them tasted only a few hours. Now I use FASTEETH, and what a difference! I now wear my plate for 24 hours with absolute security and comfort. Fasteeth does not wash away or become thinned out, but "STAYS PUT" until I am ready to remove plate. FASTEETH is tasteless. W. I. LAYS PLANS DISTRICT MEET

Peterboro' Branches' Executive at Havelock Decide on 5 Per Cent. Fee Per Member.

DELEGATES EXPENSES.

HAVELOCK, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—Plans for the district annual meeting of Peterborough branches of the Women's Institute were made at the meeting of the district executive in the Library at Norwood on Wednesday afternoon, when representatives from all the branches except Apsley and Havelock Juniors were present. The district president, Mrs. Rathwell, of Norwood, presided.

In the opinion of those present, every branch was benefitted and served through the meeting of the district executive, and so all should share alike in the expenses entailed by the attendance of their branch director.

It was decided to make a levy of five cents per member on each branch in the district, the same to be taken out of the regular fee of twenty-five cents per year, to be paid in to the district treasury, for expenses of delegates. On motion, it was decided to have committees appointed in each branch, to see about obtaining the county grant for the district branch.

After a great deal of discussion it was decided on motion to have the convenors on standing committees remain as before, but instead of submitting their reports at the district annual meeting held each year in June, they are to forward the same to the convenor of the Toronto convention area, for presentation at the meeting held each year in November, usually in the Royal York Hotel. This will obviate the repetition, by the convenors of standing committees, of reports submitted by branch secretaries, which has greatly retarded the progress of the annual meetings for the past three or four years, and has been found rather monotonous by the delegates.

The annual district meeting will be held this year at Hall's Bridge on Wednesday, June 6th, the expenses of the delegates to this meeting to be paid by the branch sending them. The meeting will be held in the town hall, beginning at 10 a.m. Dinner will be served at the Windsor Hotel, the fee of 25c per head will be charged for the dinner.

The afternoon session will begin at two o'clock. Miss Powell of the department will explain Institute work and answer questions.

The address of welcome is to be extended by the president of Hall's Bridge, Mrs. Shearer, and responded to by Mrs. Birdsall of Westwood branch. Lakefield branch has promised a reading, Belmont an instrumental selection, Havelock will contribute a vocal solo, and Trent River a reading. A community singsong will be conducted by Hall's Bridge branch.

A letter from the department mad it quite clear that the federated fee is paid any time after September 30th for the year ending April 30th. In other words, the contention of a member of the Federated Board, that the branches which had not paid their fee for the current year before the June meeting were in arrears at the time of convention, was incorrect. Federated fees for 1934-35 are not due until after September 30, 1934.

MORE SIGNS OF RECOVERY.

Further evidence of the steadily improving business conditions in Canada is supplied by the fact that there have been heavy increases in the imports of raw materials for Canadian manufacturers during the first quarter of the year.

This is rightly regarded as a leading indicator of industrial revival, for more raw materials used in manufacturing mean, of course, more employment for Canadian workers, and more business for Canadians generally, because of the increased buying power created.

The figures show that, compared with the corresponding period of 1933, imports of rubber, almost raw, trebled to two million dollars worth.

At the same time furs doubled to $2,000,000; hides and unmanufactured leather doubled to $1,250,000; raw cotton increased from $1,700,000 to $3,900,000; raw wool from $422,000 to $7,500,000, and crude petroleum from $3,300,000 to $5,600,000.

With the weekly economic index steadily climbing and car loadings advancing spectacularly, there is every reason for Canadians to look forward to the future with a considerable degree of confidence, happy in the knowledge that the economic trend is distinctly upward.

THE WELL BABIES' CLINIC.

The tag day appeal on behalf of the Well Babies' Clinic, which is to be made on Saturday, affords the public an opportunity to assist a movement that has by useful service thoroughly justified its existence.

The work of the Well Babies' Clinic has been the source of benefit to hundreds of young parents who have profited by the periodic inspection of their children and by the helpful advice as to diet and treatment that has been freely offered them.

The problem of child care is too important to be left to chance or to haphazard instruction, and the clinic has therefore made a valuable contribution toward a healthier and sounder citizenship by teaching the young mothers of the community along right lines.

Too much cannot be said of the public-spiritedness of the women who have, in the face of many difficulties, carried on this fine work, or of the physicians who have so generously assisted in making the Well Babies' Clinic an undoubted success.

The organization is in need of funds because, however economically managed or however much voluntary work is done, there still remains expenses to be met, and therefore those citizens who are in a position to help are being appealed to for a donation on Saturday, the tag day plan affording a general opportunity to assist in a cause that is deserving of generous support.

GOING AFTER TOURISTS.

The Senate inquiry into the tourist trade has developed some very interesting evidence as well as a number of decidedly worth-while suggestions by which that trade might be stimulated with advantage to the whole country.

However, The Examiner is not greatly impressed with the proposal that money should be spent in Europe in the hope of persuading people there to spend a vacation in Canada.

It seems to us that with many millions of prospective visitors just across the international boundary line that our publicity efforts should be concentrated upon the United States, from which country all but a handful of our summer tourists have always come.

The possibilities to be developed among our American cousins are so great that the good sense of devoting all the money that may be available for advertising purposes to the booming of Canada's advantages to the people of the United States should be apparent to everybody.

With millions at our very doors who have yet to visit Canada, it would be a bad mistake in judgment to divert money to an attempt to induce Europeans to cross the Atlantic to holiday in this country.

Once we have satisfied ourselves that we have exhausted the American field it might be wisdom to look elsewhere for tourists, but that condition has not yet arisen, nor is it likely to do so for many years.

SELECTING A CANDIDATE.

It may seem a trifling matter, but nevertheless The Examiner feels that it has no reason to congratulate the local C.C.F. organization upon the manner in which a candidate has been selected for the coming provincial election.

To choose a standard-bearer upon the endorsation of a provincial executive and without calling a convention of the supporters of the movement in the constituency seems to be a departure from the spirit and letter of democracy that does not fit in with the avowed ideals of the C.C.F. movement.

The Examiner has no means of knowing whether there were any other members of the C.C.F. who aspired to public honors or whether the majority of the Co-operative Commonwealth adherents might have preferred some other nominee to the candidate placed in the field, but we do know that little chance was given for any such candidates to be selected, or for any such expression of opinion to develop, inasmuch as no open convention of the party in this riding has been called.

It may be in the case of the two old parties that the question of the identity of the candidate is often practically decided before a nominating convention is called, but at all events they go through the motions, and the opportunity is always there for an upset if the opinion of the majority present favors a change in the original plans.

The C.C.F. here evidently does not believe in open diplomacy; those at the helm prefer to do their own selecting with the approval of the provincial command, and then to simply announce to the party at large that so-and-so is the man of the hour.

HOW TRADE DIMINISHES.

(Toronto Saturday Night)

There was a time not so long ago when the United States was so exceedingly prosperous that it consumed more ice cream than its cows could give it cream for, and imported large quantities of that excellent food material from this fair Dominion. . . . This was very nice for Canada, and put up the value of near-the-border Canadian pasture land very materially. But as soon as the United States became slightly less prosperous and consumed slightly less ice cream, the American cream producers saw to it that Canadian cream should no longer enter their market. The Canadian cream producers were thereupon compelled to fall back upon butter; and to prevent there being too much butter on the Canadian market, they had to see to it that the New Zealand butter which at times came in when Canadian cream was going out to the United States should no longer enter Canada. They did see to it. So the New Zealanders lost part of their market for butter, and are presumably seeing to it that something else is being kept out of New Zealand, though what that something may be we have no idea. Such is the nature of world trade, or of world nontrade, whichever you like to call it.

PREMIERS NEARLY ALL UNIVERSITY MEN.

W. L. Clark, whose very readable column is one of the bright spots of the Border Cities Star, has been thumbing the Parliamentary Guide and discovering that of Canada's ten Premiers, federal and provincial, only one is not a university graduate. He has compiled the following information regarding the training that these Premiers enjoyed in their youth:

Premier Henry of Ontario is a graduate of the University of Toronto. He has a law degree but is a farmer.

Premier Brownlee of Alberta is a graduate of the University of Toronto. He is a lawyer.

Premier Bracken of Manitoba is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College of Guelph and the University of Illinois. He is an educationist.

Premier Tilley of New Brunswick attended both the University of New Brunswick and Dalhousie University in Halifax. He is a graduate and a lawyer.

Premier Macdonald of Nova Scotia is a graduate of Saint Francois Xavier University, and also attended Dalhousie, Columbia and Harvard Universities. He is a lawyer.

Premier Anderson of Saskatchewan is a graduate of Manitoba University and has a degree from the University of Toronto. He is an educationist.

Premier Pattullo of British Columbia is the only one of the ten not claiming some university as his alma mater. He was a gold commissioner and a government official in the Yukon just before the turn of the century. But to show that he is in the running, Premier Pattullo has a university professor as head of his "brain trust" in the Pacific province.

Hundreds of young people leaving the universities this year without prospect of immediate employment may console themselves with the thought that perhaps some day, particularly if they espouse the Bar as their calling, they may rise to become a Canadian Premier.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

IT'S THEIR MOVE.

It seems to us that Canadian tobacco manufacturers will be very well advised if they accept the suggestion for coming to an immediate arrangement by which the growers will be assured a decent price for their product. The recent revelations before the Stevens Committee smell to high heaven, and it appears to be the manufacturers' move if they are to rehabilitate themselves in the good graces of both Parliament and public and ward off the official regulation and dictation that public opinion will undoubtedly force.

It has been suggested that an agreement may be made with the growers by which they will receive an average of 27 cents a pound for their product. While this figure is anything but high, keeping in mind the prices of a few years ago and the additional fact that there has been little change in the retail prices of tobacco products, it would be welcome, for it would represent the best return the men on the farms have had since 1930. In that season the price for the best grades ran as high as 40 cents, the average for the whole crop being around 32 cents. At a 27-cent average, as now proposed, top grade tobacco would bring about 35 cents a pound.

The manufacturers owe it to themselves, as well as to the growers, to take a reasonable attitude. It must be clear to all that they have not been "playing the game" in recent times, and the sooner they return to a proper basis the better for all concerned. It is clear that Mr. Stevens, having gone as far as he has, cannot afford to turn back now. And we have no idea that he has any intention of so doing. The Minister of Trade and Commerce is an unusually determined type of individual. He may not go around looking for fights, but when he gets into one, the other fellow knows it.

In this case, the Minister has revealed enough information to know that public opinion must be thoroughly with him in his efforts to get a better deal for the men on the land. And with this knowledge of the strength of public opinion, Mr. Stevens is in a position to go a long way in forcing the tobacco companies to do the right thing. That is why we suggest to the companies that, of their own accord and without waiting for official pressure, they make immediate amends through the setting up of a price arrangement that will please the growers and the public and put the business on a stable basis.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Trouble has broken out again in the Portsmouth Penitentiary. Evidently some of the inmates of that institution do not respond to decent treatment.

The Carnation Milk Company of Aylmer has received an order for 30,000 cases of condensed milk for the British market. The Empire trade pacts are responsible for this large amount of business, which will mean much to Elgin County.

The Budget debate wound up without a recorded division. After all that talking the climax would seem almost laughable—if we did not have to pay for the talking.

If the Government is as bad as Mr. Hepburn says it is and Mr. Hepburn as bad as Government speakers say he is and the C.C.F. as bad as both old parties say it is, Ontario voters might just as well go fishing on election day as to bother to use their franchise.

CHAPTER VI.

Three months later the armies of Napoleon were maneuvering desperately to prevent a union of the forces of General Blucher and Wellington. Napoleon had succeeded brilliantly in his preliminary tactics and was about to fall on Blucher, hoping to defeat him and then turn on Wellington.

Nathan was at home with his family, when Julie entered with Rowerth. "Father," said Julie, "Mr. Rowerth has brought a message. May we hear it?"

"It just came, sir," said Rowerth. "I thought you should have it before going to the Exchange." Unfolding the message, Rowerth read, "Blucher in retreat. Napoleon has thrown entire grand army on Wellington. . . . Signed, James."

"Worse and worse!" said Nathan ruefully. Julie sobbed softly.

"You said you gave Napoleon one hundred days," said Julie. "This is the hundredth day, and Fitz has not come back."

"Remember, Julie, I am a magician. My day may be over, but I know there is a message of love and hope on its way to you. . . . Come along, Rowerth, we must get to the Exchange."

Nathan had busied himself behind his desk in his office at the Exchange when Rowerth entered. "Am I to continue to buy? It's sheer suicide, sir. The market is in a turmoil. Everyone is selling, selling, selling."

"Buy! Support the market," snapped Nathan.

Rowerth pointed to the table. "Here are messages from your brothers, begging you to hold back—you are alone in your judgment."

"Are they all blind? Where will Europe be if England is bankrupt? And if I can't hold the market, England's credit is gone!"

"But one man can't hope to hold a nation's credit single handed, Mr. Rothschild!"

"Give me my hat," Nathan commanded, as he started for the floor of the Exchange.

Rothschild's presence on the Exchange floor caused hysterical comment. Sympathizers told him he had backed the wrong horse, that he had lost his luck, that he was a ruined man. Nathan paid no heed. He stood pale and determined at his post, giving instructions to "Buy! Buy! Try to stop the selling wave."

Rowerth rushed up to the Rothschild post, waving his arms excitedly, his voice not audible above the din. He got to Nathan, "Mr. Rothschild, we have news—just arrived!"

Nathan unrolled a strip of paper and read, "From James. Wellington victorious at Waterloo. Napoleon a prisoner. The war is over."

Nathan mounted high on the Rothschildpillarshouting,"Gentlemen,gentlemen! Listen! Napoleon is beaten!"

"You've been over-buying, eh?" shouted a man. "Don't play tricks on us, Nathan."

"I tell you it's true."

"When?"

"Four hours ago."

"How did you get the news?" demanded another man.

"By pigeon-post! By carrier-pigeon from the battlefield. Now you know the secret of the Rothschild messages. Now will you buy?"

There was a moment of tense silence. "Buy with every security you have!" Nathan continued. "Buy without security! With the clothes off your backs. Buy, buy, buy!"

There was a tremendous rush to buy. Brokers shouted and tramped one another. The Exchange was in a terrific pandemonium.

"You've done it, sir!" said Rowerth. "England's credit is saved!"

A formal court reception was held a month later at St. James Palace. It was a glittering assemblage of notables and dignitaries in full dress uniform.

"Well, Tallyrand, I'm very glad the Prince Regent is offering Rothschild some public acknowledgment," said Metternich, "I confess I'm ashamed of the way we behaved to him."

"Well, he's having his revenge now," said Tallyrand, glancing in the direction of Nathan. "The women have all deserted me."

Nathan and Hannah were the center of attention. Nathan answered all the impossible questions with a smile. For a brief moment they were left alone. Nathan grasped Hannah's hand as the two looked at Julie and Fitz, who had just entered. "Strange," said Nathan, "isn't it, that young people like them should be as interested in romance as you and I are—"

Wellington had stopped Fitz and Julie. "May I congratulate you young people?" He took Julie's hand. "In the future, I suppose, he will have to ask you for leave."

The Prince Regent entered and took his seat on the throne chair. Nathan bent on one knee before him.

"England is deeply grateful to her adopted son who, through his generosity and courage, played so large a part in bringing victory and peace to Europe. His loyalty never wavered, his faith in England never faltered. To England he has brought nothing but honor—and for England we thank Baron Nathan Rothschild."

Nathan arose and backed away to where Hannah was waiting for him. Nathan was obviously nervous. He grasped Hannah's hand, "Hannah, do you know what I did? I used the wrong knee!"

The End.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

LINDSAY, ONTARIO

This town is best known for the present generation as the home for many years of Gen. Sir Sam Hughes, Canada's late minister of militia. There is little or no romance connected with the selection of a name.

When the townsite was first surveyed, about 1832, a member of the surveying party named Lindsay, became ill and died. He was buried in a quiet spot on the bank of the river and his companions agreed it would be a fine tribute to his memory to name the town for him. So Lindsay it became, and Lindsay it has remained ever since.

THE BROWSER

Some of those professional book reviewers don't seem to like F. Scott Fitzgerald's "Tender Is the Night"....They are disappointed. They say mean things about it....A fellow in "Time" says of Fitzgerald, "Though he often writes like an angel, he can still think like a parrot."....Which is nonsense.... The Browser still advises you to read it, for its beautiful writing alone. Even though it will make you sad....A poor book can't do that to you. A poor book's pathos make you laugh.....Fitzgerald's first book was written while he was at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, in training to be an artillery officer...One of the Browser's friends was in that game at the time and he doesn't understand how anybody found any time at all at that camp to write anything but postcards to the folks and to your best girl. He was doing double time all day from 5.15 a.m. to 10 p.m.....But Fitzgerald wrote a book named "The Romantic Egotist" there and after the armistice rewrote it and called it 'This Side of Paradise' and it was a best seller...."Tender Is the Night" isn't a great book but it has greatness in it, and if the Browser can't get a whole loaf, he's willing to take half.

Ernest Hemingway came back from Africa the other day with his wife. He grinned at the news photographs through his thick mustache. His wife was wearing a funny little hat that looked like a bull fighter's cap. They look alike ....An interesting little book (with pictures): Roger Shaw's' "Handbook of Revolutions". All the way from "The Amasons Versus Mankind" to "The Roosevelt Revolution"....Somebody asked the Browser the other day if he had really allowed his little girls, 9 and 11, to read Lauren Gilfillan's "I Went to Pit College"—with all that horrible profanity and immortality in it....Well, it was this way. He didn't exactly "allow" them to read it. They were almost finished before he noticed it, and besides he himself hadn't read it yet....Now he has read it and he has no regrets about those two little girls and the words they read in that book. I didn't hurt them. It couldn't. And it might do them some good. Certainly it can't hurt any child to know what other children in their own country are hungry and cold and sick and haven't any shoes and live in hell-holes of mining towns. ....It didn't hurt Lauren Gilfillan to go to Avelonia, right in the shadow of Pittsburgh....A publisher refused her a job as a proof reader and dared her to go and write about the strike area of the coal fields....A girl friend named Blitstein told her: "If you go down there and you look and listen and write 'I saw this and I saw that and I did this and I did that and I felt that,' then it will be a good book." Which is what she did and which is why "I Went to Pit College" is such a good book and a best seller ....She cried a little first and then she wrote chapter 14. Next she wrote chapter 10. And last of all she wrote the opening paragraphs. ....After she sold the book, says Burton Rascoe, the people in the publisher's offices asked her how much advance she'd like. She remembered that she owed half a dollar here and half a dollar there and her landlady had just told her to leave and wondered "if $10 would be too much"....It wasn't. They gave her a check for $1,000...Sheila Kaye-Smith is coming over here next year to lecture....Aldous Huxley is writing a novel in the south of France....Burnet Hershey and Walter Bodin who used to be a newspaperman have writen a book about midgets, and call it "It's a Small World; All About Midgets". When Bodin was in the Browser's town he had a standing argument with a fellow on this paper about the relative superiority of Keats and Shelley. Neither ever won the argument. In his book he says that Keats, along with Beethoven, Swinburne, Chaucer, Chopin, Michael Angelo and Milton just missed being a midget....One of Gertrude Stein's admirers says there are passages in Stern's "Tristram Shandy" that sound just like Stein ....Phil Stong has gone to the West Indies....Lewis Browne's "How Odd of God" is incomparably better than its flip title, which comes from W. N. Ewer's flip little poem: "How Odd—Of God—To Choose—The Jews"....The Browser made a vow never to read another historical novel, but he is deep in MacKinlay Kantor's "Long Remember." Kantor has been criticised for having his hero object to the Civil war as "a capitalistic trap which waited to seize the unwary" (as an intellectual anachronism)....But some people in the sixties did oppose the war on those grounds. See "Rebel America" by Lillian Symes and Travers Clement, page 91: "The more radical of the native unionists ....continued to look upon the impending conflict as a quarrel between two sets of masters with which the workers had nothing to do"....Have you read Dr. George Lyman's "Saga of the Comstock" yet?....Romain Rolland was married the other day. Did you ever read "Jean Christophe" or his "Colas Breugnon"....Such a garrulous old BROWSER!

A Thought

Lord Dundas, being wished a happy New Year, replied, "It had need to be happier than the last; for I never knew one happy day in it." Wilberforce said, "The last year has been the happiest in my life." Romaine's New Year's wish for his people was, "God grant that this may be a year famous for believing."

THE MOON

Ben Jonson in his Hymn wrote this to Cynthia

Queen and huntress chaste and fair,
Seated in thy silver chair,
Now the Sun is laid to sleep,
State in wonted manner keep.

BY H. W. L. MAHOOD

At Cuzco, Peru, a Temple of the Sun was built by the natives. Near it stand several chapels. One of them is consecrated to the Moon. The natives, many of them, still believe in the old teachings. They hold that the Moon is the sister-wife of the Sun. The Sun is the deity held in reverance. The Moon is second in their worship. The Moon is the mother of their tribe, the Incas. The effigy of the Moon was delineated on a vast plate of silver. The Incas incarnate their deities by carving on rock or on some metal rather than by sculpturing the form out of rock.

In Babylonian mythology the Moon took precedence of the Sun as a deity. Among the pagan Greeks the Moon bore the name of Selene. The Greeks had an ear for sounds and tones. Pronounce any Greek word you may select and you will find that it is sonorous. To the Romans the Moon was Diana. The Romans had an ear for rolling, ponderous swelling sentences. They were militant and so was their speech.

A legend or two will interest my young readers. In Greek legend there is a very charming story of Selen (the Moon). Endymion a young man famous for his chivalry and courage athletic skill was asleep, on Latmus, a mountain in Caria. He was tired from his long journey from Elis. Selene looked down from the sky. The night was cloudless. Soft winds were touching the limbs of the trees into delectable music. Suddenly Selene was startled at the sight of the most handsome young man she had ever seen. She came down from the sky so quietly and stole a kiss. She couldn't help doing so. (Read Shakespeare's Portia, Act V, Scene 1).

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

MILITARY HEROES AT QUEBEC FIRES

On this date, in 1889, the citizens of Quebec began to repair the destruction caused the previous day in St. Sauveur by a fire which had destroyed 700 houses, made thousands homeless and caused many deaths. At the height of the conflagration, when it became evident that the fire brigade was unable to cope with the flames, the troops from the Citadel were called out under the command of Major Short, R.C.A., who had won a fine reputation as a soldier both at Quebec in garrison and in the field in Saskatchewan in 1885. Determined to stay the flames at any cost he resorted to the use of explosives and in so doing signed his own death warrant, for he and several of his men were hurled to their deaths in the burning piles of cracking houses. Major Short and his men were given funerals which manifested the grief of the citizens and their tribute to the men of war who had given their lives in a mission of peace.

The happening recalled a parallel case in the same city in the same section in 1866, when 3,000 houses were destroyed in St. Sauveur and St. Roch and 15,000 people had no homes. In the course of that fire, Lieut. Henry Edward Baines, R.C.A., met his death just as Major Short did 23 years later. The fuse went off too soon and he was thrown 30 feet into the flames. He also was given a great civic and military funeral, the French population vieing with the Protestants in paying him honor. A civic monument over the Baines grave records the tribute of the citizens of Quebec. Can any reader tell if any monument was ever erected to Major Short, whose heroism and death in 1889 paralleled that of his brother officer in 1866.

Officers Elected For Havelock Club

HAVELOCK, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence)—A most enthusiastic meeting of the Havelock Golf and Country Club was held in the board room of the Bank of Toronto on Monday evening, May 14th, when H. T. Mathison was the unanimous choice for the president's chair.

Glen Wright was returned for another term in the vice president's office and Robert A. Anderson will again have the office of secretary-treasurer. The honorary presidents are: T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., Dr. J. Holdcroft and Wm. Mathison.

It was decided for the benefit of new players and visitors that new distance markers and directions would be a good thing to have renewed. This will be looked after by Rae Williams and the president. It was the unanimous opinion of all those present that members in arrears should receive a letter to that effect.

It was decided to leave the green fees the same as in previous years. Students will pay one dollar as will single ladies. Married ladies will be allowed to play on their husband's three dollar blue cards.

The large numbers of youngsters interfering with some of the recent games was brought to the attention of the meeting and in future only bona fide caddies or other persons having business about the course will be allowed to trespass on the club's property.

In addition to most of the old members a larger prospect list than usual was presented and all in all it looks like a real good year is in store for local enthusiasts. Already a number of new players have been getting in a few games and the course is at this time in great shape.

Hazing Case Award Reduced To $21,860

EDMONTON, May 17. — (CP)— Award of $6,860 against the University of Alberta board of governors in the Powlett hazing case was cut to $21,860 in a majority judgment of the appellate division of the Alberta supreme court handed down today. The award of $50,000 in favor of Armand Powlett, victim of the hazing, was reduced to $15,000. The award of $6,860 to C. H. A. Powlett, father of Armand, was confirmed. The original awards were made by Mr. Justice W. C. Ives.

30,000 SHARES CHANGE HANDS IN HEAVY AFTERNOON SESSION

SMELTERS UP 3.

TORONTO, May 17 (CP)—Draggy morning Industrial Market sprang into life this afternoon, led by the metal, steel and distillery shares, and prices were rapidly marked up all over the board on volume than expanded to about 30,000 shares.

International Nickel gained nearly $1 and Consolidated Smelters more than 3 points, on the support imparted to all metal groups by the Washington silver plan.

The main morning trading appeared in Nickel and Walkers Common, but volume was more distributed in the afternoon. Nickel closed at $27.80 for a net gain of 80 cents and Consolidated Smelters, closing at 146 was up 3½. Brazilian, C.P.R. and Ford "A" all closed higher; Ford "A" adding about half a point.

Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams were up ⅝ to a full point at the close, and Industrial Alcohol added ⅜, closing at 12.

Gold and Base Metal Issues Have Advances Ranging Up to $1.20.

ACTIVE LATE SESSION.

TORONTO, May 17 (C.P.). — Led by the silver group, the mining listings of the Toronto Stock Exchange steamed ahead to-day on heavy volume, supported by the inflationary factors involved in Washington's silver program. Gains up to 40 cents were registered in the silver group and the gold and base metal issues had advances ranging up to $1.26. The morning session was rather slow, but trading speeded up sharply in the early afternoon.

Eldorado was the outstanding leader in the silver group. It opened 18 cents up at $2.60, and held between that figure and $2.70 through the morning session and then rapidly moved ahead in the afternoon on volume unprecedented in the last six months. The close at $2.71 was up 35 cents for the day. Castle added 10 cents, closing at 65, Nipissing gained 20 to $2.30, Bear 2 to 44, White Eagle 4 to 37, and Premier 10 to $1.35.

Senior golds were slow for a time, trading in the group centering mainly in Hollinger and Teck-Hughes, but buying expanded this afternoon. McIntyre closed $1.25 up at $44.25, Dome 75 cents up at $37.75, Lakeshore 75 cents up at $49.25, while Hollinger gained 30 cents.

Call General Strike N. Scotia Coalfields

GLACE BAY, N.S., May 17 (CP) —Call for a general strike in the Nova Scotia coalfields Friday morning went forth to-day from No. 1-B Local Union of the Amalgamated Mine Workers. But the official and stronger United Mine Workers ignoring the call, it was expected to affect few collieries.

About 400 A.M.W. members walked out of No. 1-B Mine Tuesday in protest against suspension of a miner whose carelessness was said by officials to have resulted in the death of a horse and endangered lives of three men.

Production was continued, however, by United Mine Workers and a few Amalgamated Mine Workers who refused to leave their jobs. Fifteen more A.M.W. men rejoined the working force to-day and a total of 345 went below under protection of Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Radio Commission Aiding Tourist Trade

OTTAWA, May 17.—(C.P.)—The Canadian Radio Commission has undertaken a two-fold programme to aid the tourist industry. Natural attractions of Canada are being sold the United States through reciprocal programmes with an American net-work; and Canada is being sold to Canadians through programmes written particularly for home consumption.

A detailed outline of the Commission's activities as an adjunct to tourist expansion was presented to-day by Hector Charlesworth, Commission chairman, before the tourist committee of the Senate.

GALLOWS GO UNUSED

SYDNEY, N.S., May 17.—(CP)— Bright sunshine filtering into the dreary interior of the county jail for the first time in a week, revealed Walter Wilkinson cheerful and glad to be alive.

The Glace Bay miner was to have gone to the gallows today, but the Supreme court had granted him a new trial on a chargeof murdering his sister-in-law, Mrs. William Wilkinson, and Mr. Justice W. F. Carroll's order for execution had been quashed.

URGE ST. ALBANS CATHEDRAL BE CANTERBURY OF DOMINION

Rev. F. Vipond Proposes Funds be Collected Over Canada to Finish Building.

ANNUAL SYNOD SESSION.

TORONTO, May 17. (CP). — Establishment of St. Alban's Cathedral as the centre of the Church of England in Canada—as the Canterbury of the Dominion—was the suggestion placed before the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto in annual session to-day. It was urged that a nation-wide campaign for the raising of funds for the completion of the edifice, be instituted.

The plan was suggested by Rev. Frank Vipond. He remarked during a discussion, centring about the future of St. Alban's, that Toronto was the centre where most Anglican organisation had established their headquarters. "Primacy is invested in all the bishops at present," he stated. The time must soon come when the primacy will be invested in the See, which may as well be Toronto. Fund could be raised from all over Canada to complete St. Alban's Cathedral and make it the primatial See of the Church of England in Canada."

St. James Cathedral was selected as the pro-cathedral for the diocese.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 17. (AP) — Stocks were given an upward whirl late to-day under the leadership of the metal issues which apparently responded to the new administrative agreement at Washington.

Howe Sound, American Smelting and others, got up 3 to more than 6 point and American Telephone, U.S. Steel, Dupont and Case, advanced 1 to 3. The ticker tape got behind for a few minutes then trading again turned dull. Transfers approximated 1,250,000 shares.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 17.—Almost everyone is conscious of the fact that business has tapered off during the past few weeks, but no one can say whether or not the decline will be more than seasonal. This uncertainty added to the numerous others which have been brought about by political activities, is accurately mirrored in the stock market. Technically, a further rally is called for, but in view of the extent of the decline, one should be cautious in making new trading commitments at this time, at least until a further test of last Monday's lows has been completed.

Intelligent money is being invested in the market in several different directions, but as yet large buyers are not disposed to bid up stocks. This situation, combined with the lack of any stimulating news, is in large measure responsible for the fact that the market does not show much "pep" on rallies.

War clouds over the Far East have not shown any signs of breaking up. As a matter of fact, they are tending to gather. Preparation for war is evident in many different directions, particularly in the airplane industry, where actual orders are mounting and inquiries are becoming much more widespread. There is a lot of romance attached to the airplane stocks and this group is quite likely to attract a large speculative following. In fact an airplane building boom is likely to be well under way before many months have rolled by. We think long range accumulation of such issues as Douglas Aircraft, Curtiss Wright and United Aircraft will turn out very satisfactorily.

Briggs Mfg. Co. reported net earnings of 82c per share for the full year 1933, while in the first quarter of the current year it showed a net of 80c. Briggs gets a large part of the Ford Motor Car Co. business and has been aided by the fact that Ford sales have recorded large gains so far this year, while we would not bid up under prevailing conditions we think it should be purchased on any moderate reaction.

Cassel & Co.—Signs of returning stability in the market are encouraging, but until they become more positive we would adhere to a cautious policy.

Paine Webber & Co.—The most encouraging feature was the extension of the advance in rail issues, thus pointing the way for the rest of the list.

Fenner & Bean.—We continue to advocate the purchase of stocks in this market in anticipation of early and substantial price advances.

Munds, Winslow & Potter.—The technical position seems very strong to us and market action suggests an important turning movement has been made. It seems likely that this restoration of stability to the market will be followed by a sharp rally.

CHISEL SLIPS SEVERING ARTERY IN MAN'S HAND

Bert C. Graham, 610 George street, well-known local contractor, suffered a severe injury to his hand yesterday afternoon while doing some carpenter work on the front of one of Mayor Denne's stores on Water Street. A chisel Mr. Graham was using slipped and cut one of the large arteries in his hand. He was removed to Nicholls Hospital, where Dr. A. G. Howson is attending him.

PAYS AFTER 45 YEARS

ST. THOMAS, Ont.—C. L. Vongunten, jeweler, Blenheim, has just received a cheque for $125 from a man who contracted an account with him 45 years ago. The cheque covers the amount of the account, plus interest for 45 years. The letter accompanying the cheque explained that the influence of the Oxford Group movement on the writer is responsible for payment of the old account.

ARCHBISHOP HAS RELAPSE

TORONTO.—A slight relapse was suffered by Archbishop Neil McNeale, according to reports from hospital to-day where His Grace has been confined for several days. His attending physician was hurriedly called to his bedside, but after examining the Archbishop said although he was considerably weaker he was in no immediate danger.

31 CENTS PAID ON NICKEL STOCK

Net Profit for First Quarter Amounted to $5,049,279.91 According to Statement.

Net profit of The International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited for the first quarter of this year amounted to $5,049,276.91, according to the quarterly statement mailed to stockholders last night.

After provision for quarterly dividend on the preferred, this profit is equivalent to 31 cents a share on the common stock. It compares with a net loss of $80,168 sustained in the corresponding period a year ago, and with a net profit of $4,026,564.64, or 24½ cents a share, for the final quarter of 1933. Thus the first quarter of the current year has shown a 25 per cent increase over the preceding quarter.

The operating income which produced these results was $7,463,766.49 for the first quarter of this year, $1,096,831.78 for the like period a year ago, and $6,526,202.55 for the fourth quarter of 1933. The operating income for the first quarter of this year was, therefore, approximately seven times better than that for the corresponding period a year ago.

After payment on March 31 of a dividend of 10 cents per share on the common stock, amounting to $1,457,816.90, and after provision for payment May 1 of the quarterly dividend on the 7 per cent preferred stock, $3,107,984.32 was carried on March 31 to earned surplus which thus became $25,875,564.62. This compares with a net reduction of $426,632.69 (inclusive of a tax credit adjustment of $197,000) in earned surplus during the first quarter of 1933 when no dividend was paid on the common stock.

Cash increased during the first quarter of the current year from $14,086,610.64 as of December 31, 1933, to a total of $16,691,720.16 on March 31.

In an accompanying letter to shareholders, Robert C. Stanley, president, presents a table showing the relative importance of the various markets for nicked. Commenting on this table, he writes:

"The table indicates the extent to which nickel depends for its markets upon combination with other metals in the production of special alloys for specific uses. Only two categories, representing 27 per cent of total sales, can be described as being wholly devoted to pure nickel products.

"As modern industry moves away from the simple metals towards alloys to meet the more exacting standards of performance, the unique position of nickel as an alloying element is an important factor in the development of still wider and more diversified markets."

MASS BUYING HURT STANDARD

chain store buyers. This partial manufacture and cold storage, etc., adds to the price spread between the grower and the consumer."

Recently a group of growers made some inquiry into the jam situation. Before they were through they were dumbfounded with the revelations," said Mr. Robinson. That apple, turnip and even corn products had practically taken the place of delicious Ontario fruit in the jars was pretty well established.

One grower checked up a few samples on sale in a chain store. He found 32-ounce jars with but 12 to 16 strawberries in each container and yet the products was labelled and advertised pure strawberry jam.

"This is the direct result of the operations of the big buyer who commands the manufacturer to 'send down a sample for so much'; in other words the jam is made to the buyer's specifications. Gone are the days when a manufacturer can put up quality brands and sell on the quality basis," said Mr. Robinson.

"Our information is that one-tenth of one per cent of benzonate of soda will preserve anything for two months. The use of benzonate of soda is prohibited in Britain. Some processors of tomato products in Canada carry on their cans the words, "No benzoate of soda used."

This chemical is injurious and is not necessary in any pure fruit product.

"It is no idle statement to say that there is no fresh fruit going into Canadian jam to-day."

Tomato Growers.

Tomato growers in other provinces are facing a grave crisis due to the development of the Quebec canning industry, Mr. Robinson told the committee. Low costs of labor and starvation wages were the reasons given. Quebec canners could lay down their products in British Columbia at less than actual costs of production on the Pacific coast, said Mr. Robinson.

Ten years ago witness said, quoting a British Columbia publication, Quebec packed 25,000 cases. Last year 1,000,000 cases were packed and 4,000 canning licenses were issued. This year more licenses would be issued.

"A juggernaut of commerce has been created in Quebec and it is rolling over and flattening out the growing and canning industries of British Columbia and Ontario," the publication continued. "In Quebec the companies lease canning equipment to families. The families are large and everyone works. Neither wages nor sales tax have to be paid.

Wage Scale.

The Quebec wage scale, where it could be figured out, ran about $1 for a 14-hour day, or about seven cents an hour. Ontario's scale was 17 to 22 cents an hour for an 8-hour ady, while British Columbia paid 30 cents an hour for an 8-hour day.

"As a problem in mathematics," Mr. Robinson continued, "how can 30 cents a n hour compete with seven cents an hour, or even with 22 cents an hour?"

Forced by Quebec competition to sell at less than cost of production, Ontario growers were agitating for a uniform basis of payment, a code, and the licensing of canners throughout Canada. Representations had been made looking to a conference between the Federal Minister of Agriculture and the Ministers of Agriculture of Ontario and Quebec. At the moment word was being awaited from Quebec.

Mr. Robinson emphasized in his brief the seriousness of the plight of the Ontario market gardener and horticulturist. Many of their difficulties could be traced to chain stores and canners, he said.

Bearing Down on Prices.

"These people have been directly responsible for a policy of bearing down on prices of primary products," said Mr. Robinson, "until they have at last succeeded in placing the fruit and vegetable industry in jeopardy."

Due to his unorganized state, the grower was unable to command these conditions, and, in Mr. Robinson's opinion, was justified in turning for assistance to the Government even though such assistance may of necessity have to take the form of government interference with business."

Some of the evils contributed to the condition of the growers were, first, there was "a collective and organized effort on the part of canners, processors, distributors and chain stores to chisel down the price of our product," Mr. Robinson said. "Second, there is the collective and organized effort on the part of those who sell to the grower those materials which enter into the science of production. In all these operations there is a pious indifference to the plight of the grower."

This was well exemplified, witness continued, in the statement of a general manager of a canning company who informed some growers that "the stock manipulator or company promoter or head of the company had issued orders that the company had to show a profit of $1,000,000 for the year."

Uniformity in maintenance of the cost sheets for canning companies had been advocated as a means of stopping the price war among these organizations "and the knuckling down to the large buying interests." Fifty-three canning companies were operating in Ontario, and at a recent conference it had been recommended that regulations be issued governing acreage planted and a uniform scale of wages in the canneries of Ontario and Quebec.

Wretched Wages

Some Ontario canning companies were paying "wretched wages"-Mr. Robinson said.

"We know the Ontario fair wage officers were called, last summer, into one plant in Ontario and we know," he said "that in that same plant a man worked 32 hours straight at 20 cents an hour and was discarged for falling asleep."

That mass buying had any influence on conditions in the plants was denied by the largest Ontario canning company; but the growers found it hard to believe this. They had been told that a large part of the 1933 pack was still warehoused, yet one large company had shipped 450,000 cases of tomato catsup to England last year and had applied to another company when its own supplies were exhaused. That company was building an addition to its plant.

Salvation Officer Injured By Brick

KITCHENER, Ont., May 17 (CP) —A charge of assault probably will be laid against an unnamed Brealau man because of an alleged attack upon Adjutant William Jolly, local Salvation Army officer, in which the latter was painfully injured today.

It is said that the Brealau man threatened the army officer with a rake when Adjutant Jolly called at his home to solicit a donation this morning. After the officer took the rake from him, the man is said to have picked up a large rock and crashed it into the officer's face.

The alleged assailant then fled. The Salvation Army officer, who was accompanied by another worker, a Mrs. Rouston, was painfully but not seriously bruised.

C.P.R. EARNINGS

MONTREAL, May 17. (CP). — Gross earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the week ended May 14 totalled $2,559,000; as compared with $1,995,000, in the corresponding week of last year, an increase of $564,000.

THOMPSON - CADILLAC MINES WILL PRODUCE GOLD IN JULY

Officials Satisfied Installation of 150-Ton Mill be Completed by Midsummer.

E. S. TURNER LETTER

Mr. E. S. Turner, general-manger of Thompson-Cadillac Mines Ltd., in a report issued to-day states that the officials of the company feel satisfied the installation of the new 150-ton mill will be completed and turning over during the month of July.

Power arrangements have been completed with the Northern Quebec Power Co. and they have informed the mine that power is now available and ready to be hooked up. The transformers are installed, the switching equipment is now on its way from Amos to the mine, and everything is in readiness to connect the power up with the plant as soon as it is installed. In this connection, Mr. Turner states that some delay occurred through the inability of the mine management to transport the heavy equipment over the spring roads. The government have informed them that the roads should be ready for travel this week and all of the heavy equipment, of which there is some six to eight cars lying at Amos, will begin to move over the roads at the earliest possible moment. It is expected that the complete tonnage of equipment, including all machinery for the mill and other tonnage o f equipment, including all machinery for the mill and other installations, Mr. Turner says, should be on the property by June 10th.

The excavation for the foundations of the new 150-ton mills practically completed and by the end of May all concrete foundations for the mining and milling machinery should be ready for their installation. The only possible delay would be occasioned through any change in conditions of the roads from Amos to the property. The management feel satisfied that the installation will be up to schedule and that the mill will be turning over during the month of July.

In connection with the extended underground development planned to bring the property into production, Mr. Turner states that the complete installation of the electrically-driven hoists, compressor and other mining machinery should be completed, the power turned on and underground development resumed by June 15th next.

The new compressor being installed will provide adequate air for the operation of 10 machine shifts per day, consequently a vigorous development program is assured.

In connection with the underground development, the plans announced include:

The west drift on the 300-ft. level will be pushed forward to connect with the high-grade section found on the No. 2 shaft.

The east drift will be driven at the same time through to the O'Brien Cadillac Gold Mines property.

The 600-ft. level will be opened up and stoping will be resumed.

In short, Mr. Turner states the development program outlined will speedily open up the mine in a big way to depth of 600 feet. This should place ahead of the mill a very substantial tonnage of ore.

It is difficult, as stated in previous reports, to estimate ore grade, and this cannot be done until the mill is in operation. High-grade sections have been discovered in development work done the latter part of last year and the early part of this year. However, the best criterion they have to go by is the bulk sampling already done, which gives an average of around $12 per ton on the basis of gold at $20 per oz. There are sections in the mine that will produce a substantial tonnage of better-than-twelve-dollar-grade, but in turn there are sections that will not produce a grade this high. It is safe to assume a considerable tonnage of probably $15 ore, but this would not be mine run and they prefer to take a conservative rather than an optimistic view of the present situation. It is well known that that country produces rich pockets of ore and these are indicated on Thompson-Cadillac. They act as very fine "Sweeteners" but we are content to estimate a grade of between $10 and $12 per ton, operating on the basis of 750 tons per day, an d we believe this grade can be maintained over a period of 2 years from present indicated ore. During that time the mine will naturally be opened up extensively and a complete picture presented of its future possibilities.

SEPTEMBER ELECTION.

CANBERRA, Australia, May 17.— (C.P. Cable via Reuter's). — The Australian Coalition Government which came into power during the financial crisis of late 1931, when the former Labor administration was decisively overthrown, plans a general election in September.

Four flying boats of eight-passenger capacity will be added to the Yangtze Valley air line in China.

To aid growers the Japanese Government has purchased 15,300,000 bushels of rice.

REV. S. H. MOYER PASSES AWAY BRIEF ILLNESS

Pastor of the Springville and Fairmount Congregations.

FUNERAL SATURDAY.

Graduate of Knox College, Deceased Been in Ministry 25 Years.

The Rev. Sylvester H. Moyer, B.A., B.D., passed away at Springville manse last evening following a brief illness. He was in his 57th year.

In failing health for the past six weeks or so, the death of the Rev. Moyer was not entirely unexpected, yet his passing has come to the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church in Canada, as a severe loss.

The deceased has spent many of his twenty-five years in the ministry in this district, having held the Springville charge for five years prior to which he was incumbent of the Westwood charge.

A son of the late Aaron and Catherine Moyer, the deceased came of sturdy pioneer stock. He was born in Campden, Lincoln County. Following his graduation from Toronto University and Knox College, he was ordained into the Presbyterian ministry and held his first charge at St. Helen's Huron County. He held successive charges at Conn, North Wellington and Grafton before coming into this district.

According to the Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, chairman of the Peterborough Presbytery, the Rev. Mr. Moyer first complained that his heart was giving him trouble early in April, when he considered the advisability of retiring from the ministry.

Subsequently the Rev. Mr. Moyer consulted his physician and was ordered to have absolute rest.

The Rev. Mr. Moyer last occupied his pulpit on Easter Sunday, it is learned on which occasion he presided at the induction of the new elders of his church.

Besides his widow who was formerly Florence Copeland, he leaves three children, Kenneth of Myrtle, and Helen and Ruth at home.

The funeral is to be held on Saturday at 2 p.m. (Standard Time) at Springville Church, with interment at Westwood Cemetery.

TOBACCO PROBE IS COMPLETED

they are, they're entitled to a fair trial," said E. J. Young (Lib., Weyburn). "And they are not getting it."

The committee would decide its course of action later, said Mr. Stevens.

Direct To Retailers.

The Imperial Tobacco Company sells 28 per cent. of its volume direct to retailers, the committee was told by Earl Spafford, vice-president in charge of sales.

A telegram from the Toronto manager of the Imperial Tobacco Company was read to the committee to-day. "We should be the ones to complain," read the message. He claimed the L. O. Grothe Tobacco Company had removed streamers and display advertising of the Imperial Company on a recent campaign. This led to an agreement between the two in respect to each other's advertising.

A check-up of the Ottawa and Hull district last night showed there was no opposition advertising in Imperial windows and no Imperial in opposition windows.

The Imperial Company, said Mr. Spafford, bought the exclusive rights to sell tobacco at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. In its latest contract, the company agrees to display rival goods in its booths.

John Hughes, secretary-treasurer of L. O. Grothe Company, Ltd., took strong objection to Mr. Spafford having characterized statements of independent manufacturers complaining of advertising and merchandising methods of the Imperial Company as wild or extravagant.

It was a foregone conclusion, said Mr. Hughes. An organization was responsible for the action of its employees. The extent to which the practices were carried on was evidence the Imperial Company head office must have known of conditions.

What had the witness to say to the statement of Mr. Spafford the independent manufacturers were the offenders, asked Hon. H. H. Stevens, chairman.

"Childish," answered witness. Any action the independents could take of this nature would be so small it would be lost.

Toronto Situation.

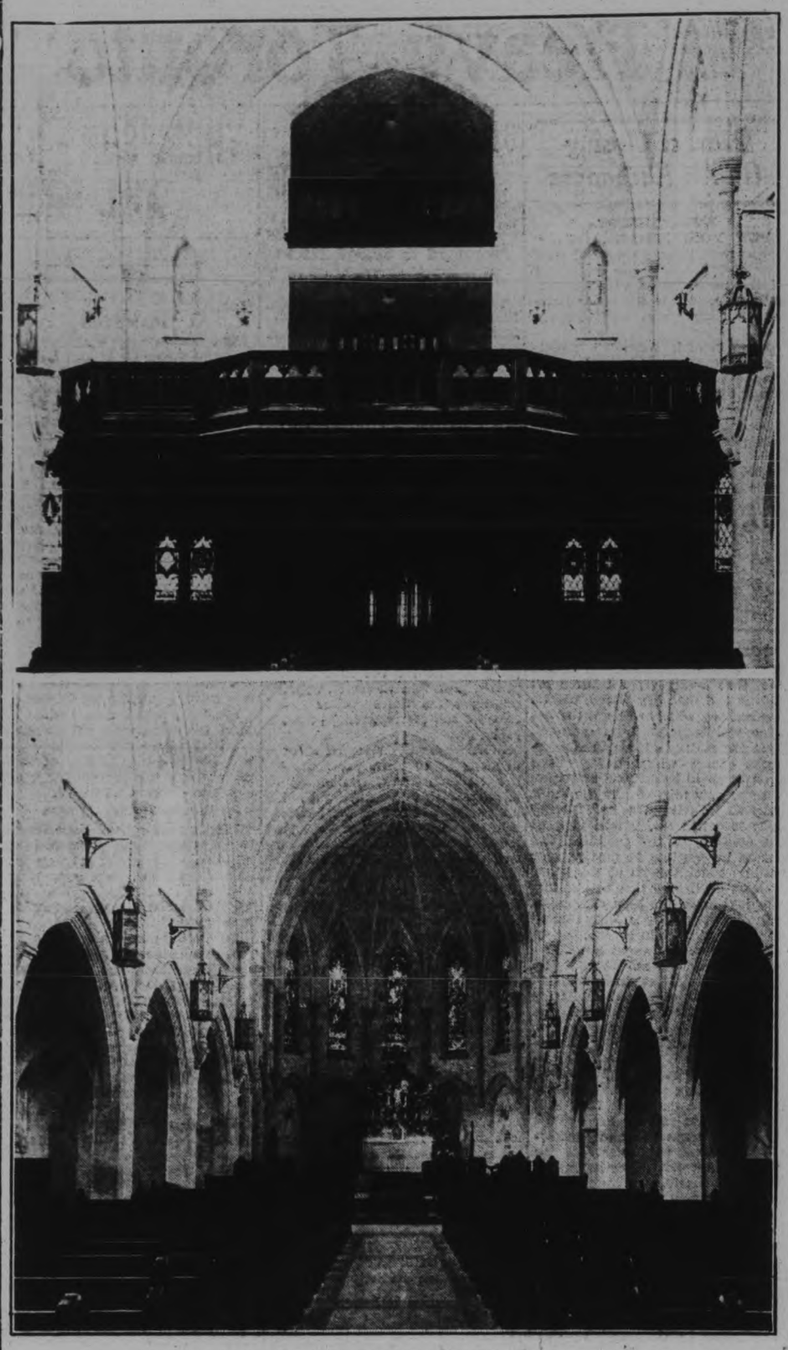
With regard to the Toronto situation, he did not believe any man for his company had put their streamers up in the centre of any windows to obstruct Imperial Company streamers. If independents, however, did not put up their streamers in any window where the Imperial Company had theirs, the independents would have no chance to display, said Mr. Hughes.

In Ottawa on Tuesday night he had inspected retail store windows and had seen Imperial Company streamers in windows which had been dressed by his company.

Answering interrogations, witness said if he thought a satisfactory solution could be reached he would sit in with Imperial Company officials to confer on these advertising and merchandising difficulties.

"Your complaint is," said Mr. Stevens, "the weight of influence of the Imperial Company through their efforts to control advertising displayed in retail stores and the company's efforts to influence purchases of their goods to the detriment of independents, militates against the efforts of the independents to market their goods," witness replied in the affirmative.

Two Views of the New Chapel at Mount St. Joseph



EXPERT WOOD CARVING BY PETERBORO WOOD PRODUCTS CO.

The upper of the two pictures above shows the choir gallery at the rear of the chapel, approaching the main entrance. It is made of American white oak grown in the lower region of the Appallachian Mountains. This gallery was built in sections in the shop of the Peterborough Wood Products Company, formerly the Canadian Alladin Co. and was assembled in the chapel.

The gallery rail is of the open Gothic design, cusped and hand-carved by expert workmen of the Wood Products Company. The base gallery which projects slightly over the centre aisle is enclosed by a massive moulding returning underneath to a V-jointed beamed ceiling. The gallery is supported by pillars having engaged shafts from the caps of which spring arched beams enclosing hand-carved spandrels, the graceful effect of which is obscured in the picture by the shadow beneath the gallery. All the fine work of the arched railings and spandrels is an evidence of the fact that such intricate hand-carving can be produced in Peterborough.

The tribune above the gallery and the five-foot dado around the walls of the chapel, except in the sanctuary, are also of American white oak. These details of the finish and also the Gothic door frames were included in the Peterboro Wood Products Company contract.

The lower picture is a view of the chapel from the main entrance looking toward the sanctuary, objectively illustrating the beauty and refinement of the architecture, the symmetry and harmony of its lines creating an enlarged impression of the dimensions of the chapel.

LEAP FROG BANNED.

RICHMOND HILL, Ont., May 17 (C.P.).—The hazardous sport of leap-frog has come under official ban at Richmond Hill Public School, following an accident which resulted in a fractured leg for 11-year-old John Tracy.

"I never thought of stopping them before, because the game is not rough," stated Principal Scott. "It has been played for 10 years without anyone being seriously injured."

LIFE BEGINS AT 40 AGREES NOTED MEDICAL MAN AT 87TH MILESTONE

By Central Press Canadian

Dr. Robinson

"Corporations want to turn off a man when he is 40, whereas he should be just in the prime of his life," says Dr. Robinson, who recently celebrated his 87th birthday. "All youthful follies have left and he begins to think as a man. After 40 is the most valuable time of one's life. He is rich in experience. He can keep youthful by keeping a young mind. A man is as old as his mind. Keep the body fit; do not indulge in any dissipation."

Dr. Robinson, who is the only surviving graduate of the class of 1872 in medicine at the University of Toronto and a close friend of Sir William Mulock, is credited with never having lost a patient in over 50 years of confinement cases.

"I quit when my reputation was still good," he said with a twinkle in his eye.

Penitentiary Fire Probe Is Under Way

KINGSTON, Ont., May 17.— (C. P.)—Investigation into the fire at Kingston Penitentiary, which destroyed the change room in shop dome of the institution, was being carried out to-day by Inspector W. H. Craig.

In the meantime all was quiet in the institution, it was reported by officials and it was not expected there would be further trouble. All the men of the institution, it was stated, are back at work, a gang of those ordinarily working in the change room being on duty helping to clear away debris.

BURNED LIGHTING FURNACE

TORONTO, May 17. (CP). — Badly burned when some gasoline she was using exploded, Miss Lillian Morris, 47, is in hospital today with little hope held for her recovery. She tried to light the furnace with the gasoline.

Laborite Retains Seat At Hemsworth

HEMSWORTH, Yorkshire, May 17 (C.P. Cable)—Labor retained the Hemsworth seat in the House of Commons to-day without a fight, the nomination of G. A. Griffiths being unopposed. A safe Labor seat, Hemsworth in the last general elections gave a majority of 13,742 to Gabriel Price, Labor, who recently committed suicide.

It was the 33rd by-election out of 39 since the general elections that resulted in no change. In five of the remainder, Labor recovered seats lost to Conservatives in the general election, and in the other by-election Labor won a former Conservative seat, East Fulham.

NEW PULP PRICES.

TEMMINS, Ont., May 17 (C.P.).—A new scale of prices for pulpwood, which settlers will demand from pulp companies during the current season, was drawn up at a conference held in Cochrane. Seventeen delegates from Mattice, Hearst, Kapuskasing, Driftwood, Hunta, Abitibi, Round Lake and Cochrane attended. The conference was called by the Lumber Workers' Union. Delegates decided if pulp companies failed to meet the demands of the settlers, they would not do any cutting during the summer.

SIGNS OF ARMS PARLEY FAILURE ALARMS PRESS

Believe Disarmament Proponents be Lucky to Get Standstill Agreement.

SEE NEW COMMITTEE.

Possibly Include Russia, Germany, U.S.—Bishop Issues Appeal.

LONDON, May 17 (C.P. Cable) —Feelings bordering on alarm were betrayed in the London press to-day at the possibility of the two-year-old Disarmament Conference heading for shipwreck when it resumes at the end of the month.

In the event of its efforts breaking down the "conference for the reduction and limitation of armaments," as it is styled, is expected to hand over the task to the League Council which may set up a new committee, including Russia, Germany, and the United States, which might consider "limitation" of armaments. It seems to be generally agreed that reduction cannot be effected at this juncture and the proponents of disarmament will be lucky to get a standstill agreement.

The Archbishop of Canterbury issued a manifesto to-day on behalf of leaders of all Christian churches warning that failure of the conference would "inexcusably betray the hopes and desires of multitudes."

Experts on Job

Captain Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal and British arms expert, is alread on the ground at Geneva where the League council is in session and Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, has stated he is going to Geneva to do his "very best to bring an agreement out of this tangled and complicated situation" Sir John's remark is interpreted to mean that although hopes of a comprehensive convention are dead, Britain is determined to get a skeleton convention including banning of chemical warfare, and the like—or else, as The Times hinted to-day, a European agreement to outlaw bombing from the air and abolish large aggressive weapons.

The Liberal News-Chronicle said it had learned Britain was considering details of a possible air convention prohibiting bombing but obliging the signatories jointly to bomb any country which breaks a pledge to refrain from aerial warfare. The British government has long stood for prohibition of aerial bombardment, but whether it would consider such a drastic penalty is doubtful.

SUB-COMMITTEE WILL EXAMINE

Passage of Bill No. 18 was followed immediately by consideration of Bill No. 19 which sets up the necessary facilities for the establishment of a central bank system to be known as "The Bank of Canada."

Relations of the banks and the pulp and paper industry will be investigated by the committee. At the request of Major C. G. Power (Lib., Quebec South) the following witnesses will be asked to appear before the committee next Tuesday: J. H. Gundy, J. Cahoon, C. R. Whitehead, G. M. McKee, and John Stadler.

A sub-committee will go to Montreal on Wednesday to examine Sir Herbert Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Pay of Employees.

An amendment moved by Dr. Raymond Morand (Cons. Essex East) at the last sitting, providing for a return annually from the banks giving information respecting staffs and pay rates, was again brought up. The principle of the amendment carried previously and to-day the amended clause was adopted, but not without fresh discussion and opposition.

G. G. Coote (U.F.A. Macleod) suggested that the return be made somewhat more complex with a view to furnishing more complete information as to salary groups.

"The whole thing is wrong anyhow," exclaimed William Duff (Lib. Antigonish Guysboro). "We should not be doing this at all. The information won't be seen by anybody but the minister, and it doesn't mean a thing."

"I think you're right," said Chairman Hanson. "But the amendment was accepted in principle at the last sitting."

Letter is Read.

Mr. Coote started to read a letter from an anonymous bank clerk complaining of his low pay and slow advancement.

Mr. Duff: "Does he say why he's working in a bank if he thinks he's worth more than he receives? Does he say how he came to enter the bank's employ?"

The chairman: "Probably he and all his relatives pulled every possible string to get him in the bank. When I had gone through college and university and secured my law degree I had to work for $5 a week."

"Did you earn it?" asked Dr. Peter McGibbon, (Cons. Muskoka).

The chairman: "I certainly did."

Mr. Duff: "I got married on $400 a year."

The amendment was passed with members announcing their intention of re-opening the section when the bill goes before the House for third reading.

"Why must the mountain go to Mahomet?" queried William Irvine (U.F.A. Wetaskiwin), when the visit to Montreal was under discussion.

"It is an act of courtesy," replied Chairman R. B. Hanson (Cons. York-Sudbury). "Sir Herbert is an old man, and he is ill."

Major Power suggested that, not only the examination of Sir Herbert, but also that of all the other witnesses mentioned might be undertaken in Montreal.

In reply the chairman stated that it was possible only for a sub-committee to go to Montreal and in the case of the other witnesses called, members of the main committee would naturally wished to ask them questions. Major Power agreed.

Want Counsel Named

It was then suggested the committee should appoint counsel to deal with the pulp and paper examination.

This precipitated further discussion some members of the committee taking the position that counsel was necessary in view of the importance of the question, and others arguing that the committee had got along so far without and should continue to do so to the end.

A registered vote finally determined against counsel by the narrow majority of one. Major Power explained subsequently the majority of persons whom he had called for Tuesday's examination were connected with the Canada Power and Paper Company. J. Cahoon, he said, was formerly president of the Laurentide Paper Company, C. R. Whitehead, was connected with the Wayagamack Pulp and Paper Company, G. M. McKee with the Port Alfred Company, and John Stadler, with Belgo pump and paper. These companies had been absorbed in the Canada Power and Paper corporation.

JAPANESE MAKE BID FOR PEACE

Wants Compromise With Britain Over Restrictions on Trade Imports.

READY TO NEGOTIATE.

By GLENN BABB
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

TOKYO, May 17 (A.P.).— Japan made a bid for peace to-day in her trade problem with Great Britain.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota sent instructions to Ambassador Matsudaira in London governing moves to be made in attempting to induce Great Britain to modify restrictions on Japanese imports.

A foreign office spowesman, in announcing the Hirota move, said Japon wants to compromise.

Matsudaira was instructed, the spokesman said, to express Japan's willingness to negotiate with a view to obtaining a friendly modification of the quotas recently announced by Walter Runciman Board of Trade head.

The Tokyo government contends the trade quotas are in violation of the most favored nation clause of the Anglo-Japanese trade treaty.

It was explained to-day that Japan has no objections to Britain's protecting her colonial trade, or to a quota control of such commerce whereby stated amounts of British goods are sold.

But, the foreign office spokesman said, Japan is urging that the remainder of trade with British colonies be left open to the free competition of non-British merchants.

Further, it was added, Japan objects to Britain's using the trade volume of the years 1927 to 1931 as a basis upon which to set quotas. In those years, Japanese trade with British colonies had not been built to its present volume.

Dr. L. Martin Heads Pasteur Institute

PARIS, May 17 (A.P.).—Dr. Louis Martin, one of the world's foremost authorities on contagious disease, to-day was named head of the Pasteur Institute.

For 40 years Dr. Martin has been associated with the Institute which he entered in 1893 as chief of the bacteriological laboratory.

He was named resident doctor of the Pasteur Hospital, which is part of the Institute, in 1900. He held the post until 1909 when he was appointed third director.

Dr. Martin, the third chief of the world famous institute in its half century of existence, succeeds the late Dr. Emile Roux, a co-worker of the founder, Louis Pasteur.

Dog Leaps 100 Feet To River

Few humans would dare to try it, but Max Baden Powel, two-year-old German sehpherd dog, owned by Peter Hanley of Calgary, thinks nothing of a 100 foot plunge from Burrad St. bridge to the swirling waters of False Creek, in Vancouver. Max did the jump several times recently at the bidding of his master. Max has been trained to rescue helpless persons and can tow a 160 pound man through the water. He can also recover lost articles and is an expert at tracking criminals. The photograph is an unusual shot of Max just after his "take off" from the bridge rail.

MARTIAL LAW

RIGA, Latvia, May 17 (A.P.). — Parliament was suspended and martial law was proclaimed through the country last night, presumably because of the government's fears of outbreaks among radical elements. A heavy military guard was thrown about parliament buildings to-day.

Telephone and telegraph services, temporarily disrupted during the night, were resumed this morning.

PREDICTS GREAT SEARCH FOR GOLD

Prospectors Preparing to Invade Coronation Gulf and King William Land.

EDMONTON, May 17 (C.P.).—"A couple of sticks of dynamite in the Great Bear Lake district is liable to uncover the greatest gold mine in the world," Col. J. K. Cornwall, veteran northern prospector, told interviewers here as he prepared to return to the north country for a summer of activity.

A pioneer in Canada's northern mineral fields, Col. Cornwall predicted an intensive gold hunt in the Great Bear Lake district, now famous for its deposits of radium-bearing ores this summer. The majority of prospectors, he said, would be engaged in a search for gold.

One expedition alone, seeking adventure and wealth, includes 11 young Albertans who are going into the lake area for eight months. On a motor-propelled scow, which is also radio equipped and has an outoard motor-boat for emergencies, the expedition will go from Waterways to the mineral fields.

"The North is just coming into its own," said Col. Cornwall. "Each succeeding year will see more and more developments and it will be 1940 at least before there is any slackening up. Personally, I do not believe it will come, even then."

The Great Bear Lake area is different from other mineral fields in the Dominion where deep shafts have to be sunk before paying ore is reached. The good ores are right on the surface, the veteran said. Glacial action has stripped everything down to bedrock.

Gold already has been discovered in the Great Bear Lake field, but greater finds are in store, he believes. "On some of the islands in the far north, which are heavily mineralized, it is possible to lay a ship right alongside the ore bodies. Loading operations will be the cheapest in the world."

Great Bear Lake will not hold the interest of all the prospectors this summer. It is known gold hunters are preparing to go to the far-off Bathurst Inlet country. Others will explore the east end of Coronation Gulf, King William Land and Victoria Land.

Dust Storms Drift Prairie Highways

BRANDON, Man., May 17 (C.P.). —Dust storms to-day were boosting the expenses of the Manitoba Department of Highways.

Because of severe dust storms of a week ago, highway maintenance gangs have been increased to shovel off drifts of sand and dirt on the roads west of here. A road scraper could make no progress, the drifts being packed solidly.

Ditches were filled in some places, forcing workers to go cautiously to avoid damaging the roadway. Fence posts almost were buried. The districts chiefly affected are around Kemnay and Griswold and in the vicinity of Souris. No dust storms have occurred this week.

RUBY BLODGETT GIVES ADDRESS

Large Attendance at Sunday School Service in Roseneath United Church.

GOOD PROGRAM

ROSENEATH, May 17. — A most gratifying attendance of one hundred and two were present at the United Church Sunday School on Sunday morning. Instead of the usual lesson period, the Mother's Day service was justly dealt with, and proved very beneficial and interesting.

Mrs. Ella Brown played softly the musical interlude, and also the music for the hymns.

The story, "Jesus, the Man of Great Joy," was given by Miss Lois Talling, and the pageant "A Procession of Joyous People." The meaning of Joy was nicely given by Dorothy Tucker, Kathleen Brisbin representing "J," Olive Linton "O," and Lavigne McMillan "Y," the letters reading J-O-Y.

A very pretty number on the program was a song by the Junior girls, entitled "Mother," Jean Carew representing "M," Gwendolyn Varcoe "O," Audrey Mouncey "T," Alma Thackeray "H," Shirley Brisbin "E," and Mavis Tucker "R."

The dedication of offering was sung by the entire school and amounted to $4.54.

Miss Ruby Blodgett addressed the audience on "How to Live Joyously," speaking first of our French Canadian poet Henry Drummond, and his question of happiness, when he said, "Half the world is on the wrong scent in the pursuit of happiness. They think that it consists of getting, and in being served by others. It consists in giving and in serving others."

Miss Blodgett spoke for a time about the Norway House, 400 miles north of Winnipeg, and the great missionary, teacher, preacher, writer and trail-blazer, John McDougall. His heroic deeds and great achievements for God will never be forgotten, and in closing she said: "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.

The superintendent, Andrew Brown, voiced his appreciation and thanks to Miss Blodgett, and all others who had contributed to the program to make the service so beneficial. Repeating the benediction in unison brought the meeting to a close.

MOTHER'S DAY SERVICE

On Sunday evening Rev. R. W. Paton, M.A., B.D., gave a special "Mother's Day" sermon, basing his text on St. Luke 2nd. Taking three words to illustrate his address three words which have touched the hearts of the world more deeply than any other words. These are Jesus, Home and Mother.

Appropriate anthems were rendered by the choir: "Memories of Mother," and "My Mother's Prayer," under the leadership of Mrs. Lily Turner.

The W.M.S. and Mission are having a sale of home cooking and aprons on Saturday evening, May 19th.

The Women's Institute are having the summer speaker on May 21, in the town hall and have invited Hastings and Fenella branches to be present. They are also celebrating May 24th, when Warkworth Dramatic Club are presenting their play "Wild Ginger," in the Orange Hall here.

Three Forest Fire Fighters Lose Lives

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 17.—(A.P.)—Overcome on a mountain trail in a desperate race from flames fanned by a strong wind, three Sera camp members perished in the forest blaze near Julian Monday, it was learned early to-day when their charred bodies were discvered by fellow fire fighters.

The victims were identified by camp members and Deputy Coroner C. P. Herbert as Clarence L. Harris 27, Topeka, Kas.; John H. Leapley 37, Jacksonville, Ore., and Ambrose Williams 21, Wesel, Tenn. They were members of a Sera camp near Julian, 60 miles northeast of the city.

SOLDIER OF 1876 STILL A FIGHTER

Montreal Man Who Saw Service Against Zulus Wounded at St. Julian in 1915.

MONTREAL, May 17 (C.P.). — Old soldiers never die. Here's a man, 75 years of age, who took the Queens' shilling way back in 1876 and saw his first active service against the Zulus in 1878 at the tender age of 17 years. He is William Hogan, Irish-born Montrealer. Hogan revealed his former connection with the British army when a claim was published from Orillia, Ont., that a man there who enlisted in 1877, was the oldest soldier in Canada.

An excellent type of the "fighting Irish," Mr. Hogan, with his great moustache, has "old soldier" written all over him. After seeing active service against the Zulus in 1878, he was with Lord Roberts during the famous march from Kabul to Kandahar, and in 1881 returned for well-earned respite to the Old Country.

But not for long. In 1882, he took upart in the Egyptian war and in 1899 he went to South Africa for the Boer War, earning the Queen's and King's medals. He returned to his depot in 1902 and took his discharge.

But once a soldier always a soldier. When the Great War broke out Hogan, then in Winnipeg, returned to his old love, the Horse Artillery, went overseas to France, and was wounded at St. Julian in 1915. He was later sent to Sandhurst as Sergeant-Major instructor, remaining in the army till the close of the war.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN MARY SCHOOL.

The Queen Mary Home and School Association held their regular monthly meeting in the kindergarten of the school on Monday evening.

A large attendance of parents and friends helped to make the meeting a success. Mrs. J. E. Middleton presided.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and adopted. The treasurer reported a membership of 119 and a substantial bank balance from the recent tea and sale of home-made cooking. About 44 answered to the roll call, but still the banner went to Miss Cairn's room.

It was moved by Mrs. Green and seconded by Mrs. Gates that bills from The Examiner and Sunshine Dairy be paid. It was moved by Mrs. Roy and seconded by Mrs. Melton, that chocolate bars be given the class which collected the most paper during the recent collection. Mrs. Ottowell was appointed to look after this. It was moved by Mrs. Crowe and seconded by Mrs. Hoper that the afghan so kindly donated to the school by Mrs. Wand be raffled at 10c a ticket. Mrs. Ballard and Mrs. Crowe were appointed to take charge of the raffle. The afghan will be drawn for at the school picnic.

A very delightful piano solo "Narcissus" was rendered by Miss Jean Moore of Mr. Steer's room and was very much appreciated.

The two speakers of the evening, Mrs. C. Stanton, president of Central school, and Mrs. C. M. Scott, were most interesting. Their messages, full of inspiration and information, made the evening a most profitable one to all present. Mrs. Stanton, outlining the program at the O.E.A., spoke enthusiastically of the leaders of the Home and School work and gave many valuable suggestions for the work in each association. Mrs. C. M. Scott outlined the educational systems of India; then described in detail a typical hill-top school with which she was familiar, and lastly the work and aims of the Home and School as it applied to the needs of India. Speaking from her own personal experiences and contact with the schools of India, Mrs. Scott's address was a revelation to most present and was much enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Middleton voiced the thanks of those present to the speakers and this was responded to with a clapping of hands.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Gold bars weighing 30 pounds and valued at nearly $10,000, unearthed by a poor farmer at Kraljevo, Jugoslavia, are believed to have been part of treasure buried in the Middle Ages by Turks.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH IS SCHOOLED AS FUTURE QUEEN OF THE EMPIRE

Darling "Lilybet" Now Accepted as Heir-Apparent to British Throne.

INCLINED TO BE MUSICAL

By T. C. WATSON
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

LONDON, May 17.—A little nursery in Piccadilly now is the cynosure of the British Empire, for it is a little princess who may sit upon the throne of the great Queens Elizabeth and Victoria, is wrestling with the three "R's" of elementary education.

The importance of her position and the grave possibilities of her future already surround her, for she is getting the strict education of one who may be the future ruler of the world's largest empire.

Watching over her shoulder, guiding the tiny fingers, and moulding the alert little mind to the great things expected of her, is the governess, Marion Crawford, very Scotch, very pretty and very dour. On this obscure young Scottish miss lies the important task of training the young mind of the eight-year-old girl whose chances of being queen are being taken more seriously every day.

Princess Elizabeth is in direct succession to the crown of England as is the eldest daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York who have no son. As the duke's elder brother, David, Prince of Wales, shows little inclination to take to himself a consort and beget himself an heir, the gloriously be-diamond crown of the British Empire appears destined to rest first on the head of the duke and then upon the blonde, wavy hair of young Princess Elizabeth.

Reconciled to Probability

The mighty ones of British are now reconciled to that eventuality and in the conference chambers of the King's advisers, both political and hereditary, they are planning the education of their future supreme head. But for the next few years, the princess is completely under the care of her dainty and pretty mother, and the aforesaid prim and pretty Marion Crawford.

Later the French governess will make her appearance, and the German governess, most probably from Hanover, will enter the scene to add confusion and culture to the young royal mind. Little Lilybet—her pet name—is wrestling now with poetry, handwriting, and rithmetic. She can prattle the usual nursery rhymes, but nearly all have Scottish flavor such as the less libidinous of the Burns' verses, and soon she will tackle more staid and stately poems of Sir Walter Scott.

Both Children Musical

She also dances well, and drops the prettiest of courtesies to her august grandmamma and her imperial grandpapa. It was noticed at the Braemar Gathering last year that while the Highland dancing was in progress she could scarcely keep her feet still, and even broke out in a few steps, greatly to the amusement of the royal family.

Both the Princess Elizabeth and her youngest sister, Margaret Rose, are inclined to be very musical, a talent they inherit from their mother. It is on record that though she is only three, Princess Margaret can hum any tune she has heard once or twice. This talent is now to be encouraged. During the next few months Princess Elizabeth will receive lessons on the piano.

The Duchess of York does not believe in forcing the pace with a child's education so that her elder daughter does not receive more than a few hours lessons every day at present. It is insisted, however, that she shall devote the whole of her attention to the work in hand.

Princess Lilybet's chances of being Britain's ruler are better now than were those of Victoria, the last queen-regnant, the same age. Victoria was the daughter of the fourth son of George 111. Two of her uncles occupied the throne before she began her 64-year reign.

Harvard's Battle

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 17 (CP)—The rattle of musketry broke the stillness of the Harvard yard.

Charlie Apted, veteran head of the yard police stood with his back to a well, pulling the trigger.

Still the enemy advanced. Desperately he fired his last shot. It took effect. Apted had hit the line for Harvard. The line was a white one. It ran across the black fur of a skunk.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office by 5 p.m. on the day before insertion. All letters must be signed by the writer, although a pen-name may be used when inserting non-controversial subject matter. Letters over 400 words will be cut down at discretion of the editor.

CORRECTS MR. BENSON.

Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—My letter accusing the C.L.D.L.' as being an undesirable organization in Canada was with no intentions of entering into a controversy on the matter, but wishing to correct statements made by Mr. Benson in answer to my letter. He asks is it not a fact that the Alberta C.C.F. Government is as oppressive as the Ontario and Quebec Governments? For Mr. Benson's benefit, let me say there is no C.C.F. Government in Canada. The nearest approach is British Columbia, where the C.C.F. is the official opposition. The Alberta House is as follows: Farmers 38, Liberals 11, Conservatives 6, Labor 4, Independents 3, vacancy 1—total 63. I may perhaps add that the present Government was elected before the U.F.A. affiliated with the C.C.F., hence its members are not all sympathetic with the C.C.F. Indeed, the Labor members in the House have very often voted against the Government. It is to be hoped that after another Provincial election all the members will hold allegiance to the C.C.F. It is quite true that both Communists and the C.C.F. believes in a changed social order in a new economic system. The Communists are convinced that this can be brought about only by violence. The C.C.F. believe it may come to Canada by peaceful methods and in an orderly fashion, and that is the purpose of their organization and reason for not affiliating with the Soviet class who are of the extreme and radical element.

A. Murray.

UNEMPLOYMENT LEADERS

The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Organizations in the interest of the unemployed have sprung up during the past year, but nothing much has been accomplished. The women seem to have been more successful than the men in this regard, although we have been listening to the oft repeated adage about women being the weaker sex.

It is necessary that unemployed people should be organized under one head as an auxiliary in municipal affairs, not to create animosity, but to enable the members to do their part as citizens, and regain their prestige that has been lost through a stupid, insensate system. The person at the head of such an organization must have proven ability as an organizer, must also be unselfish and strictly honest, endowed with a common-sense outlook of give and take, and with good business principles. Such a man should be a loyal citizen intending to remain as such. He would never condone the policies of a Mussolini, a Hitler or a Lenin in this country.

Such a leader at the head of the unemployed would soon pull them out of the doldrums between business expansion and inertia. He would make his presence felt by appointing an alert and responsible committee to visit the various factories and impress on the minds of the management the necessity of employment for Peterborough men first, and emphasize in their visits that unemployed men have no desire to remain as parasites, but want to gain their livelihood through honest toil with remuneration that will give a decent living.

Such visits to factories would elicit from the city authorities their aid to place men in useful employment and at the same time relieve the over-burdened taxpayers. The city could be reminded that the property where the Park street wood yard is located could be transformed into a street where fifty houses or more could be built. The rudiments of such a plan were outlined in The Examiner a few nights ago, and this plan would take a lot of men from the unemployed list.

The time is ripe for united action, first by the unemployed uniting into one sensible body with a sensible leader who will use his influence to the advantage of the members, and not use the crowd as a lever for any personal gain. Second, the city authorities and people of Peterborough should assist the unemployed in such a move to help them in getting useful work. Third and last, it is the duty of all manufacturers as citizens of Canada and residents of Peterborough to give work to local men first if at all possible. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

Yours sincerely,
W.S.

Is There Here Two Future Queens Of British Empire?

It is within the realms of possibility that there are ehre shown in this picture two Queens of Great Britain. It shows the Duchess of York, Princess Elizabeth (LEFT) and Princess Margaret Rose (RIGHT). It is reported from London that Princess Elizabeth has been acknowledged as an heir-apparent to the throne and is being schooled as future queen.

FULL BLOODED MOHAWK IROQUOIS TO ENTER PRIESTHOOD ON JULY 1

FIRST OF HIS NATION.

(By Campbell Carroll—C.P. Staff Writer).

MONTREAL, May 17 (C.P.). — Descendant of the proud Iroquois tribe, whose only deity was the sun that shone down upon their vast reserves reaching from the St. Lawrence River to the Laurentian Mountains and beyond, Rev. Michael Karhaienton Jacobs, S.J., will be ordained to the priesthood at his native Caughnawaga July 1. A full-blooded Iroquois of the Mohawk tribe, Father Jacobs will be the first of his nation to enter the priesthood of a church whose early missionaries to Canada found the tomahawk the answer to their teachings.

The young novice is particularly well versed in the history of the lives of the martyred missionaries and is scheduled to speak after his ordination on the heroism of Saint Isaac Jogues and Fathers Brebeuf and Lallemand, who died with a prayer on their lips the Gospel they tried to preach would eventually win converts among the savages or at least the Indians' children's children.

Archbishop To Officiate.

Ordination ceremonies will take place at the Church of St. Francis Xavier, on the Caughnawaga Indian reservation, birthplace of the aspirant with Mgr. Guillaume Forbes, Archbishop of Ottawa, officiating. It was Archbishop Forbes, pastor at the reservation mission from 1890-1902 who baptised the then papoose in the latter year.

Rev. Michael Jacobs was educated at the little Caughnawaga school and at the College of the Sacred Heart at Sudbury, Ont. After entering the Society of Jesus he studied philosophy at the Immaculate Conception Scholasticate, Montreal taught for a time at the Jesuits College, at Gaspe, Que, and returned for the course in theology he is now following there.

Special celebrations both civil and religious are being planned by his compatriots at Caughnawaga. A special Indian pow-wow is now being rehearsed and several prominent pale faces will be received as honorary members of the tribe, and will smoke the pipe of peace with the chieftains.

Similar celebrations will take place when the newly-ordained Indian priest visits the Iroquois Indians of St. Regis, near Cornwall, Ont., and also at Oka, Que., where there remain a small number of Iroquois and Algonquin Indians.

Speak on Martyrs

Rev. Father Jacobs is also scheduled to visit the Jesuit Martyrs' Shrine at Midland, Ont., where he will celebrate high mass and preach on the Canadian Martyrs. He is expected likewise to visit the American Martyrs' Shrine at Auriesville, N.Y., the site of the Martyrdom of Saint Isaac Jogues, S.J., the apostle of the Iroquois and the birthplace of the Indian maiden Kateri Tekakwitha, surnamed the "Lily of the Mohawks" because of her renowned holiness.

The young Indian priest is a descendant of converts made by the Jesuits in the 17th century at Caughnawaga—in Indian, Kanawahke, which means "At The Rapids". His historic Indian settlement was founded in 167 and its Presbytery is part of the old fort built in 1719 and contains numerous interesting antiques and objects of genealogical interest.

Up To the Clerk

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 17 (CP)—A soprano voice sounded through the telephone in the County Clerk's office:

"My husband just bought a bathing suit without a skirt. Will he be arrested on the beaches?"

"No," said Chief Clerk Fred J. Rucks.

"Well if my husband is arrested, you'll have to pay the fine because you said it was all right."

Engineer Killed C.N.R. Freight Wreck

KAMSACK, Sask., May 17.—(CP) — Investigation was underway today into the wreck of a Canadian National Railways freight train here last night which caused the death of the engineer and serious injuries to two of the crew.

George Symes, the engineer, of Dauphin, Man., was killed as the engine toppled off the 100-foot embankment at a curve and hurtled to the bottom. His body was recovered several hours later from the wreckage.

Joe Clark, fireman, and Roy Smith, brakeman, also of Dauphin, Man., were both seriously injured and removed to hospital here. Full extent of their injuries has not yet been determined.

A defect in the grading at the curve was believed to have been the cause of the wreck. The engine ploughed down the embankment, and carried 10 freight cars with it. several farmers, working late in the field, saw the accident.

TUGMEN STRIKE BUFFALO PORT TIE UP SHIPPING

Walkout Votes Being Taken To-day at Other Lake Ports.

AUTO TROUBLE CLEARS.

Scranton Teachers Quit—Minneapolis Truckers Ask Closed Agreement.

WASHINGTON, May 17. (CP).—Labor troubles broke to-day upon the United States side of the Great Lake where a general strike of tugmen was threatened, while employer-worker truce ended other disputes.

At the port of Buffalo, firemen, linesmen, captains and engineers of the Hand and Johnson Tug Line quit work in a dispute over wages and hours. Towing activities were at a standstill.

At Cleveland tugmen voted to continue work through to-day pending a strike decision.

Several thousand seamen walked out to the Pacific coast in sympathy with striking longshoremen. Mayor F. Dore of Seattle appealed to Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes for Federal troops to guard non-union dock workers.

Truck drivers demanding union recognition and a closed shop agreement, struck at Minneapolis and sought to tie up all vehicular traffic by asking filling station attendants to walk out.

Teachers' Strike

Schoolrooms were affected by another dispute. Teachers in the Public Schools of Old Forge Borough, near Scranton, Pa., were on a strike—their third within a year—for revocation of the suspension of Joseph Connor, Principal of one of the schools. They asked also for new contracts and unpaid back salaries.

Striking employees of the Fisher Body Company's No. 1 plant at Flint, Mich., voted to return to work, ending a week-long walk-out. Between 3,000 and 4,000 workers were involved.

Seven of the 12 St. Louis packing plants affected by a strike of butchers and meat-cutters agreed to guarantee employees a 32-hour week and also to restore the strikers to their jobs if they make applications within a "reasonable" time.

At Toledo, Judge Roy R. Stuart was booed and seized by women in a crowd which jammed his courtroom in protest against the arrest of 46 persons in connection with picketing disorders at the Electric Auto-Lite Plant. Judge Stuart ordered the 46 prisoners released pending a hearing tomorrow.

CATHEDRAL PILGRIMAGE MEETING EAGER RESPONSE

LONDON, May 17 (C.P. Cable).—Dean Hewlett Johnson of Canterbury Cathedral, has found an eager response to his scheme for promoting huge national pilgrimages to various ancient English cathedrals this summer.

Persons making preliminary arrangements are confident the pilgrimages will prove of a size and impressiveness not seen in England since the Reformation.

The main purpose is to secure funds for the benefit of the unemployed, especially in those areas where hope of industrial recovery has been almost abandoned—such as in the mining areas of South Wales.

Canada Leads In Consuming Eggs

Canada consumes more eggs than any other nation in the world, figures reveal. In the layout are seen three reasons why. LEFT, a government inspector grading eggs at market. All Canadian eggs are now graded. UPPER RIGHT the White Leghorn, and LOWER RIGHT, the Plymouth Rock, two of the most popular types of hen in Canada.

HOROMETER IS STILL RANKING TOP FAVORITE

Hatch Withdraws Five Candidates Following Differences Between Gentry and C.R.A.

Easter Hatter at Detroit.

(By Dan Burritt, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO May 17 (CP)—In the shadow of the deserted grand stands at Woodbine Park, nominees for the King's Plate to-day were given their last opportunity to show qualifications that would justify their entry in North America's oldest continuously-run turf fixture Saturday afternoon.

More than a score of candidates, galloped, cantered around the oval and broke into sprints under the anxious eyes of trainers and owners, but there was nothing among the early performers to convince observers that R. S. McLaughlin's unbeaten gelding Horometer would be given any stiff competition except from his co-entry Pitchblende, from the stable of R. W. R. Cowie, who twice has received the royal silverware from the Governor-General in behalf of the King admittedly is a speedy three-year-old, but no one around here will attempt to class him with the top-heavy favorite.

Shatters Record

The wise ones just point to the performance of the McLaughlin candidate, entered with Pitchblende by Trainer Harry Giddings, which easily shattered the Plate record of 1.55 1-5 during his early trials with an impost of 130 pounds.

The favorites were put through their paces to-day, but there was no serious workout for them. They have shown what they can do.

Weeding out of the slower ones already has begun, but the list of those who will go to the post will not be definitely known until scratches are announced Saturday morning.

Names of five candidates were removed in a group with cancellation by Harry C. Hatch of his stables at the track because of a difference between his trainer, Lloyd Gentry and the Canadian Racing Association. Easter Hatter, the light and dark blue main hope in the famous Ontario fixture, has been shipped to Detroit along with the others, and doubt was expressed in racing circles that Hatch entries would be seen this year on any C.R.A. tracks.

Probably a dozen or more of the 41 nominated will line up at the Woodbine barrier Saturday, and those who appear to have been picked include T. S. Couchenour's Papalico; Mrs. L. L. Charlton's Sweeptrap; Mrs. G. Hogarth's Missouri Jim; Ryland R. New's Imaqud; Riverdale Stable's Thermal; E. F. Seagram's entry Irish Kid and Candy Feast, and W. H. Wright's Speygold and Sam Worthy.

DR. ABBOTT, NOTED HEADMASTER PASSES IN LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J.

Has Numbered President Roosevelt Among List of Outstanding Scholars.

BORN IN HALIFAX.

LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J., May 17 (AP)—Dr. Mather A. Abbott, native of Halifax, N.S., and, for the past 15 years headmaster of Lawrenceville School, died early to-day. Death was caused by coronary thrombosis, developing after an attack of pneumonia. He was 60 years old.

Under the regime of Dr. Abbott at Lawrenceville School, a $3,000,000 building campaign was started and two-thirds was successfully completed. In addition, he was responsible for the construction of new roads and gateways on the school's large property here.

Born in Halifax in 1874, Dr. Abbott was the son of the Rev. John Abbott and Ella Almon Abbott. He received his A.B. degree from King's College, Windsor, N.S., in 1893, going direct to Worcester College, Oxford, where he took another A.B. degree, followed by a Master of Arts degree at Oxford.

In 1896, Dr. Abbott came to the United States as a Master at Groton School, where he taught until 1914.

Taught Roosevelt

There, he became known as one of the country's outstanding schoolmasters. Among his pupils was President Roosevelt, and a large group of other men who have since made names for themselves, including United States Senator Bronson B. Cutting, of New Mexico; former Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison; Joseph Grew, Ambassador to Japan; William A. Harriman, railroad executive, and three sons of the late President Theodore Roosevelt: Kermit, Theodore Jr., and Archibald.

In the fall of 1915, he went to Yale University as Professor of Latin. In 1917, he became coach of the Varsity crew at Yale. At the death of Dr. S. J. McPherson, the board of trustees of Lawrenceville School asked Dr. Abbott to accept the headmastership here, and on Nov. 17, 1919, he took charge of the school.

Dr. Abbott was married to Miss Elsie Twining of Halifax, in 1897.

He is survived by Mrs. Abbott and a daughter, Miss Gwynne Abbott, of Lawrenceville; a brother, Bishop H. P. A. Abbott, of Lexington, Ky.; a sister, Mrs. Jack Skinner, of Kingston, Ont., and a half-sister, Mrs. Clarendon Worrell of Halifax.

Who Collects?

STONEY CREEK, May 17 (CP)—In Stoney Creek there live a dog, and thereby hangs a tale.

The home of its master is located on the township line, half in and half out of the village, near Highway 20. When the dog is in the front of the house, he is a Township dog, and when he wanders out to the kitchen, he is a village dog.

The owner, quite oblivious to the unsual situation bought a tag from the Village assessor. When the Township assessor came along, the animal had wandered into the Township end of the house, and was flaunting his Village tag.

The owner declined to pay two taxes on one dog. The Township assessor and the Village assessor are now endeavoring to reach a settlement. They haven't as yet. The owner refused to divide his dog.

St. Andrew's W.M.S. Holds May Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Andrew's United Church Women's Missionary Society was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlours. The president, Mrs. B. L. Burns, presided over the meeting. The meeting opened with the hymn "Rock of Ages" which was sung in memory of several members who had recently passed away, also a poem written by the late Miss Lancaster "What Shall We Have Therefore" was read and fitting tribute was paid to the work of these members in the society. The prayer service was under the leadership of Mrs. B. L. Barns and Mrs. W. Zeihr. Miss F. Dixon reported for the Watch Tower with a short paper on Korea. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. H. Tremain. Articles on Christian Stewardship were read by Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Stacey, while Mrs. Zeihr also read a poem on this work. The meeting was closed with singing of a hymn and prayer.

C.N.R. Freight Jumps Rails In Hamilton

HAMILTON, May 17. (CP). — About $1,000 damage was done when a freight train, travelling from Toronto to Niagara Falls district, was derailed this morning on the C.N.R. main line just west of the Wellington street intersection.

The accident was caused by some of the undercarriage equipment on the third car from the end of the long train dragging along the right-of-way. The switch to a siding was thrown, and the three end cars instead of following along the main line, were diverted to the siding. Couplings broke and the cars ripped up the tracks, buckling them in fantastic grapevine shapes and gouging great holes in the surface of the earth. No person was injured. The cars were loaded with a heavy cargo of nickel destined for Port Colborne.

DETECTIVE STORY OF SCOTLAND YARD

The Spun Glass Mystery Will Start on Friday in The Examiner.

"The Spun Glass Mystery", The Examiner's great new serial story which commences in this paper tomorrow, is crammed with action and thrill as the best detectives in London try to unravel the circumstances surrounding the strange death of John Tait and bring the murderer to trial.

John Tait, rising young Britisher, was done to death in a most unusual manner while walking on the street in London. John was considered a most exemplary young man by his family and associates and within a few days he was to have married Lucy Burnham, an attractive and wealthy young widow.

A tiny spun glass buttonhole in the form of a lily-of-the-valley, the most innocent appearing of knick knacks, plays a big part in the mysterious murder. When Chief Inspector Pointer gets on the job he finds many things had not suspected would be included in the case; blackmail, suicide, murder.

"The Spun Glass Mystery" is one of the most intriguing tales The Examiner has yet brought to its readers. It will sharpen up your wits if you join with the best minds of Scotland Yard in attempting to solve this almost unbelievable plot.

Reciprocal Tariff Bill Before Senate

(By D. Harold Oliver).

WASHINGTON, May 17 (A.P.).—The administration's reciprocal tariff bill, most controversial hurdle ahead of the adjournment-bound United States Congress, was thrown open to-day to attack and defense in the Senate.

Democratic leaders predicted passage of the trade-treaty proposal in three or four days. Republicans, primed for a vigorous assault, thought it might take a little longer.

Approved by the House of Representatives more than a month ago, the now slightly modified measure provides a vehicle on which G.O.P. members hope to ride in the coming campaign.

TRAINS CRASH; FOUR DIE

PFORHEIM, Germany, May 17.—(AP). Four persons were killed today and 10 were injured seriously when a single locomotive ran into an incoming train bearing working men from Altingen. The locomotive tore into the middle of the train just as it was passing a switch. It was the region's second railway accident within 24 hours.

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

PARIS REDS ARE POORLY ARMED; RIOTS EASILY QUELLED BY ARMY

An attentive contemplation of the night's fighting, which occurred in the Italie-quarter, within the confines of the same old multitudinous Faulbourg Saint Antoine, whence the sans-culottes in their Phrygian bonnets once advanced in seething hordes to sack the Bastille, that symbol in 1781 30,000 commundards were fusilated by the order of Thiers, convinced me that the days of barricades and street-fighting are gone forever, because of the utter futility to pitch human beings against the overwhelming and pitiless repressional apparatus over which modern states now dispose. Bare fists and pistols are no match for ten-ton tanks and assault-cars that spray deathly showers of machine-gune bullets from their reversible turrets. I don't know whether the revoluntionary chiefs see it that way, but to me it looked like rank suicide and massacre.

Massive Dispay of Force

The fray started innocently enough. May 1, which is celebrated as Labor Day in France, generally sees a complete tie-up of all industry- This May Day was no exception. Paris was as quiet as a church-yard in the morning. The boulevards were deserted. In some of the squares troops were standing to; twelve regiments of infantry, eight squardrons of cavalry, 15,000 mobile guards, six battalions of machine-gunners a hundred baby-tanks and as many armored trucks. On the Esplanade des Invalids ten batteries of the famous "75" artillery had been installed, ready for action. Engineering units I saw, guarded huge rolls of barbed wire and detachments with entrenching tools were posted at every strategic point, government buildings, telegraph offices, power-plants and water-reservoirs.

The Marxist papers, appearing in blood-red headlines on the morning of May 1 called the government's precautionary measures "the greatest single act of provocation ever offered the working-class of Paris." That meant they were going to demonstrate in spite of the massive display of force by the authorities. And indeed, preceded by hundreds of red banners ,the Communists held a demonstration in the Forest of Vincennes, just outside the city-limits in the afternoon. One hundred thousand attended that demonstration. In the suburbs of St. Denis, Villejuif, Montrouge, Chaumont and about a dozen others were the municipal councils are red, the Communist mayors led the processions. The socialists held similar shows in their strongholds which also form part of the well-known "red-girdle," that is the circle of Marxist suburbs by which Paris is hemmed in.

Trolley Car Captured

Shortly before midnight a lone street-car passing through the Italie-quarter was halted by a red patrol, the trolley was pulled from the wire and the conductor and motorman chased from their posts. Immediately a detachment of the Mobile Guards appeared on the scene and the battle was on. The red patrol withdrew in the direction of the "Fort St. Jeanne d'Art" a former seigneurial mansion now turned into a huge apartment block built around a square and inhabitated by workers. The firing awakened the whole neighborhood and within the twinkling of an eye tens of thousands of people were running hither and yon in the streets. Big torches were lit. They threw a lurid glow over the scene of confusion and riot.

When I arrived by way of one of the old narrow streets that can still be found in this district—everything is unchanged here since days of Louis XIV. and even further back—the first barricade was being stormed by the Mobile Guards. The municipal police is mainly kept out of such riots as long as possible for fear, 'tis said, of individual reprisals. The Italie-quarter is a melancholy neighborhood. I had never been there before. One of the streets on which fighting was heaviest is called La Rue du Chateau des Rentiers, Street of the Castle of Caulitalists. Why it is called that I can't imagine. It's one of the most sordid slums on earth, forgotten by God and man, the plainest misery. Later when I climbed some of the slippery stone stairways in the captured houses, where the police had battered in the doors the odors and the sight almost turned me sick. Children in rags, sleeping on straw on the floors, whimpering in the morning cold. Haggard, hungry men and women sitting about hollow-eyed in rooms without a stick of furniture and not merely isolated cases, but house upon house, street after streea of this pestilential stench and these destitute hopeless human beings. The men were being dragged off to the police stations then for questioning as to whether they had fired from the windows and the women and children stayed behind weeping and wailing. But some ground their teeth and spat upon me: "Begone, you bourgeois hyena!" a woman with ragged dress and a fierce light in her eyes shouted at me. I felt ashamed to have seen so much human misery and went my way.

Fired Barricades With Oil

At one time around three in the morning, it looked as if the bloody scenes of February 6 were going to be repeated. The alarm was spreading through neighborhood quarters, equally sordid, and everywhere preparations were being made to throw up barricades. The firing grew heavier around the Jeanne d'Arc block. I feel that the authorities must have given orders to proceed with the utmost calm and to use clemency, touched as they must have been by the sight of so much misery. At any rate that there were no more casualties is a wonder. The assistance of the troops decided upon shortly before three, was cancelled again ten minutes later, and the Parisians in their quarters of the vast city, who had been awakened by the rhythmic tramp of the infantry past their houses, were reassured when they saw the same troops make about-turn shortly afterwards.

The last barricade held out till six in the morning. It was defended by about 500 men and some women. They fired from pistols and old muskets. Now and then a hand-grenade, a war-souvenir, was hurled over the parapet along with regular salvos of cobblestones and bottles. The guards kept out of reach of the missles, until suddenly a dense formation of men in armored coats advanced with big metal sprayers. They came within short distance of the barricade, squirted streams of oil on the masses of furniture beds, barrels and cobblestones and then set fire to the lot. The flames leaped up with an explosive roar and the defenders ran into the houses. Shortly afterwards the tanks came rattling up the street, crawled into the smouldering debris, crunching and crashing their way, without firing however, and the struggle was over, except for the arrests, which now began when thousands of guards ran into the homes, battering down the doors where inhabitants refused to open. Three thousand arrests yere made, only one hundred were maintained. At the police-stations I saw the piles of confiscated weapons, pitiful pieces of lead piping and a few revolvers, catapults, knuckle-dusters and clubs. Against such stuff the tanks always win. The first of May in Paris ought to have convinced the revolutionaries, if Vienna did not already teach them the lesson, that a revolution in peace-time is an impossimbility in our days of modern armament. The day of the barricade is gone forever, gone with the red flannel shirts and the hickory sticks of a generation ago.

During his recent tuor in South Africa Prince George kept in condition by frequent runs along the lonely railway track, averaging five miles each sprint, despite the heat, the train following him slowly.

"TEDDY" HOUGHTON

At the funeral of little "Teddy" Houghton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Houghton, 573 Patterson street, on Tuesday the pall-bearers were the following five members of Troop No. 5 Boy Scouts: Arthur Warkworth, Douglas Young, Fred Brown, Walter Booth and Arthur Rose. The Scouts are comrades of Teddy's older brother, Arthur.

WILLIAM H. HAUGHTON

HAVELOCK, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late William Henry Haughton of Cordova Mines, whose death occurred suddenly at the home of his sister, Mrs. Hiram Thrall of Norwood on Friday night, was held from her residence at Norwood on Monday afternoon to Marmora (Anglican) Church, and burial was made in the Protestant Cemetery there.

Mr. Haughton who was in his 62nd year was born in Belmont township, 1st Concession, the youngest son of the late William Haughton and Lucinda McMurray. Besides his wife, formerly Mary Burris he leaves a family of three sons and two daughters to mourn his loss. They are: Walter of Cordova, John and Joseph at home, Mrs. Ned Haughton of Millbridge, and Mrs. Edward Wright of North Marmora. Two sons predeceased their father. One son was drowned at the High Rolloway, Deer River, a number of years ago. He also leaves three sisters: Mrs. Thrall of Norwood, Mrs. Samuel James of Ashton, Ontario, and Miss Sarah Haughton of Smith's Falls.

Rev. Mr. Caldwell of Marmora Anglican Church conducted a short funeral service at the house before proceeding to Marmora, where a public service was held in the Anglican church.

Mr. Haughton had gone to visit his sister at Norwood on Wednesday, May 9, intending to return to his home at Cordova on Saturday. Though in poor health for the past six years, he was apparently as well as usual on Friday evening, when he partook of the evening meal. His death occuring a few hours later came as a distinct shock to his family and friends.

Pickerel Are Biting Good At Trent River

TRENT RIVER, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—Pike and pickerel fishing season opened with a good start Wednesday morning, with Clarence Johnson bringing home four fine pickerel. The largest one tipped the scales at 5 pounds, 29 inches length and 16 inches girth; one weighed 4 pounds, 25 inches long and 14 inches girth. The smaller ones weighed three pounds each.

Many early risers "hiked it" to the big pier above the swing bridge on the opening morning.

Here's Joyful News For Rheumatic Sufferers

Killing the pain of neuritis, sciatica, and rheumatism with dope doesn't end your agony—you've got to get the excess uric acid out of your joints and muscles.

Thousands joyfully praise ALLENRU because they know by experience that when taken as directed the pain—the agony of rheumatism, sciatica, and neuritis leaves the body in 48 hours — no matter how stubborn and persistent it is.

Leading druggists everywhere know this —often from happy children they hear the words "Father's on the job again" or "Mother is doing the housework once more."

ALLENRU is so swiftly effective that it is being sold by leading druggists everywhere for rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, and neuritis.

Following the discovery of new rivers and a lake, six miles long and four miles wide, in the Kalahari Desert, in South Africa, an aerial survey will be made to investigate the possibility of creating a vast reservoir.

ANNUAL BANQUET IS BIG SUCCESS

Delightful Program Given at Norwood United Church Gathering.

HASTINGS, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—The second annual Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet held under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held on Monday evening, May 14th, when 75 mothers and daughters sat down to a well-prepared banquet supper served by the young men of the choir.

The tables and rooms were attractively decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white. Lovely bouquets of Spring flowers were in abundance adding to the appearance of the long line of tables, bountifully laden with appetizing dishes of all description.

After the sumptuous repast the program, consisting of toasts, addresses, reading and solos added to the delight of the evening.

The toast to "Our King," was proposed by Miss Frances Hoard and responded to by the singing of the National Anthem.

The toast to "The Church" was proposed by Miss Marjorie Scriver and responded to by the pastor, Rev. H. J. Bell.

Little Ruth Bell, three-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Bell, then made her first appearance in public, and delighted those present by her recitation, "Sunshine."

Loving tribute was paid "Our Mothers" in a beautifully-worded toast, proposed by Miss Helen Collins; to which Mrs. H. J. Bell, on behalf of the mothers, responded, emphasizing the desire of being worthy of the appreciative words.

The toast to "Our Daughters" proposed by Mrs. H. E. Oliver, was most effective and most fittingly responded to by Mrs. G. Sine.

Mrs. H. Edwards contributed a pleasing solo appropriate for the occasion.

Mrs. Hugh Robb of Norwood, vice president of this section of the Presbyterial, gave a brief address, followed by an instrumental by Misses Carrie Doxsee and Marjorie Scriver.

An address by Mrs. Morton of Peterborough, secretary of the Girls' Circle Work for the Presbyterial, was followed by a duet, "Mother and the Book of God," by Mrs. Gordon Faux and Miss Winnie Huycke.

An address by Mrs. Basil Tucker of Norwood, the Mission Band Secretary for this Presbyterial, was followed by the closing number of the program, a solo, "The Gift" by Miss Mae Huycke.

STEVENS RAPS MILL INDUSTRY MEAT PACKERS

System of Mercantile Distribution Pulp Business Also Criticized.

LIFE AGENCY LUNCHEON.

Must Preserve Canada as Land of Homes, "Aid Fellow at Bottom."

OTTAWA, May 17 (C.P.)—The Canadian flour industry, the meat packing industry, the system of mercantile distribution, and the pulp and paper industry came in for brief criticism by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce and head of the House of Commons buying committee, yesterday.

Addressing a luncheon of the 15th annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Life Agency Officers here, the minister asserted that "the welfare of the fellow at the bottom should be our first consideration."

By the "feloiw at the bottom" Mr. Stevens explained that he meant the primary producer who gave his life to building a home in Canada. Canada must be preserved as a land of homes, he said.

In Canada to-day, said the minister, the flour milling industry was developed to a point where it was equal to about 250 per cent of the requirements of the country, both domestic and export. "No one can tell me that is a sound condition," he said. "No one can tell me that it is not inimical to the life of the country." The meat packing industry, not so expanded as the flour milling industry; nevertheless exercised, he said, a dominant position over the basic farming group.

Small Town Life in Danger

Mercantile distribution, said the minister, was a world problem which challenged the ingenuity of the best minds everywhere. It was "crying out for scientific solution." In Canada there had grown up great mercantile organizations which, on the one hand, had developed to a point where their powers were dictatorial, and on the other did not offer any real saving. One effect of these great organizations was to destroy small town life which Mr. Stevens considered of basic importance.

The pulp and paper was another great industry based on the natural resources of the country. That industry, said Mr. Stevens, had it not been overburdened with mortgage indebtedness, might have come through the financial crisis with much less difficulty than it had experienced. What advantage had accrued from loading it up with bonds. He asked his audience which was best, to have capital investment by those directly and vitally interest in the development of an industry and familiar with the way to do it, or to have huge bonded indebtedness and securities held by persons who knew nothing of the industry. Ownership control or mortgage control was the question, he said.

BIRTH

OPPOSE BRITISH SEAMEN JOINING COLOMBIAN NAVY

100 MEN INVOLVED.

Denied by Admiralty Official —Says Country Not at War.

LONDON, May 17. — (A P) — Charges that 100 former officers and seamen of the British fleet who left Saturday to join the Colombian navy are 'mercenaries' were delivered today in the House of Commons.

"May I ask whether it is decent for British subjects to be sent out as mercenaries to kill other people" demanded Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, in an impassioned speech from the floor.

Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, First Lord of the Admiralty, replied that there was "nothing to show that these men are taking part in any hostilities, inasmuch as Colombia is not at war."

The men's services were sought by the Colombian government and therefore they were not going as mercenaries, he declared.

Obituary

MRS. HENRY JOCELYN.

The death occurred early this morning of Mary Elizabeth McKereghan, beloved wife of Henry Jocelyn, formerly of Toronto, at the family residence, 111 Crescent Street. She was in her 60th year.

Besides her husband, the deceased leaves three daughters: Mrs. Cockburn and Mrs. Lewis, both of Toronto, and Mrs. P. J. Heck of this city.

The remains were forwarded to Toronto on the afternoon C.P.R. train, arrangements having been made for the funeral to be held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Cockburn, 5 Larking Avenue, Toronto, on Saturday, with interment at Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

JOHN McDONALD

John McDonald, lifelong resident of this city, passed away early this morning at his residence, 385 Queen street, following upon an illness of some weeks' duration. A former employee of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, whom he served for some years as freight shed foreman, before being superannuated about twelve years ago, the deceased was widely known and respected. He was a faithful member of St. Peter's Cathedral congregation over a long period of years.

A son of the late Bernard McDonald and Mary Ann Flood, the deceased was born in this city. Besides his widow, he leaves one son, Frank McDonald of Ottawa.

The funeral is to be held on Saturday with a celebration of Requiem Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 a.m., followed by interment at St. Peter's cemetery.

JOHT RAINE

The victim of immpaired health directly attributed to his military service during the Great War with the Imperial Forces, John Raine died at his residence, 522 Sherbrooke street early this morning. As a member of the Royal Field Artillery the deceased saw four years of active service in Egypt, France and with the Army of Occupation in Germany.

A blacksmith by trade, the late Mr. Raine came to Peterborough from Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, five years ago, and for a time was employed with the William Hamilton Company. Latterly he spent five months in Christie Street Military Hospital, suffering from a heart condition. He returned home a few weeks ago. He leaves his wife and family.

The late Mr. Raine was a member of the local branch of the Canadian Legion and also of Peterborough Lodge Loyal Order of Moose, and attended St. John's Church.

Funeral services are to be held at Comstock's Funeral Home at 3 o'clock, p.m. on Friday, with Venerable Archdeacon Dr. R. C. Blagrave officiating, and under auspices of the local branch of the Legion.

Interment will be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

BELIEVED DROWNED.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 17 (C.P.)—Believed to have drowned in Hamilton Bay, police were to-day seeking the body of William Mitchell, Paris. According to the police, Mitchell had a nervous breakdown some time ago and left his home at Paris yesterday in a car. He was reported missing last night, and today clothing was found on the bayshore, in which a watch bearing his name and a driver's permit was found. The car has not been discovered.

JACK BRANSOM HEADS A.Y.P.A.

Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr Addresses Annual Dinner of St. John's A.Y.P.A.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

The annual dinner of St. John's branch of the Anglican Young Peoples' Association last evening brought to a happy conclusion another season of unusual activity and gratifying progress.

Jack Marshall presided over the earlier part of the proceedings as toastmaster later relinquishing the presidential chair which he has held for two successive terms, in favor of Jack Bransom whose election as head of the branch for the ensuing term was made by acclamation.

Other officers installed during the course of the evening by R. N. Stuart, were as follows: vice-president, Thomas Williams; secretary, May Holmes; treasurer, Florence Lemming.

Has Faith in Youth

The Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church as guest speaker for the occasion delivered an inspiring address, in which he expressed the opinion that the youth of to-day are meeting the challenge of life in a very progressive fashion.

Speaking of what he termed the "excesses" in which youth indulged following the abnormal years immediately following upon the Great War the speaker was of the firm opinion, that to-day youth has begun to react, and that they are choosing the higher life. The challenge was being met he felt, in a better appreciation by the youth of to-day of the idea of friendship; by their better conception of the meaning of duty and service; and by their greater capacity for sacrifice.

Dr. Barr was tendered a hearty vote of appreciation on motion of Thomas Williams, seconded by Rose Puddick.

The Retiring President

During the course of his address in which he reviewed the activities of the past year, the retiring president urged the members to attend church regularly. He also commented on the fact that some of the members are engaged in active work in the Sunday school, choir and other organizations, while others still were contributing their share in various other ways.

He expressed the opinion that the program during the past season had been a well-balanced one, and remarking on the fact that membership had increased stated also that attendance at meetings had shown improvement.

He thanked the executive committee for their loyal support, and acknowledged the kindly interest that had been shown in the organization by Archdeacon Dr. R. C. Hagrave and the Rev. E. R. James.

An illuminating report covering the season's activities in detail was presented by secretary May Holmes, while the report of treasurer Florence Lemmings showed a credit balance as at May 15th of $102.98.

The Toast List

Following dinner which was served by the members of the Women's Friendly Bible Class under presidency of Mrs. G. Pakenham, group singing was led by Edward McDonald, with Jack Marshall accompanying at the piano. Alfred Stephenson contributed a piano solo to the musical part of the program, while Bill Coleman provided a humorous recitation.

Toasts included, "Our Church" ably proposed by Ena Young, and responded to by Jack Bransom; "The A.Y.P.A." proposed by Florence Hutchinson to which Eleanor Bothwell replied; "Our Country," proposed by Arthur Bacon during the course of which he touched upon Canada's past and present achievements, and which was honored by the singing of "O Canada."

The very able manner in which the various toasts were handled by the respective proposers and seconders was one of the features of the program, which drew favorable comment from Mr. Stuart, lay reader at St. John's who was present to officiate at the installation of officers.

JOINT MEETING IS HELD BY BRANCHES

All Saints' Auxiliary Holds Delightful Evening Meeting.

A joint meeting of the Junior, Evening and Afternoon branches of the Woman's Auxiliary was held at All Saints' church on Tuesday evening of this week. Miss Gwen Dobbin, President of the Evening Branch, presided and led in the devotional exercises. The program consisted of the Bible reading by Mrs. J. M. McCullough, piano solo by Miss Elsie Chambers, vocal solo by Mrs. Cutmore, reading by Miss Beryl Johnson, and reports of the recent annual meeting of the Women's Association held in St. Anne's church, Toronto, by Mrs. Connolly, Superintendent of the Junior Branch, and Mrs. C. E. Curtis and Mrs. Dawson, of the Afternoon Branch. Dainty refreshments were served by the young women of the Evening Branch from a prettily arranged table, covered with a lace cloth and centered with a silver basket, filled with snapdragon, with silver candlesticks holding mauve candles at each corner. Tea and coffee were poured by Mrs. S. A. Harris and Mrs. Dawson.

THEATRES

CONSTANCE BENNETT AND EDNA MAY OLIVER

There are other people than these two in the double bill that makes the Regent's entertainment for the middle of this week, but they are not so important.

Constance Bennett is a beautiful Russian spy in "After To-night," with Gilbert Roland playing opposite as the Austrian officer who finally discovers her activities. There is plenty of scope for romance and interest in this picture, in which the good-looking Connie acts in her usual efficient style, and sings very charmingly in her low, throaty voice. As a spy, she is at first a cabaret singer, then a seamstress, later a Red Cross nurse, looking very charming in each of the several roles. Roland makes a very satisfactory lover and the story progresses to a happy ending.

The happy combination of Edna May Oliver and Edward Everett Horton, with Andy Devine thrown in for good measure, makes the second feature, "The Poor Rich," a riot of chuckles. The elderly lady with the sniff (which, by the way, she doesn't use in this picture), and the prim gentleman who strives so earnestly at all times to do the proper and polite thing, make a wonderful team. Any picture in which they appear can't help but be good, and this one is lots of fun.

Andy Devine is Andy Crumm, and the whole event takes place in the old Spottiswoode mansion, where Harriet Winthrop Spottiswoode (Edna May Oliver) and her cousin, Albert Stuyvesant of the same name (Edward Everett Horton), arrive to take up their abode in an exceedingly impoverished state. The story is a farcial one, but extremely entertaining.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS GARDENS' OPENING

Mose Yokom's Band Delights Large Crowd of Dancers.

A fine and greatly pleased crowd attended the opening of the Brock Street Summer Gardens last night, and expressed themselves as very delighted with everything that goes to make a place of amusement such as this popular. The enlarged floor was filled to capacity for many of the dances and was in fine condition. The band, under Mose Yokom, musical director, came in for a great deal of commendation, and the feeling among the dancing public is that this musical organization is fast becoming one of the best dance bands in the province. The gay decorations, new to the large crowd, which have turned the big building into a veritable garden, attracted the attention of the crowd and it may be said that nothing quite as pretentious in the line of decorations has ever been attempted in this district.

It is surprising the number of non-dancers in addition to the great crowd of dancers that attend. The public is invited to drop in and see the young people enjoy themselves so thoroughly, and hear a fine band concert, under conditions that are thoroughly clean aid enjoyable.

Clergy Of Diocese Meeting In Lindsay

LINDSAY, May 17.—A conference of the Roman Catholic clergy of the Diocese of Peterborough which is taking the form of an eucharistic congress, is being held in St. Mary's Church here to-day. RADIO BROADCASTS BY DIOCESE OF TORONTO TO BE CONSIDERED

Bishop and Executive Asked to Nominate Survey Body.

TRIBUTE TO J. R. ROAF.

TORONTO, May 17.—Official entry of the Toronto Diocese of the Church of England in Canada as a unit into the Sunday radio broadcasting field will be considered, it was decided at last night's session of the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto, in St. James' Parish House.

After a general discussion in which the broadcasts of various other denominations and seots were discussed and the comparative rarity of Anglican religious services on the air deplored, it was agreed to request the Bishop and Executive Committee to nominate a body of Synod members to study the question of Toronto diocesan broadcasting, such committee to have power to act subject to the approval of the Executive Committee.

"Very Strange Forms"

The notice of motion bore the names of Canon C. V. Pilcher and Rev. Gordon Hern, but it was Canon H. P. Plumptre who presented it, and Provost F. H. Cosgrave of Trinity College who opened the discussion. "These days," said the Provost, "there are all sorts of people using the air for religious purposes, in a way that few persons —none, I fancy, in this Synod—can approve of. There are indeed some very strange forms of religion thus presented. Financial difficulty has unfortunately caused the cessation of broadcasting by many Anglican churches in this diocese, where formerly a number put their services on the air. In fact, I have heard none recently, except St. Stephen's, and even there, I understand, they are encountering difficulty."

Urging that the motion be adopted, Provost Cosgrave proceeded: "It is a very serious thing if our Church is not to be represented on the air when hundreds of thousands are listening in. On Sunday evenings, vast numbers of our people are not in church. They are at home, or in somebody else's home, listening to the radio."

Accepts Correction

Principal R. B. McElheran of Wycliffe College rose to observe that the present broadcasts of St. Thomas's Church had been ignored by the previous speaker. This correction Provost Cosgrave accepted, but added that he had been referring to "typically Anglican" services, held during regular church-service periods.

Here Bishop D. T. Owen interjected the opinion that it was highly desirable to take this action."

Rev. J. R. S. Boyd said: "Some time ago the Russellites were denied the air, and adopted the expedient of calling themselves Jehovah's Witnesses. I might suggest that if the Radio Commission were advised of this it might shut them off the air again, which would be highly desirable."

After further discussion, the motion was passed.

Another feature of the evening session was a striking tribute tendered James R. Roaf, K.C., Chairman of the Superannuation Fund Committee. Presenting his report, Mr. Roaf, who is over 80 years of age, feelingly remarked that this was his "swan song" as head of that committee, of which he had been a member for thirty years. Led by Bishop Owen, the Synod joined for five minutes in extending warm verbal tribute to Mr. Roaf, who has been an active member of the Church since 1881.

The remainder of the evening business was of a routine nature, and included presentation of reports by the following committees: Toronto Rectory Endowment, Diocesan Church Extension Fund, Widows' and Orphans' Fund, Anglican Unemployment Relief Committee, Synod Committee on Jewish Work, and Trinity College.

Reluctant Decision.

A reluctant decision to make certain reductions in grants was announced by Rev. Dr. H. J. Cody in offering the report of the Commission for the Distribution of the Surplus Revenue of the Rectory of St. James. These cuts will affect city chaplains, the Mission Board and curates and parish helpers, and the Warden of the Church Army.

Telling of the recent presentation of an honorary degree by Trinity College to Canon Stacey Waddy of the S.P.G., and of the handing of the certificate to him by the Archbishop of Canterbury before a great assembly in London, Provost Cosgrave stated: "We should do what we can to keep alive in our memories what the great English societies did in the early days for church life in this country."

Synod members were invited by the Provost to attend the convocation on Friday, when an honorary degree will be given the Bishop of Madras. The Bishop, who is a brother of Principal Waller of Huron College, London, Ont., is expected to speak at Synod Friday morning.

Mission Suggested.

The endorsation of a suggestion that a mission "to stir up people to a more vital grasp of their faith," and to be held either next fall or next year, was a feature of the afternoon session yesterday.

"There are thousands of people who do not know God at all," said Canon Hartley, who spoke favoring the idea of a mission and also urged that all those who would be preaching at it should first go into retreat. He added that there was too great a feeling among people that they did not want to speak of religious things at all. St. Paul, he felt, would not have approved of such an attitude. The last such mission was in 1923, Canon Hartley recalled; he felt that such another one would be "a great help and benefit to the spirituality of the Church."

Presenting the report of the representatives of the Diocese of Toronto on the Board of Management of the Missionary Society of the Church of England Rev. R. A. Armstrong paid high tribute to the missionaries and pastors who had given up a percentage of their salaries for the Restoration Fund, and also to Sir Henry Drayton for his report on the fund. Mr. Armstrong asked: "Are you converted enough to make a person-to-person canvass for your parish? Consecrate yourself!" Telling of his own realisation that self-reconsecration was necessary and that it was time for him "to get down off my perch," he said: "To-day I believe we need very much to get down off our perches."

Rev. Canon Gould spoke of the Restoration Fund; of work in India among the lepers of the Punjab, and of the work in Japan and China. He told the Synod that up to May 17 the sum of $401.17 had been subscribed by 100 Indian children at the Residential School at Chapleau toward the Restoration Fund, and cited this as an instance of what could be done.

Responsive to Real Need.

"I have," he said, "come to have most splendid confidence in the sanity of the Church of England in Canada. For while not susceptible to emotional, ill-grounded appeals, it is responsive to the real need." The Church, he said, was very jealous of its honor, and this fact was largely responsible for the fine response to the Restoration Fund appeal.

In the absence of Archdeacon Warren, Ven. A. R. Beverley, Archdeacon of Simcoe, presented the report of the Mission Board and lauded the ability of the men who went out to the remote districts. "A more adequate support" was seen by the Archdeacon as the board's greatest need. "We ought," he felt, "to disseminate more adequate information about our work," citing the many acts of heroism in the Arctic and elsewhere. There should also, he said, be an effort made "to touch the hearts of the people."

Partial restoration of the Mission Board grants was hoped for in 1935 by the Archdeacon, who added that such restoration must be dependent largely upon the action and zeal put forward in enlisting the interest of the people.

A message, assuring Synod of his interest and prayers, was read by Bishop Owen from Archdeacon Sweeny.

A glowing account of the progress of mission work in China was offered by Right Rev. Charles White, retired Bishop of Honan, and now a resident of Toronto. He was accorded a warm ovation.

A deputation representing Central Home and School Association waited upon Mrs. J. W. Kingsbury at her home on Monday evening and presented her with a handsome silver cake basket in recognition of her services to the association during the terms of the 1932 and 1933. Mrs. Wilfred Boorman read the address and Mrs. N. Stanger presented the gift. Although completely taken by surprise, Mrs. Kingsbury made a suitable reply. The following address accompanied the present: "Dear Mrs. Kingsbury —As you terminate a two-year presidency of Central Home and School Association, we, your fellow-members and associates wish to take this opportunity of showing the esteem and regard in which we have always held you. We all recognize the fact, that in the strenuous times we are passing through, it is much harder to carry on a leadership, but we consider that through your endeavor and encouragement we have successfully carried during your time of office. It is our earnest hope that this small gift, which we now take the pleasure of presenting you, may forge a pleasant link in memory's chain as it recalls the happy relationship which has always existed between us. DEEP RHUBARB PIE WITH SOFT CUSTARD—ENGLISH FASHION

Prepare a flaky crust by sifting two cups flour with one-quarter teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon baking powder, rub in one-quarter cup shortening. Mix to a dough with cream or rich milk beaten with one egg. Roll out, dot with butter, fold and roll again. Cut in rounds to fit pie tins, prick in several places, brush with milk and bake in hot oven. Meanwhile cut young rhubarb into inch length, wash and put over the fire (without peeling), with enough water just to cover the bottom of the saucepan, and sugar to taste. Simmer until tender and rich. Place a serving of rhubarb on each dessert plate and cover with wedge-shaped pieces of pastry. Serve warm with a soft custard made of 2 egg yolks, one and one-half cups milk, one teaspoon cornstarch and one-quarter cup sugar.

JELLIED RHUBARB

Wash one pound rhubarb, cut it into small pieces, and stew it in two cups water with one cup sugar. Soak two tablespoons gelatine and one-quarter cup orange juice, and add to the hot cooked rhubarb. Let stand until cold. When ready to serve, pile in tall stemmed glasses or serve in tart or scooped out halves of orange skins. Heap sweetened whipped cream on top and garnish with slivers of toasted almonds.

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Strictly speaking, "angina pectoris" means a pain in the chest, and pain is the most striking symptom of this now common disease The pain is usually exactly under the breastbone. It may also be in other places even in the tips of the fingers, or up the sides of the neck and in the jaw, but almost invariably it is also under the breastbone. It is not so often located over the heart itself. Frequently it is in the pit of the stomach, and is ascribed to acute indigestion.

The second most characteristic thing about the pain is that it usually comes on after exertion. This also is not invariable. In certain cases which are due to sudden closure of the coronary arteries which go to the heart, it may occur when the patient is resting completely, and even wake the patient up while asleep.

Although it is one of the commonest causes of sudden death, and death may occur during the first attack, it is probably much more usual for the disease to go on for many years, with the patient suffering occasional characteristic attacks, all somewhat similar in nature and corresponding to the above description.

What is the cause of the disease? There may be various causes, but by all odds the commonest is a change in the coronary arteries. These small blood vessels are the ones which nourish the heart muscle, for the heart in doing its work must be nourished as well as any other parts of the body.

A recent careful study showed that on examining the hearts after death, about half of them exhibited a narrowing and hardening of these coronary arteries, and about half of them showed a blood clot at the mouth of one of the arteries (coronary thrombosis). In cases in which there is no disease of the coronary arteries at all, attacks of pain resembling angina pectoris may be due to disease of the great blood vessel leading from the heart, the aorta.

It should be noted also that there is a functional type of the disease which occurs in young people, and which is due to overindulgence in tobacco. It is never fatal. Of the existence of this functional, or tobacco, type of angina, there is no doubt. Perhaps the most striking trait by which it may be distinguished from the other form is, that when the pain comes on the patient wants to move around. I have seen many college students who liked to show their prowess in smoking pipe after pipe, seized with attacks of this kind, writhing on the floor and running up and down their rooms, beating their chests, so that I am personally convinced that such a condition exists.

The effect of tobacco on coronary arteries is well known to cause spasm, and probably the basis of the symptoms of the two types of the disease are the same.

We will discuss the treatment of angina pectoris in another article.

LAYS BLAME ON BENNETT PRINCE AVOIDING CANADA

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., May 17 (C.P.).—Campaigning in the Saskatchewan general elections, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Liberal leader, referred to the fact the Prince of Wales had not paid a recent visit to Canada.

Mr. Gardiner, delivering a full-length address here last night, remarked the Prince of Wales used to make regular visits to Canada, ostensibly to visit his "E.P." ranch at Pekisko, Alta., but really to foster trade been Canada and the United Kingdom.

But, he observed, the Prince had not come to Canada since Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was elected to power, because he realized it was useless to carry out his trade promoting missions. Instead, he said, princes were going to Argentine, South Africa, Australia and other countries which evinced a willingness to trade with Great Britain.

New Star

Following her work at the Globe theatre, London, in "Marriage Is No Joke," Sophie Stewart is being hailed by the English critics as a new theatrical discovery. Canadian theatre-goers, however, will remember her in "Marigold" and in Sir Barry Jackson's company, which made a trans-Canada tour last season.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: During the summer time I always like to wear sleeveless frocks because of their coolness. This summer, however, I'm afraid I shall not be able to, for my upper arms are in terrible condition. I don't know that's wrong exactly, but the skin looks like gooseflesh. Can you possibly suggest a remedy? PEARL."

The unsightly skin condition to which you refer is indeed a detriment to the appearance of the arms. This rough, gooseflesh state is due to an accumulation of the horny cells of the epidermis. The correct treatment for it, however, is very simple. When you take your nightly bath, scrub your arms briskly with a pure soap and a small flesh brush. Then, after the bath, massage the gooseflesh areas well with cold cream or pure olive oil. This will help to restore the skin to its normal soft, smooth condition.

"Dear Miss Glad: It certainly is true that fat makes a person look old and dowdy, I myself was a perfect example of that very thing, not so long ago. But I recently followed the excellent reducing course outlined in your 'New Figure' booklet, and lost 30 pounds. And now I look a good ten years younger, without exaggeration. However, I have rather prominent finger joints. Is there anything that can be done about this? MRS. LANE."

Prominent finger joints frequently accompany advancing years. They usually are due to an accumulation of chalky materials at the joints and, as a rule, indicate an incorrect diet over a period of years. Proper massaging of the fingers and knuckles is somewhat helpful in correcting this condition, if it has not gone too far. For such massaging tends to break up the deposit and stimulate the circulation to carry off the accumulation. It is also wise to use a good hand lotion or cream often on such hands, as the condition you mention is usually accompanied by considerable skin dryness.

"Dear Miss Glad: I have just started using cleansing cream on my skin, and can already see some improvement in its condition. However, I am afflicted with a great many blackheads and pimples, and my skin is oily. I was wondering if it would be wise for me to allow a bit of my cleansing cream to remain on my face over night. Would you suggest that I do this?

MARILYN."

I would not advise you to leave a coating of cleansing cream on your face every night, if it is troubled with pimples, blackheads and oiliness. The less extraneous matter used on the face when there are pimples, the better, for the use of a cream in the manner you suggest may spread the infection. The cream may be used advantageously for cleansing, but should not be used in any other way. Cleanse your skin before retiring with the cleansing cream and then administer a soap and water cleansing afterward. Finish us with a good, mild astringent in order to close the pores and remove any least remaining vestige of the cream.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

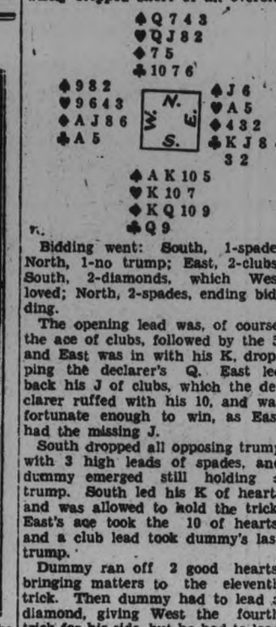
CANNOT EXPECT GAME

When you open bidding on short suit and partner gives you a negative no trump response, just to keep bidding alive, if both opponents bid against you, game cannot be made by your side if partner barely shifts you back to your first suit, as South knew with the holdings shown. He wisely stopped short of an overbid.



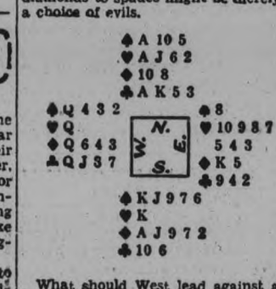
Bidding went: South, 1-spade; North, 1-no trump; East, 2-clubs; South, 2-diamonds, which West loved; North, 2-spades, ending bidding.

The opening lead was, of course, the ace of clubs, followed by the 5, and East was in with his K, dropping the declarer's Q. East led back his J of clubs, which the declarer ruffed with his 10, and was fortunate enough to win, as East had the missing J.

South dropped all opposing trump with 3 high leads of spades, and dummy emerged still holding a trump. South led his K of hearts and was allowed to hold the trick. East's ace took the 10 of hearts, and a club lead took dummy's last trump.

Dummy ran off 2 good hearts, bringing matters to the eleventh trick. Then dummy had to lead a diamond, giving West the fourth trick for his side, but he had to lead back a diamond, which South won

If East had bid 3-clubs, South probably would have bid and made 3-odd at spades, but he was glad he did not need to do so. North's bidding plainly enough showed that game should not be expected, and it was possible that North's shift from diamonds to spades might be merely a choice of evils.



What should West lead against a declaration of 4-spades? North has bid both hearts and clubs, while South has shown both spades and diamonds. The answer will be given tomorrow. A third hand opening bid was followed by a shift from 1-heart to 1-spade; North bid 2-clubs; South, 2-diamonds; then North went 3-spades.

Don't make your fruit salad too sweet. Have it tangy, with plenty of orange, grapefruit or apples. If the cream has soured, you can make these delicious cornmeal muffins with it.

Today's Recipes

Cornmeal Muffins—One and one-half cups cornmeal, one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon soda, two tablespoons sugar, two eggs, one and one-half cups thick sour cream. Sift dry ingredients together. Beat eggs well, add sour cream and beat together. Turn dry ingredients into wet, and stir just enough to moisten well. Turn into greased muffin tins and bake in a hot oven, 425 Farhenheit, 15 to 20 minutes. This recipes makes 12 large or 24 small muffins.

Rice Cheese Souffle—One and one-half cups cooked rice, two cups cheese, creamed; one cup hot milk, four eggs beaten separately, two teaspoons butter, salt, pepper. Mix all, folding beaten whites in last. Bake in a pan of hot water 30 or 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Try Knitting

Everybody's knitting again. And most of the city shops have special departments where not only designs and yarns can be bought, but instructions given, free, if you please. Knitted linens are the big news for summer, so with three months to go why not try making a dress? Even evening gowns are being knitted now—lovely gossamer-like designs in blacks, white and pastels.

Frozen Banana Custard

Make a custard of two-thirds cup of sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, two cups milk, three egg yolks, one teaspoon vanilla and a dash of salt. Add three well crushed bananas and two tablespoons lemon juice. Whip the egg whites, add one tablespoon sugar and fold into the chilled custard with one cup whipped cream. Freeze without stirring.

REBUILD WATERLOO BRIDGE ENDING TEN-YEAR DEBATE

New Five-Arch Span to Handle Six Lines of Traffic

SCRAP REPAIR IDEA

London.—The plan to build a new Waterloo bridge was approved by the London county council at a recent meeting.

They agreed to a recommendation by G. R. Strauss, chairman of the highways committee, for a new structure, "with not more than five arches over the river and of a width sufficient to take six lines of traffic."

Plans for tinkering with the decrepit old bridge are therefore scrapped. They were adopted as a second best when parliament in 1932 threw out the ondon county council bill authorizing a new bridge.

"Waterloo bridge has been standing crippled for ten years," said Mr. Strauss. "We have become a laughing stock."

Plans by Sir Giles Scott, architect of Liverpool cathedral, for a new five-arch six-lines-of-traffic bridge are ready.

If the ministry of transport makes a grant of 60 per cent, it will leave a little more than £500,000 for the London county council to raise, and, under their borrowing powers, this could be repaid in a period extending over 60 years.

BUY BRITISH CAMPAIGN WON BIG 'PLANE ORDER

Canada, New Zealand, Australia and S. Africa Buy Air Equipment

London.—"Buy British" is the unanimous slogan of the air authorities of the empire.

Canada, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa have all come to Britain for their new fighting planes and equipment. And their order comes to over £400,000.

Nearly sixty machines of wildly-varying types represent the empire's initial order in its march towards adequate, independent air defence, and they have all been manufactured or originally designed exclusively in Britain.

British aero engineering firms have won these contracts in the face of the keenest American and foreign competition.

Australia has ordered two squadrons of the new two-seater fighters recently introduced into the R.A.F.

Known as "Australian Demons," these machines are Rolls-Royce engined biplanes, readily convertible for day bombing and reconnaissance duties, and have a top speed of 180 m.p.h. They carry a crew of two and two machine guns. They are the fastest planes of their type in the world.

New Zealand's purchase is a squadron of British torpedo bombers now being built at Brooklands. These machines, used in conjunction with smoke-screens laid by destroyers and light cruisers, form one of the greatest menaces to the big battleship of to-day.

They have a speed of nearly 140 m.p.h., and carry a 1,000 lb. Whitehead naval torpedo slung beneath their fuselage. Their method of attack is to approach their target ship about twenty feet above the surface of the water and release their torpedoes into the sea at point-blank range.

Canada has not yet definitely embarked on its program of air expansion, but £16,000 has been voted to the purchase of British fighting aircraft "of the most modern type."

South Africa is already building under license two squadrons of the latest British day bombers for her coastal defence.

HONEYMOON ACTUALITY AS OBSTACLES VANISH

Vicar Telephones for Certificate Which Arrives as Wedding Party Dines

Leicester—A wedding party had assembled in St. George's church, Swannington, the bride and bridegroom taking up their position before the altar, when it was discovered that the certificate of banns had not been received by Rev. L. W. Wray, from the vicar of the Leicester parish in which the bridegroom lived.

When the omission was discovered the bridegroom rushed from the church to instruct a messanger to get into touch with the Leicester vicar by telephone, but the nearest telephone was over a mile away.

Meanwhile the bridegroom returned to the church and the ceremony proceeded. Just as it was finishing the messenger returned and stated that he had not been able to get in touch with the Leicester clergyman. The parties thus had to leave the church without signing the marriage register.

Later in the afternoon the vicar was able to obtain the assurance of the Leicester vicar over the telephone that everything was in order.

The wedding party were having tea at the bride's home when the vicar arrived with the register. It was duty signed just before the couple left for their honeymoon.

ROMANCE GOES MODERN

Plan Aerodrome for Gretna Green For Flying Lovers

Gretna Green.—Gretna Green is to provide an aerodrome for its lovers by the side of the world-famous smithy, where so many runaway couples have been married. The first flying sweethearts to swoop down on to the new landing ground will be given a handsome wedding present and a free marriage over the anvil.

Since the death of Mr. Hugh Mackie, the 84-year-old laird of the village and owner of the smithy, his family have taken over the business and are bringing romance up to date.

NO "FATTED CALF" FOR THIS PRODIGAL

London.—A centenarian in a south of England town has a son he has not seen for 30 years.

"What?" roared the robust veteran, when asked about his offspring. "My son? . . . The worthless scamp! No, I have not seen him for 30 years, and I don't want to see him for another 30 years—the rascal. Last time I saw him he came to borrow a pound. I had no change, so I gave him a £5 note to go out and change and bring the other four pounds to me. And I haven't seen the scamp since."

BRITISHER ARRESTED FOR TAKING PICTURES

Chemnitz.—Because he took photographs of two of "Hitler's Marines" and of a building, A. W. Palmer, a Portsmouth business man, was arrested as a spy. He was under detention for three hours.

Mr. Palmer, who is managing director of a Portsmouth firm of brush manufacturers and a former Liberal candidate for Portsmouth North, said that while walking in Chemnitz with the English-speaking clerk of a German business house, he met the two marines, who gave him permission to snapshot them.

A little later he visited an anti-aircraft exhibition and took a snapshot of the entrance to the building.

"Just afterwards," he added, "a German policeman touched my companion on the shoulder and we were taken to a police station. I was not allowed to telephone to my friends, who were waiting for me, and I had to walk through the streets accompanied by an armed policeman, as I was suspected of being a spy."

When he produced a letter from a British cabinet minister he was allowed to go, but his luggage was examined and the films confiscated, while a detective stayed with him until he joined the train.

With another child, the Hortons strayed into the grounds surrounding the gardens of Pershore Abbey, and while playing near a well the boy fell in.

He was submerged, but Joyce leaned over and, grasping his hands, screamed for help, while her other playmate ran to find someone.

Fortunately, a man was near enough to hear the cries and he pulled out the boy, who was little the worse for his adventure.

DEATH CONFIRMED VIEW

Wife Killed As Husband Urged Need of Safety Device

Stoke-on-Trent.—Just as her husband was telling the stationmaster that a footbridge was needed at the station to prevent accidents, Mrs. Constance Hewitt, aged 50, of Weston Rd., Meir, was struck by an express at the station crossing and killed.

This was revealed at the inquest, when a verdict of accidental death was recorded.

It was snapped at the Lyons sport ground near Sudbury, England, as the girls leave the club-house.

SUNKEN CARGO SEARCH ALWAYS A BIG GAMBLE

Little Italian Boat Tries Salvaging Wrecks Off Irish Coast

Cork.—"This is enterprise from which anything and nothing may come."

The Artiglio became world famous when she raised £1,000,000 worth of gold coins and bullion from the sunken liner Egypt in the Bay of Biscay last year.

"We have just come as a speculation," said Captain Bruno. "In fact, we do not know where we are going to begin and end. There were hundreds of ships sunk south of the Irish coast during the war, but some of them are in waters too deep for our divers. It is absurd, though, to say that we are going to try to salve the Lusitania treasure. Two years ago an American expedition arrived in London commanded by Commander Lake, but they soon abandoned all idea of getting down to the gigantic Cunarder.

"We are after the ships which had valuable cargoes and were sunk by the Germans during the war." He expects to locate some of these soon.

NINE POWERS AGREE TO CURTAIL SHIPPING

Will Pool Fund to Compensate Owners of Freighters

London.—Twenty-five per cent. of all existing tramp steamers will be laid up if an international plan for rationalization of the world's shipping is adopted.

The scheme has been drawn up by a number of British, Greek and Scandinavian owners.

The suggested elimination of one-quarter of all tramp tonnage afloat is intended to reduce it to the present demands of international trade. A large number of obsolete vessels would be scrapped.

All ship owners will be required to pay a small levy into a pool, from which compensation will be paid to owners of laid-up and scrapped tonnage.

Representatives from Great Britain, Germany, Holland, Italy, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Greece and Poland pledged themselves at a recent meeting in Hamburg to support the scheme.

URGE FOR INVENTING COSTS MAN FORTUNE

Completed Ideas Range From Hoe to Auto—Aged 68, Still Active

Stamford.—Britain's champion inventor is James Pick, aged 68. He started inventing in his 'teens—and he is still at it.

Here are just a few of the things he has invented: sugar factory machinery, self-weeding hoe, bicycle brake, motor car, tractor, and a potato-digging machine.

His only training was received as a blacksmith's assistant. When he was ten years of age, he secured a job in a sugar factory.

In a few days he so improved the machine he had to attend that it practically worked itself!

A back-pedalling brake, in the days when bicycles were a novelty, brought him a small fortune. Then he turned to the idea of a "horseless carriage."

His motor-car patents brought him in £24,000. They ceased to interest his active brain, so he began to work on a new farm tractor.

One design cost him £10,000; another £8,000. He found his fortune had vanished. Now he runs a fruit shop. But he has not stopped inventing.

He is working on three new ideas for a Lincolnshire engineering firm. His potato-digging machine is by way of being a relaxation from more difficult inventions!

Wage Cuts Restored as Industries Busier

London.—Eleven firms in various parts of the British Isles are to build new factories or works, or to extend their existing plant. They range from fruit-canning plant to steel-making.

In Yorkshire a valuable coal seam is to be reopened.

Several hundred Scottish plasterers, who have been on strike for more than three weeks, have returned to work with firms who have agreed to concede the penny per hour increase demanded by the operatives.

THOUSANDS EXPRESS THANKS AS FRIENDS ESCAPE INJURY

"A Great Miracle!" Shouts Pastor—'Hallelujah!' Thunders 10,000 Gospellers

ENGINE HIT COACH

London.—Ten thousand people hailed with shouts of "Hallelujah!" an event which they regard as an indubitable miracle.

In the train which suffered in the smash near Kilburn were pilgrims on the way to the annual demonstration of the Four Square Gospel Alliance conference at Albert Hall.

None of 'hem was seriously injured and the reason was dwelt upon by Pastor George Jeffreys at the great Albert Hall gathering. The Nottingham pilgrims who had escaped were all present.

"A great miracle!" proclaimed the pastor in sing-song Welsh,—addressing his audience.

"A miracle! Praised be the Lord! Hallelujah!"

"This very morning there was coming into Marylebone station a Nottingham train filled with pilgrims to this very Four Square Gospel Alliance."

Death Defeated

"And in the very last carriage of that train—the very last, mark you—were some of the people here at this very moment but so anxious to get to the Albert Hall in a hurry that they walked along the corridor of this train while it was going.

"And then"—the eyebrows on the pastor's mobile face lowered and his voice sank—"an engine crashed into that carriage which they had just left. . . .

"Oh Lord!" the voice rocketed up, "they all escaped death and are here with us now. Look at them! Look at them!"

In one tremendous surge of emotion and sound the 10,000 Four Square Gospellers, who had come from every part of the country for the baptismal services, gave voice in praise of the miracle.

It was overpowering for a moment as they swept into "Praise Him! Praise Him! Praise Him!"

Then, as quickly, the fluttering hymn sheets were lowered, and the nine-hour service proceeded on its way.

GAINS A FORTUNE LOSES HIS HEALTH

Gold Operator's Bones So Brittle, Cannot Shake Hands

London.—Gold injections may restore the health of K. Byron Moore, who has made £500,000 from the gold mines of Rhodesia.

Mr. Moore has searched all the gold-bearing countries in the world for the precious metal.

He found it, but during the past fourteen years he has been engaged on a still greater quest—the quest for health. The rigors of gold hunting have crippled him with arthritis. He must never even shake hands, his bones are so brittle that they might break.

"I have heard of a doctor at Johannesburg who has successfully treated arthritis by injecting gold into the blood," he said. "Perhaps my gold will be useful to me after all."

BEAT PAROLE PAPERS

St. Jospeh, Mo.—Merritt Scotten, 16, anticipated his parole from the boys' training school at Boonville, so when he is caught again he will go back for an additional stay. At about the same time Scotten and four other youths were escaping from the Boonville institution, the local probation officer was signing parole papers for him.

BIKE, SHILLING GETS RAYMOND TO GRANNY

Eight-Year-Old Travels 85 Miles Safely

Without saying a word to his parents he set out for Manchester to visit his grandmother.

His parents and the police searched Birmingham unavailingly. Then a telegram arrived from the grandmother announcing Raymond's arrival. He had accomplished a distance of eighty-five miles in a day and a quarter.

GIRL CLAIMS GLIDING SAFER THAN HOCKEY

Abhors Term "Intrepid Airwoman" After 600-Mile Flight

Heston.—A white, ghostly shape—silent, engineless, like some strange cloud—drifted lazily over Heston aerodrome recently.

Suddenly it swooped down like a gull, and then, soaring up, it turned over and over six times in quick succession. Five attendant aeroplanes zoomed round it like curious wasps.

Ten minutes later the silent white shape had drifted slowly to earth, and from it there stepped an entirely new phenomenon in British sport—the glider girl.

She was Miss Joan Meakin. She had just concluded the longest towed glider trip ever made by a woman.

It actually began one day at a small German town 600 miles away from Heston. The next day the trip continued from Ostend.

As the tiny white birdlike shape came finally to rest on the aerodrome, there alighted a most unconventional figure.

She wore a bright red scarf round her neck, a blue cotton open-necked blouse, black cotton trousers, and red woollen stockings, with green and blue bedroom slippers.

By her special request she is never to be referred to as "an intrepid airwoman". She believes gliding is safer than playing hockey and ten times as pleasant.

"Of course, I wore a parachute," she said. "Any misjudgment between myself and the aeroplane towing me would have meant my wings being torn off. Also, on parts of the flight it was so bumpy that on four occasions the glider fell away from beneath me and I left my seat entirely. I had to be strapped in."

To Teach Britishers

Two years ago Joan Meakin went to Germany and "fell in love" with gliding. Now she is one of the finest women gliders in Europe, and can soar by the hour. But she came to England with a message, one that she intends shall awaken the youth of England to the importance of engineless flight.

Germany, says this girl, who rides the wind, is a nation of potential first-class air pilots, solely because of its gliding activities.

"I am going to do all I can to bring about the same thing in England," she said. "The country here is even better suited to gliding than Germany. Our young men and women could take their first-class gliding pilot's ticket, as they do in Germany, for a total of £12."

ONCE-FAMOUS ACTOR STOKES FIRES TO LIVE

Maidstone.—In the public assistance premises here is a man stoking fires and doing all sorts of humble jobs. His name is A. E. Minton.

The first time A. E. Minton visited Maidstone he was a star actor, playing the leading role in "The Harbour Lights" and "In the Ranks" at the old Corn Exchange.

He was evicted some time ago from his own home in Wiltshire.

His furniture stood in the street for three days, until a Good Samaritan, a publican he never knew, from a village three miles away, heard of his plight, and put his furniture into storage until times should improve.

But times have not improved. He has slept in St. James' Park; he has gone hungry. The clothes he was wearing to-day once belonged to a celebrated actor manager—his widow sent them.

The King sent A. E. Minton a cheque for £5. The old actor was robbed of the money: the solicitor who robbed him is now serving a sentence in a French jail for other offences.

But the once-popular actor does not want this man to suffer for the crime he committed against him. He said he would not prosecute when the man came out of prison.

UPRAISED HAND SAVES BOY

Dagenham.—One of two boys buried under several tons of sand in Lodge Ave. was rescued alive because his hand showed above the surface.

He was Charles Rivers, aged 12, of Stonard Rd. His companion, who was killed, was Donald Randall, aged 11, who lived next door to him. Randall was found six feet under the surface after half an hour's digging.

LUMBER EXPORTS UP

Washington.—American exports of lumber, timber and wood manufactures during 1933 totalled $47,239,663 compared with $39,055,047 during 1932, a gain of 20 per cent., according to the forest products division, department of commerce. Exports on softwood and hardwood lumber and sawed timber lead the group, totalling $32,274,603 during 1933, an increase of approximately 23 per cent. by value over 1932.

YOU'VE GOT TO TAKE CHANCE DECLARES SIR M. CAMPBELL

"Not Grousing" Over Defeat in Quest for Sand-Covered Gold

FOUGHT HEAVY ODDS

Luderitz, S. W. Africa—Skeleton-strewn sands of the burning Namib Desert have beaten Sir Malcolm Campbell in his quest for gold in Southwest Africa.

"Although we have not succeeded, I am not grousing," said Sir Malcolm on his return here. "You have got to take a chance in this world. Even if you do not achieve anything, that is better than doing nothing. We had only one glass of water daily for drinking and washing. The only living things in the desert are snakes, jackals and wolves, and we encountered all kinds of weather—unparalleled heat, terrific rains, and sixty-mile-an-hour winds which sand-blasted us.

Saw Human Skeletons

"The expedition trekked 25 miles a day over undulating sand-covered country along one of the dreariest stretches of coast in the world, full of skeletons, the remains of people who died of thirst." Sir Malcolm declared.

Consequently he was unable to find the reef for which he searched, although he discovered gold in non-payable quantities and large deposits of iron ore, manganese and mica. To reach his objective, millions of tons of sand must be removed, an almost impossible undertaking, and no practicable aeroplane landing ground exists within a hundred miles of the spot where the gold reef is marked on Sir Malcolm's map.

AUSTRALASIAN PARTY URGES EMPIRE TRADE

Manifesto Suggests Full Play for Ottawa Agreements

Camberra.—A declaration embodying 14 points for a revised tariff policy has been prepared by the United Country Party for the next federal election. The statement is regarded as indicating the party's terms for continued co-operation with the United Australia Party.

The proposed tariff policy provides for the adoption of the Bruce-Page tariff level as the basis of duties; the immediate reduction of the tariff to the general 1921-23 level, with further reductions compensating for the difference in costs production now compared with 1928; the elimination of protection for goods the manufacture of which is uneconomic or contrary to the public interest on the ground of monopolist profiteering; the immediate reduction of duties on commodities not commercially manufactured in Australia, particularly tools and machines, and the abolition of embargoes, with reduction of duties, on all commodities essential to production.

The declaration adds: "The principles embodied in the Ottawa agreement should be given full effect. The extension of their currency and scope should be sought and assurance given of support for a greater measure of empire preference."

HONEYMOON ADVENTURE

Spurn Point.—Eight men and two women, one of them on her honeymoon, were rescued from the steamer Lancashire by the Spurn lifeboat in a north-easterly gale after the steamer went ashore near Spurn Point to-day.

DESERT'S HEAT TURNS BIGAMIST BACK HOME

Faces Charges Rather Than Torment in Foreign Legion

London.—Legionnaire Herbert Carcass was an unlucky Romeo! He jumped out of the frying-pan into the fire and then back into the frying-pan again!

Or, to be exact, that last jump landed him in the dock at the Old Bailey, where he has been sentenced to eight months' hard labor for bigamy.

Running away from England to avoid the complications of his unfortunate matrimonial escapades, Herbert decided that the best place for a man with two "wives" was in the ranks of the foreign legion.

It sounded exciting, romantic, thrilling. . . . But three hectic, heart-breaking years of fighting and marching, marching and fighting across the blazing desert sands of Algeria and Morocco taught him the truth. And Herbert Carcass came back to England to face the music.

THOUGH FOOD NEARBY CREW SUFFERS HUNGER

St. Helier.—Five members of the crew of the yacht Joy Bell, who were reported missing since they left for a fishing expedition, were found by the Jersey lifeboat.

After battling through tremendous seas the lifeboat reached Les Minquiers, a lonely reef 12 miles south of Jersey, where the men had been marooned for 30 hours.

Throughout this time the only food the men had was one loaf and the few fish they had caught before a gale forced them to seek refuge on the reef. Yet unknown to them there was a supply of tinned food left by last year's holidaymakers in one of the huts on the rocks.

STOCKED WITH ARMS CRAWLS UNDER BED

Bomb "Expert" Ducks When Police Raid Laboratory

Barcelona.—A fully equipped laboratory for the manufacture of inflammable bombs and liquids, which have been used with great frequency in the recent terrorist campaign, was found by the police in an isolated building in a suburb.

The police arrested two men in charge of the laboratory, one of whom, although having at his command a copious supply of firearms and enough explosives to blow up several buildings, resorted to the tactics of crawling under a bed. Eighteen different chemicals and explosives were found, including such materials as mercury, nitric and sulphuric acids, powdered dynamite, and ready-made inflammable liquids. Scales, graduated glasses, mortars, and all the other paraphernalia of a well equipped laboratory, as well as a treatise on chemistry, were likewise found. There was also seized a detailed book of accounts, in which were stated not only the quantities of materials purchased and their costs, but the sums received from the various anarchist committees.

The finished products of the laboratory have evidently been employed in burning motor-omnibuses and tramcars and in the bombing of property. Four tramcars were burned and a car-shed was twice bombed. A powerful bomb was exploded in a mine under a car-shed in an attempt to blow up the track and prevent the cars from leaving.

BELLS ANNOUNCE DEATH

Great Casterton.—To notify parishioners of the death of Mrs. Ann Newton, aged 99, the oldest resident of the county of Rutland, the parish church bell was tolled 99 times.

DRAWN REVOLVERS AID KING TO CLEAN HOUSE

Calcutta.—Five great nobles received a peremptory order to attend their sovereign in the palace of Khatmandu, capital of Nepal. One was Rudra, commander-in-chief of the Nepalese army.

They obeyed the summons, to find the palace surrounded by a cordon of troops. Fearfully they entered the throne room.

Maharajah Dhiraja, the king of Nepal and spiritual ruler of the country, who lives in almost complete seclusion, sat on his throne. And from every corner of the room gleamed the barrels of drawn revolvers.

The prime minister announced to the trembling deputation their downfall from the high offices they held. They may live in certain districts of Nepal (he told them), or they may leave the country, in which case they forfeit all allowances.

NAZIS DISMISS TEACHERS

Dresden.—The directors of the Goethe school for girls at Leipsig, Dr. Behrends, and a woman teacher, Miss Vorwerk, have been reprimanded and summarily dismissed by orders of the municipal Nazi council of Leipsig. Miss Vorwerk had refused a request of a Nazi girl pupil to recite a notorious anti-Semitic poem before her class on the ground that it would unnecessarily hurt the sentiments of two Jewish pupils. The girl's father complained to the director who expressed his approval of the teacher's decision. The city council stated that such conduct of German educators must no longer be permitted in the Nazi totalitarian state.

SMOKE SPOUTS TEN MILES

Reykjavik—A column of smoke, ten miles high, visible from all over Iceland, belched forth from the glacier of Vatna Jokull, which was in eruption for two days. Great floods have been caused by the volcanic disturbance, and all telephone lines in the affected district have been swept away by the turbulent waters.

SUGGEST NIGHTMARE CAUSED MAN'S DEATH

Healthy All His Life, Sudden Passing Puzzles Coroner

Nelson.—The strange case of a man who had died from no apparent cause was investigated by F. Rowland, the East Lancashire coroner.

Mr. Rowland, who said it was the most difficult case he had ever tried to solve, returned a verdict of death due to unascertainable causes.

The man was Richard Moore, aged 29, a greengrocer, of Burns St., Nelson. He had been healthy all his life.

His wife said that he retired to bed as usual. About an hour later she was awakened by her husband's hand falling on her face, and found him frothing at the mouth and unable to speak.

Her father was called and raised Moore's head, but Moore collapsed and died immediately. Dr. C. Ritchie, police surgeon, who made a post-mortem examination, was only able to suggest that death was due to a convulsive seizure, perhaps as a result of a very severe nightmare.

The post-mortem had revealed nothing beyond the fact that Moore was perfectly normal and healthy. There was nothing wrong with the heart, head, or respiratory organs.

U. S. DEPORTEE IMPRISONED

Bournemouth.—Walter Sidney Robert, aged 23, who was stated to have been deported from the United States, was sentenced at quarter sessions to five years' penal servitude on charges of stealing property worth £80, including a safe containing six revolvers. He pleaded guilty to using, or attempting to use, a firearm to prevent arrest.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. MAY 17—A carload of Hollywood youth, including many sons and daughters of old-time favorites, will descend upon Chicago Decoration Day to represent the film colony in this year's edition of the World's Fair.

The expedition takes on added interest because it is sponsored by the Thalians, one of the best-known social organizations in cinemaland. Some time ago, the club sponsored a series of motion picture comedies, but this is its first experiment in stage entertainment.

Young Arthur Lake will headline the act with his sister, Florence, and will rehearse the troupe previous to its departure. Some of the biggest names in the Thalians will advise him — Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, Billie Dove, Bill Gargan, Richard Dix and Chic Sale.

Hollywood hasn't seen such a wedding reception since Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque took the vows. Everybody showed up to wish Carmelita and Carey well. The beautiful Beverly Hills home of Leila Hyams and Phil Berg was packed and there was champagne for all.

The honeymooners will live in Carey's home for a while, but Cedric Gibbons has promised to design them an early American house and it will go into construction as soon as the plans are completed.

Amusing sight—twelve prominent Hollywood men, in cutaways and striped trousers playing sober-faced bridge while the gay reception crowd milled around them.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church met on Monday to complete arrangements for the anniversary services on Sunday June 3rd, and supper on Tuesday, June 5th.

An unexpectedly large number attended the pot luck social held by the members of St. Mark's Ladies' Guild at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cooper on Monday evening, May 14. Neighbors and church people were there also a number accompanied Rev. Mr. Bousfield from Peterborough as well as a number from Lakefield and Mount Julian.

The supper was very elaborate for pot luck which seemed to show better times coming. The evening was spent in friendly social intercourse music and dancing, cards, and various games.

This is the first affair of the kind the Guild has attempted and they are so delighted with the result it will not be the last.

Mrs. Elsie Thompson arrived home on Saturday after an absence of about two months.

Mr. Gordon Payne is building an addition to his house.

Harry McCauley spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland McCauley.

Cleans More Things

ARE you using Old Dutch for all the varied cleaning tasks it can perform? Check over the list of articles mentioned in this ad—they represent only a few of its many uses.

Why is Old Dutch so efficient? The secret is this—it's made with pure "seismotite" (pronounced sis'-mo-tite), a fine, flaky cleaning and polishing material of volcanic origin.

Old Dutch will cut your cleaning cost in two ways. First, it's the only cleanser you need because it's ideal for any surface on which water may be used. Second, its flaky, flat-shaped particles cover more surface and do more square yards of scratchless cleaning. Furthermore, Old Dutch doesn't scratch because it doesn't contain harsh, scratchy grit or crude abrasives.

Try Old Dutch today. You will find that no other cleanser can do so much at so little cost, nor so well at any price.

MORE MOSQUITOES THIS YEAR; MUST REDOUBLE ANNUAL WAR

Larger Flooded Areas Breed More Mosquitoes—Oil Main Ammunition.

LIVE SIX WEEKS

(By Central Press Canadian)

OTTAWA, May 17.—The extreme cold and the heavy snows of the past winter will bring more mosquitoes to mar the pleasures of summer, according to Arthur Gibson, chief entomologist of the Dominion of Canada. The heavier snows resulted in more flooded areas, and mosquitoes breed in water.

And an idea of the number of additional mosquitoes which may swoop down on us this summer can be had from a not too distant cousin of the mosquito, the housefly. One pair of houseflies in one season can propagate 27,201,368,032,000,000,000,000,000 descendants.

The fight against the mosquito hordes began early this summer in all districts where mosquitoes thrive. Oil is the main ammunition used and it is used by the thousands of gallons to stop the mosquito from becoming too numerous. By hand, pump, and sprayer the oil is applied to form a thick film over all patches of water where mosquitoes in the egg and larva stages of development are found. A medium grade of petroleum oil, such as furnace fuel oil, has been found to give the best results. A small quantity of tar acid oil mixed in makes the results even more positive. The film of oil causes the death of the infant mosquitoes within a few hours.

Live for Six Weeks

Nearly all species of mosquitoes attack animals and man for blood according to the findings of the Canadian mosquito investigators, but it is the female mosquito who does the attacking and the blood drinking. Nor is there any truth in the supposition that a mosquito dies immediately after it has had a drink of blood. Most mosquitoes live for six weeks, though some species do not live that long. In their short life they may, like humans, stay just around one locality, or again they may be travellers, some species travelling as distant as 40 miles from their birthplace.

Pools of water in fields, rain barrels, areas of shallow water with vegetation, these are among the most popular places for mosquitoes to lay their eggs, which are hatched the following spring. The filling in of these pools, screens over water barrels, and the clearing of vegetation, and deepening of shallow water areas are recommended by scientists as the best means towards eliminating mosquito breeding places.

And to make sure that mosquitoes will stay away from you, the entomologists suggest the mixture they themselves successfully use when investigating mosquito breeding grounds—two parts of citronella to one part of spirits of camphor and oil of cedar. Temporary relief is claimed for this mixture, while the entomologists point out it is clean in use and does not irritate the skin.

EDDIE SEAGRAM has a pair entered in the King's Plate running at the Woodbine opening on Saturday, namely Irish Kid and Candy Feast. They don't appear to have much of a chance with Horometer and Pitchblende but any horse that carries the famous Seagram colors of yellow and black cannot be counted out entirely, and if any chance the Giddings happen to take it on the chin you might see Mr. Seagram receiving the coveted prize and it would not be a new experience for him either.

Here are a few of the King's Plate winners from the Seagram barn. Last year King O'Connor and in former years Young Kitty, Hoplite, Belle Mehone, Inferno and several others. . . . John B. Campbell will again act as racing secretary at Woodbine and with the large number of horses on the grounds should have no trouble in providing a well filled field and balanced racing card for each day of the seven day racing meet.

JIMMY BUTWELL, probably the greatest jockey ever turned out in Canada accompanied the Labrot string from Maryland. He is assistant trainer to Clay Sutphin. The old timer racing fans will remember the combination of Jay Smoke with Butwell in the saddle. This pair made history on our tracks some ten to fifteen years ago . . . This same stable which unloaded at Woodbine the other day have a couple of three year olds called Round Table and Toytime who can fairly fly. The Kilmer division have brought along the four year old Sun Envoy who will make his presence felt before many moons.

Hide followers at Detroit recently were given the opportunity to view the regal entrance of Mati Hari, pride of the Dixiania stable to border turfdom recently. Viewed from the sidelines she has an arrogant walk befitting her royal rank. Flirting her beautiful head from side to side, and catching in her quick glance every passing movement she is every inch a picture of moody and captious majesty. "She just gotta be treated like any other finicky woman", says Bud, her faithful colored trainer commenting on her bumptious behaviour and he ought to know because he's been watching Mata Hari's every move for the past two years.

UNDER THE personal supervision of Clyde Van Dusen, trainer for the Charles T. Fisher Stables, Mata Hari was shipped to Detroit as part of a large entourage. The filly, which is as large as an average mare, was taken immediately to her quiet quarters at the Fair Grounds.

"Bud" tries to be pretty offhand about his chambermaid duties to his royal charge, but it's very apparent how seriously and proudly he takes his work. And can the Queen make a mistake? "No," declares he — "because y'see they just ain't no others like that there horse."

Boonemen End Syracuse Series With Twin Win

NUNNS BEATS BOBBY MURRAY CLINCH BERTH

Toronto Player Also Named Captain of Canadian Davis Cup Team.

LEAVE FOR SOUTH.

By ELMER DULMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, May 17. (CP)—Canada's Davis Cup tennis forces converged on Wilmington, Del., today to prepare for another attack on the United States stronghold. The team whil have nearly a week of practice on grass courts before the series starts.

Two Montrealers, Marcel Rainville and Laird Watt, and two Torontonians, Walter Martin and Gilbert Nunns, made up the squad that left in pairs last night for Wilmington. Rainville and Watt travelled south from Montreal while Martin and Nunns left Toronto a few hours after Nunns had beaten Bobby Murray of Montreal to clinch his berth on the team.

Named Captain

Nunns not only scored a notable victory over the youthful Murray but later was named captain of the team. He is the veteran of the squad in point of Davis Cup experience, entitling him to the captaincy. And at the moment he is not far from his best form.

At Wilmington the four players will take part in a series to determine the two who will play the American aces, Frank Shields and Lester Stoefen, in singles. If Nunns is not named to play singles, it was considered doubtful if he would play at all because Martin, Rainville and Watt are regarded as better doubles men.

Four Set Victory

Nunns stopped the brilliant advance of Murray in four sets, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3. Only in the first set did the 19-year-old McGill student flash the rear tennis that conquered Rainville in straight sets the previous day and forced the playoff with Nunns. The Toronto star was never in danger after he squared matters by capturing the second set.

NEW YORK YANKEES LOSE EXHIBITION TO RED WINGS

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 17.—In a free-hitting exhibition game, Rochester Red Wings yesterday defeated New York Yankees, 9-8, the International Leaguers scoring twice in the eighth inning, to go out in front.

"Babe" Ruth, who made three singles in six times at bat, played first base with Lou Gehrig, who also got three safeties, playing in left field.

TIREMEN SWAMP ELECTRICS 30-6

Bert Deck's Boys Outplay C. G.E. by Wide Margin in First Softball Game.

HEAVY SLUGGING.

Johnston's Tires took C.G.E. for a 30-6 ride in the opening game of the Men's Softball League at Central last night. Several hundred fans braved the chill but were treated to a one-sided affair, with Bert Deck's boys outplaying the Electrics by a wide margin in all departments. It was too dark to see the ball to play after the seventh.

The slugging Tiremen pounded Fred Martin hard in every frame, banging out a total of twenty-eight base hits, which with fourteen C. G.E. errors, piled up the big count. The Deck crew showed some snappy fielding back of good twirling. Don Massey fanned four in three frames and held C.G.E. to three hits. Price finished and struck out one and gave but five bingles. Martin fanned three in seven innings and issued one walk.

McQuade led the victors at bat with six hits in seven times. Stanger was next with five, while Montgomery and Starr had four each. Stanger had a fluke homer through the centre fielder with three on base in the seventh. Mowry and Sproule each hit safely twice to top the C.G.E. clouters. Calladine and Sproule had good catches to their credit.

BROOKMEADE COLT WINS AT BELMONT

Feature of Opening Day Taken by Okapi With Mack Garner on Top.

BELMONT PARK, N.Y., May 17 (UP).—Mack Garner, who won the Kentucky Derby with the Brookmeade Stable's Cavalcade, brought that stable's silks home triumphant with Okapi in the 40th renewal of the Tobaggon Handicap, a feature event of the opening day program of the Westchester Racing Association's 22-day Spring meeting Wednesday afternoon. George D. Widener's Kawagoe was a bang-up second, and C. V. Whitney's High Glee third.

A crowd of about 12,000 visited the track and patronized the newly installed betting booths most liberally. Fully 100 layers were on hand to serve the wants of speculators.

The Toboggan, a six-furlong dash down the Widener straightaway, called forth 15 of the best sprinters in training, and Okapi had to be best to win. "Uncle Mack" rode the son of Eternal well, getting him into a good lead early, but Kawagoe closed courageously for Jimmy Hunter and was breathing hard upon the winner's neck at the wire.

Okapi ran the distance in 1.10 3-5 over a track slightly dull. He was well supported in the betting, but opinion was so widely divergent that he paid off at 7 to 1.

LEAFS LOOM AS CONTENDER TO RED WINGS

Boonemen Romp Over Chiefs for 6-3, 5-2 Victories in Final Games.

NEWARK WINS 12-0.

(By the Associated Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs have, at times, been almost lost in the shuffle as Rochester Red Wings built up a commanding lead in the International League race. But now that Rochester's streak has been checked, the Leafs loom as a real contender.

Since starting its long home stand against clubs from the southern sector of the league, Toronto has won 11 games and lost six, the last six victories coming in a row as the Leafs walloped the Syracuse Chiefs in both ends of yesterday's double-header to sweep their series.

That record hardly looks as impressive as Rochester's 11 successive home victories, but it left the Leafs only two games away from first place after the Red Birds ran into their fourth straight defeat at Newark's hands yesterday.

Newark made its third straight victory over the league leaders the most decisive of all, shutting out the Wings 12-0 just after Rochester had taken a 9-8 decision from New York Yankees in an exhibition game.

The Albany-Buffalo game was postponed in order that the Bisons might take a 9-2 beating from New York Giants in an exhibition while cold weather halted the Baltimore-Montreal contest.

Havelock Albions Beat Norwood 16-8

HAVELOCK, May 17 (Examiner Correspondent).—Havelock Albions trounced the Norwood softball outfit to the tune of sixteen to eight in the opening game here last night of the Kawartha League. The visitors brought in five runs in the first two innings before the clubmen got warmed up; but right then and there the Albions made up for lost time and literally put the game on ice when J. Voyer, S. Miller, R. Kempt, B. Jones and N. Chiles each brought in a run to tie it up. From this on the Norwood group lost ground as the game proceeded. The teams:

Havelock.—J. Voyer, ss; J. Hunter, lf; J. Mathison, 1b; G. Kemp, p; S. Miller, rf; B. Kemp, c; B. Jones, 2b; N. Chiles, 3b; F. Hill, lf; W. Brunton, substitute.

Norwood.—J. Hamblin, lf; E. Godin, rf; B. Rogers, ss; C. Puffer, 2b; G. Puffer, c; P. McConnell, 3b; J. Rothwell, cf; K. Packenham, cf; W. Webb, p; H. Godin, substitute.

Jim Rogers of Norwood was efficient umpire.

BISONS HELD TO 5 HITS BY GIANTS' SOUTHPAWS

BUFFALO, May 17.—(A.P.)—New York Giants slugged and southpawed their way to a 9-2 exhibition victory over Buffalo Bisons yesterday in Bison Stadium before 2,500 fans, who saw the veteran Watson Clark and 18-year-old Clement Dreisword limit the locals to five hits.

YANKEES GAIN BIG ADVANTAGE IN 1ST SERIES

Takes Nine Out of 10 Decisions in Western Clubs' Tour of East.

OFF DAY WEDNESDAY.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., A. P. Sports Writer)

The theory that the eastern half of the American League and the western sector of the National are the stronger sides of the major league lines has been borne out by the first round of east-west play in the 1934 season but not without important exceptions.

The cold figures for the past two weeks of intersectional campaigning with the east "at home" in the junior circuit and the west in the National are distinctly lopsided. The American League's eastern clubs recorded 25 victories to 16 for the invaders. The western teams of the National won 27 and lost only 18.

Despite their frequent defeats, however, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis Browns and possibly Chicago White Sox gave signs that they may be somewhat more troublesome when they start playing on their own fields tomorrow. Of the eight American League clubs only the league leading New York Yankees gained any big advantage in the first intersectional series. They took nine out of 10 decisions and increased their margin over the second-place Cleveland Indians from 1½ games to 4½.

16 to 15 Margin

Counting out those 10 games played by the Yanks, the east held only a 16-15 margin and much of that was due to the steady performances of Philadelphia Athletics. The A's won six games and lost three as they climbed from seventh place to a tie with Detroit for third in their home stand. The other Eastern clubs, Washington and Boston, each suffered six losses to five victories, equalling Detroit's record and falling below Cleveland, which broke even in 10 decisions.

Pittsburgh and St. Louis both turned in brilliant at home records to give the National League's western clubs their big advantage but the big surprise came from Boston. The Braves, who had divided a dozen games with their eastern rivals, led the invaders in their tour of the west, winning six games and losing five. All the rest, including the world champion New York Giants, fell far below the .500 mark.

BRITISH AMATEUR STARTS ON MONDAY

Jack McLean and Johnny Goodman Quoted 8 to 1 Favorites to Win Title.

PRESTWICK, Eng., May 17 (AP).—Golfers of all grades to-day began gathering here for the start on Monday of the British amateur golf championship. Jack McLean, the Scot, and Johnny Goodman, of the United States Walker Cup team are quoted at 8 to 1 favorites.

One of the biggest Scottish bookmakers offered those odds in an advertisement in the newspapers.

In second place the advertisement places George T. Dunlap, Jr., the American amateur titleholder and British semi-finalist here last year, Jack Westland and Sam McKinlay, another member of the British Walker Cup side, all at 10 to 1. Max Marston and Harry Bentley are 12 to 1, Johnny Fischer and Gus Moreland 14 to 1, Tony Torrance, only Briton to win one of the cup singles, and H. Chandler Egan 16 to 1, Lawson Little, Francis Ouimet, Erick Fiddian, Eric McRuvie and Lionell Munn at 18 to 1.

Central Pulls Out 14-10 School Win

Central pulled out a 14-10 verdict over King George in a classy School Softball League game last evening on the former's grounds. Shoving across five markers in the sixth, the uptowners made sure of the win after they had tallied one each in the first two frames, four in the third and three in the fifth. King George got three each in the first and third and two apiece in the fourth and sixth. Some snappy fielding and neat hurling on both sides were dished up. The teams:

Knox Seniors Slap Out 30-3 Victory

Knox Seniors slapped out a 30 to 3 win over St. Paul's in a Church Softball League game last night at King Edward Park, two big innings at the start giving them nineteen markers. They had less luck with G. Broadley pitching, Wedlock of Knox struck out nine, retiring the Saints in order in four innings. While they all hit hard, McDonald was outstanding in this respect. Marsh had two safeties for the losers. The teams:

A Tough Season

DETROIT May 17 (AP)—The longest single meeting in the history of the United States turf opens here Thursday afternoon when thoroughbreds from many leading stables parade to the post to inaugurate the 120-day meeting of the Detroit Racing Association.

Eight horses will match strides in the opening day feature, the Inaugural Handicap, with a purse of $1,500. The six-furlong dash, for three-year-olds and up, probably will find Curacao, from the Greentree Stable, the favorite. A heavy advance sale of tickets indicates a crowd of more than 25,000 will attend the opening program.

Soccer Notes

The Canadian General soccer team travels to Lindsay, on Saturday afternoon, when they play the Lindsay eleven in the opening league match. All players herein named are requested to be at the Canadian General gate house no later than 1.15. Referee, Albert Frick, please note. Game is scheduled for three kick-off. W. Curtis, goal; J. Mitchell and W. Bolam, full backs; S. Clark, E. Jones and A. Burgess, halves; J. Quinn, F. Earle, B. McMaster, A. Mitchell and T. McPhate, forwards. Reserves—J. Cooper and S. McIntosh.

A special meeting of the local association will take place on Tuesday night, May 22, not Monday. The change has been made to meet the request of the Deloro executive, who will be present. Lindsay officials will be present also.

The Canada Packers expect to get new equipment which will include white pants, blue and yellow sweaters and stockings to match, to replace the white shirts. C.G.E. will have red sweaters with a monogram on the front. Lindsay will have red sweaters, white neckband and white sleeves. Caledonians will have blue and white stripes.

King Edward Park will be in perfect shape for Saturday's game. The ground-keeper expects to have the field marked out to perfection with the new marker and new flag posts.

New Men On Petes Lineup For Game

Cobourg intermediate "A" finalists in the O.B.A.A. last year, will be here for an exhibition baseball game this Saturday at 3.15 in Stevenson Park. Arrangements were completed yesterday and the game will be played, unless rain interferes. This will give both teams a chance for a real practice game, and the fans an opportunity to see how the Petes look this season. Cobourg will be strong opposition, having won their league last year and not being beaten till they met Dundas in the Ontario finals. They played C.O.B.L. ball two years ago.

Probably Hoot Gibson or Archie Campbell will do the twirling for the visitors. Deyell or Calladine, or perhaps both, will see action for the Petes in this contest. Knotty Lee will trot out his most promising team, and perhaps later inject a few other prospects into the lineup. Murray and Konopka, the newcomers here, will be in the lineup.

Sugar Bowl—pardon us, Brintons and Fashion-Crafts play a softball game at six tonight in Central, weather permitting. This should be a snappy fixture, and can't be as bad as the opening game last night between the other teams in this loop. At least if it is, we're going to send the two scores to Robert Ripley to use in his "Believe It Or Not" cartoons. Lefty Sturgeon, pitcher-manager of the Brintons, has a mighty smart squad lined up this year, one that bears a striking similarity to last year's champion Sugar Bowl outfit. But Johnny Russell isn't fooling, either, and his Fashion-Crafts are liable to be somewhere around the neighborhood in August when the cup is being handed out.

• • • • • •

You can't overlook Bert Deck's bunch when talking about this league. The Johnston Tires' team showed quite a few fans last night a lot of classy softball. Against stiffer opposition, they would likely have shown up even better. C.G.E. just wasn't so hot yester e'en, any way you look at it. They'll have to shakeup that lineup a bit, practise considerably, and also find more pitchers. Martin is a good enough hurler as a rule, but one pitcher isn't enough for a team, even if that team supports him. C.G.E."s support last night was terrible.

• • • • • •

They've got some good players and will likely get to work now and put their best possible lineup on the field. When this is done, it'll be a fast loop. Massey, new hurler for Johnston's squad, looked mighty promising. And so did the rest of the players on that side. It was rather absurd to send the teams out again in the eighth inning with C.G.E. snowed under a scandalous score and it too dark to play decent ball. The umpires should get the game started on time but at any rate, they should call it when it gets dark—especially with one team behind by over twenty runs. We found it too dark to score it in the eighth. W. H. Taylor, Alderman Cotton and Jake Beckerman participated in the opening ceremonies, but you can't blame them for what followed!

• • • • • •

There is another heavy evening of play lined up tonight for the Church Softball League, six games being listed. Trinity Seniors tangle with George St. at the Oval; George St. Juniors meet St. John's at Queen Mary School; Knox Juveniles tussle with George St. at Queen Alex; St. Paul Juveniles play St. James at King Edward Park; George St. Bantams mix with Park St. at King Edward School; and St. James Bantams go to the mat with St. John's at Queen Mary. Whew, any more! Players in this circuit are reminded that playing in the City Baseball League does not make them ineligible for the Church Loop. The rule about this states only the City Softball League.

We got the following letter yesterday: "Dear Sir—Could you send me a copy of the constitution and rules of the East Peterborough Intermediate Association of Baseball? If so, I would highly appreciate it. Have you any rules about amateur? Awaiting the pleasure of your response, I am yours truly, Enrique Diez de Andino." And the letter comes from San Juan, Puerto Rico! That's a way the heck and gone down in the West Indies. We're wondering how the dickens they ever heard of us or the E.P.I. However, we sent him some dope and asked the Senor how come he wrote to us. We may hear more from him.

An emergency meeting of the executive of the Girls' Softball League has been called for to-night (Thursday) at eight o'clock in Duffus'. The loop prexy has been notified that the Ashburnham Bowl will not be ready for play for another two weeks or so. The gals' were billed to open this Monday, but now some other course of action is called for. They'll have to decide whether to postpone the loop opening, to play the first couple of weeks out of town, or to switch temporarily to another local diamond. All officers and team managers should be on hand, and the three district managers should be notified by phone early this evening, in case they don't see this newspaper announcement in time.

• • • • • •

Knotty Lee has started signing up the Petes' now and will continue the rest of the week. Some of the almost-sure prospects have not been reached yet, but will jot down their Jawn Henrys within a few more days. So far, the only ones we know for sure who have signed are: Cy Whatley, Bill Calladine, Gene McCarthy, Fred Ash, Bud Murray, Sig Konopka, Les Burton, Tommy Foley and Jack Playford. The latter is a reformed softballer, known for several years as the best softball outfielder both in fielding and hitting in the city. He is fast, a sure catcher and a hard righthand hitter. He ought to fit in nicely. Fred Ash is captain this year and the popular "Clinker" is a good man for the job.

• • • • • •

Baseball fans will have a fine chance to look the Petes over on Saturday when they play an exhibition game with the classy Cobourg crew at 3.15 in Riverside. The above players, with the others to be signed, will all be on hand and should give some idea as to how the team will go in the C.O.B.L. this summer. Much interest will centre around Murray, Konopka and Playford—and maybe others—since these fellows represent an unknown quantity yet. Knotty has the boys drilling hard every evening and they should be going good by Saturday. The strong Cobourg team—intermediate "A" finalists last year—are bound to keep 'em hustling all the way.

• • • • • •

Picking 'em off the grapevine: President Hugh Campbell is donating red leather windbreakers to the Petes' players . . . . The new quadruple C.O.B.L. schedule has been released today . . . . The Prince of Wales-Queen Mary school game last eve was postponed.

Georgia Blacksmith Skittish Of Dentist, Pulls Own Teeth, Makes Plate Of Aluminum

GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 17 (C.P.). — Hamby Patterson's teeth never bothered him until he was past 70 years old. Then, when they went bad, Patterson pulled his teeht with a pair of pliers and made a set of false grinders with aluminum from kitchen utensils.

A blacksmith, Patterson lives in the mountains near here, he has never ridden a train.

When the teeth began hurting he came to Gainesville, but sitting in the dentist's chair made him nervous and he went home before his teeth could be pulled. His grandson pulled—or rather, knocked out—one tooth.

"He got a horseshoe nail and a hammer and knocked it out," Patterson said. "Then I decided I'd make some pullers and do the rest of the job myself.

"Didn't have a bit of trouble. The pullers never slipped once and the teeth came right out. You see, I have muscles. Have to, being a blacksmith.

"When I finished pulling all my teeth I went back to the dentist in Gainesville for him to make my plates. He made 'em all right, but shucks, I just couldn't wear 'em, so I decided to make some of my own."

Using the dentist's plates, Patterson made a mold on a brick. Then he melted aluminum from the kitchen—"a dipper, boiler or just anything"—and poured it into the mold. Now he had a set of grinders with which he is able to chew anything from beefsteak to rock candy.

LAWN BOWLING

Herb Martin

The Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association met last night to complete the unfinished business left over from the annual meeting held two weeks ago. There was a large representation from the different clubs present. President J. Mackie, Lindsay, occupied the chair.

One of the best ideas ever put forward and one that will create a lot of interest—particularly to clubs in this association—was the adoption of a standard system on which all three or four game tournaments will be played. Hitherto each club ran their tournaments on their own particular idea and clubs never knew just what system the tournaments would be played, now that has been done away with and it was passed, unanimously that the 2-1-0 system be adopted by this association.

At this junction of the meeting the president introduced C. Stienhouse, Oshawa, president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association and he gave a very interesting report on the workings of that body. He urged every individual club to join with the association but could see no benefit to the Central Association joining as a body.

Many members took part in the good healthy discussion and it was finally agreed to leave to each club whether they join up or not.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

When a player has made a habit of the correct golf posture he generally stands with his right shoulder lower than his left. Very often such a player has become aware of this habit when trying on clothes at his tailor shop.

LINDSAY WATERS ARE WELL STOCKED

LINDSAY May 17 (Special to Examiner) — The Department of Fisheries yesterday replenished the waters in this district with pickerel fry. Some 250,000 were deposited in Gull River at Coboconk, several hundred thousand at Kirkfield for Balsam Lake waters. Another deposit was also made at Norland.

One of the best known farmers in Victoria County passed away this week in the person of Morris McMillan, of Woodville, Eldon Township. The deceased was a former vice president and director of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, and was greatly interested in agriculture. For many years he was actively connected with the U.F.O. He is survived by his wife, three sons and two daughters. His funeral took place on Wednesday at Woodville.

Two crops have been hard hit in Victoria County as a result of the severe winter. Fall wheat has been almost completely killed, many farmers losing as much as fifty and one hundred acres, all of which had to be ploughed over. It is reported that beekeepers (and there are a large number in the district) will suffer severe losses because of the failure of the clover crop.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Archie McMillan of Glenarm who was found dead by her young husband, took place Wednesday and was one of the largest ever seen in the district. The deceased was a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. W. G. Smith and Mrs. Smith, of Glenarm. The Presbyterian Church in the village was taxed to its capacity for the funeral services. A number of clergy took part in the services including the Moderator, Rev. J. C. Grier, of Lindsay; Rev. D. Munroe, Bobcaygeon; A. H. Johnston, Fenelon Falls; E. W. McKay, Woodville. The late Mrs. McMillan was a former school teacher at Lorneville and Lindsay. Besides her parents, she is survived by a sister, a missionary in Korea, and one brother in Regina.

Provincial Constable D. H. Porter, of Haliburton, who has been transferred to Mattawa, was the recipient of a presentation from the citizens of that village on Tuesday. Mr. Porter was formerly stationed at Lindsay.

The F. Austin sawmill at Haliburton, which was for years a hive of industry, and which lately has been the property of the Bank of Montreal has been demolished. Hubel & Co., of Bancroft, purchased the machinery.

The Highways Department is constructing another new highway in Haliburton County between Haliburton village and Gooderham.

TIME NOT RIPE

EDINBURGH, Scotland. — A report on the conversations during the last two years between the Church of Scotland, the Episcopal Church of Scotland, the Anglican Communion and the Presbyterian Church of England will be submitted to the Church of Scotland's General Assembly next week, showing unrestricted fellowship of ministers of the four churches is not yet possible.

SPLENDID REPORTS ARE READ AT MILLBROOK BRANCH MEET

Activities for Year Reviewed by Women's Institute Secretary.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

MILLBROOK, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. J. L. Byam entertained the local branch of the Women's Institute for its annual meeting at her home, Bank street, on Saturday evening, when over thirty were present, and the hostess, who is also president, took the chair.

The secretary presented the annual report showing 78 members, twelve regular and six special meetings, with a total attendance of 570, and an average of 32. Twenty-six papers and addresses had been given, and at the summer series a neighborhood branch had been entertained, and Mrs. Towers was the visiting speaker.

The activities were many and varied and included the purchase of a stove and paint for a family that had lost their home by fire; a short course in dressmaking with 23 enrolled, the members being entertained at the W.I. picnic, and the course concluded with a social hour and a treat of ice cream and cake. Plants had been bought and placed round the cenotaph, a course that will be continued this season; the local branch, in conjunction with the seven others in East Durahm attended divine worship in a body, and the annual picnic had been held at the president's home where large grounds are available, with the Mount Pleasant branch as special guests. The branch had also undertaken the cleaning up of a neglected pioneer cemetery in the village, sponsoring a bee for that purpose and giving the men tea at the afternoon's close.

A delegate was sent to the convention at Toronto, fees paid to the Federated Institute, and the roll call answered at the December meeting with a parcel for the Christmas cheer baskets which were sent to shut-in folk of the community. Three quilts were made, two of these being given to two separate families who had lost their homes by fire; the branch sponsored two relief concerts and dances contributing $59 for local relief purposes; $16 was given the Agricultural Society as the result of a social evening. Stockings, yarn, blankets, etc. had been purchased for needy families, and two sewing meetings held when supplies were prepared for relief calls. Fruit and flowers were bought for sick members, and a past president was made a life member and given a handsome certificate. One public gathering was sponsored by the standing committee on agriculture with a fine program and Dr. Reynolds as guest speaker.

Mrs. H. J. Armstrong presented the treasurer's report which showed a total raised of $399.48, expenditures of $269.25, leaving a balance of $130.23 in the bank. The auditors, Mrs. B. B. Dawson and Mrs. P. I. Bentley, reported the books examined and found correct. Letters of thanks from Mrs. R. Dawson for the plant sent her daughter Jean, who has had such a long illness; from the council for the donation to relief; from individuals receiving help, and an invitation from the Bailieboro branch to be its guests on Tuesday, May 15, at the summer series' meeting, were read by the secretary.

The election resulted in the following slate of officers for 1934-35: President, Mrs. T. G. Harkness; vice-presidents, Miss E. J. Grandy and Mrs. H. Lang; secretary, Mrs. George Fallis; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Armstrong; district representative, Mrs. J. L. Byam; pianist, Mrs. R. J. McKnight; auditors, Mrs. Bentley and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong; district representatives, Mrs. G. Fallis, Mrs. J. L. Byam, Mrs. McKnight, Mrs. H. Lang and Mrs. Wesley Brown.

Convenors for standing committees: Education, Mrs. Lang; home economics, Mrs. D. Lunn; relief, Mrs. P. I. Bentley; legislation, Mrs. Wesley Brown; the other committees were left over for a later meeting before convenors will be named. It was decided, on motion to attend church on June 1, if agreeable to Rev. Mr. Williams, pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church, the other East Durham branches to be invited to join in this act of public worship.

Mrs. E. Mitchell and Mrs. E. C. Richards, with the hostess, served dainty refreshments at the close. Miss Grandy moving the vote of thanks for the hospitality extended. Mrs. D. Lunn voiced the sentiments of all present when she moved a hearty vote of appreciation to Mrs. Byam, the retiring president, for her faithful services during the two years she capably filled the office. The June meeting will be at Mrs. H. J. Armstrong's home.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, May 18

While there may be a fair degree of activity and enterprise on this day judging by the lunar aspects of the ruling planets, yet there are testimonies of vexations, depressions, small worries and threatened gossip, slander or petty enmities in both private and business affiliations. Employment may offer compensations in favors, preferments or slight advancement, and new plans and projects may be undertaken with initiative and vim. But personal relations may depress.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of minor annoyances, anxieties, irritabilities and depressions in both business and private life.

A child born on this day should be resourceful, enterprising and practical, winning the support of its employers and superiors. Discretion and restraint should be early inculcated in its private affiliations.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Howson and family motored to Keene on Sunday.

Dr. Walter Dawson and Miss Annie Dawson of Toronto spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dawson.

Mrs. Noels of Keene is now visiting her daughter, Mrs. James Wood.

Mrs. Emma Pinnie is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Judson Pue.

On Friday afternoon little Velma Barnard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barnard entertained a few of her playmates and their mothers at a birthday party, the little hostess being three years old. The tiny tots played games outside until supper was served at six o'clock in the dining room by Mrs. C. Barnard, Mrs. J. Pue, Mrs. C. Emberson and Miss Audrey Barnard. Tea was poured by Mrs. Fred Perrin. The table was set in yellow and white, the birthday cake being in the centre. Those present were: Mrs. Harold Howson, Mrs. Harold Bebee, Mrs. Dawson Rutherford, Mrs. Judson Pue, Mrs. Fred Perrin, Mrs. Cliff Emberson, Mrs. Cliff Manley of Bewdley, Misses Betty Joan Howson, Joan and Norma Pue, Betty and Jean Rutherford, Mary Dixon, Audrey Barnard, Audrey Bebee, Masters Eric Bebee, Ralph Barnard, Murray, Ronald and Gareth Manley.

The Mother's Day services were held at the church on Sunday, May 13th. Some of the junior classes put on two pageants and the choir consisted of the young men and ladies of the Sunday School. Rev. Mr. Cook took the sermon. The Sunday School is planning to hold their anniversary on June 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Westington and family motored to Plainville on Sunday.

English Dog Makes Clean Sweep Of U.S. Shows

Coming out from England six months ago, chunky little "Littleway Chunky" has done a bit of cleaning up at dog shows in the U.S. Four times he won Reserve championships in England and the same number of times has the two and a half year old wire-hair fox terrier won American championships. His most recently triumph was at the Los Angeles Kennel Club. He is now owned by Philip Brand of Pasadena, Calif.

FRIENDLY ATMOSPHERE PERVADES AT CANADA FIRST COOKING SCHOOL

Draw For Grand Prize Will Be Made at Friday's Session.

WORK REAL JOY.

"Fritz," the little gay canary who hops cheerfully about in a cage on the Grand Opera House stage, is partial to apple green and also has a fondness for red, in ladies' apparel. At least, he surveyed the pretty frocks from the Canadian Department Stores which form a portion of the exhibit at the Canada First Cooking School, with an impartial eye, and never let a chirp out of him until the pale green crepe ensembled appeared, when he burst into a delighted trill of appreciation which continued for the very trig effect in striped blue and white silk crepe, with a gay red jacket.

An atmosphere of pervading friendliness and cheerfulness pervades the big stage at the Opera House, for these cooking sessions. Perhaps R. J. E. McCrea of Toronto is responsible for some of this atmosphere. Despite a severe attack of laryngitis which keeps him constantly under a physician's care and ties him to a bed in St. Joseph's Hospital during his afternoons and evenings here, he is one of the most optimistic of men and seems to regard the whole proceedings as a very pleasant event in life.

Miss Jay Margaret Laws, who, besides being a graduate of Household Science and Arts of Columbia University, is also the author of several well-known cook-books, one of which has just been completed for the "Servador" people, with another in the offing for the T. Eaton Company, and has made many trips to Europe in search of new recipes and sauces, is a very efficient young person, who is regarded as the "easy" in this Cooking School, having a record, however, of eight years' service behind her. She and her assistant, Miss Georgina Lloyd, dietitian, are trim, white-clad young persons whose work appears to be a joy, rather than a job. They make the effort of cooking a blithesome adventure.

Cool Decorative Tints

Over five hundred women sat and listened and watched this morning as the young ladies and their helpers prepared interesting eatables on the stage, set with its dining-room furnishings of handsome rugs, with damask-covered table adorned with pink carnations, sparkling etched glass and lovely china. The kitchen equipment, also, is all that the heart of a housewife could desire, with its gleaming ivory, cream and pale green enamel, and woodwork, and the spotless grey and white finish of its electric stove. If color has any appreciable effect on the nerves, these cool, soft hues should exercise a soothing influence on the most heated cook. There is even a cool green glass water pitcher in use.

"Melting Moment" was the name of the delightful confection manufactured this morning, fruit jelly had a place on the program, with custard sauce and junket (and, by the way, for junket making, don't use too much heat—there is where most women slip up, according to Miss Laws), also refrigerator rolls, prune whip and surprise cups, which were delectable affairs including green peppers, sliced bacon, tomato ketchup and pork and beans, in their make up. A lesson in cereal cooking was another high moment of the class this morning.

In making ice cubes, use left-over tea and coffee for flavoring, also imbed cherries in them and make them extremely decorative, or color your ice with pale green and this affords an attractive centre for a border of radishes, lettuce, etcetera.

Tomorrow, which marks the final session of the Canada First Cooking School, the program of cooking will comprise broiled porterhouse steak with sweet potatoes, Southern style; a frozen fruit salad, junket, corn fritters, pecan rolls, glorified rice, Prune Bavarian, stuffed cauliflower and another lesson in cooking of cereals.

Besides the many smaller prizes given away daily, tomorrow's list will include the Grand Prize of all, the Moffat Electric Range which will be drawn for at tomorrow morning's concluding session of this interesting Cooking School.

Child Prodigy

Pictured above is Freddie Munroe, aged 4, of Halifax. Freddie is somewhat of a marvel. He can say his a, b, c's forward and backwards, count from 5 to 100 in 5's, 10 to 100 in 10's, do handsprings, the split, the contortionist back bend, somersaults in mid air, all with the grace of a veteran performer. He's been at it now for a year and a half and one day his dad, Chester Munroe, ex-Chataqua acrobat, says he'll be a headliner. Soon Freddie will be taught bar and trapeze work. As the above picture was snapped the tiny blond-headed tot was about to do a back spring.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Pleasing Program Knox W.M.S Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Knox Church was held at the Manse, King street, with a large attendance, the president, Mrs. McDonald in the chair.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. R. Laing. The opening hymn, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" was followed by prayer and the devotional leaflet, "Jesus and His Friends" given by Mrs. Laing, and prayer by Mrs. A. McKenzie.

The president then took charge and "Shine Thou Upon Us Lord" was sung, after which the regular business reports and discussions were given. The Watch Tower was in charge of Mrs. McCurdy who reported for Africa, Mrs. Wallace for Korea and Mrs. Stevenson for All-peoples' Church, Sudbury.

A very beautiful solo, "I Have Heard of a Land" was given by Mrs. V. Whittington and a splendid paper on "China's contact with the rest of the world" was given by Mrs. G. Davis and the meeting closed with the closing exercise led by Mrs. McDonald.

Captured Inmates Get Longer Terms

GUELPH, Ont., May 17.—(CP)—Two Ontario reformatory inmates who made a break for freedom yesterday and were caught within an hour pleaded guilty to charges of escaping from custody in police court today.

John Shearing, who Magistrate Watt said was "the ringleader" was sentenced to two years in Portsmouth penitentiary, Kingston, while Leonard Cronkwright who informed the court that he would not be 18 years of age until September was given a sentence of two years less one day in the reformatory, concurrent with his present sentence of one year definite and one year indefinite.

Queen Alex. Beaten In School Game 2[illegible]

King Edward defeated Queen Alex, 26 to 2, in a School Softball League game last evening at Queen Alex. Strickland, on the K.E. mound, walked the first five men and allowed in two runs, but twirled hitless ball the rest of the way in a fine exhibition. Loose fielding on the losers' side figured largely in the one-sided win for the southenders. The batteries:

TWO CAMBRIDGE SOCIETIES SAVED

Earl Ranfurly, Lord Duncannon Revive Beefsteak, True Blue Clubs.

VERY EXCLUSIVE.

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

CAMBRIDGE, May 16—(CP)—The 21 year old Earl of Ranfurly, who succeeded his grandfather, a former Governor of New Zealand, in the title last October, and is now at Trinity College, Cambridge, has come to the rescue of the Beefsteak Club, the oldest of the dining clubs of Cambridge University, dating back nearly two centuries. It is understood also that the True Blue Club, a similar Cambridge organization, which is nearly as old as the Beefsteak, will also be saved through the good offices of Lord Duncannon, son of Canada's Governor General, Earl Bessborough.

The threatened extinction of these two exclusive clubs is a significant sign of the change in social customs in the ancient universities. Both clubs were founded in an era when money was plentiful and when there was a very large wealthy and leisured class. Nowadays it is difficult to find men who are willing to accept the presidency of such institutions. In the early days the dinners were evidently frequent, as both clubs possess plate of great value and antiquity.

Special music, which is in manuscript and very closely guarded, is displayed during the toasts. The details of the ritual observed during these dinners has never been divulged.

The members of the Beefsteak Club dine in a costume consisting of patent leather shoes with silver buckles and red heels, silk stockings, and satin knee-breeches, a fawn waistcoat, a dark blue coat with choker collar and stock, held together by gold buttons in the form of bulls' heads. Beef always appears on the bill of fare, and the drink is beer in silver tankards and port passed round in a living cup. Rose water and snuff are also handed round during the meal.

MARMORA A.Y.P.A. WINDS UP SEASON

St. Andrew's Young People Hear Fine Talk by Charles Hollingsworth.

MARMORA, May 16. (Examiner Correspondence)—A business meeting to wind up the 1933-1934 season was held by St. Paul's Y.P.A. in the White Hall on Tuesday evening. An invitation is being extended to Holy Trinity A.Y.P.A., Frankford, to participate in a service at St. Paul's on a Sunday evening in the near future. The branch will attend 8 a.m. Corporat Communion next Sunday.

The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Association was held in St. Andrew's Hall on Monday evening. After the opening hymn, "Abide With Me" Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth offered prayer. A motion was carried that the young boys and men of the association act as a committee to clean up the yard adjoining the church. After a sing song had been enjoyed and an educational feature had been given by Charles Hollingsworth, Rev. C. A. Hollingsworth gave as a Bible talk, the subject "Sin and Repentance." The evening wound up with games under supervision of Dorothy Marett.

MUSICAL TREAT IS GIVEN, LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, May 17.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The members of the Lakefield Efficiency League were given a great musical treat on Monday evening when their guests of the evening, the Millbrook League provided the program. Bruce Dawson president of the Millbroow branch, took the chair immediately after the opening hymn and routine business. One group of the visitors handled excellently the devotional part of the program and another group the musical part which was indeed unique and dealt with the lives and works of many of the composers. Among the performers were the Misses Jones of Millbrook, who are accomplished musicians and their performance was remarkably fine. The program led its audience down the ages to modern days for good music and its appreciation are not confined to the past ages. Our own Canadian Dr. Ernest MacMillan and Dr. Fricker, whose choral work has an international reputation and last of all and not least important our own Percival Price, whose composition, "The St. Lawrence" was awarded the Pulitzer prize. Some of the modern composers were featured. Among the composers whose life story and compositions were featured were Lizst, Chopin, Beethoven, Mozart, Weber, Handel, Stradivarius and his famous violins, Luigi Romanelli and his orchestra and the compositions of Irving Berlin. A very pretty number was the singing by two young people "The Old Spinning Wheel", a modern number with an old world charm.

Following the program refreshments were served by the young people of the Lakefield Efficiency League. The school room of the Lakefield United Church was filled to capacity and a delightful social hour brought to a close one of the most successful presentations of the season's programs.

The long drought in Northern Ireland which compelled the shutting off of the city water in Belfast at eight o'clock every night, was broken by a heavy rainfall which put 308,000,000 gallons in the municipal revervoir in four days.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

CHICAGO GRAIN

Sensational crop damage reports from the Spring-wheat belt, Northwest, together with word of a renewal of dust storms, rushed wheat prices skyward late yesterday.

Compared with low levels touched earlier, the wheat market ran up 4 cents a bushel, most of it in the last fifteen minutes of trading. Late stampedes to buy wheat followed receipts of despatches from a leading crop expert that South Dakota drought conditions between Aberdeen and Yankton, 240 miles, were deplorable, and that practically no crop of wheat could be raised there this season.

Wheat closed buoyant near yesterday's maximum figures, 2¼ to 2⅝c above Tuesday's finish; corn, ⅜c to 1⅛c advanced; oats, ⅜ to 1¼c up, and provisions 2c to 12c gain.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 17.— Trading was quiet on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter in carlots or less was slightly easier at 21¼c a pound. To retailers solids were 22c and prints 23c a pound. Receipts were 68 boxes.

Western shipments of eggs in carlots were quoted unchanged at 19½c to 20c a dozen for A-large, 18½c to 19c for A-medium, 17½c to 18c for B and 16c to 16½c for C, and Ontario and Quebec eggs in less than carlots selling at the minimum of the general quotations. A total of 2,283 cases were received.

Potatoes were steady at 85c for Quebecs per 80-lb. bag, 90c for New Brunswick Mountains per 80-lb. bag and $1.05 to $1.10 for Prince Edward Island Mountains per 90-lb. bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 17. — Weather conditions and unfavorable crop news brought a late rally on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday that carried wheat prices more than 2 cents beyond the day's low points to close with net gains of 1c to 1⅛c.

May wheat wound up at 71¼c, July at 72⅛c to 72¼c, and October at 73⅜c to 73⅝c. Pessimistic crop reports were received from the United States North-west, while Western Canada continued to suffer from drought, with temperatures well over the 90's on the plains.

Values started steady, wavered and dropped to show declines of about 1 cent, and then galloped ahead late in the day to hit the high spots at the finish.

Short covering entered the market after mid-session, bringing with it some outside buying which negatived all the earlier selling. Offerings came chiefly from the Government agency. Export business was disappointing.

EDUCATED YOUTH HAS CHALLENGED

Queen's Principal Claims Uncertain Future Depends Much on Graduate.

DALHOUSIE CONVOCATION.

HALIFAX May 17 (CP) — Educated youth was being challenged to-day, Principal W. Hamilton Fyfe of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., stated last night in addressing the 70th convocation of Dalhousie University here. Receiving degrees were 203 young men and women, described by President Carleton W. Stanley of Dalhousie as "almost the largest class that has ever graduated from this old university."

"The future not only of Canada but of all civilized communities," Dr. Fyfe said, "is more uncertain than it has been for at least 100 years. This alone is obvious :that the present structure of society is unstable and that changes are coming quickly. The nature of these changes depends on you, on your intelligence and honesty, and the influence of your character."

Principal Fyfe's work in advancing the intellectual life of Canada was recognized by Dalhousie when the Degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, was conferred upon him.

Brilliant Students

Some of the most brilliant scholars that Dalhousie had ever sent forth were members of this year's graduating class, Dr. Stanley declared. In awarding the University Medal in Medicine to Harold McKean, Dorchester, N.B., and Malcolm Dookerty of Cardigan, P.E.I., he remarked that in 34 tests in their medical course, each had obtained 30 distinctions, a record in the history of the school.

Dr. Fyfe classed wonder as an essential element in education—"The growth factor of learning."

"I hope," he continued, "that Dalhousie has helped you to develop a wide-ranging curiosity and a sturdy self-reliance in satisfying its demands. . . . I hope your professors have knocked a whole new range of windows into your souls and that when you come to years of discretion—the age at which men and women begin to get over their university education—I hope you will be able to say this: 'I have forgotten all I have ever learnt and what I know I discovered for myself; and for the power of discovery I am incalculably indebted to Dalhousie University'."

Fear Manitoba Girl Kidnap Victim

TOT DISAPPEARS FROM CARRIAGE OUTSIDE HOME

Search Parties Busy Combing Whole Northern Area.

SPITE SUSPECTED.

Mother Absent at Time—Father Busy in Nearby Fields.

MOOSEHORN, Man. May 18.—(CP)—Fears four-year-old Betty Wolfrum, who disappeared from her carriage outside the family home Tuesday had been kidnapped sent searchers into Northern Manitoba points with determination to find the child.

Mrs. Carl Wolfrum, mother of the girl, expressed the fear her daughter had been kidnapped. Searchers are visiting all sections of the Moosehorn district, which lies 120 miles north of Winnipeg on the east shore of Lake Manitoba. Grahamdale and Spearhill areas are also being searched.

Mr. Wolfrum who was working in the field while his wife was attending health clinic when the child disappeared, said the blankets which covered the child in her carriage had been put back in place. He heard no cries nor saw anyone in the vicinity.

It was first thought the girl had climbed out of her carriage and wandered away but the neatness of the covers led Mrs. Wolfrum to believe the child had been stolen, possibly as a grudge but for what grudge she could not guess.

Relief Officer Denies Forcing Men On City

Allegations made by several local unemployed that only those registered on relief were able to secure work on highway construction jobs in this district, were denied to-day by A. G. Metheral, relief officer.

Informed by The Examiner that unemployed men had stated that they were "being forced on relief" in order to secure work on the highways, Mr. Metheral replied, "There's no basis for such charges. The jobs are open to anyone who wants work."

Mr. Metheral consulted his files and said, "Twenty-four city men are employed now on the Lansdowne street job; only ten of these men were registered on relief when they secured this job and the other 14 were not on relief." A similar condition prevailed on other unemployment works, he stated.

Shaw Fears British Hook-Up With Japan Will Drive America Into Arms Of Russia

LONDON, May 18.—(AP)—Bernard Shaw, Irish dramatist returned from a 23,000 mile trip to New Zealand today with decided views on the danger to the Empire of any close hooking-up of Great Britain and Japan.

A British alliance with Japan, he said to reporters on arriving, would "drive America into the arms of Russia which we have already done to some extent.

"Then Australia, New Zealand and Canada would come in with the United States—if they would have them."

Shaw discoursed on many other matters in his customary bluff style, declaring for one thing in it a least assumed seriousness that another peril to the Empire lay in the playing between its component parts such as the coming test cricket matches between England and Australia.

"These things break up the British Empire," he said. "The games induce intense animosity and rivalry and distract attention from serious things like politics."

CHARGE JAPAN AIMS TO CREATE NEW MANCHUKUO

Britain's Weak Policy Aiding Japs in China Says Cripps.

NOT FACING REALITIES.

Sees Europeans Forced Out of Orient if Tokyo Gets New Hold.

LONDON, May 18 (A.P.). — Charges that Japan is planning to create a "Manchukuo number two" were made on the floor of the House of Commons to-day.

Asserting that Great Britain through "vacillation and weakness of policy" is helping Japan's hand in China, he suggested the co-operation of Great Britain, Russia and the United States in a program aimed at halting Japanese expansion in the Far East.

Sir Stafford added that Great Britain "will not face realities regarding securities for the integrity of China and Britain either is in League with Japan or turning a benevolent eye on her operations."

He heatedly continued that Britain's failure to face realities regarding security the world over is damaging all efforts to bring about world disarmament.

End Of Europe In East.

With characteristic vigor, Sir Stafford told the Commons in pursuing his subject that "if Japan next takes a bite out of South China, European powers may oe forced out of the East altogether.

"It is time to call for a definite halt in this type of behaviour," he said, mentioning the establishment of the Japanese protected Empire of Manchukuo, a state set up after the Japanese campaign in China two years ago.

He bemoaned as "a pity" that the Government had not seen fit to take economic steps "on a much lesser question," that of protection of the Lancashire cotton industry.

By this, Sir Stafford referred to Britain's recently declared trade war with Japan, involving the imposition of restrictions on Japanese commerce.

Alarming Combination.

"The German-Japanese combination, which is developing rapidly, is creating more fear in the world even than there has been in the last few years as the closeness of the danger of war has become more and more apparent.

"As long as this government insists upon complete and absolute freedom for itself and others on every occasion," the speaker declared, "so long will it be impossible to regulate international security for the world."

"Japan's invasion of Manchuria," said Sir Stafford, "and the incident which took place at the same-time at Shanghai were the first steps in the design by which Japan should gain the preponderating power throughout the whole East.

"Since that time," Japan has extended her conquest in North China and withdrawn from the League of Nations."

Germany's shipments of artificial flowers to the United States have slumped greatly in the last year.

JUDICIAL WORK COUNTY IN HANDS OF JUDGE RUDDY

Ontario County Judge Under Assignment From Minister of Justice.

PRATCTISED LAW HERE.

Presides Over Meeting of the Election Board for County.

Under assignment from the Federal Minister of Justice, His Honor Judge Robert N. Ruddy has taken over the judicial business of the County of Peterborough until such time as a successor to the late Judge E. C. S. Huycke appointed.

Notification to this effect has been received by George J. Sherry, K.C., clerk to the County Court and local registrar of the Supreme Court of Ontario, in a communication over the signature of the Hon. Hugh Guthrie.

Judge Ruddy, who at one time practised law in this city, as a partner in the firm of Ruddy and Burnham, is Judge of Ontario County, and is senior County Court Judge in the judicial district comprising Ontario, Northumberland and Durham, Victoria and Haliburton and Peterborough Counties.

His assignment as judicial officer in Peterborough County pro tem, was made by the Minister of Justice, it is understood, as a result of recommendation made by the District Association of County Judges, at a recent meeting.

In chambers here yesterday afternoon Judge Ruddy disposed of an application under the Landlord and Tenant Act, in which the parties to the action were the Rev. John Leonard of Parry Sound and Elzear Tremblay of Galway Township.

Father Leonard, the landlord, was represented by Wilfrid F.

Jobless Insurance Coming Soon—Henry

TORONTO, May 18 (CP)—Unemployment insurance on a contributory basis will be introduced by Premier R. B. Bennett in the near future, Premier George S. Henry of Ontario to-day told a delegation of women representing the Toronto and District Women's Unemployment Conference, who asked the government for a provincial plan as well as increased food and clothing relief allowances.

"Mr. Bennett repeatedly has told me that contributory unemployment insurance is definitely coming," Mr. Henry declared. "He said he opposed non-contributory insurance, but he always suggested contributory unemployment insurance was inevitable."

BRITAIN DOING BEST TO AVOID ARMS COLLAPSE

Prepared to Launch New Effort Should Parley Break Down.

OFFICIALS ANXIOUS.

Simon Denies Nation Guaranteed to Preserve Independence of China.

By GEORGE HAMBLEON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 18.—(C. P. Cable)—Great Britain is going to Geneva determined to make every effort to save the world disarmament conference from collapse. And if a collapse should come, she will start on a new effort.

Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, thus outlined the British plans to a deeply anxious House of Commons today.

Sir Stafford Cripps left wing Labor leader, had opened a debate on disarmament with a speech in which he spoke of the growing menace of Japan in the Far East, and stressed the need for "pooled security" between the principal powers.

Speaker after speaker followed with notes of alarm.

And although he dismissed any idea of pronouncing a "funeral oration" for the disarmament conference, Sir John Simon obviously shared previous speakers' anxiety.

The situation was admittedly grave. "We have exceeded the time when we can express ourselves in perfectly sincere platitudes," said the Foreign Secretary.

"We are up against the facts of the situation."

But Sir John did not believe "we are at the end of a miserable adventure," in efforts at disarmament, as some people seemed to think. It would be "a frightful disaster to the world" if nothing effective should be done. There was no sacrifice not worth facing rather than that.

No Hint of New Plans.

Sir John gave no indication of specific new British proposals. "I

Windsor Lad Claims He Was Kidnapped

WINDSOR, Ont., May 18 (C.P.).—Leo Meloche, 18, student at Assumption College, and who was missing from the college and his home for 11 hours yesterday, claims he was kidnapped and held prisoner in a car during that time.

Meloche says he was pulled into a car while on the way to dinner. In the back seat of the car, he says, there was a man and woman, a second man drove the car. He claims he was asking if he was "young Reaume." He declared it took him all afternoon to convince his captors he was not Reaume, but Meloche. At eleven o'clock at night his captors dumped him onto the pavement out in the country. The boy's wrists are bruised. Police are investigating.

Returning Officers Named In Ontario

Returning officers for the general elections in nearby ridings are announced as follows:—

Peterborough.—Sheriff F. J. A. Hall.

Northumberland.—A. D. Hall, Colborne.

Durham.—Chas. McNeill, Janetville.

East Hastings.—D. M. Morrison, Tweed.

West Hastings. — Dave Rollins, Belleville.

As previously announced, the voters' lists will be prepared by enumerators who will make the round of the homes in the city. In the villages and townships the last revised municipal lists will be used as the basis of listing the qualified electors, with an opportunity of adding other names on days appointed for such revision.

The enumerators will work simultaneously in the various cities on May 22, 23, 25 and 26. Ira A. Humphries, Toronto, chief election officer, announced that special court session will be held at which foreign-born women, married to British subjects, may obtain the certificates they require for being allowed to vote.

Practising

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb, May 18 (C.P.). — A farmer boy who came to town to practise ventriloquism left some of the city a bit perplexed.

Cries of "Help! Help! Let me out of here," caused a crowd to gather about a manhole at a busy intersection. Police were called to rescue the man supposedly trapped.

But when the manhole was opened it was empty.

The farmer boy vanished when police arrived.

TWO CAR LOADS OF BANDITS LOOT BANK IN FLINT

GET $25,000 CASH.

Miss Rest of $100,000 Shipment—One Woman Among Six Men in Gang.

FLINT, Mich, May 18 (AP)—Machine-gun bandits—who may have been led by John Dillinger — carried out a carefully planned raid on the Glenwood Avenue branch of the Citizens' Commercial and Savings Banks this morning, and made off with a consignment of between $25,000 and $30,000 in currency that had just been delivered in an armored car.

Witnesses said there were six men and a woman in the robber gang and that one of the three men who entered the bank "looked like Dillinger." He carried a machine-gun.

As the robbers fled, Harry Stamman, manager of the bank, stepped on an alarm button. Police responded immediately, but the bandits had disappeared in two automobiles which headed toward Grand Rapids.

State police and sheriff's officers sped along the highway which the robbers were believed to have followed, but apparently the fugitives doubled back on their trail.

Kirk Roland a cigar store proprietor, was the witness who connected Dillinger, fugitive desperado, with the robbery. He said one of the bandits had a scar on his face.

Roland was transacting business in the bank when the robbers entered. The man whom he said re-

GERMAN CARDINAL SCORES RACIAL PROPAGANDA OF NAZI

Denounces New Hitlerian Religion in Scathing Terms, Though Life Threatened.

PREACHES SERMONS

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

PARIS May 18. — "The German fatherland owes infinitely more to a few genuine servants of the Gospel than to all those old, war-spirited Teutonic ancestors of ours." This telling blow at the race-theories of the Nazis does not come from some Jewish exile or liberal anti-fascist but from the mouth of Cardinal Faulhaber, the primate of Bavaria, who for the second time in his life has become the opponent of Adolf Hitler. Cardinal Faulhaber has just preached a series of sermons on the "religious, moral and social values of the Old Testament" and on the relations between Christianity and ancient Teutonic paganism. The biggest church in Munich the St. Michael's Cathedral was too small to hold the congregation which came to hear him. Two other churches were pressed into service for the overflow, the Studien church and the Buergersaal, The cardinal's sermons have been grouped in book form. Two million copies of the book were sold before the Hitler government clamped on the ban.

The German people are redeemed through the blood of Jesus Christ, not through some ridiculus fantastic racial theory which

NOONDAY CROWD IS MOWED DOWN BY FLYING GLASS

Fire Chief Aitchison and Three Others Are Hurt Seriously.

STORE FRONTS SHATTERED

Explosion Occurs as Brigade Arrives to Quell Basement Blaze.

HAMILTON, May 18 (C. P.).—Dozens of people were injured, four seriously, and Fire Chief Aitchison is in the General Hospital in a serious condition as a result of a terrific explosion which occurred on James Street North in front of the Honey Dew store shortly before two o'clock this afternoon.

The injured:

Fireman Dynes, severe burns, shock, condition not so serious.

W. Dussin, 267 London Street South, shock and lacerations.

G. C. Stevens, 256½ Emerald Street North, cuts and shock.

George Brankley, Herkimer Apartments, shock and lacerations.

B. Johnson, 32 Mars Avenue, burns about face, shock.

Mrs. Gladys Banque, 56 Wentworth Street North, arms burned.

All of the above will be able to leave the hospital this afternoon, with the exception of the two first-named.

Pedestrians who were cut or burned and who were admitted to the hospital in the department store were Horace Aylwin, D. Scott, R. L. Green, G. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Bridgewater, Mrs. Cornwall.

The explosion occurred when firemen were summoned to the Honeydew shop when a slight blaze occurred in the basement. The reels responded and were at the premises within a minute. When Fire Chief Aitchison entered the shop, a terrific blast occurred in the basement and in the big sewer which runs down James street. The concussion was fearful and showers of broken glass tumbled down upon pedestrians along the street. Three firemen were standing by their truck beside the manhole when the lid suddenly soared in the air felling them.

Street Crowded.

Why the affair did not result in a wholesale tragedy is difficult to understand. The street was crowded with shoppers and business people returning from their lunches.

Late By Hours

TORONTO, May 18—(CP)—A motion to have a long-missing son pronounced dead was won by Mrs. Elizabeth Wright of Owen Sound a few hours after she had died.

Harry Patterson, son of Mrs. Wright, was last seen by his mother in 1923 and wrote to her for the last time, from Bernandino, Cal., in 1926. She made a motion, through her counsel, to have her son pronounced dead with a view to disposing of the proceeds of a $420 life insurance policy of which she was benificiary.

DETROIT, May 18 (CP)—Police Dogs and Chows, not licensed prior to June 1, will not be granted licenses after that date, according to a proposed amendment to the city dog by-laws. The purpose of the amendment would be to prevent an increase in the accidents for which these animals are blamed. During the past several weeks a number of children were reported bitten by Chows and Alsatians.

There is another proposal that all dogs on the street must be on a leash and in charge of a person capable of controlling them. All dogs running at large would be declared "nuisances" under the proposed amendment.

Six Horses Named For King's Plate

WOODBINE PARK, Toronto, May 18 (CP).—Only six horses were named to-day to start in the renewal of the classic King's Plate over the mile and an eighth route Saturday, the small field being dominated by R. S. McLaughlin's good colt Horometer.

Horometer will be coupled in the betting with W. E. Cowie's Pitchblende, both going to the post from Harry Giddings' Stable.

W. H. Wright will start Speygold and Sam Worthy. The only other starters will be E. F. Seagram's Candy Feast and T. S. Cochenour's Papalico, the latter packing 132 pounds, weight for age.

BLOW CUTS VICTIM'S EYE.

Intruder Disappears as Girls Screams—No Money Missing.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 18. (CP). People of north Chatham were today in a state of fear over a brutal attack perpetrated on Dorothy Smith, 19, maid in the employ of Mrs. Howard Owen of Elizabeth street, as she lay in her bed asleep early to-day.

Using a ladder left by painters who are at work on the dwelling, the man, after unscrewing the bulb of a street light to darken the scene, reached the girl's bedroom through an open window. At first believing she was having a bad dream because of a pressure on her chest, the girl was startled into wakefulness when she saw a man at her bedside. Before she could cry out he struck her three blows, one of which cut open the eye. With a leap he was out of the window and gone.

Employers Rush In.

Aroused by the girl's cries, Mr. and Mrs Owen ran to her room and found her in a state of collapse and bleeding profusely from the wound over her eye.

Because of the suddenness of the attack, the girl was unable to give a description of her assailant. Police unsuccessfully scoured th neighborhood for suspects or strangers.

Some weeks ago, there were numerous complaints of peepers being at work at night in North Chatham.

That robbery was not the motive of the man was indicated by the fact that money was not missing from the girl's purse on the dressing table. Also the open window of the room occupied by Mrs. Owen's son, much larger, would have afforded easier access for a burglar.

MOUNTIES OUST STRIKERS

GLACE BAY, N.S., May 18. (CP) Amalgamated mine workers attempting to tie up coal production in the south Cape Breton area were driven from No. 1-B colliery to-day by Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who made way for 240 non-strikers to go to work.

UNABLE TO GROW TOMATO CROPS AT PRICES PAID

ONEROUS CONTRACTS.

Borrowing Money on 1934 Crops to Pay Last Year's Taxes.

OTTAWA, May 17—(CP)—Tomato growers were compelled by their helpless financial condition to sign onerous contracts with canning companies, H. W. Hunt, Brighton, Ont., charged before the Stevens Parliamentary Price Spreads probe today.

"Tomato crops cannot be grown at the prices paid by the canners during the last three years," the Northumberland county grower told the committee. The financial condition of the producers has reached a state where they had to go to the banks with their present year's contracts with canning companies to borrow money to pay the previous year's taxes. One branch bank manager had informed him he had contracts "one foot high" held as collateral on loans to farmers.

These contracts with the canning companies were very unfair, said witness. They were not really contracts as they did not represent a mutual agreement.

Rather Amazing

"I would say they are rather amazing," Hon. H. H. Stevens, committee chairman, said.

"What is the reason the growers have to sign an onerous contract of that kind," witness was asked.

"The farmers are helpless," Mr. Hunt replied.

The farmers had to have contracts with the canning companies in order to get money from the banks, said witness.

"Do you know of any instances where a farmer was told by a bank to get a contract with a canning company in order he might be loaned money?" questioned Sam Factor (Lib. Toronto West Centre).

"I could give numerous cases" replied witness.

Mr. Hunt stated field men who let

Electric Range Won By Mrs. Frank Bedore

Mrs. Frank Bedore of 5 Park street south is the proud possessor of a Moffat electric range, won this morning at the Canada First Cooking School, as the grand prize in a four-day session just concluded in the Grand Opera House. The range was donated by the Miller-Powell Company.

The housewives of the city turned out by the hundreds this morning to attend the closing day of the school, which has been a popular event of the week.

The drawing for the major prize was made by His Worship, Mayor Denne, and R. J. E. McCrea of Toronto, who sponsored the school and to whose untiring efforts much of its success has been due, entertained the audience with various humorous remarks as he drew for the minor prizes, the collection of groceries given away daily.

The Weather

TORONTO, May 18 (CP)—Synopsis.—Pressure is high from Hudson Bay southward over the Great Lakes to the Southern States and relatively low over the western half of the continent and on Atlantic Coast. Moderate showers have occurred in Northern Alberta and light showers are reported from Southern Saskatchewan; elsewhere in the Western Provinces the weather has been fair. Showers have occurred in many sections from Georgian Bay eastward to the Maritime Provinces.

Georgian Bay.—Moderate northeast to east winds; fair. Saturday—Moderate to fresh east to southeast winds; partly cloudy with about the same temperature and some local showers or thunderstorms.

Northern Ontario.—Fair to-day and part of Saturday. Followed by some showers or thunderstorms.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley.—Fair to-day and most of Saturday; probably followed by showers; not much change in temperature.

WARM CHARGES MADE AT RALLY SOUTH OXFORD

Claim Liberal Victory Captured Through Influence of Tobacco Firms.

PEEVED AT STEVENS.

Henry Defends Grover on Old Country Liquor Charges.

TORONTO May 18 (CP) — The South Oxford Federal by-election, captured by the Liberals, to-day again was drawn into the Ontario election campaign picture. Campbell Grant, Walkerton lawyer and Conservative candidate in Bruce, charges the Liberal victory was captured through money and influence of tobacco firms who entered the by-election to show their disapproval of the Stevens Mass Buying investigation.

Mr. Grant's charges came last night, when eight candidates were nominated over Ontario. Mr. Grant was selected Conservative candidate for Bruce at Port Elgin. The Minister of Highways was the chief speak. Mr. Macaulay criticized Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, for his "inaccuracy and irresponsibility."

Other candidates nominated were Charles R. Harrison, Conservative for Nipissing-Sturgeon Falls; W. J. Cowherd, C.C.F. for Brantford; Goldwin C. Elgie, Conservative for Toronto Woodbine; Miss Olive Jane Whyte, C.C.F. for Windsor-Walkerville; Duncan Hind, C.C.F. for Windsor-Sandwich, and Reeve R. F. Book of Stamford Township, C.C.F. for Niagara Falls. Ray King of Rodney announced his entry as Independent candidate for East Kent with temperance support.

Upholds Grover.

Premier George S. Henry spoke before the Toronto Woodbine convention and belittled charges of J. C. McRuer, K.C., that George Grover, former president of Ward Four Conservatives, had written letters to the old country distillers in 1926 that influenced the placing of liquor with the Ontario Liquor Control Board. Premier Henry declared there was no liquor control board in 1926, the legislation for the sale

Cabmen Hard Hit May Vanish Soon

MONTREAL, May 18 (CP).—Picturesque relics of another day—the cabbies of Montreal—are fast disappearing from the cabstands around the city squares

Xavier Dragon, a Frenchman, who has piloted a cab through the streets for the scores of years, has declared the business will be extinct within a year or so unless the cabmen get more patronage from Montrealers.

Last winter was the hardest for a long time, he said with a shake of his head. Business was so poor many of the old-time drivers were forced to leave their sleighs in the stable. Their horses were put to work for the street cleaning department removing snow.

ONLY ONE CANDIDATE.

AMBRIDGE, Pa., May 18 (C.P.).—There's a Socialist in Ambridge, but even he isn't a "regular."

One vote was cast for that party in the primary election—a vote for Franz E. Daniel, Socialist candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs.

But the voter crossed out the names of the other party candidates, writing in the names of Republicans.

Patience

BUTLER, Pa., May 18 (C.P.).—Here's patience such as the Bible teaches:

Three times burglars ransacked the home of Mrs. Margaret M. Adams while she was at church, and three times she put her home in order, saying nothing.

But when the burglars came a fourth time while Mrs. Adams was at church, that was too much. She reported all four robberies to the police.

NO DICTATION IN NOMINATION REV SUTHERLAND

Canadian Labor Defence League Advocate Addresses Local Audience.

A. E. SMITH COMING.

Low Wages Creating Fertile Soil for Reds in Peterborough.

Denial of an assertion at last night's meeting of unemployed citizens on the market square to the effect that the C.C.F. nomination of Rev. John Sutherland as the Federation's candidate in Peterborough was dictated by the central executive of the C.C.F. in Toronto was made by W. L. Abbott, vice-president of the local club.

George Ashbrook, Toronto, advocate of the Canadian Labor Defence League, explained to his audience that his reflections were based on something published in The Examiner, and Mr. Abbott interrupted the speaker with the statement that Rev. Mr. Sutherland had been proposed by the local C.C.F. Club and was yet to receive an official nomination.

Some woman in the audience shouted—"You can't believe what you read in that paper."

The Examiner has published, in front page positions, true and accurate news of the political course of the C.C.F. in placing Rev. Mr. Sutherland in the field of the present campaign.

The following quotation from The Examiner of May 14 is exactly what Mr. Abbott said to a reporter in a telephone conversation, and supports his statement last night that the C.C.F. was preparing for a nominating convention.

The news item reports that the names of Rev. John Sutherland and several other members had been considered by the local C.C.F. Club and were then passed on to the Ontario Council of the C.C.F.

"His name with several others was submitted to the Central Council" the report proceeds, "and as the others have withdrawn it leaves Mr. Sutherland without any

Mother, Daughter Found Poisoned

SASKATOON, May 18 (CP) — Murder and suicide were suspected by police here to-day in the death of poisoning of Mrs. David Kelly, 65, and her daughter, Estre La May, 35, at the Kelly farm in the Vascoy district.

The bodies were discovered late yesterday by a son of Mrs. Kelly, George, 38, when he went into the home after working in the field. Police believed Mrs. Kelly gave a poisonous drink to her daughter and then drank some herself.

An inquest has been set for May 26 at Vascoy.

Toronto Livestock Review

TORONTO, May 18. (CP). Lambs again held the spotlight on the Toronto Livestock Market this week, gaining $1.80 to close at $10.50, the highest prices paid in Toronto since 1931. Hogs and sheep also showed gains of 25 and 50 cents respectively, compared with the previous week.

Veal calves after a steady opening, lost 25 to 50 cents towards the close.

Receipts on all classes of livestock with the exception of hogs were heavier in volume compared with last week. Only a few lots of stockers remained unsold at the close.

Cattle prices on the whole showed little change although steers and fed calves were weak. Weighty steers of medium to good quality brought $4.75 to $5.25 with a few choice making $6 to $6.25. Export buying was very light. Butcher cattle sold within a range of $4 to $5.35 with individual tops at $5.50.

Takes 2 and 3—Weekly livestock .. Good butcher cows sold steady throughout the week at $3.50 to $4 for the best, while canners sold as low as $1.25. Butcher bulls opened strong at $3.50 to $4, but closed with few tops above $3.50. Bologna bulls closed weak at $2.50 to $3. Fed calves of medium to good quality sold slowly at $4.75 to $6, with a few choice at $6.25 to $7.

Store cattle trade was very dull during the week, owing to the late grazing season. Light stockers sold at $2.80 to $3.50, with a few good feeding steers at $4.25 to $4.50. Milkers and Springers sold steady at $40 to $45 for tops.

Calf receipts of 2,900 head were 300 more than for last week. Prices held steady at $7 for tops up to Wednesday, but a slight overload for the day brought a 25c to 50c drop on common quality. Common to medium calves closed at $3 to $5 with choice mostly at $6 to $6.50.

Hogs receipts were 700 head lighter at 4,600 head. Prices opened steady with last week at $8.25 off cars for bacons and climbed to $8.50 by the close. F.o.b. bacons sold at $7.75 with off truck hogs at $8.10. Selects brought the usual $1 per head premium.

Sheep and lamb receipts of 2,100 head included 800 Western feed lot lambs. A few good lambs sold last Saturday at $9.75 while the opening market reached $10. On Tuesday 450 head of Western lambs sold at $10.60, the highest prices in Toronto since January. Some cull Westerners went at $6 to $8. Spring lambs were firm at $8 to $9 each. Sheep were higher at $4 to $5.60 cwt. for good wool ewes with culls at $2.50 to $3.50.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch:

	Cattle.	Calves.	Hogs.	Sheep-Lambs.
This week	4,714	2,867	4,575	4,064
Last week	4,254	211	357	1,284
1934 to date	97,384	42,259	97,836	47,789
1933 to date	94,738	36,704	96,519	37,741

Police Advice

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 18 (C.P.). — Police Chief Paul Frey answered his telephone.

"My husband is angry with me," said an agitated feminine voice. "I'm afraid he's going to take poison. If he does, what should I do?"

"Call an ambulance," the Chief advised.

"Thanks awfully," the relieved voice replied.

MAY CUT LIMIT IN BANK SHARES

Bennett Intimates Proposed 50 Per Person Likely to be Halved.

NO PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

OTTAWA, May 18. (CP).—While Canada's new central bank will be privately owned a more drastic restriction may be placed on the accumulation of shares by private individuals. The House of Commons banking committee yesterday rejected a move to make the bank a government-owned institution as the solid group of Conservatives on the committee lined up in favor of private ownership and all the Liberals and Independents held out for public ownership.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett who sat in with the committee as acting minister of finance an amendment might be made to restrict the number of shares any person could hold to 25. At present the bill limits it to 50. In opposing public ownership Mr. Bennett emphasized the danger of political interference with appointments to the bank executive.

The committee yesterday put the finishing touches to the revised Bank Act which will now be reported to the House.

If a resolution sponsored by Hon. Ian Mackenzie (Lib., Vancouver Centre) and approved by the committee, is followed up the committee next session will look into the control of national credit. Mr. Mackenzie regretted the committee had not had time to go more fully into the question this session, but thought next year with no such burdens of heavy legislation on its hands the banking group would be able to give the subject the attention it deserved.

Relations of the banks to the pulp and paper companies will be looked into by the committee and a number of witnesses are being summoned to appear on this point. Next week a sub-committee will go to Montreal to examine Sir Herbert Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, whose health did not permit him to come to Ottawa.

Rents in Shanghai, China, are soaring.

SASKATCHEWAN ELECTION BOUND

Three Organizations Drive Hard for Control in New Legislature.

VOTE WITH ONTARIO.

REGINA, May 18 (CP)—Saskatchewan to-day was buried in political campaigning with three organizations driving hard for power in the new Legislature to be elected June 19, when Ontario voters, too, will go to the polls.

Announcement yesterday by Premier J. T. M. Anderson that Nominations would take place June 12 and elections a week later found the Opposition Liberals and Farmer-Labor (C.C.F.) party with as many candidates in the field each as the Conservative Government forces.

Less than half a dozen nominating conventions remain to be held by the three parties with possibly a few constituencies only to see straight fights. The possible straight fights may develop in Humboldt, Moose Jaw and Pelly, but in all other constituencies there will be three and four-cornered battle.

55 Seats at Stake

Excepting the constituency of Athabaska, where voting will be delayed a month, 54 seats will be at stake June 19. The Legislature was reduced from 63 to 55 seats by redistribution. For the 54 seats, the Conservative and allied Government forces have named 51 candidates; Liberals have selected 54, and the Farmer-Labor forces have 53 in the field. Nine other Independents and United Front nominees make a total of 167 nominated to date.

At the close of the last Legislature April 7, the party standing was Conservatives, 23; Liberals, 26; Progressives, 4; Independents, 5; Vacant, 5. Total 63. The Anderson Government took office in September, 1929, on the defeat of the Liberal administration under Hon. J. G. Gardiner in the Legislature after the elections of June, 1929.

A Nippiy Job

CHICAGO, May 18. (C.P.)—To presume on an old saying: When a dog chases a dog-catcher, that's news.

Ordered to capture a mad dog, dog-catcher Richard Ardach pursued his quarry into a livery stable. There stood five terriers.

At once the pursuer became pursued; was chased from the stable and bit enroute.

After finally catching the mad dog, Ardach returned to the pound, only to be ordered: "Get your wounds treated, then go back and catch the dogs that bit you."

QUEBEC KILLER PAYS WITH LIFE

SHOOTING, NOVEMBER 1932

THREE RIVERS, Que., May 18.—(CP)—Condemned to death for the murder of his father at Shawinigan Falls in November 1932, Ildege Blais 25, was hanged in the jail yard here at daybreak.

The condemned man spent his last hours praying with Rev. Father Gillaume to whom he confessed his sins before mounting the scaffold in the jailyard just as dawn was breaking. In a firm voice Blais commended his soul to God and asked pardon for his sins. Four minutes after the trap was sprung, Dr. Henri Lacroix, jail physician, pronounced Blais dead and the body was cut down.

Adelard Blais, father of Ildege, was shot by his son in a dispute involving Miss Valeda Lafontaine who was also shot by Ildege Blais. Miss Lafontaine survived her wounds though a bullet which lodged in her spine has left her crippled. Adelard Blais died of his wounds six week later.

CASH BE VOTED BY PARLIAMENT FOR MARKET ACT

King Opposes Board Drawing on Consolidated Revenue Fund for Needs.

WINS HIS POINT.

Members Both Coasts Fail to Get Fish, Lumber Excluded.

OTTAWA, May 18 (C.P.).—With the Government conceding a point here and there to opposition opinion, the House of Commons is making steady progress with pushing the Marketing Bill through committee of the whole after long days of persistent blocading tactics. Last night a number of sections were passed and it appeared as if it would not be long before the measure was approved.

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, who, on this and other measures, has always held out for parliamentary control over the expenditure of public money, won a point last night when an amendment to the bill requiring moneys to be spent by the proposed marketing board to be voted by Parliament was adopted with the blessing of the Government. As it originally stood, the bill would authorise the board to draw on the consolidated revenue fund for its financial needs with the approval of an Order-in-Council.

Fish, Lumber Included.

Members from the east and west coasts failed in an attempt to have fish and lumber excluded from the scope of the bill and J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, also failed in an attempt to make the measure apply to mineral products. It applies to natural products of the forest, farm and fisheries.

Mr. Woodsworth also moved to have it apply to such secondary products as clothing and furniture and failed. Speaking for the Government, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, admitted there was some merit in Mr. Woodsworth's arguments but dismissed the proposal with the remark, "We should walk before we run."

It was intimated yesterday it would be the Minister of Agriculture who would have charge of the administration of the Act.

J. H. Stitt, Conservative member for Selkirk, who has more than once criticized the Government for tardiness in taking effective measure of economic reform, had nothing but praise for the bill. He said it was a definite move to bring order out of chaos.

Obituary

MRS. W. R. LEARMONTH.

HASTINGS, May 18 (Examiner Correspondence).—Death removed one of Hastings' most prominent citizens on Thursday morning in the passing of Mrs. W. R. Learmonth at Fergus, Ontario.

The late Mrs. Learmonth was born in Hastings, a daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. D. A. Thomson. Mrs. Learmonth had been in poor health for some time, and had gone to Fergus for her health.

She leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing husband, also three brothers: Rev. E. A. Thomson of Elora, John M. Thomson of Owen Sound and Walter C. Thomson of Toronto.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon from the family residence on Albert Street to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where services will be conducted at 2.30.

Interment will be made in Trent Valley Cemetery.

CAMPBELLFORD MEN'S GROUP FINISH SEASON

St. Andrew's Organization Stage Banquet at Which Guest Speaker is Rev. J. Grier.

FINE PROGRAM.

CAMPBELLFORD May 18. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — With the Rev. James Grier of Lindsay as the guest speaker, the season of the Men's Club of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was concluded last evening when a splendid banquet was served by the Ladies' Aid of the church to over seventy men of the congregation, and guests. The gathering climaxed the success of the previous meetings and was exemplified by a spirit of good will and fellowship. Presided over by Ross Douglas, president of the organization, a delightful program was presented, consisting of a vocal solo and encore by Miss Helen MacDonald ,vocal and guitar selections by C. C. F. Cole of Norham, and community singing led by E. H. Lewis. The accompanist for the evening was Mrs. E. H. Lewis, church organist.

Mr. Grier took for his topic a travelogue covering the smaller islands of the Caribbean Sea, and proved himself a very interesting and entertaining speaker. Expressing his pleasure at coming back to Campbellford, where he served for many years as pastor of St. Andrew's Church, and was very popular and successful in his ministry, he paid particular tribute to the ladies of the congregation in the way they serve the church.

Of the Caribbean Islands, Mr. Grier pointed out that they were divided into groups more or less nationally, and touched on these groups pointing out their chief interests and some of the habits of the peoples. He mentioned in particular the Virgin Islands, bought by the United States from the Danes for the purpose of the possession of the fine naval harbor at St. Thomas, a possession it would not be safe to let a European power hold. This island, he said, was linked up with the romance of the old pirate days and during the time of sea lawlessness, was the base of supplies for these buccaneers.

The Dutch, he said, held two islands, volcanic of origin, and very small, and of very little use with the exception of the fact that sulphur is exported from one of these, Saba, whose people live in the crater ,perched high on the top of the island.

The Leeward Islands, a British group, were also touched on by the speaker ,who dealt with St. Kitts, and the prevalence of the monkey colony, and the island of Monserat, noted for its lime export, and its red headed negros, who speak with an Irish brogue.

Of the Windward Islands, Martinque was one of the most interesting, and Mr. Grier dwelt at length on this beauty spot, scene of the terrible volcanic eruption in 1902, when over 40,000 people lost their lives, and which was the home of Josephine, Napoleon's Empress and only love, who was a daughter of a planter.

The guest speaker was introduced by J. R. Battisby, J. C. Anderson moving a vote of thanks to him. Other speakers included the Rev. H. P. L. Seymour, of St. John's United Church, a guest of the evening, who also offered grace at the opening of the meal; Harold Dunk, who spoke of the softball prospects of the club; and J. A. Anderson, who moved a vote of thanks to the ladies and all who assisted with the evening's entertainment, to which Mrs. Patrick replied.

PASSION PLAY GIVEN REVIEW

300TH ANNIVERSARY.

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany, May 18 (A.P.)—The 1934 jubilee version of the Passion Play was given its first test of public appreciation yesterday before an audience of newspapermen and other specially invited guests.

Bleak low-hanging skies concealed the mountain tops and a heavy mist was sent forth by intermittent rains as this famous village resumed its traditional task of flipping back the pages of biblical history.

A blue-caped chorus stepped onto the stage promptly at 8 o'clock in the morning to begin the eight-hour interpretation of the 300th anniversary of the play.

Alois Lang was again cast in the role of Christ. A dark-haired, commanding figure, his performance was judged a definite improvement over that of previous years.

Only minor technical changes had been made in the text and presentation of the play, with its 16 acts, 65 scenes and numerous vividly presented "tableaux giant."

Foreign press representatives carefully checked the text with that of 1930 to ascertain whether any deletions had been made on account of the new Nazi regime.

STRIKE SPREADS IN CAPE BRETON

Mine Workers Hope to Tie Up Whole Colliery Area.

PROTEST SUSPENSION.

GLACE BAY, N.S., May 18 (CP) —Forces of the Amalgamated Mine Workers in four communities stood ready to-day for a determined attempt to tie up coal production in the South Cape Breton colliery area.

From the organization's locals in Glace Bay and neighboring towns came word that members would try to halt operations in three other mines as a gesture of sympathy with the striking colliers in No. 1-B Pit, already practically idle.

The Amalgamated Workers there have been on strike since Monday in protest against the suspension of one of their members for "carelessness." Last evening they commandeered a work train and kept all but 33 of the rival United Mine Workers from descending into the mine.

A few hours later other locals decided to join their fight to have William Stefura brought back to work. Union members at Reserve, after a meeting, announced they would picket No. 5 and No. 10 Mines to-day.

CHILD AT ARDEN IS BADLY BITTEN

Analysis of Slain Dog's Head Shows Animal Had Rabies.

TRUCK KILLS FISHERMAN.

TWEED, May 15. — (Examiner Corresondence.) —On Tuesday two small children of Mr. Cephas Clarke of Arden, were out playing with their dog when the animal attacked the one little lad of four years, biting him about the face, arms and neck. The screams of the other child brought the father to the scene and the youngster was rushed to Dr. O'Connor at Tamworth, where the wounds were dressed.

The following morning Mr. Clarke destroyed the dog and sent the head away to be analyzed. The result of the analysis showed the dog had rabies.

Edward Lloyd, aged 53, a fisherman residing at Sillsville, in South Fredericksburg township, was instantly killed on Monday when he was struck down by a loaded milk truck driven by George Ohlman, milk wrawer. Ohlman was charged with manslaughter and released on $2,000 bail.

Mr. Gardner Harton, who was injured while working on the highway some weeks ago, and who has been a patient at Mrs. Lalond's since that time, was removed to Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday following more serious complications.

District Executive Meets In Norwood

TRENT RIVER, May 18 (Examiner Correspondence) — Discussion of Federated Fees, county grants and program arranged for the district annual meeting featured a busy and interesting session of the annual district executive of the Women's Institute held in the Public Library at Norwood Wednesday afternoon, all branches of East Peterborough were represented but Apsley.

Apply for County Grant

The directors decided to make application to the County Council for a grant of $25. Two delegates from each branch will be appointed to interview the reeves and a committee is to be sent from the district to attend the County Council and present the petition.

"Federated Fee Changed"

An important feature of the meeting was the discussion of Federated Fees. It was decided that out of each 25 cent membership fee, 10 cents be forwarded as usual to Federated Fees and an additional 5 cents be retained in the district to help meet the expenses of the district executive.

All convenors of the standing committee were re-appointed for the coming year.

Annual Meeting

June 6th, was set as the date set for the district annual meeting to be held at Hall's Bridge. The meeting will be held in the Town Hall, beginning at 10 a.m. Dinner will be served in the Windsor Hotel. Miss Powell is to be the guest speaker. Address of welcome will be given by Mrs. Shearer of Buckhorn, and reply by a member of the Westwood branch.

Mrs. Rathwell has resigned as president of the Norwood branch, Mrs. Robert Fennell has been appointed in her place.

Nearly 4,000,000,000 pounds of tobacco were raised in the world in the last year.

MORE GAINS RECORDED.

Statistics confirming the upward trend of business and industrial conditions in Canada continue to make their appearance, and even the most pessimistic can scarcely deny, in the face of this mass of evidence, that there is a distinct and steady improvement.

For example, a further increase has been recorded by the McConnell and Fergusson index of Canadian business activity.

As at April 1 it registered 23.3 per cent. below normal, compared with 24.1 per cent. below normal the month previous, and 24.2 per cent. below nrmal one year ago.

This gain of 10.9 points in twelve months represents a percentage improvement in business in one year of 23.5 per cent.

Each of the four factors comprising the index gained. Revenue freight loadings were up six-tenths point, construction contract awards gained 1.9, bank debits 1.1 and electric energy output four-tenths.

	This Month	Last Month	Last Year
Car loadings	75.0	74.4	62.1
Construction contracts	61.9	60.0	56.8
Bank debits	92.1	91.0	77.5
Electric power production	85.1	84.7	76.1
Combined weighted index	76.7	76.9	65.8

WHERE COURTESY PAYS.

The Department of National Revenue in issuing instructions to the Canadian customs staff at posts of entry to extend a courteous reception to visitors is making an important contribution toward the fostering of tourist traffic.

While simplified customs procedure at such ports has made as pleasant as possible the path of the tourist arriving by automobile, train, sea or air, and while the revenue must necessarily be protected, it is quite true, as the department points, customs officers can do much by courteous and expeditious service to speed neighborly visitors along their friendly way.

Our tourist friends get their first contact with Canadians and form their first impressions of this country when they are met at the border by customs officers, and whether that first impression is favorable or not depends entirely upon the nature of the reception they are accorded by those officials.

A friendly courteous welcome, a genuine desire to be of service and to make the entry of tourists as speedy and comfortable as possible will do a great deal to sell Canada to our visitors; on the other hand, an officious, surly manner on the part of customs officials will give our friends from other lands a most unfavorable impression of the Dominion people.

It is to the credit of the Canadian customs staff that they have been noted for courteous co-operation; if there are any departures from that high standard, however, the department would be entirely justified in dealing drastically with officials who have failed to grasp the necessity of polite efficiency at all times.

MAKING NEW CITIZENS.

The suggestion of Hon. H. H. Stevens in a speech the other day that more emphasis should be placed upon the significance of Canadian naturalization is one with which The Examiner is thoroughly in accord.

The Minister of Trade and Commerce, remarking that the greatest privilege of all citizenship is "treated with backdoor contempt in large measure," proposes that instead of naturalisation proceedings taking place in a court that there should be public ceremonies in each district, preferable on Dominion Day, when newcomers who have met the tests could be formally admitted into the family of Canadian citizenship.

Canadians take much pride in their citizenship, and rightly insist upon proper qualifications before new arrivals are admitted into the ranks.

Up to that point there is no complaint, but we fall down in the final stage, inasmuch as little or nothing is done to impress the new citizen with the privilege that is being accorded him in the granting of citizenship papers.

The process is simply a part of court procedure, and while some of our judges have been deligent in bringing before the applicants for naturalization the honor and responsibility of Canadian citizenship, the effect cannot possibly be as great as if the final act of according citizenship were completed at a formal ceremony, such as has been proposed by Hon. Mr. Stevens.

THE ELECTION IS ON.

With the announcement of June 19th as the election date, the stage is cleared for the provincial campaign, and the rival parties will intensify the drive that each hopes will bring victory four weeks from next Tuesday.

As a matter of fact, the campaign has been in full swing for some time, the two old parties have candidates in most of the constituencies, with the Liberals leading in that respect, the air has been full of charges and counter-charges, and all the sound and fury of a political battle have been with us for some time.

With the issue now definitely joined, it becomes necessary for The Examiner to adopt its usual course in regard to letters on political questions during the progress of the election, and to insist that only such letters as are signed for publication by the writers will be printed.

Ordinarily we are satisfied to know the identity of the correspondent and do not demand the publication of names, but it will be readily admitted that when an election campaign is being fought it becomes necessary for a newspaper to safeguard its space by requiring all writers of political letters to sign their communications for publication.

Even when that requirement is met we reserve, of course, the right to withhold publication of letters that are violently abusive or are in other ways offensive.

Letters of reasonable length on political issues will be welcomed, but those who hope to have their communications published over a nom de plume will merely waste our time and their own if they send in unsigned letters.

ATTACKING PUBLIC MEN.

(From the Ottawa Journal)

To be a public man is to be a shining mark. In a certain type of journal, in reviews, in the popular novel, on the stage, even in some pulpits, the politician is either fool or knave. There is hardly a youth through first year in university, a young parlor Bolshevik, a broker, business man or plumber, who doesn't believe he could run the country more efficiently—and more honestly—than those who are running it.

• • • •

Why is this?

Since Confederation politicians have administered between five and six billions of public money. How many of them have been found guilty of dishonesty? How far back into political history does one have to go to find a public man of note who actually used his position for personal gain?

During the war Canadian governments spent something like two billions of dollars. It was expenditure made in desperate haste, surrounded by complex difficulties, without much of chance for scrutiny. Yet despite the most minute post-war dissection by rival parties, despite that practically every item was subjected to microscopic examination by partisans all too anxious to find wrong, every investigation vindicated the honesty of politics.

Only in one solitary case—a very insignificant one—was an obscure politician condemned; and the verdict was open to doubt. Yet during all of those years, when Canada's war effort was being prosecuted with a resolution and an integrity that was a magnificent tribute to democracy, the critics of the politicians, the retailers of cloak-room gossip, flourished like green-bay trees. It mattered not that inquiry after inquiry revealed charges to be lies. The evil tongues continued.

• • • •

Four classes of persons constantly assail politicians.

There are the merely malevolent, inspired by partisan, or financial, or political reasons.

There are the well-meaning but unthinking people who are seemingly ready to swallow anything told them to the detriment of politicians as a class.

There are the people who are incapable of distinguishing between gossip and demonstrated facts.

And there are certain newspapermen who belonging to the underworld of journalism, have their stock-in-trade in slander and irresponsibility.

Of these four classes the most dangerous, we often think, is that class which is incapable of distinguishing between gossip and evidence. During the war a certain eminent divine preached a sermon in which he made accusations of graft. When he was brought before a committee of Parliament and invited to tell what he knew, the only thing he could say was that some person, whose name he did not even know, and whom he had encountered in the smoker of a Pullman, had assured him there was graft. Yet this man, on the basis of this, had been preaching all over Canada, denouncing "graft."

• • • •

There are other critics. There is the man who assures one that "every politician has his price"; the man who tells you that all the statesmen are dead; the chap who, thinking it splendid to appear sophisticated and cynical, hints darkly at inside knowledge of corruption.

These people are frauds to a man. They are of the type that likes to repeat the gossip of smoking-rooms; the oracles of golf clubs; the envious; the smart Alecs who like to appear blase; the people Disraeli had in mind when he said the "defects of successful men are the consolation of dunces."

• • • •

But the frauds, because sensible people listen to them, do harm. For this unbridled, reckless criticism and abuse lowers the efficiency of politics. It makes it harder to get good men to serve in public life. It creates disrespect for Parliament. It undermines confidence in representative, democratic government. It induces young people to grow up with the belief that all public life is crooked. Politics, which ought to be the greatest of professions, becomes a term of reproach.

• • • •

No one need argue against fair criticism. Fair attack, informed attack, is the salt of democracy. What must be condemned, the thing against which all of us should be on guard, is ignorant criticism, muck-raking, character-assassination, the peddling of innuendos and gutter-gossip.

Business men, in particular, should be hostile to such wrong. Instead of holding aloof from politics, content to curse taxes and politicians, they should be more inclined to take a practical interest in politics, to inform themselves regarding public affairs, to become better acquainted with their realities and difficulties. It is the simple proposition of having more men on the playing field, fewer hurling abuse from the bleachers.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Now that the election date is set, the politicians will doubtless endeavor to show that anything they have said about each other up to now was merely a rehearsal.

Mr. Hepburn's action in resigning from the Federal Parliament will serve to remind the public that he has been a member of that august body.

Premier Henry has finally taken the plunge, but has not given any intimation as to whether or not he finds the provincial waters cold.

There will be at least six candidates in Mr. Henry's constituency, which seems to be just another way of re-electing the Premier by acclamation.

A petition signed by 55,122 Canadians asking for the legalization of sweepstakes for charitable purposes has been presented at Ottawa. There are always plenty of people ready to take a chance—even on a petition.

The suggestion is made that what the embattled politicians need is a few good "gag men. Other people may be inclined to say that what they really require is simply a gag.

CHAPTER 1

"John is going to be married." Alysia Naylor said the words sharply, almost between clenched teeth, as she stared at her sister across the pleasant breakfast table in Chelsea Gardens.

"So Lady Ida has got him at last," her sister observed calmly.

"Lady Ida! He's going to marry some widow-woman or other of whom no one has ever heard!" They were talking of their cousin, in whose house they were living.

"Indeed." Her sister put more sugar on her grapefruit with an air of absorption. Only after it was well powdered did she look up. "How do you know?"

"I've a letter from Aunt Norah. She simply gloats over the whole affair. A Mrs. Burnham, designing thing, has used the time while aunt was recovering from her accident to rope John in."

"But surely you are pleased for dear John'ssake?" Etta Naylor looked pained surprise at her sister. Both women were past 30. Henrietta was the younger, a handsome woman, tall and fair-headed and as plump as her dressmaker and tailor permitted. Alysia, the elder, was thin and dark, with an ugly, passionate, vivid face. Her hair, dark too, seemed always to float around her temples, giving her an air tragic and muse-like. An appearance which some said was carefully cultivated.

"For goodness' sake, Etta, don't always be so smug!" Alysia broke off a piece of rye brea , and snapped it down on the table as though it were the highest trump. "It's perfectly damnable. And you think so, too! Of course we looked on John as a confirmed bach. Since he evidently wasn't going to marry Ida Westmacott after all. Besides, he always spoke as though he would never marry."

"But haven't you found" — Etta spoke with an air of imparting an interesting and quite original discovery of her own—"haven't you found that people don't always do as they say, or think they will? I have." And she tackled her grapefruit again.

Alysia pushed her chair away from the table.

"It means the end of everything between Reggie and me," she said under her breath.

"Oh, surely not!" murmured her sister in a shocked voice.

"Surely not, indeed!" scoffed the other, "you and I, Etta, have £300 a year between us. Between us!"

"Claud has exactly the same," Etta threw in brightly. Claud was their brother.

"And don't you suppose he's feeling just as we are about this blow? Though he's got his profession. A clever barrister can earn thousands."

"Personally, I'm glad for dear John's sake that he's going to have a real home of his own. I never did think that Lady Ida would suit him. And since Aunt Norah is pleased, you did say that she's pleased, didn't you?—why, I'm prepared to like this Mrs. Burnham very much indeed."

Her sister flashed a look of scorn at her and smacked the table again, this time with her aunt's letter, which Etta took and carefully read, murmuring, "May I?" while her sister raved on.

"Three hundred pounds between us with this house of John's to live in, with his car to use, with him always willing to entertain one's friends, was one thing, but £300, or rather the half of it with no house, no servants, no car—why, it's starvation—beggary—of course, Reggie and I can't marry on this!"

"My girls' clubs will have to be given up," Etta murmured sadly. "But don't you think, dear, it's rather selfish of us to look at this piece of news just from our standpoint?" She gave a bright, brave smile. Her sister made a sound in her throat, suggestive of being strangled.

"Reggie!" she called suddenly, as a step sounded outside the door.

"Any one call me?" asked a rich baritone voice, and Reginald Claridge came into the room.

"I told Tompkins that it was a waste of breath to announce me. Morning, Etta. Morning, dearest thing!" He waved a finger at Etta, and kissed Alysia's dark, thin cheek. Alysia held on to his hand and sat looking up at him with something yearning in her face, something real and genuine. There was nothing real or genuine in the handsome debonair one looking into hers.

Seldom does a face show one purpose in life as clearly as did this young man's, and that purpose was to do the very best for Reginald Claridge that circumstances permitted. So far, no very good chance had come his way. A penniless chemist working in a beauty parlor's laboratory, he had been immensely flattered at being taken up by Alysia Naylor, who was hostess at the big old house where money evidently was plentiful, and where he had an entrance into circles which otherwise he could never have reached. That Alysia had had the good taste to fall in love with him was very pleasant too. True, she was older than he, but she was in "the swim" as he called it, and that counted for everything with him. It had been a cold douche to learn that her father had halved £600 a year, and given one pittance—so Claridge called it to himself, and as the son of a struggling Durham chemist, he knew what that word meant—to be divided between the two sisters. But Alysia had explained with thoughtful promptness her cousin John Tait's position, for whom she and her sister kept house, and where her brother had a couple of rooms.

Tait has a wealthy stepmother, the Naylors' aunt who intended leaving him the whole of her late husband's wealth. He was certain to do something really handsome for Alysia, who had acted as his hostess for nearly five years now, even if he did marry Lady Ida Westmacott. A very pleasant connection she would prove, while supposing he did not marry her then Alysia assured him that John would never part with his freedom, in which case, eventually, something still more handsome might come their way.

"You're looking a bit on edge," he remarked, stroking her hand and eyeing the sideboard attentively. He disliked kidneys, but the grilled ham looked uncommonly good. Standing on a hot-plate wasn't going to improve it, however. He tried to free his hand with a lover-like little pat, but Alysia only held it tighter.

"John is going to be married," she said briefly, and her eyes still clung to his face. Not to his eyes, for he had dropped them immediately.

"So Lady Ida has pulled it off. Well, he might do worse," he murmured.

"He has done worse! He's going to marry an odious, designing creature, a widow my Aunt Norah has picked up in Vichy. It's not exactly like winning the Dublin sweepstake, is it?" She poured out another cup of black coffee for herself. Alysia's breakfast consisted of cigarets and black coffee.

"Perhaps it won't make so much difference, after all," Etta put in, as Claridge resolutely moved away from Alysia and towards the sideboard.

"John has sent a line, too," Alysia said on that. "He says"—she pulled a folded sheet from a bag dangling on her wrist—"he says that he hopes we don't find it short notice; the wedding won't be for another couple of months and the honeymoon will last quite that, but that as the builders will have rather a job to put in central heating, and so on, Etta and I might move down to Tor Cottage. Tor Cottage!" she repeated, raising her eyes to the ceiling.

"And where is Tor Cottage?" Reginald asked in rather an absent-minded voice. He wanted time to digest the news of this marriage.

"It's a pretty place." Etta rang for fresh toast for Reginald. "Quite charming. And John is making a hard court down there. It was just for our sake really. I do hope he won't stop it. But very likely Mrs. Barnham ——"

"Burnham," snapped her sister.

"—— is keen on tennis. Aunt Norah writes that she's about John's age, though one wouldn't guess it."

"You may be sure one wouldn't!" came from Alysia, whose age was clear to see in spite of the most liberal make-up. "Tor Cottage is at the end of the world," she said contemptuously.

"No, dear, only near Caterbury," amended Etta placidly.

"And even Tor Cottage is only thrown in as a temporary perch," Alysia went on, "for he writes that it won't be wanted till the autumn . . . there you are, we're turned out like servants who've been given notice!"

"I'm sure he said some kind things, words of regret," put in Etta, but her face had flushed, and her eyes glittered for a moment before she resolutely fastened them on her plate.

"Of course! Plenty!"

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

BURNABY, BRITISH COLUMBIA

Three persons, all of the name of Burnaby, figured in the naming of this place. When Capt. Richards, about 1850, made his survey of Burrard Inlet, a party of his officers, out on a hunting trip, came across a sheet of water they named Burnaby Lake, after a Robert Burnaby of Victoria, who had shown them great hospitality.

Other places named after this genial gentleman are: Burnaby Shoal in the Inlet, Burnaby Strait in the Queen Charlotte group and Burnaby Range on the mainland of the Pacific Coast. The district later was surveyed by a young surveyor named Burnaby, who asked Sir James Douglas, the governor, that it might be named after his celebrated brother, Col. Fred Burnaby, author of the famous work, "A Ride To Khiva," and, according to Mrs. Mary Harris, daughter to Sir James, he was pleased to acquiesce.

OUGHT TO HAVE A DOG

Wish we had a dog again....It's so long since we had a dog and that little fellow we had was so friendly. So gay, so gallant, that little cocker spaniel that used to run around our house and gnaw at things and mess up the rugs and wag her tail and put her wet paws on things, and wriggle when you held her....But it hurt so when she died. She'd been in life such a little while, had not nearly exhausted all its delights and mysteries. It was a pity that the little thing, so full of adventure and energy, should die just because those precious qualities were in her....It wasn't the fault of the boy who was driving the car. She ran into the street directly under his wheels and he couldn't help it....He was a good boy. He picked her up in his arms and brought her up to the house, and it took character and courage to do that....And after Patsy was gone, we couldn't bear the thought of another little dog, all golden and floppy-eared, running around the place as she did. So we didn't get another dog.

But we don't live in that house any more. And across the street from where we live now there's another little cocker spaniel. And he ambled across the street the other day, rolled over and over on the lawn and sniffed the trees and wobbled out again....And it seems to us we ought to have a dog again ....To be startled by the cat and get his tender nose scratched. And to whimper in the night the first days and be a nuisance and then make himself at home here and own the place, just as Patsy did. And chase after sticks and balls and play tag with all the children in the neighborhood and get all tired and go lie down in the shade somewhere and pant and pant and pant with his pink tongue hanging in the air....And get himself lost and get himself found again and be all frantic with joy over being home with his friends once more.

Surely, surely we ought to have a dog again. A friendly, excited, joyous little rascal with the same gallant spirit that made Patsy such a living treasure and such a happy memory.

BANKER'S WIFE KILLED

EXETER—Mrs. Catherine Wood, wife of T. Stafford Wood, manager of Bank of Montreal here was found dead in the basement of her home yesterday with a fractured skull and broken neck. It is believed she suffered a dizzy spell or heart attack and fell down the stairs.

Foreign Affairs

(By H. W. L. MAHOOD)

THE UNITED STATES.

In our last article attention was called to the home conditions of the Mexican migratory workers in California. Some touches must be given the picture. Seven persons live in this one outhouse building. Imagine them all asleep after a hard day's work on the floor. All except the little fever sick baby. The poor thing is too sick to cry. The stench is terrible for lack of proper sanitary provision. In the corner of the room sits a rusty milk can and a barrel. Water brought from Mendota is stored in them. The water has been brought four miles. Gas costs. The eight-mile trip is a little matter for many folks. For that family it is a big matter. It is so big that the water has to be sparingly used. That is why all the family are so dirty, and why the room is so smelly. The sight is not so nauseating, because the Mexicans are race dirty. They love white things. When the whole family toil so hard from early morn to eve there is but one thing to do. Water must not be used for bathing. Thirty-five cents a day buys but a mouthful of food and a fragment of clothing for each worker. Everything is at the vanishing point. To live thus battling for a living is not living. This is the manner of life for thousands who travel from Old Mexico to California.

That Little Mexican Girl.

To-day the mother is not in the field because she cannot take the sick babe with her. She is at home caring as best she can for the child sick unto death, and without the help of a doctor, and with that SCARLET FEVER sign tacked on the door. Yes, that is where we find the little Mexican girl to-day.

She doesn't mind picking cotton balls for thirty-five cents a day. And she doesn't mind the filth and dirt and starvation, but she is worried about that electric light in the shack. Notice it if you will. There it is right in the middle of the room, fly-specked so that the light has to fight to shine through. She has to pay twenty-five cents a week for its use. Does she need it at night? You answer. To keep it clean takes water!

GERMANY.

The right of criticism of the state has always been claimed by the Roman Catholic church and by the Calvinist. Both are now facing the stern reality of maintaining their religious rights. Both faced possible death. Neither could be coerced. Let due credit be given the Catholic church for successfully resisting the Aryan attempt to compel compliance. Hitler set out to establish what he described as a Totalitarian state. In building the new Germany the state is to occupy itself with all sides of life, and control them. The Catholic church has refused to be controlled. This church is stout in resisting Aryan teaching of paganism in its schools, or in its hospitals, or in its social organizations. With equal inflexible courage it has refused to countenance submission to the sterilization law. To have lived through this sharp experience was like passing through fire. The struggle for education by the church is vital to the highest interest of both the state and the church.

High Claim Maintained.

The struggle of the Roman Catholic church had no political aim in mind. But it will have political consequences. The results are unavoidable. The totalitarian idea of government is in conflict with the absolute character of religion. The Christian is obligated to love God with all the heart, and mind, and strength. Where love is given obedience must follow. If God is to be loved with all the heart, then all other loves are second. Religion declines every other claim to absolute validity but its own. Such is also the claim of the totalitarian state. Christianity declines every other dogma but the Christian faith. It denies the racial dogma which is the foundation of the absolute state in Germany. Christianity denies every absolute leadership but the Bible and conscience. Logically it denies political leadership when it conflicts with conscience. Protestantism stands on the same solid rock.

BULGARIA.

After Winning the Confidence of the People.

Like all unselfish patriots, Dimitroff had to suffer for the cause he espoused. From 1912 to 1915 the nation was in a state of war. Civil war is always a crisis. Such a period can with heroic effort become one of clarification. The wisdom gathered comes from painful lessons. The Socialists stirred up feuds instead of helping to control the violent. Self oblivion was the result of their policy. They missed their opportunity to render their nation real service in a time of need. The Socialists in Bulgaria failed to achieve what their confreres did in Germany.

The bourgeoisie in Bulgaria found leaders to befog and mislead the masses of the people. To deceive and subdue threatening mass movements of the common people at crisis moments is a feature of bourgeoisie strategy of this age. Such strategy cannot wear. Japanese bourgeoisie are not as much concerned about the welfare of China as about the discontent of her own masses in factory and in field. Her asserted determination to decide what is best for China and all the East is empty. Her concern is in the direction of threatened revolution within her own borders. As this writer sees the situation, the burdens of the tax-paying common people in Japan must be lightened, and that without delay, if revolution is stayed. Japan bourgeoisie have no time to lose for self safety. The common people may be fooled with a bogey for a while. But the while will be short. Dimitroff is a statesman. He blended his life with the workers of Bulgaria. Thus he came to leadership. The workers elected him to the National Assembly. But that did not make his leadership safe. The bourgeoisie adroitly succeeded to get between him and the people. They made great promises they could not fulfill. Nor did they seriously intend to lo so. The people were soon dissolusioned. Then they took things into their own hands.

A Thought

The New Year is a golden gate of opportunity for doing good. We made a good many failures the past year. The New Year is a chance to try again with the hope of doing better. Many a musician has desired after a public pageant, to play his parts over again, believing that he could have done them accurately and well but for a small misunderstanding of some little note. During this year the concert will be repeated. The chances of life are open anew. — G. B. F. Hallock.

CHAMBERLIN HURT IN CRASH

LONDON, Eng. May 18. (C.P.-Havas).—Sir Austen Chamberlain, who suffered injuries in an automobile accident Tuesday, will be confined to his bed for several days, his physicians reported today. The former foreign secretary's general condition is satisfactory, but an inflamation of one of the knee muscles necessitates that he keep absolutely quiet, the doctors said.

HOG PRICES IN ONTARIO.

TORONTO.— Bacon hog prices continued to rise generally in Ontario market points to-day. Packers were paying up to $7.80 per hundredweight, f.o.b. shipping point.

To-day's prices: Brantford $7.80, up 5; Kitchener, $7.75, up 10; Barrie $7.75, up 10; Peterborough $7.65 unchanged.

SETBACK SEEN SILVER STOCKS

GENERAL TONE STEADY.

TORONTO, May 18.—(CP)—Selective buying proceeded quietly today and with very little effect on the price level of the Toronto stock exchange mining listings. Silvers lacked the interest centered in them yesterday and some recessions were boarded in the group under profit-taking. The general tone of the gold and base metal departments was steady.

Eldorado held most of Thursday's advance, closing at 2.70 down 7 cents. Most of the day's transactions were at 2.80. Nipissing fell back to 2.60 off 14 cents and Castle lost 1 to 63. Premier and white eagle closed unchanged or higher.

In the big gold group Lake Shore and McIntyre were out of the picture and trading was draggy in the others with exception of Teck Hughes and Hollinger. The latter pushed up 75 cents to $17 and Teck at 6.05 was down 5 cents. Dome also closed down narrowly.

Broker's Opinions

19 reviewed.—Bullish, 7; bearish, 0; non-commital, 12.

A. E. Pierece & Co.—What the market is more interested in, it seems to us, is the probable trend of corporate profits and that is the factor which is probably responsible, as much as any other, for the hesitation and apparent lack of interest in equities.

John Muir & Co.—The market's current base is still subject to effective trading. We confine commitments to a trading basis and maintain stop protection.

Goodbody & Co.—All in all, we believe a policy of accumulation of a moderate line on recessions is justified.

Standard Facts and Forecasts.

Yesterday's advance in industrial stocks, the largest in a single day since Jan. 15, accomplished on a moderate total of transactions, demonstrated the fact that volume is not an important factor in the present market. It is now evident that the market was sold to a complete standstill last Monday morning, and that with the drying up of liquidation prices were in a position to snap back vigorously without much increase in activity. With prices now up 5 points from the recent low, it is possible that a much greater extension of the rise would collide with a supply area; short term commitments, however; appear worth holding for the present.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 18 (C.P.). — Quiet profit-taking in stocks to-day cancelled part of the gains registered in yesterday's vigorous rally.

Some support was evident, declines predominated in the late dealings. U.S. Smelting and Dupont lost more than 2 points each while issues down about a point or so included Santa Fe, Case, American Telephone, U.S. Steel, Howe Sound, and New York Central. Coca-Cola was a firm spot.

Transfers approximated 1,000,000 shares.

POULTRY EXPERTS MEET

GUELPH, Ont., May 18. (CP).—Some of the leading bacteriologists and poultry specialists on the continent were here to-day attending the Pullorum Conference at the Ontario Agricultural College and the Ontario Veterinary College. The men are discussing methods of prevention of poultry diseases and their sources.

RABBITS PLAY HAVOC

LINDSAY, Ont., May 18. (CP) — Residents of the south section of Lindsay complain of invasion of their properties by hoards of rabbits which have destroyed plants, shrubs and trees. Samuel Howe reported a young peach tree had been killed by rabbits nibbling at the bark.

ROUTE FEASIBLE

COPENHAGEN.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has reported to the Governor of Greenland, it was announced, to-day, that an air route for regular traffic between North America and Europe is not unfeasible.

$34.74 GOLD AT LONDON

MONTREAL, May 18 (CP)—Bar gold in London unchanged at $34.74 an ounce in Canadian funds, 136s 2d in British funds. The fixed $35 Washington price amounted to $34.94 in Canada.

World rubber restriction has brought rising rubber prices in British Malaya.

LEPROSY LESSENS BY NEW METHODS

Medical Expert Says Dread Disease Diminishing as Natives Get Educated.

NEW ORLEANS, May 18 (C.P.).—Dr. Arthur Torrance of the Royal Society of Tropical Medicine, who for more than a score of years has battled tropical disease plagues, predicted that leprosy will eventually be stamped out.

Travelling to British possessions in Central Africa after a stay in South America, Dr. Torrance said improved treatment methods are diminishing the ravages of the disease. He said an educational program of sanitation and physical hygiene is being pushed forward in Africa, India and remote stretches of South America.

"When the natives of these countries have been thoroughly educated and additionally taught to seek medical aid promptly when the disease becomes apparent, there is no reason why leprosy should not be completely eliminated," he said.

Dr. Torrance said treatments applied now in many places, including Louisiana's leper colony at Carville, were producing cures in 55 per cent. of first stage cases; 17 per cent. in secondary cases, and alleviating suffering in third stage cases.

NOONDAY CROWD

Glass from the honeydew windows and from the big glass panels in the front of Klein and Binkley's store whizzed about like machine gun bullets. Scores of people were sprayed with the cutting missiles. A man across the road at the entrance to the Lister building, was thrown to the ground and rendered unconscious. The moment after the blast occurred, the street looked as though someone had played a machine gun among the crowd.

Police and doctors were rushed to the spot and Chief Aitchison, suffering from head wounds and concussion was rushed to the General Hospital. He was standing in the Honeydew store as the explosion took place and felt the force of it severly. Fortunately, no person was standing actually on the manhole lid in the street when it soared into the air.

German Balloonists Believed Suffocated

MOSCOW, May 18 (AP)—An investigating commission of the German Government to-day probed the circumstantial evidence recording the deaths of its two sub-stratosphere balloonists, Dr. Hermann Victor Masuch and Martin Schrenk.

The two were the crew of the Bartsch Von Begsfeld, Germany's biggest balloon, which smashed down Sunday after a take-off from Bitterfeld, Germany.

The Commission decided that the two men probably were suffocated by lack of oxygen two hours after they set out for a flight above the clouds and that their suffocation was due to a defect in the respiratory apparatus.

The balloon's instruments showed the men had reached a height of six miles, but there was nothing recorded to indicate that the aeronauts had anticipated danger.

The bodies of the two flyers arrived here to-day and will be sent to Berlin to-night.

Nantucket Rescue Work Hampered by Fog

The dense fog that caused the liner Olympic to ram and sink the Nantucket lightship, off the coast of New England, made the work of rescuing the survivors of the sunken craft difficult, as these Central Press pictures of the actual rescue show. At left, a lifeboat and a radio-equipped launch from the Olympic are combing the sea for victims. At right, seven survivors are taken aboard the liner. Three died later. Four other members of the lightship's crew were drowned. (Central Press)

W. NORBERT MILLAR FORMS SYNDICATE

Millar Mineral Exploitation Company is Incorporated Under Companies Act.

Of more than passing interest to mining investors of this district is the announcement of the incorporation under the Companies Act of Ontario of the Millar Mineral Exploration Company, Limited, with an authorized capital of 100,000 shares.

W. Norbert Millar, well-known local aviator and prospector, is president and general manager of this company, and G. K. Fraser, of Lakefield, is vice-president. Other local men are vitally interested in the company, J. K. Harkness and Dr. S. Y. Walsh, both of this city, being directors.

According to the prospectus of the company, it owns the following interests in properties staked by Mr. Millar: "An 80 per cent. interest in six mining claims in the Township of Leckie, in the Gowganda Mining Division, Ontario. Samples of high-grade silver have been obtained from the above claims, staked in the Abitibi district, Quebec. Three discoveries of gold have been made on this group by the management, from which surface grab samples assay from $2 to $7 per ton, at the present price of gold. This discovery appears to be fully 20 feet in width, and is strongly recommended for further development by a very competent engineer. No development outside of grab sampling has been done on this group. A 90 per cent. interest in mining claims in the region of Riviere a l'eau Jaune, Territory of Abitibi, Quebec."

The purpose of the company, as announced, is to prospect and further develop these properties and to ascertain their true values. Also to purchase an airplane suitable for prospecting purposes to be flown by Mr. Millar to make further prospecting efforts. Any definite claims found by the company will be turned over at the highest terms to larger companies for deevlopment and putting into production, it is set forth.

It is further set forth in the prospectus as follows: "It is the intention of the management to sell only sufficient treasury shares to finance this season's operations as it is believed that the immediate returns will be ample to enable the company to continue operations on at least the same scale next season."

Others identified with the company are: Alston Carlyle, of Toronto, secretary-treasurer and transfer agent; Major B. Day, Toronto, consulting engineer; Imperial Bank of Canada, bankers; John C. MacCordindale, Toronto, solicitor.

While the authorized capital is 100,000 shares, 50,000 shares will be retained for properties, 50,000 will remain in the treasury, and 30,000 is being offered for sale at $1 per share.

ASK INVESTIGATION.

STRATFORD, Ont., May 18 (C.P.). — An appeal to have an investigator sent to the city to probe working conditions on civic relief projects is being sent to-day to J. A. Ellis, Secretary of the Unemployed Relief Committee of Ontario. This decision followed an open-air mass meeting this morning of the men who quit work yesterday in protest on the ruling of the City Council that work must be continued on the stone pile.

VICTORIANS WILL CARRY ON.

OTTAWA, May 18.—(C.P.)—Despite curtailed finances members of the Victorian Order of Nurses have carried on their visits to the sick and the poor to the limit of their ability according to reports presented at the annual convention of the Order now in session.

BRITAIN DOING BEST TO AVOID ARMS COLLAPSE

venture to offer the assurance on behalf of the Government," he told the House, "that nothing shall be found wanting in our continuing to play our full part in saving the world from what would undoubtedly be a serious calamity—the breakdown of the disarmament conference."

In reply to Sir Stafford's demands for action to stop the Japanese expansion, Sir John declared Britain was not pledged to "preserve" the integrity of China herself, and would not participate in direct sanctions against Japan or any other power in the Far East unless the United States fully co-operated.

Great Britain would respect the political integrity of China, but she never signed any treaty to preserve it, he added. So far as the demands for economic sanctions were concerned, the Foreign Secretary went on:

"Economic sanctions cannot be applied without the risk of war. And we cannot undertake any system of sanctions or effective action of this type unless the United States co-operates."

Sir John vigorously denied that the British had shown any lack of energy or diligence in pressing for disarmament. On the contrary, Britain had given the lead. She first set the example in unilateral reduction of armaments—reduction of her own armaments. She was the one power that had produced a connected scheme for disarmament. She was the only power that had dared to mention concrete figures in any arms plan.

Doubts had been raised and exceptions had been made concerning the British draft convention, which made one look for an agreement less confidently, he continued. Yet as a result of negotiations Britain had succeeded in getting Germany to state what modifacation of the British proposal she was prepared to accept. That, Sir John argued, was very significant; and at Geneva other powers would have an opportunity to state their views.

Position With China

Sir John clarified Britain's position with regard to China and Japan in these terms:

Britain stands by the Lytton report on Manchuria (The League of Nations Commission which condemned Japanese aggression). She stands by the Washington Nine-Power Treaty whose signatories agreed to respect the integrity of China. And she stands by the obligations she assumed under the League Covenant.

He observed, however, that under the Nine-Power Treaty Britain never obligated herself to "preserve" the territorial integrity and political independence of China. She had merely undertaken along with other signatories to respect the independence of China.

She had not undertaken to use her navy, army or air force to preserve that independence.

"It simply is not true," he stressed, "that we signed a treaty with China in which we pledged ourselves to use all our force to preserve the territorial integrity and political independance of China.

"That should be quite clearly understood."

Two Views

Further he stressed the difficulty of imposing economic sanctions. It was all very well to say that imposition of economic sanctions need not be intended as an unfriendly act. But the power on whom the sanctions were imposed might take a quite different view.

"We must not assume that there is something called economic sanctions, different from war, which can light-heartedly be applied to all sundry without the risk of war," he added.

He intimated Britain was willing to participate in an international policy of sanctions (reprisals against treaty violations) in specific cases should all power interested agree to it formally.

"Nevertheless," said Sir John, "it must be recognized that policy of sanctions cannot be set up like a bottle of medicine for dosage where and when it is needed. This is a matter necessitating the full review of each individual case and, before action by any power of this nature is taken, all interested must formally agree."

FERGUSON NOT COMING HOME.

LONDON, May 18.—(C.P. Cable). —Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, to-day denied reports he was contempalting a visit home prior to the Ontario General Election June 19.

The former Premier of Ontario said he certainly was not planning a trip to Canada at present, htough he might make his customary trip in the autumn.

QUIET SELLING IN OIL SECTION

DOMESTICS FOLLOW SUIT.

TORONTO, May 18.—(C.P.)—The peaks of Thursday's rally were levelled off in quiet selling to-day that centred mainly in the Oil, Distillery and Metal shares. All the interlisted shares recorded recessions in sympathy with New York's mildly reactionary tone and domestic listings trailed along, giving the board a decided majority of losses over gains at the close.

Little was heard to-day about Washington's progress with the proposed silver legislation and as Thursday's rally had a silver angle the tendency was to await developments. All the interlisted issues drifted down, Nickel taking a drop of 50 cetns to 27.40 and Smelters 3 points to 154. C.P.R., Brazilian and Ford A all closed on the down side.

Distillery shares held well in the morning session, but surrendered fractions late in the day, Walkers comomn slipping a point.

Dillinger's Hideout Found In Old Mine

CHICAGO, May 18 (AP)—The spectre of elusive John Dillinger crossed the path of the army of man hunters looking for him today.

Reports that Federal agents had discovered at a deserted mine the hideout Dillinger used after he and his pals had shot their way to freedom from a Little Bohemia, Wis., resort, spurred the hunters.

The agents were also said to have found the farm house where Edward G. Bremer, kidnapped St. Paul banker, had been held prisoner.

The locale of mine hide-out was described as a deserted section of hilly country, settled early in Wisconsin's history and seldom visited.

Meanwhile Federal agents in Chicago indicated they are satisfied that Dillinger has not fled to South America or Mexico, as rumored, but is still in hiding in or near Chicago.

Finding of gold in East Michoacan in one of the best strikes known in Mexico for many years indicates that the continuation of veins already known has been discovered.

"Tight buttoned"

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit ?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy ... to save ... to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels...prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes...to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

OTONABEE BOY IS SUCCESSFUL ORANGE GROWER

Ralph Frost Returns Home After Being Away Since 1898.

LIVES IN CALIFORNIA

Orange Grower Particularly Hard Hit During Past Three Years.

Now the owner and operator of a large orange grove in Southern California, near Pasadena, Ralph Frost, an Otonabee Township old boy, has just returned to Peterborough for a visit after being absent since 1898. Mr. Frost motored here with his wife and is visiting his brother, E. R. Frost, 306 Monaghan Road.

He has just completed an extensive tour of the Southern States and a study of orange growing methods in Florida. "Conditions have improved greatly during the past year in the South," he reports. "In fact there is no conditions now with things as they were a year or so ago. Everyone is optimistic and definite progress is being made to better times."

Such conditions are not true, however, among orange growers in California. "Things have been bad for the past three years," Mr. Frost stated. "In fact few of even the most successful operators made expenses. But we hope for better growing conditions this year."

Mr. Frost stated that he was impressed with the general appearance of the country about Peterborough. "I have been told the farmers here have had crops killed by frosts," he said. "But certainly from everything I have seen and heard they are in a more fortunate position than agriculturists in the States."

The remarkable improvements made in Ontario's road system also impressed Mr. Frots. "That highway from Port Hope to Peterborough is fine and certainly the whole country through which it passes is splendid. I'm glad to be back and see the progress that is being made around Peterborough, a place which I will never forget."

On their return home Mr. and Mrs. Frost will visit Chicago and Winnipeg and then will motor through the Middle West.

BULL PINCHERS.

MONROE, Wis., May 18 (C.P.). —A device to discourage bulls from butting people has been invented by Frank Sacker.

Several strips of metal are fitted to the bull's head, so fashioned that when the animal lowers its head and contacts an object, sharp steel pins bite into its flesh.

Here's What St. George Probably Faced

Captured by Lawrence Griswold and Edward Harkness on the islands of Komodo in the Dutch East Indies, species of "dragon" that would have made even the famous St. George quiver in his boots, are at last lodged in the Bronx Zoo, New York. All the way across Canada they came, and photographers tried in vain to get a picture of the "dragons", said to be a survival of the prehistoric dinosaur. In reality, the animals, if such they can be called, are named Varanikomodoenses—to you, just a species of great lizard, better known now as "dragon". Here are shown to of them in new surroundings, taking stock of the gaping throngs that came to see what St. George had to conquer. While they have been captured before, they have never lived long in captivity.

PARISH PRIESTS MEET IN LINDSAY

Impressive Service Features Eucharistic Congress of Diocese.

LINDSAY, May 18. — The Eucharistic Congress for the Diocese of Peterborough was held here yesterday and was attended by about forty priests from the different parishes. The services in connection with the Congress were of a most impressive character. Low Masses were celebrated in St. Mary's Church at 5.30, 7, and 7.30 o'clock, and at 10.30 a Solemn Pontifical High Mass was celebrated by His Excellency Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough, which was followed by the procession of the Blessed Sacrament. The sermon was preached by Rev. Father J. O'Brien, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Peterborough. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a conference of the clergy was held in the Parish Hall when papers of religious topics were given by a number of the visiting clergy. The Congress closed at 7.30 last night with services of the Holy Hour in the church. The sermon on this occasion was preached by Rev. Father K. Corkery of Peterborough.

REDUCED CHURCHILL RATE HELD NOT ENOUGH

WINNIPEG, May 18. — (CP) — Further proof contentions of the Manitoba On-to-the-Bay Association that the Churchill route was deserving of cheaper insurance rates was claimed today by Brig.-General R. W. Paterson, president of the Association.

Informed of Ottawa despatches saying recommendation for a cut in the insurance rate of 10 shillings percent on the insured value of shipping through Hudson Bay had been made, General Paterson declared it was welcome news. But he still thought the reduction was insufficient.

The Association for the past 10 years had been preaching the safety of the route, he declared, and evidently others were beginning to see the Association's claims were not extravagant. He hoped that eventually the rate would be below the St. Lawrence River route rate.

C.C.F. CANDIDATE IN SOUTH ONTARIO

Third Candidate to be Named at Rally in Oshawa on May 31.

OSHAWA, May 18.—There will be a three-cornered fight in the coming provincial election in South Ontario riding for the seat now held by W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C.

Frank McLellan, President, and C. H. Millard, Secretary of the Oshawa C.C.F. Club, announced yesterday that a C.C.F. candidate is to be selected at a rally to be held here on May 31 to contest the seat in opposition to Mayor Sinclair and ex-Mayor Ernie Marks.

A number of meetings will be held in the riding, the first to be here Saturday afternoon, when Councillor Arthur Williams, who is opposing Premier George S. Henry in East York, is slated to speak.

W. E. N. Sinclair had no comment to make on the C.C.F. decision, while the Conservatives are satisfied, believing the decision will split the Liberal vote.

COLONEL FISHER HAS DISCOVERED UNKNOWN METAL

Color of Gold and Possesses the Strength of Steel.

TO FLOAT COMPANY

Use Waste Products From Northern Ontario Mining Fields.

The claim to discovery of a new nameless alloy metal, the color of 16-carat government standard gold, and possessing the strength of steel combined with non-corrosive qualities, that make it common to a wide variety of commercial needs, is announced through The Examiner by Colonel Frederick A. Fisher, mechanical, metallurgical and chemical engineer of Toronto.

Colonel Fisher, a native of New Orleans, was a recent visitor to this city, being accompanied by Arnold Drummond, former Peterborough resident, who left here 35-years ago.

He told The Examiner that he has already spent about $50,000 on research ,experimental and development work in connection with his discovery of the new metal, which is so far unnamed and only technically known by a group of chemical symbols.

Negotiations are in hand, according to Colonel Fisher, for the floating of a company capitalised at not less than $100,000, and in view of this fact the Colonel said, he and Mr. Drummond are seeking location for a factory site.

"Yes. We are open for negotiations in this city," Colonel Fisher remarked.

He added that the plant would require a space of 50,000 square feet or more, and that the building must not have a basement. The rolling mill and crusher, he said, would have to be erected on solid ground.

The object of the new company, Colonel Fisher explained would be to make the metal in what is technically known as shapes—that is in sheets, rods, bars, wire and seamless tubing.

It was a metal, he stated, that is particularly adapted for builders hardware, store fronts, boat fittings, fishing tackle, surgical and dental instruments and supplies and in fact in any case where durability and non-corrosive properties were essential features to be taken into consideration.

The metal, he stated, has been specified by a leading architect for inclusion in a new million and a half dollar building now in course of erection, in Toronto.

Colonel Fisher told The Examiner that he had made discovery of a secret process for the manufacture of the new metal, by which he claims he can take care of a number of waste products that are being thrown away in the Northern Ontario mining fields.

He also claimed during the course of an interview with The Examiner to have discovered the formula for the manufacture of Birilium,—the lightest known substance in metallic form, which is at present being solely produced in Germany and which is at present selling on the American market at $300 a pound.

"I have the formula or process for producing this metal," he stated, "and it is a fact that the largest deposits of Birilium ore in the world are in Ontario and Manitoba." He added that Birilium is particularly used in the manufacture of aircraft, on account of its lightness, strength and durability.

Norge Refrigerator Displayed In Window

In the south display window of The Examiner a very fine cardboard lady and gentleman are depicted as admiring the qualities of the new Norge refrigerator.

The big point about this new Norge is its stretching qualities. The interior, it is claimed, will hold more food than other refrigerator of the type on the market. And that is quite a large item in the selling talk of any refrigerator salesman, for food, especially in the summer months, has a habit of piling up. Unless the refrigerator will accommodate it, it must go into the garbage can and that is so much more waste.

The refrigerator is one of those cool-looking affairs that used a black-trimmed white enamel for its manufacture, with a very attractive result. Refrigerators these days seem to be able to refute the ancient axiom that an article can't be useful and ornamental at the same time.

F. H. Patterson of 261 George street is the sole distributor of this New Norge, for Peterborough district.

Bricklayers Protest Use Of U.S. Workmen

TORONTO, May 18 (C.P.) — Claiming they are in a position to supply any skilled or highly-technical labor needed, the Bricklayers' Union of the Amalgamated Building Workers of Canada yesterday telegraphed the Department of Immigration at Ottawa protesting against importation of United States workmen for the proposed alterations to the Canadian Furnace Company's plant at Port Colborne.

At the request of the union the employment branch of the Ontario Department of Labor instigated an investigation yesterday, it was announced.

The protest arose from a newspaper announcement that William Jenovese, organizer for the Bricklayers' and Tilesetters' Union, had come to an agreement with counsel for the Furnace Company to refrain from interfering if the company imported a foreman, a superintendent and two skilled bricklayers.

MISS ROBSON IS GUEST SPEAKER AT BAILIEBORO

Millbrook Institute Guests of Highway Village Branch at Meeting.

SPLENDID ADDRESS

MILLBROOK, May 18. (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. T. A. Skitch, past president of the East Durham Women's Institute, was in the chair for the special meeting held in the basement of the Anglican Church at Bailleboro on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m., when the Millbrook branch was well represented as the invited guests of Bailleboro Institute for the summer series. Miss Ethel J. B. Robson, of Dunfield, Ontario, was the Departmental speaker.

Mrs. Skitch extended a warm welcome on behalf of the hostess branch, and introduced the visiting delegate who spoke first on "The Challenge of Age.", pointing out that the later years of life should be made the worthwhile ones. "We are spending vast sums on education to produce a fine type of men and women for Canada, but we who are standing with our backs to eternity have the task of interpreting life to the coming generation. We have had to make over much of our own thinking for the outlook of today is so entirely different from the days of our youth, and the task of interpretation is ever growing more difficult."

Speaking of changed customs in dress Miss Robson voiced her joy that "the girl of to-day has a chance to have a normal body" and allowing for the criticism of young people which has been a feature of all ages, she added the query, "Life is a wonderful experience; are we making as good a job of our task as the young people are of theirs? It is not easy to accept the responsibility of growing old, but evasion is not possible. We don't need to worry about the young going on the rocks if age keeps itself clear. The challenge to motherhood is that we cannot have a cultured educated people except they come from the homes of our country, and responsibility may not be evaded by putting off the task on the school or the Sunday School for training growing lives."

The challenge for a rich and beautiful age lay in the fact that "you must build for it. The child in the house is the greatest educator a mother may have if she devoted herself to her great task. Reading to the children is a wonderful way of refreshing yourself up—the benefit works both ways. Home may sometimes have to be let go to give time to the children; anyway it is not wise to make it so perfect a place that a boy can find nowhere in which he can be comfortable, and he goes elsewhere for his pleasure. The house is not so important, it is the people who are in it ,and to develop the world within us is quite as important as the things that are without. "The importance of teaching Bible stories, apart from their religious value, to the boys and girls was was pointed out since this Book's contents are woven throughout all lituerature.

Miss Robson was warmly applauded, and before her second address, solos were contributed by Mrs. Fred Waterman and Miss Vanita Ingram. In the early part of the session Mrs. G. Fallis, secretary of the Millbrook branch, by request, gave an outline of the year's activities, and Miss Jackson, of the Bailliebore Institute ,told of a membership of 79; 9 regular and 3 special meetings; a total raised, of $136.53, expenditures of $70.78 and a bank balance of $65.75. Two weeks' short course in sewing had been a much appreciated activity, and donations had been given to the Fresh Air Home at Bronte, and to the district school scholarship. Plants and flowers had been provided for the members, and much help given local relief needs; a delegate was sent to the Ontario W.I. convention, and a cup provided for the public speaking contest in the township.

Mrs. W. Wood, and her little daughter, Audrey, played a piano duet, an readings were given by Mrs. Fred Wood. Miss Robson recited a number of poems of her own composition in her final period of speaking, read one of Chas. D. Roberts' nature poems, and gave some practical hints such as using the bracken ferns, when they come through the ground folded like a pencil, for greens.

Mrs. J. R. Elkins, district secretary, announced the annual meeting for East Durham to be held at Mount Pleasant on June 19, with an all day session opening at 10 a.m. Mrs. Byam invited the hostess branch to meet with Millbrook for the annual church attendance on June 3 to Grace Presbyterian Church, and after the National Anthem the Bailleboro ladies served lunch and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

TRENT RIVER

Mrs. Thomas J. Brown and Mrs. Harry Mann attended the annual district Institute executive at Norwood on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Hendren returned Wednesday to Norwood after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Brown and family.

Mrs. R. W. Umphrey was a visitor Wednesday with Mrs. H. R. Wood and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wood.

Obituary

SAMUEL GEORGE WILSON

MOUNT JULIAN, May 18 (Examiner Correspondence)—The funeral of the late Samuel George Wilson, which was held from his daughter's residence, Princess St. Peterborough on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m., and thence to All Saints' Church, was largely attended by friends and relatives from far and near. The many beautiful floral tributes testifying to the esteem and respect in which he was held.

Rev. E. C. Moore was in charge of the service, assisted by Rev. D. Paterson. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. George Foster, Wellie Sanderson, Albert Reid, William McCauley, Roy Brown and Thomas Wilson.

Interment was made in the Lakefield cemetery.

JANE PASHLEY JONES

TWEED, May 18, (Examiner Correspondence)—Another old resident of Hungerford township, Mrs. Jane Pashley Jones, passed away on Tuesday, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Graham, Lodgercom, following a short illness.

The late Mrs. Jones was born on September 9th, 1848, in Belleville, and spent her early life there. In 1875, she was married in Thurlow to Samuel Jones and the family moved to Hungerford shortly afterwards. She was a member of the United Church and took an active interest, particularly in the Missionary branch.

The late Mrs. Jones is survived by one son, Arthur of Ivanhoe, and one daughter, Mrs. George Graham, of Lodgeroom. One brother, Frank Pashley, resides in Walkerville.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at Lodgeroom United Church with interment at Bethel. Rev. R. R. Nicholson of Tweed United Church had charge of the services. The pallbearers were John Wheeler, George Palmateer, Norman Thompson, Murney Robinson, C. F. Elliott, Robert Sullivan.

JOSEPH RAYMOND SEXSMITH

The death occurred in Hotel Dieu Hospital Kingston, on Tuesday of this week, of Joseph Raymond Sexsmith, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sexsmith, Pine Grove cheese factory near Ennismore. The tot was taken seriously ill but one week ago. Two sisters, Helen and Jean, besides the parents, remain. The funeral was held to St. Carthagh's Church Thursday morning, Requiem Mass being sung by Rev. Dean O'Riordan. Interment was made in St. Carthagh's cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM RUSH

The death occurred Thuraday at her late home in Stoco, of Mrs. William R. Rush, following an illness of two week's duration. The late Mrs. Rush, whose maiden name was Mayme Garrett, was widely known around Stoco and in the township of Hungerford, and her death came as a shock to her many friends. Born in Sherffield township, county of Lennox and Addington, forty-nine years ago, she was a daughter of the late John and Mrs. Garrett. After spending the early part of her life in Sheffield, she was married in 1912 at Erinsville, to Wiliam Rush, following which they took up their residence at Stoco. She was a member of St. Edmund's Roman Catholic Church, Stoco, and took an active interest in all its branches.

There are no surviving children and besides her husband there remains one sister, Mrs. James Harrigan at Marlbank, and two brothers, Arthur and John Garrett, of Erinsville. Mrs. Rush's mother is also a resident of Marlbank. The funeral will be held on Saturday morning to St. Edmund's Church, Stoco, where Requiem Mass will be celebrated by Rev. Father Cullinane at 10 a.m.

J. E. BARKER

J. E. Barker passed away suddenly on Tuesday, May 15th, at Arden ,with a heart attack, while enroute from the station where he and his son Cecil had received the body of the late Mrs. Thomas Thompson of Flint, Michigan, who was being brought home to Harlorne for burial.

of liquor in Ontario not appearing until 1927.

Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, appeared before the convention in North Bay, where Mr. Harrison was named Conservative candidate for Nipissing-Sturgeon Falls. He stressed the importance of the mining industry in building up Northern Ontario and declared Ontario's mineral production last year was only $8,000,000 short of equalling the value of all the province's field crops.

Captain Elmore Philpott at the Windsor-Sandwich and Windsor-Walkerville C.C.C. conventions, charged the St. Lawrence development plans had been defeated in the United States' Congress through "an international ring of power barons planning a bigger and better Beauharnois deal to get control of power in the International section of the St. Lawrence."

He asked Premier Henry and Mr. Hepburn to pledge themselves to guard the public's rights in such developments.

Thre are now 71 Conservatives, 30 Liberals, 14 C.C.F., three Independents, one Independent Liberal, three Communists and one U.F.O. nominated for the fray.

URGE DOMINION OPEN CAMPAIGN TOURIST TRADE

$500,000,000 BUSINESS.

OTTAWA, May 17 (C.P.)—The tourist industry in Canada, now averaging $300,000,000 annually can be increased to $500,000,000 yearly, T. R. Enderby, general manager of the Canada Steamship Company, told the Senate tourist committee yesterday. With aggressive advertising this increase should develop within five years.

The committee is inquiring into the possibility of establishing a central agency under the direction of the Government, to co-ordinate the work of existing tourist bureaux.

A semi-governmental agency to advertise Canada in the United States and in Europe was recommended by Mr. Enderby. Such an agency should start functioning immediately, he said. The month of May was the proper month to commence a tourist advertising campaign, Mr. Enderby stated.

Canada steamships had expended $250,000 annually for the last five years in tourist advertising, Mr. Enderby told the committee. This was based on an annual gross business of $4,500,000 to $5,000,000.

United States tourists in 1929 spent $600,000,000 outside their own country, the witness said. Only a relatively small part of this came to Canada.

Canada is in competition with California for summer tourist traffic, Mr. Enderby said. This is a feature of the tourist industry that is not widely apreciated.

California had an aggressive summer tourist advertising policy that brought amazing results.

Two semi-private, state-subsidised tourist organizations in California spend over $1,000,000 yearly in advertising, the witness said.

Other Dominion Policies

The least known of the Dominions in England, he told the committee. Australia, New Zealand and South Africa see to it that these countries are front-page news in England day after day. These Dominions send soccer, cricket and other sports teams to England to compete and gain an immense amount of advertising and publicity. The trade commissioners of these dominions in England use this advertising to promote tourist business.

Canada is known in England only for its hockey teams, Mr. Enderby said. And there was little competition in this sport abroad, so that resultant advertising was meagre.

"Should the Government advertise in its own name?" Senator Creelman MacArthur, Summerside, P.E.I., asked Mr. Eenderby. The witness said that he recommeded a quasi-governmental tourist advertising agency, directed and financed by the government, but not advertising in the Government's name.

Other countries advertised their tourist attractions through such organizations, Mr. Enderby stated. He instanced Germany and Italy.

NO DICTATION IN NOMINATION

opposition from the ranks of the Peterborough C.C.F. Club. With the official endorsation of the Ontario Council of the Canadian Co-operative Federation declared in favor of the candidature of Mr. Sutherland the way is cleared for the holding of a convention at which he will receive the official C.C.F. nomination for the constituency."

Referring to the provincial general elections, Mr. Ashbrook said there was no difference between the old line parties. It was just another case of Mr. Tweedledum and Mr. Tweedledee.

"I am not trying to tell you that the salvation of the working class lies in the political field," he said. "It lies in the factories, in the mills and mines, on the roads and railways. That is where your conditions are, and that is where you must organize."

Mr. Ashbrook suggested that workers should talk over their conditions in the places where they were employed, try to organize, bring about a strike and force "the boss" to remedy the wage conditions.

"Don't be fooled by the demagogy of the Liberals and Conservatives," Mr. Ashbrook advised, stating that both the Liberal government in Quebec and the Conservative government in Ontario represented the interests of the "possessing and capitalist class."

"If you are going to vote, don't vote for either of the old line parties. Pick out one of your own workers and get behind him. Tell him what you want done and get a promise from him that he will be liable to recall if he does not carry them out."

Mr. Ashbrook mentioned a comment which he attributed to The Examiner that there was no fertile soil in Peterborough for "red sentiment." He said that low wages to factory workers were creating a fertile soil, and that the scale of relief for the unemployed in this city did not comply with the recommendations of the Campbell report and the Government's increase of 25 per cent in relief payments to meet increased costs of food. Low wages, he continued, led to a low scale of relief.

A. E. Smith Coming

Mr. Ashbrook reported that A. E. Smith would address a meeting in Peterborough on Wednesday, May 23, and Mrs. Childs announced plans for a picnic especially for the children of the unemployed on May 24. It was also stated that the unemployed would open a soup kitchen here for people out of work.

William Childs, John Quinlan, Frank Lundy and T. J. McMurray were other speakers.

Mr. Quinlan stated that machines were doing the work of men, would continue to cause unemployment. Men past forty were no longer wanted. So far, he said, there had been only one category of unemployed, but when conditions became worse next winter there would be a second and third category when those now engaged lost their jobs. Because of the insecurity of the workers' position, Mr. Quinlan urged that there should be unity between the employed and unemployed workers. In regard to the political campaign he said the C.C.F. had the best policy, but that only a proletarian government could solve the problems of the people, and a proletarian government would never be elected by ballot.

"Both the old parties are in the capitalistic system and can't get out of it," Mr. Quinlan remarked. "How can they get out of it? The leaders of those parties don't desire the conditions that exist to-day. They are intelligent men, but they can't do anything under the present system."

LAKEFIELD, May 18 (Examiner Correspondence) — St. Andrew's Young People's Society entertained the members of the Baptist Young People's Union, on Monday evening. The visitors put on the program which was excellent and heartily appreciated. Following the devotional and business periods, the president of St. Andrew's Y.P. A. T. W. Chaplin gave a hearty welcome to the visitors and then turned the chair over to T. J. Gruetzer, president of the Baptist Y.P.S. and the following program was given. Miss Ruby Nicholls very ably presented the topic "Crusading with Christ." Musical numbers included a piano solo by Alex Nicholls, a harmonica duet by Winnifred Armstrong and Fred Marsden, and a guitar and vocal duet by Lorne Morrison and Walter Walker, and recitations by Miss Ramsay, Max Gruetzver, Ruth Grotefend and Jean Millar.

Refreshments were served by St. Andrew's Society and a social hour with contests spent.

This marks the closing meeting of the season in St. Andrew's Y.P.S. The season has been one which has repaid the efforts of the organizers as it has been of value intellectually, spiritually and socially and has been thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Successful Quilting

The W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church held a very successful quilting on Tuesday afternoon in the basement of the church. Mrs. Ewart of Cobourg was present and gave a very interesting address on the work of the provincial annual meeting of the W.M.S. which she attended.

The local ladies served high tea at which Mrs. Ewart and a group of ladies from St. Paul's, Peterborough were guests. Mrs. Dutton, Mrs. Morgan and Miss Davidson were among the contingent from St. Paul's. A very interesting and inspiring afternoon with a social hour to close marked a high light in the year's program and the Peterborough ladies were warmly welcomed.

Winner of Rug

The winner of the congoleum rug which was displayed in A. B. Burrow's window in a guessing contest was Geraldine Coughlin, who had a guess of 3823, the second was Mrs. R. L. Mason with a guess of 3824.

KIWANIANS HEAR LIEUT.-GOVERNOR TED MACKENZIE

Declares Kiwanis is Institution Tried to Do Something and Succeeded.

RESULTS ACHIEVED.

Lieut.-Governor is Accompanied by Chairman of Attendance Committee.

Lieut.-Governor Ted Mackenzie of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime district of Kiwanis International to-day paid his official visit to the local Kiwanis Club, and provided the membership with some idea of the results that are being achieved by the organization as a whole. He was accompanied by "Wally" Harton, chairman of the District Attendance Committee, and fellow member of the Niagara Falls Club.

Dr. G. R. Scott, who introduced the guest speaker, remarked that they had been former class mates while studying medicine, and had also served overseas together in the 13th Battery.

After expressing regret upon learning of the passing of Harry Huffman, whom he described as "one of your most active members," the Lieutenant-Governor, referring to the aims and ideals of Kiwanis, spoke of the organization as "an institution that has tried to do something, and has succeeded."

He dwelt upon the accomplishment that has been achieved during the past few years, despite the stress through which the organization has been passing in common with the rest of the world.

Each district, he said, could report great achievement.

Dr. Mackenzie also dealt with some of the problems as they concern individual clubs, and made some suggestions for the improving of attendance at meetings, besides referring to the value of inter-club visits, and the possibilities connected with the sponsoring of new clubs. He intimated that a Kiwanis Club is in process of organization at Kapuskasing, and said that the Niagara Falls Club is seriously considering the sponsoring of a club at St. Catharines.

As chairman of the District Attendance Committee, Mr. Harton discussed the question of attendance at club meetings, and spoke of efforts that had been successfully made by certain other clubs, Hamilton club in particular, to overcome indifference of members in this regard.

A vote of thanks ably moved by Charles Saunders, was extended to the speakers by President A. B. Gates.

Harry J. Boyle outlined arrangements that have been completed for the inter-club visit to Lindsay on Tuesday evening next. Mr. Boyle urged all members of the club who were planning to participate in the Ladies' Night program at Lindsay to be at Benson House by six o'clock.

Strawberry Plants Were Winter Killed

Bad news for housewives is contained in the report from market gardeners in the district that a large percentage of strawberry plants was killed by the winter's penetrating frosts. It was estimated yesterday by one experienced market gardener that few strawberry patches about the city wholly escaped the devastation caused by the severe winter, and some were almost completely killed out.

"Unless weather conditions for the growth of strawberries are much better than average this season it seems certain that there will be a shortage," he stated.

Florists report that sales of rose bushes and perennial flower roots have reached a new high this spring as citizens are endeavoring to renew destroyed plants in their flower gardens. Never has there been such a demand for grass seed locally, it was learned. Few lawns in the city escaped being damaged during the winter and large parts of them are being carefully reseeded.

Two Men In Fight Killed Under Train

NEW YORK, May 18 (A.P.).—A fist fight carried two men to death to-day beneath the wheels of a crowded train in the subway station at 120th Street and Lenox Avenue.

The men, both unidentified, locked in a clinch at the edge of the platform and toppled into the path of the train. They were crushed to death. One was a Negro.

Police said they were unable to learn the cause of the quarrel.

Service on the track was tied up for 21 minutes.

Nearly 5,000 American motor vehicles were sold in France last year.

RUSSIAN ENVOY ATTENDS LEAGUE

Litvinoff Believed to be Seeking International Non-Aggression Pact.

SURPRISE VISIT.

GENEVA, May 18 (A.P.).—Maxim Litinoff, Russian Commissar for Foreign Affairs, arrived here unexpectedly to-day to consult with League of Nations leaders on the question of disarmament and possibly the Soviet Union's entry in to the League.

The arrival of the Russian diplomat created a sensation in League circles deeply discouraged over the impasse in moves toward an accord on arms.

Well-informed circles said the Russian Envoy would seek an international pact of non-aggression and also in an attempt to keep the disarmament conference alive, would urge concentration of the elaboration of the pact of mutual assistance and security to fortify the organization of peace.

Such a pact, it was said, would attempt to define aggressor nations.

League circles believed he would not refuse to discuss Russia's entry into the League of Nations, regarding the Soviet as encouraged to this end by the British and French attitude.

TWO PROVINCES VOTE SAME DAY

Ontario, Saskatchewan Follow N.B.-Alberta Precedent Set June 19, 1930.

EARLY VOTING RECALLED.

TORONTO, May 18 (CP)—For the second time since Confederation, two Canadian provinces will choose new Legislative Assemblies on the same day. The only recorded precendent for the situation created by choice of June 19 for general polling on the part of both Ontario and Saskatchewan occurred on exactly the same date four years ago.

On June 19, 1930, the Conservatives in New Brunswick led by Premier J. B. M. Baxter and the U.F.A. in Alberta under Premier J. E. Brownlee were returned to power at Provincial general elections.

In the early days of the Dominion's political history simultaneous polling occasionally took the form of voting for Federal and Provincial representatives on the same day. Nova Scotia, Ontario, and Quebec started it in the Confederation year. Canada's general election in 1867 extended over the period from Aug. 7 to Sept. 20. Quebec had completed its polling by Sept. 8, Ontario voted Sept. 3 and 4, and Nova Scotia got the task over within one day, Sept. 18.

The only province to continue the habit was Nova Scotia. On Sept. 17, 1878, the Conservatives won both province and Dominion. Four years later, on June 20, 1882, the Dominion Government was returned while the provincial administration of J. S. D. Thompson fell before the Liberals under W. T. Pipes.

Ordered by the court to pay a debt of $1400 in monthly installments, a man in Lambeth, England, has figured out that it will take him 116 years to complete the payments.

Placing Of Censorship Department Under Minister Of Welfare Advocated By Synod

TORONTO, May 18 (CP)—A recommendation that the Censorship Department be transferred from the Ontario Provincial Treasurer's Department to that of the Department of Public Welfare was unanimously endorsed to-day by the Toronto Synod of the Church of England.

One of the clauses in the resolution stated that "In view of the difficulty of not knowing beforehand the character of the film one purposes attending, we rely on the dramatic critics of our newspapers to give the public each week at least a good hint of the best."

Magistrate J. Edmund Jones told the Synod of the type of films the Censorship Board reviewed. "You have no idea of the many difficulties encountered by our Board of Censors of moving pictures," he said. He told of being invited with the Social Service Council recently to a private showing of a film made up entirely of rejections by the Ontario Board of Censors from pictures which had been passed by the New York Board.

Rt. Rev. Henry Waller, D.D., Bishop of Madras, was welcomed by Bishop Owen to the annual meeting of the Synod. Mr. Waller is a brother of Principal C. C. Waller, D.D., of Huron College, London, Ont.

The Bishop outlined the scheme of Church Union now before the church authorities in India, saying there was little hope of success for Christianity in Southern India at least, unless some form of union was brought about. The plan proposed by the Anglican Church had been practically accepted throughout, he said.

"The toys of denominationalism, and they are nothing more than toys, mean nothing in India, today," he declared. Union in India concerned approximately 1,000,000 people, he said, and expressed the hope that it would be brought about. "It would, I believe, be the beginning of a great landslide throughout the world, and mean much for the church at large."

Trio In Sedan Shoot Two Trailing Police

NEWTON, N.C., May 18 (A.P.).—Two officers were seriously wounded here early to-day by machine-gun fire from a small sedan which they had sought to halt.

Becoming suspicious of three men who drove in and out of the city during the early morning hours, Patrolman Arthur Hofman called Deputy Sheriff Ray Pitt to his assistance and sought to halt the car.

They said a machine-gun was poked through a window as they approached, and a hail of lead met them. Then the car sped away before residents, hearing the shooting, reached the spot.

The officers were taken to a hospital, where they were said to be dangerously wounded, although the full extent of their injuries had not been determined.

TWO CAR LOADS

sembled the elusive "bad man" carried a machine-gun, with which he covered the bank employees and customers, while the other two men, armed with pistols, invaded the tellers' cages, sweeping up all the cash in sight.

The man with the machine gun forced Roland to lie on the floor of the lobby, and stood on his leg while the robbery was in progress.

"I got a good look at him," Roland said, "and the more I looked, the more I became convinced he was Dillinger."

There was $100,000 in the money consignment delivered at the branch just before the robbery, but tellers had put most of the money sacks away in the vault when the bandits entered.

UNABLE TO GROW TOMATO CROPS

canners' contracts were frequently agents for fertilizers.

"If you do no sign their fertilizer contracts they do not give you a contract for your acreage," witness said. He believed these field men were paid officials of the canners.

The canners were in complete charge of the grading of the vegetables, witness said. In Sept. 1931, Mr. Hunt stated, he had delivered 40 crates to a cannery but had only been paid for 30 crates. The canners had graded his tomatoes at lower grades and had made a dockage of 10 crates.

"I cannot sit here and believe all those things; it is too shocking to me" said Mr. Factor.

The high standard for the products was set out in the contracts which the growers had to sign with the canning companies, witness said. The contract specified if this high standard stipulated was not met, the price for the tomatoes then might be fixed by the canners or the canners could make a "dockage" from the quantity delivered to the factories. The practice of the canners was to make a dockage. The grading of tomatoes should not be in the hands of the canners entirely, said witness.

The dockage of 25 percent made on Sept. 1931 shipment was a usual one, said Mr. Hunt.

"Is that the experience of growers generally?" asked Norman Sommerville, committee counsel. Witness replied in the affirmative.

A flat rate of 35 cents per bushel should be paid for those tomatoes suitable for canning, said Mr. Hunt.

Tomato growers had to accept a contract to grow an acre of corn, peas or pumpkins in order to get a contract from the canners for the produce of a acre of tomatoes. The canners' price for corn, peas and pumpkins made them unprofitable to grow, said witness.

A farmer had sent one of these crops to a cannery which had rejected it because there were "three kernels of yellow corn in six ears of corn," said witness. The seed, though, had been purchased from the cannery's agent.

Fertilizer Prices

Prices as high as 40 percent above those in Quebec and other parts of Ontario were charged for fertilizers by the Eastern Canada Fertilizer Association to growers in Ontario west of a line drawn from Kingston to Pembroke, Earl M. Grose of the Earl M. Grose Fertilizer Compay, West Toronto stated.

The association would refuse to deliver at Quebec prices fertilizers ordered outside this western Ontario triangle for delivery within that area, witness answered Hon. H. H. Stevens, committee chairman.

Members of this association were Canada Packers Ltd., West Toronto, William Stones Sons Limited (National Fertilizers), Ingersoll, Ont., Wilks Fertilizer Works, Norwich, Ont., Canadian Fertilizers Limited, Chatham, Scottish Fertilers Limited, Welland, Agricultural Chemicals Ltd., Port Hope, and Canadian Industries Ltd., Hamilton, stated Mr. Grose.

The existence of two co-operative societies in Quebec, lower charges for freight rates and less costs for some of the ingredients might be reasons for the price differences. Mr. Stevens disagreed the rates of differentials should exist.

GERMAN GETS 10 YEARS FOR THROWING GRENADE

BERLIN, May 18. (A.P.)—Erwin Schulze, a house painter, was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary to-day for throwing a hand grenade March 21 which wrecked the automobile of David Oliver, Jewish theatre owner.

The attempt was perpetrated on the fashionable boulevard Unter Den Linden and was first reported to have been directed against Herman Goering, Premier of Prussia.

JUDICIAL WORK COUNTY IN HANDS OF JUDGE RUDDY

Huycke, while the tenant Elzear Tremblay was represented by J. A. O'Brien.

Election Board Meets

During a greater part of to-day forenoon, the Judge disposed of other business in chambers, and this afternoon presided over a meeting of the Election Board, of which he is chairman by virtue of his office. Dealing with matters connected with the revision of voters' lists, electoral rolls, etc., pertaining to the forthcoming provincial election, the Board also comprises in its membership the following: George J. Sherry, K.C., local registrar of the Supreme Court; Sheriff F. J. A. Hall; V. J. McElderry, K.C., clerk of the peace; O. A. Langley, K.C., local Master of the Supreme Court.

Judge Ruddy was called to the Bar in 1889 and was made King's Counsel in 1908. After practising law in Millbrook for some time, he came to this city, where during a part of the six years that he remained here prior to his appointment as County Judge in January, 1917, he was associated with J. H. Burnham.

During the course of his career before the Bar, Judge Ruddy had the conducting of many important cases, among others was one he conducted before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council

Upon the occasion of his departure from Peterborough when he assumed his duties as Judge in the County of Ontario seventeen years ago, His Honor was presented with a handsome gold clock by members of Peterborough Law Association at the annual meeting of the Association held in the office of R. R. Hall, K.C. The presentation was made on behalf of the association by the late Magistrate D. W. Dumble.

ITALY FAST ASSUMING HER PLACE AS LAND OF INDUSTRY AND GAIETY

Unemployment Relief is Unknown, Declares Local Merchant on Return.

EVERYBODY WORKING

Italy under Fascist rule is again assuming her place as a land of happy industry, carefree gaiety and colorful romance.

Under Mussolini's beneficient leadership and influence (dictatorship if you will), prosperity has turned the mythical corner. Big public works programs, including highway construction and electrification of railways are in full swing. Unemployment relief is unknown; idleness is strongly discouraged; single persons are taxed, while married couples are subsidised by the state.

Sailed Last July

Mr. Pepe, now a naturalized British subject, first came to Canada over seven years ago, and has made his living in this city. Last July answering the insistent call of the homeland, he crossed the gangplank of the SS. Conte Savoie at New York. Seven days later after a fine trans-oceanic voyage, he disembarked at Naples, not many hours distant from the little town of Bellosguardo in the fertile Province of Salerno where his parents and sister awaited his expected coming.

Everywhere he went, Mr. Pepe said changes were evident. Happily they were changes for the better. Seven years previously he had been persuaded to leave his native shores to seek the opportunity that possibly presented itself in the new world.

At that time unemployment and strife were walking hand in hand and the political upheaval that produced a Mussolini had the country in a general state of unrest. To quote Mr. Pepe, "Things were very bad when I left Italy. They were particularly bad between 1919-23."

Conditions Improve

"But now things are a hundred per cent better. Everybody appears to be working, and the political changes have been for the better," he said.

The picture was particularly bright in Mr. Pepe's native town, where the production of wine and olive oil, and the growing of wheat and fruit, are the staple industries.

In the beautiful city of Naples, where Mr. Pepe learned his trade he told his interviewer, there were very extensive changes to be noted. Then as evidence of the extensive public works program that is being promoted by the state, he remarked that a new paved highway, about thirty miles long, has just been completed between Naples and Pompeii, upon which intersecting roads have been entirely eliminated. While acknowledging that he has seen some splendid highways on this continent, Mr. Pepe was of the opinion that the highway of which he spoke was the finest he had ever seen.

Autos Are Scarce

While he noticed that extensive electrification of railways was being undertaken in Italy, he contrasted it with the scarcity of automobiles. It was prohibitive, he said, for the average man to drive an automobile in Italy on account of the high price of gasoline, which was approximately 40 cents a quart. The bicycle and the horse are still popular means of transportation.

Commenting on the fact that unemployment relief is now unknown, Mr. Pepe said, "If a man is asked to accept a job that might be away from his home district and he refuses to go, that is his hard luck. There is no other form of relief for him."

Mr. Pepe was pleased to note that Canadian products are much in evidence on the Italian market. They are apparently preferred to commodities from the United States, he thought, because he failed to see any American goods displayed in the stores he visited.

Serenading

Asked how he had spent his time while absent for ten months—a superfluous question when one stops to consider the number of old acquaintances anyone absent from their home district for seven years, would have to renew — Mr. Pepe spoke of the fun he got out of serenading.

It was a custom in his country, he said, for people to serenade their friends to the accompaniment or guitar and mandolin. When serenaded the friends hospitably fling wide their doors in welcome and bring forth the flowing bowl.

In Italy, Mr. Pepe agreed with his interviewer, people were inclined to take life less seriously than they do in the new world. His people, had the happy faculty of forgetting their troubles and of getting real enjoyment out of simple pleasures of life. Nevertheless, he expressed his pleasure at being back in Canada once more, while admitting that it was going to be something of a job to settle down to work again in a hurry.

Completing the return crossing on the SS Vulcania arriving in New York on April 19, Mr. Pepe proceeded to Pittsburgh where he visited for some time with another brother and sister, who reside in that city.

LIQUOR NOT MAIN ISSUE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—It is to be hoped that the main issue before our intelligent and civilized people will not be "Liquor." If governments are to rise or fall on whiskey or beer it certainly says very little for our brand of civilization. There are so many questions of a critical nature before us that to assume we have not self-control enough to behave like decent rational beings is both degrading and dangerous. If we teach the young that the dignity of manhood is a passing virtue that goes out with our forbears we cannot look forward to that nobility of manhood and womanhood for which we should strive even if often in vain.

Norfolk Apple Trees Hard Hit By Winter

SIMCOE, Ont., May 18 (C.P.)—Losses from widespread winter killing of apple trees now established beyond doubt, will give Norfolk fruit growers a severe setback this year. The Mackintosh trees suffered less than other varieties, the most injury being to the Baldwin and Greening varieties of which probably half will be good for nothing but hard earned firewood. Department of Agriculture and O.A.C. horticulturalists have been studying conditions in the county almost daily during the recent weeks and now that the time for leafing out has come the extent of the damage is being realised.

Many trees are already dead while others showing some signs of life, will undoubtedly die.

INSTITUTES HOLD JOINT MEETING

Millbrook, Bethany and Mount Pleasant Members Meet at Cavan.

MISS ROBSON SPEAKS

CAVAN, May 18 (Examiner Correspondence)—Cavan Women's Institute held their summer meeting in Cavan Community Hall on Wednesday afternoon with members from Mount Pleasant, Millbrook and Bethany present. The president, Mrs. A. B. Kennedy was in the chair. Mrs. (Rev.) Lang was accompanist for the musical numbers. Mrs. Kennedy welcomed the visitors from the neighboring Institutes, after which she led in community singing.

Mrs. Ira Lowes spoke a few words concerning the work of Mount Pleasant Institute.

Mrs. Walter Price gave a detailed report of the year's activities of the Bethany branch, whose objective in raising money had been to provide fire protection for the village. The plans are still under consideration. Mrs. R. S. Staples reported for Cavan Institute, who had 61 members enrolled.

The treasurer, Mrs. Charles Smith gave the financial report, showing a balance in the treasury of $50.60.

Miss Robson Speaks

The special speaker was Miss Ethel Robson, of Denfield. She spoke a few words concerning the answering of the roll call, and how much it improves the meeting if all members take part by giving suggestions along the line of the roll call requested, instead of merely saying "present."

Her topic was "The Challenge of Age." She stated that everyone is greatly interested in being young and in youth. They are all interested in the education of the young people and hope that it will bring culture, but were often disappointed as it often did not nor did it always yield a means of earning a living.

"Nature study particularly the study of birds is a good hobby for young and old. It is a worth while job, growing old. It is not all giving up. As we lay down one thing, it is only to take up something else, and open a door which gives us a different prospect.

"We lay a foundation, middle age consolidates, age completes what youth commences. For youth, life is an adventure, experimenting from which age gets the results, we then have time to sit and enjoy things—to grow a spiritual power which will help people coming on.

"Life should be a real adventure to the last. We are going through something very much worth while. Are we living up to our obligations and passing on something helpful for the next generation?

"It has been stated that boys or girls given a fair start by a good father and mother have a good chance to make good men and women."

Mesdames Kennedy and Staples sang a duet, "Keep on Smiling," which was much enjoyed. Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Millbrook, district secretary read a report of an executive meeting held at her home, May 9th. There were questions to be discussed at the district annual which will be held at Mount Pleasant on Tuesday, June 19th at ten a.m. Mrs. Eakins also announced that the annual Institute church service will be observed in Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, June 3rd at 7.30 p.m.

Miss Robson spoke for a few minutes on "Marriage as seen from the outside." Her talk was humorous as well as containing many worth while ideas gained by observation. She concluded with a couple of enjoyable recitations.

The serving of supper in the basement by the Cavan ladies, brought to a close a pleasant and profitable afternoon.

APPLE PAYMENTS MADE

PICTON — Final payments to Prince Edward County growers for apples handled at the local cold storage plant are now being made. During the season 62,000 barrels were packed for which 118 growers receive a net return of $63,000. These returns were greater than they would have been had it not been for cold storage facilities. British preference on Canadian apples also meant much to the apple industry.

WATCH PLOT TEST FOR NEW HYBRIDS

Grain Growing Experts at Government Farms Plan Big Summer.

OTTAWA, May 18 (C.P.)—Seeding of grain plots on the grounds of the Cereal Division at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa this year, involved material for 20,000 plots, including many new types and hybrid lines of more than special interest.

Growth throughout the summer months will be followed very carefully with the hope of locating varieties of special value under conditions prevailing in Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec particularly.

Among the plots under test is a select group of smooth-lawned barleys, a type proving very popular on account of the absence of teeth or barbs with which ordinary Canadian barleys are equipped and making handling of the crop disagreeable.

In oats there are some particularly promising hybrid lines, as well as a number of new varieties imported for trial. From one group it is hoped to produce a variety noted for its strength of straw and ability to resist rust.

Wheat tests will include some of the more promising of the rust-resistant varieties recently produced by the Division at the Winnipeg and Brandon branches, with the hope of finding a more desirable variety for Eastern propagation.

Extensive tests of variety of field peas, beans, flax and buckwheat will engage the attention of the farm officials.

consists of nothing but fairy tales manufactured to suit somebody's personal prejudice," said the cardinal in his opening sermon. Touching upon the charges that the ancient Hebrews were "a people of usurers and destroyers of culture," as Dr. Alfred Rosenberg calls them. Dr. Faulhaber exclaimed: "In no other people of pre-Christian antiquity do we find so great a number of spiritual giants as among the Jews. No other people produced a book wherein the fundamental truths of religious life are stated so clearly so definitely and so simply as in the fifth Mosaic book" (Deuteronomy.)

Hatred not Christian

Cardinal Faulhaber was professor of Old Testament exegesis for 11 years at the University of Wuertzburg and later at Strassburg. "I call it phasisaism and downright hypocrisy" he exclaimed at another point, to pretend that we Germans are a race superior to other peoples. Away with those theories which find in other people nothing but shadows and in our own nothing but light. Away with songs of hatred and race—Hatred is not a Christian virtue—hatred means falling back into primitive barbarism....."

"The cradle of humanity stood in Palestine.... The Holy Scriptures of the Old Testament are a gift from the spirit of justice and love. They are an elementary school for the social order. The Old Testament has furnished and is furnishing important material for the building of a new social order...."

In his second sermon, Cardinal Faulhaber took the field against Nazi theoreticians who claim that the death of Jesus Christ was "the proof of the bloodthirstiness and sadism of the Jewish God and of the Jews. "Not the Jews," he said, "but the old Teutons, made human sacrifices." And against the picture of highly cultured old Teutons as presented for emulation of the new Nazi religious school Dr. Faulhaber gives what he calls "the facts." "Fact is" he said "that the old Teutons in their forests and swamps were a people given over to superstition and ignorance as no other people. Fact is that they had an unbridled, savage war spirit..... Fact is that slavery was practised by them...Fact is that they were inveterate drunkards, given to gambling and bloody quarrels....Fact is their proverbial laziness....Only with the coming of Christianity did they break with that scandalous habit of sleeping till noon, of which Tacitus speaks." The cardinal appealed to German scientists to go back to the sources of early German life," and not accept "the fables which are now being peddled by prejudiced persons."

"Behave Not as Ancestors."

"We Germans became civilized through Christianity. The monks of St. Benedict taught our forefathers agriculture and art. In ancient days when our ancestors lay around on bearskins, there was no spiritual life in the Germanic countries, no matter what present-day leaders say. We are told to become again as our forebears were. I tell you the best form of ancestor worship is not to behave as our ancestors behaved for they were men of blood feuds, laziness and drunkenness."

Dr. Faulhaber is 65 years of age. In appearance he is typically German tall muscular, with clear blue eyes, and a high forehead. Earlier in life he came out openly against Hitler by denouncing him as a "misleader." Twice within the last year has he escaped the assassin's bullet and his house in Munich is carefully guarded by his own followers. Yet Cardinal Faulhaber is a man easily accessible and he does not hesitate to receive foriegn correspondents and tel them frankly what is on his mind. When the whole official Nazi world was loudly proclaiming the exaggeration of the reports of Jewish persecution, Dr. Faulhaber said to me: "It is no exaggeration; it is an understatement. The Jews are suffering heavily. And others are to follow."

Pope not Opposed to Hitler

The cardinal waited with his counter-attack against the pagan doctrines of the Nazi until now because "the attack on the Bible did not hit the Catholics as badly as the Protestants who look upon the Bible as the sole foundation of their faith." Yet to-day he calls for "a united Christian front." "We extend the brother hand to our separated brethern in order that together we may more effectively defend the books of the Old Testament."

Cardinal Faulhaber's defence of the Jews and his courageous challenge of the Hitlerite notions on race have caused much confusion among the German Catholics. The pope has declared himself "in principle" for the Hitler regime, and has studiously avoided the slightest word of condemnation of Nazi doctrines and actions. The Catholic party in Germany has been disbanded and one hundred or so Catholic priests are in the concentration camps. Yet the Vatican, for higher political considerations, pursues a pro-German policy, to the bewilderment of German Catholics, who daily experience the pressure of "the iron heel of Nazism."

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Eggs were stronger on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

A falling off in receipts sent graded shipments of Western eggs in carlots up ½c. A-large quoted at 20c a dozen; A-medium at 19c; B at 16c and C at 16½c;, less than carlots sales of Quebec and Ontario eggs being made at slightly lower levels. Receipts were 1,723 cases.

Ontario colored cheese held firm at 9½c a pound. Arrivals were 47 boxes.

Potatoes remained unchanged at 85 cents for Quebecs per 80-pound bag, 90 cents for New Brunswick Mountains per 80-pound bag, and $1.05 to $1.10 for Prince Edward Mountains per 90-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Shooting upward 3¼ cents yesterday from an early low point, wheat reacted because of profit-taking at the last, closing with ¾ to 1¼ cents net gain.

Advances in wheat values were associated chiefly with an increase of adverse crop reports from drought territory both sides of the Canadian line, but were also a result of stimulus late in the day from greater notice taken of prospective silver legislation at Washington. At yesterday's top, wheat was up to within a fraction of last week's highest level.

Wheat finished nervous, influenced in some degree by forecasts of showers in the Canadian and United States Northwest. Corn closed ⅝c to ¾c advance; oats ⅝c off to ¼c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 17c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 18. — Absence of aggressive export demand made it difficult for wheat prices to respond to strength in outside markets on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. Speculators paused in fear of a break in the protracted dry spell, and futures quotations reflected the reversal of sentiment with declines of ⅞c to 1 cent.

May wheat checked out at 70¼c, July at 71⅛c, and October at 72⅝c. Offerings were largely credited to big interests, while support was very mixed in character. Values charted an erratic course, but on the upside lever got over previous closing levels.

Export sales of Canadian wheat were practically negligible. Weather and crop news showed little change either in Western Canada or United States though forecasts suggested showers. This apparently was sufficient to affect local sentiment.

Cash grains trading was uninteresting and coarse grains values softened with wheat.

MOUNT JULIAN

Among those from a distance who attended the Blackburn—Thompson, Fowler — Thompson wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blezard and daughter, Anne, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thompson and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Fowler, of Peterborough; Mrs. Jane Thompson and son James, of Westwood; Mr. and Mrs. Gall and family of Keene.

Mr. S. Jones, who has been spending the past two weeks holidaying in Toronto, returned to Boscobell Island, Stoney Lake, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Oxley and son have opened "Devon Lodge," their summer home on Stoney Lake for the season.

Mrs. Henry Moore, of Dummer was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson on Tuesday.

Mrs. I. H. Smith and son Fairburn of Montreal have opened their summer home on Boscobell Island, where they will spend the season.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Thompson and little son, Jack, were in Peterborough on Saturday.

The friends of Master Victor Shewen of Burleigh Falls will regret to learn that he is confined in the Peterborough hospital, where he underwent an operation recently.

ON THIS DATE
A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY
By Fred Williams

On this date, a hundred years ago the Assemby of Lower Canada passed an act to withdraw the right of voting from women, properly qualified, which had existed for many years. The ostensible reason was the same as now put forward by those in 1834 oppose the granting of the franchise to women in provincial elections, that woman's place was in the home and that voting caused them to be enmired in the dirt of politics. But the anti-feminists of 1834 did not succeed. The act was reserved for the royal assent and the colonial office declined to recommend that assent. As a result women property owners in Lower Canada remained on an equal footing with men until 1849. Then they lost the vote, never to recover it in elections for the assembly, though they can now use the ballot in federal elections and in municipal elections, when qualified as to property.

That disfranchisement came as the result of the passage of an elections act by the parliament of the Province of Canada in 1849, a bill to which the royal assent was given by Lord Elgin at the same sitting as he gave the assent to the rebellion losses bill and thereby lighted the torch with which a "loyalist" mob destroyed the Parliament house.

It is presumed that the disfranchisement of women by that act was more accidental than designed, for I am told that there was little said either in assembly or council upon the question. It looks now as if the injustice to women was the consequence of a clerical error in the act. But that did affect the result. Women no longer had the right and power to sway election results as they did in several notable contests in Lower Canada both before and after the union of the two Canadas in 1841. It certainly is a paradox that the women of Quebec province can cast their ballots in federal elections, but are debarred from having a voice in the administration of their own province. But a day will come when that injustice will be remedied. During the past half century women's legal status in Quebec has been vastly improved. The ballot will come back in course of time!

Sugar produced in Taiwan, Japan, this year, is estimated to weigh over 132,000,000 pounds.

Warsaw

Mrs. Martin, from Ann Arbor, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Martin, from Detroit, on a trip through points in Canada, passed through Warsaw and stopped to go into the Presbyterian Church S.S., which was in session. Mrs. Martin was a daughter of Duncan MacKellar, who in early days was precentor in the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Martin was baptised in the church, and with her people left Warsaw when she was ten years old. This is her first return to the village. Mrs. Martin is a distant relative of Mr. John Rose. She visited the cemetery and inquired about old places in and around, leaving in the afternoon.

A unique gathering was held on Mother's Day, May 13th, at the home of Mr. George Garbutt, when Alice Velma, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Garbutt, was baptized by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson. A splendid dinner was served on the happy occasion, at which fourteen were present, among whom were three great-grandmothers: Mrs. Samuel Edwards, Mrs. D. W. Blewett and Mrs. A. B. Northey; one great-grandfather, Mr. A. B. Northey; one grandmother, Mrs. J. A. Northey; two grandfathers, Mr. J. A. Northey and Mr. George Garbutt.

Mr. and Mrs. Alford, Lakefield, spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Percy Lloyd.

JOBLESS STRIKE AT STRATFORD

Oppose Working on Stone Pile for New Roadbed on Street.

NO DISTURBANCES.

STRATFORD, Ont., May 18.—(C. P.)—Work on all unemployment relief jobs in the city was at a standstill this morning as a result of a strike called by leaders of the unemployed association yesterday. Pickets were on duty at most of the jobs this morning but there was no disturbance, as the superintendent of the Board of Works had not asked any person to go to work. The relief works program was entirely closed down, City Engineer W. H. Riehl said.

The names of the men who reported at the various jobs were taken. According to the foreman at the Romeo street project, there were five men ready to start work. At the south end sewer, the names of about 70 men who reported were taken.

Pickets were on duty at both these jobs.

Thursday's strike was called when work on the stone pile, where stone is being broken for a new roadbed on Romeo street, was resumed after having been held up by a strike against the stone pile which had started on Friday last

Obituary

MRS. THOMAS McAVELLA

The death occurred last night of Julia Walsh the beloved wife of the late Thomas McAvella Sr., formerly of Campbellford, at the residence of her nephew James Nelson, 605 Rubidge street this city. She passed away in her 79th year, after a lengthy illness.

She leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mothers, two daughters Mrs. Hugh Foulkes (Mary) of Port Carling and Miss Rose McAvella of this city, also one son Thomas J. of Campbellford, and a sister Miss Elizabeth Walsh of Peterborough. A brother predeceased two weeks ago.

The funeral will be held from the home of her son Thomas, with a celebration of Requiem Mass at St. Mary's Church, Campbellford. Interment is to be made at St. Mary's Cemetery Campbellford with the Rev. C. J. Phelan officiating.

CHARLES LANGLEY

TORONTO, May 18.—Charles Langley, former Torontonian, prominent Anglican and one time warden of St. Paul's Church, Bloor street east, died in Schenectady, N.Y. yesterday in his 79th year. For many years he was assistant treasurer of the General Electric Co., retiring ten years ago. He is survived by his son, Gordon Langley, of the Canadian General Electric Co, Peterborough; two sisters, Mrs. F. J. Blackburn and Miss Georgina Langley, Toronto, and a brother, Magistrate O. A. Langley, Peterborough.

DIED

ELLIOTT.—At Melita, Manitoba, on Thursday, May 17, 1934, James Payson Elliott, formerly of Cavan, in his 53rd year; beloved husband of Nellie Thompson and father of Elaine and Eldon Elliott. Funeral will be held from Melita, on Saturday, May 19, 1934.

Once famous as the "bride ship" through carrying many brides-elect from England to Canada, the liner Matagama has arrived at Bo'ness, Scotland, to be dismantled.

ELIGIBLE FOR SEEDS

The Garden Plots Committee wishes to advise those on relief who have gardens at the rear of their homes and who have not applied for garden plots are also eligible for seeds if they intend to put in a garden, which they should. If they apply to Mr. Metheral, he will furnish them with the order for the seeds and plants. The committee also wishes to make it known that part-time workers or those not on relief can arrange with the committee for seeds through a loan arrangement. These matters can be discussed with Mr. Cunningham, 331 Reid Street or R. M. Glover, Examiner Office.

AID FOR FAMILY GOING NORTH

One of the families in the city that is to be placed on a farm in Northern Ontario by the Government has to assure the Government that he will be equipped with a tent, spade, shovel, two forks, hoe, rake, scythe, shath, axe, crosscut saw, some carpenter tools and personal clothing. As apparently the only means of securing these articles is through an appeal to the generosity of the citizens church and other organizations, this appeal is being made on behalf of Mr. Harvey of 340½ Water street. Any person supplying Mr. Harvey with any of the above articles will be conferring quite a favour on him.

Bolivian Protests Embargo On Arms

(By Joseph E. Sharkey, A.P. Foreign Staff.)

GENEVA, May 18 (A.P.). — The proposal to clamp an embargo on arms shipments to Paraguay and Bolivia was referred to jurists by the League of Nations Council today after a Bolivian representative had vigorously opposed its application to his country.

Costadureis of Bolivia told the Council that the embargo—urged to end the warfare in the Chaco Boreal—would be unjust to Bolivia from juridical, geographical, and political standpoints.

"Its application on both countries would further the aims of Paraguay and would be a penalty not deserved by Bolivia," he contended.

The jurists will determine the legal form the proposed embargo would take and report at the earliest possible date to the Council.

'EGG MIGHTIER THAN PEN' AGREE CANADIANS WHO CONSUME MOST

Per Capita Consumption in Canada Last Year 350.

FIRST TO GRADE EGGS

By MARCUS ADAMS,
Central Press Canadian Writer.

Granting the truth of the Biblical dictum as applied to birds that, "By their fruits ye shall know them," the farm hen is undoubtedly queen of birds.

An old English poet and sage, Oliver Hereford, asked the question in his poem on the hen, "Where is the pen that can do justice to the hen?" and after a chorus of praise of this regal bird, he concluded:

"No wonder, child, we prize the hen,
Whose egg is mightier than the pen."

And this was written before Bulwer Lytton wrote the oft quoted phrase, "Then pen is mightier than the sword."

From the dawn of civilization eggs have been a conspicuous and important item in human diet in one or more of the 1,000 ways in which eggs are used as food. "Eggs are the cement that bind together the great palace of cookery," one noted chef has declared. Long ago the French knew 685 different ways of preparing eggs.

Aside from the commercial importance of eggs, which is very considerable in Canada, no article of diet is more nutritious or more universally used than eggs. The egg has 97 per cent. of its edible portion digestible, a claim that few if any other foods produced can make. It has vitamins A B D and G—which is about as far as the vitamins have got in the alphabet so far—and just to show how incomparable a food item it is, it also has mineral elements, including sulphur, phosphorous, iron, calcium and magnesium, in an easily utilizable form.

Canadians Eat More Eggs.

Canadians have a greater appreciation of the merit of the food value of eggs than the people of any other country, for their per capita consumption is about 350 per year—the highest in the world. In 1933 they ate 3,600,000,000 eggs, which if placed end to end would girdle the earth more than four times.

Just why is it that Canadians eat so many eggs? One reason undoubtedly is that Canada is the only country in the world that has a system of egg grading controlled and supervised by the Dominion Department of Agriculture from producer to consumer. Under this system only good eggs are allowed to present themselves to the consumer. It is now almost impossible for the consumer in Canada to be served a bad egg.

Eggs, also constitute an important item in the economic life of the country as a whole, to say nothing of their incomparable merit in many respects from a food point of view. Their marketable value last year even at the lowest prevailing price for several years totalled about $30,000,000.

There are 25,000,000 laying hens on the farms of Canada and it is interesting to note that when that ogre depression began to raise the mischief in 1929, Mrs. Hen not only kept on the job, but raised her average production.

Canada was the first country in the world to institute egg grading in any form. It was introduced in 1918. In that year the Dominion had a substantial surplus of eggs and the British market loomed up as a possible outlet, but Denmark, Ireland and other countries were keen competitors. The officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture decided in order to establish a market standard of quality that all eggs exported to other countries and those shipped from one province to another should be graded as to quality, size and cleanliness, and that the grades should be plainly indicated. The introduction of graded eggs on the British market established an enviable reputation for Canadian eggs. The grading regulations were also applied to all eggs imported into Canada and this virtually closed the Dominion market to the millions shipped annually from China.

The advantages of grading began to be obvious to both producer and consumer. The per capital consumption of eggs in the Dominion was then about 16 dozen annually. By 1923 egg grading regulations were enacted to apply to domestic consumption. No other country had adopted such a policy. The Dominion officials concluded that if such regulations as applied to export eggs was a good thing for the farmer, then he would benefit to a greater extent if the grading regulations were made in the home market. The wisdom of this was soon made evident, for the per capita consumption in 1924 rose to 25.4 dozen. By 1929 it had risen to 30.05 dozen. At the present time it is between 29 and 30 dozen, the highest average of any country in the world.

The methods of the "good" old days have now practically passed into the limbo. The country merchant now grades the eggs he receives from the farmer or the farmer may do so himself, because on the basis of grade, payment is made.

Grade Must Be Shown

The regulations are emphatic in that eggs sold to the consumer, by anyone, anywhere, must have the grade shown and the grade is determined by three principal factors—quality, size and cleanliness. Throughout Canada the Dominion Department of Agriculture maintains close supervision to see that the consumer is not cheated. Retailers selling eggs to consumers which do not indicate the grade are liable to prosecution.

There are three commercial grades allowed for eggs sold for food and one special grade.

First comes Grade A, which applies to eggs having the necessary quality and cleanliness and weighing 24 ounces or over to the dozen. If desired, eggs in this grade may be classified as large, medium or pullet according to weight. The air cell must be less than ¼ of an inch in depth.

Grade B implies reasonably clean eggs, sound in shell, weighing less than 22 ounces to the dozen, with an air cell less than 3-8 of an inch in depth.

Grade C includes all eggs, including those cracked and dirty or with soiled shells, which are good for food, but weigh less than 22 ounces to the dozen. Cracked eggs must be packed separately and marked "Cracks."

The special grade is Grade A-1. Eggs in this grade are produced only under very careful production conditions. They may be classified as Grade A-1—large, medium or pullet. The large must weigh 24 ounces or over to the dozen; the medium 22 to 24 ounces, and the pullet size 20 to 22 ounces. Then they must be thoroughly clean on the shell, the contents must rate up to the required standard and the air cell must be less than three-sixteenths of an inch in depth. These Grade A-1 eggs command a premium of several cents over all other eggs. Grade A-1 is available in only very limited quantities.

Most and more, farmers are learning to appreciate their responsibility in seeing that for the general good of the industry and to insure a more satisfactory cash return, they put a higher quality product on the market. Egg grading has encouraged this quality production.

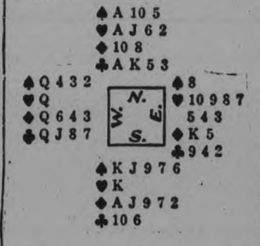
FOLLOW THE BIDDING CUES

Careful observation of the cues afforded by the bidding frequently shows when to follow a general rule or that special conditions justify disregarding that rule.



Bidding went: North, as third hand and vulnerable, 1 heart; South, 1 spade; North, 2 clubs; South, 2 diamonds; North, 3 spades; South, 4 spades.

West had plenty of cues to allow him to choose the best opening lead. North's jump support of spades and South's act, instead of offering to support either of his partner's suits, and allowing the latter to decide upon the final make were significant. From the bidding it should have been plain that North held either a 4-4-3-2 distribution of suits, with at least one high spade honor, or a 4-4-4-1 distribution, regardless of spade honors held. South as plainly held not fewer than five spades, either with five diamonds, or else a 5-4-2-2 distribution. With a 5-4-4-0 or 5-4-3-1, probably South would have bid 4 of the North hand in which he was strong, to allow North to decide upon the final call. With those facts in front of him it would have made West's best opening lead a club. Certainly he did not want to lead either his lone heart or up to the holder of the diamonds.

West did not have a situation where North and South had bid different suits and then compromised upon a third suit. The situation was that they had bid all four suits, and of his partner. The spade lead afforded South the opportunity to play the hand in an unusual manner, whereas an opening lead of a club would have obliged South, with normal play of his trumps, to lose a spade trick, and have to play his diamonds both soon and with great care, to fulfill his contract.

West's opening lead was the 2 of spades. Dummy played low, East's 8 was taken with the declarer's 9. After a moment's thought South led back his lowest spade. West played the 3, the declarer hesitated a second then he finessed the 10 and held the trick with East showing out. Dummy's ace won the next trick.

The K of hearts put South in the lead. His ace picked up the last trump held by West. A club gained an entry to dummy. The 10 of diamonds was led, covered with the K, and the ace won the trick. A small slam resulted, as West had to win a diamond trick with his Q.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Although many readers have asked me to discuss the subject of angina pectoris in these columns, I have refrained from doing so largely because there is very little that is constructive that can be said. About the only cheerful aspect of the topic that I know is, that if you reach the age of 65 it is unlikely that you will suffer from it. But you will suffer with so many other things that that itself is rather cold comfort. The only reason for doubting that the case of Gotama Buddha, who died very suddenly, was actually angina, is that the Gotama was 80 years old at the time the attack occurred.

The reason for this is that tru e angina probably is due either to a spasm of the vessels which supply the heart muscle, the coronary arteries, or to a blood clot forming in these vessels. The consequence in either case is that a certain amount of the heart muscle is cut off from nourishment, and the pain which accompanies the attack is a warning that the heart cannot do its work well and that rest must be taken.

Now, these coronary vessels begin to close up the and disappear fairly early in life. By injecting them with a solution which will throw a shadow on the X-ray, it is possible to see the amount of the coronary circulation in any given case, and such photographs have made over and over again of hearts of people in different ages, and they show with great uniformity the fact that the blood supply of the heart begins to diminish at about the age of 20, but the change is not particularly striking until the fourth and fifth decade.

In hearts at this age we find that the blood vessels which supply the muscle of the right side of the heart have disappeared to the extent of about 50 per cent. Later on, the left side becomes equally impoverished. In fact, in many cases of very aged people who die in old people's homes or alms houses, it is impossible to find any blood vessels which go to the heart at all, and nourishment seems to take place by the diffusion of the blood from the heart chambers to the muscle.

In this demonstration we have the reason for the occurrence of angina pectoris in middle age, and its disappearance in advanced age. It is easy to see that with a blood vessel which is becoming thicker, less elastic, narrowing its opening, that blood would clot inside such a vessel, and it is this which is the cause of the symptom, angina. If this process occurs rapidly in the years around 50, the closing of the vessel may be fatal, because it cuts off nourishment from a portion of the heart muscle which has not had a chance to protect itself. If, however, we have the process practically complete without accident, then in the ages above 65 and 70, the closure of these vessels is not fraught with such severe penalties.

The study of the degeneration of the blood supply to the heart is also a potent lesson to those who feel that by a strenuous exercise they can, in middle life, recover the health and spirits of youth. Too strenuous exercise, as a matter of fact, is more harmful to these people, and may bring on an attack of angina which otherwise would not occur. There is a limitation to the amount of re-invigoration that can be accomplished in middle age which is imposed by just this change in the blood supply to the heart, and if more middle-aged people would read the lesson correctly, it would do much to decrease the rapidly mounting mortality from heart disease in the world.

By GLADYS GLAD

According to a well known Hollywood tattler, the lovely Joan Marsh, who recently shelved thirty-two pounds, has now been requested by her studio officials, to gain back five of those pounds. For a while Joan tipped the scales at 127 pounds. She realized, however, that she was too heavy for her five feet one and a half inches. So she consulted an expert dietician, went on a sane reducing routine, and lost thirty-two pounds in three months without impairing her health or loveliness in any way.

Of course, I know that half the diet fads that originate in Hollywood are not to be recommended. I believe that old saying that "what is one man's meat is another man's poison" is right. And diets that can be recommended ambiguously are few and far between. There are some, of course. The reducing course outlined in my "New Figure" booklet, for instance, is well planned, and is most effective for reduction when followed by any normally healthy individual.

The best thing to do always, of course, is to have a thorough physical examination before following any reducing course. And after receiving a clean bill of health, the next thing to do is to choose a sane and well-planned diet routine. Joan's diet proved most effective in her case. And it seems to me so sensible a routine, that I think it well worth outlining here.

During her entire dieting period, Joan had for breakfast each day a brimming glass of orange or grapefruit juice. She ate no starches or sweets, or did any nibbling between meals. For luncheon, her heaviest meal, she had a selection of fresh vegetables such as peas, carrots, broccoli, spinach, string beans, cauliflower and asparagus. She could eat as much of these vegetables as she wished. And for supper she had a large salad of cold vegetables, cooked and uncooked, with a dressing of olive oil, lemon juice and chives.

If you are in perfectly normal health and wish to try Joan's diet, however, don't forget to exercise in addition. As Joan herself would probably tell you, exercise is a most important supplement to any reducing routine. For exercise is needed to help mold the body along harmonious and symmetrical lines.

WELL BABIES' CLINIC APPEALS FOR FINANCIAL AID SATURDAY

Carrying on Most Worthwhile Work in City for 15 Years.

FORM OF TAG DAY.

On Saturday, the Well Babies' Clinic will appeal to the general public, through the medium of a tag day, for support in its work.

For nearly fifteen years now, this Clinic has been carrying on one of the most worth-while of the many philanthropic endeavors in the community. A famous trainer of youth has said: "Give me the child until it is nine years of age, and I care not who has him after that." In other words, the formative years are the years in which the child is trained for manhood or womanhood. As the twig is bent, so grows the bough!

In the many homes of the city where money is not too plentiful, illness and frailty seem to follow as a corollary. It is hard to keep health at the top notch where houses are cold and draughty and food is not too plentiful.

Mothers from homes such as these, and mothers from homes where supplies are plentiful, but where the training in housewifery and motherhood has not been adequate, come to the Well Babies' Clinic, and there doctors, nurses and experts in baby care ponder over their problems and tell them exactly what to do to save the child from the effects of improper prenatal care or mal-nutrition.

Cases such as indigestion in teething infants, colic that attacks rich and poor alike, are diagnosed and advised upon. Many children are unable to assimilate properly the best of milk or even the mother's milk, and need to be fed for a time on specially prepared foods that will give them what they lack and ward off that destroyer of young childhood, rickets and attendant ills.

Then there are mothers who give children wrong foods later on, such as bananas and fried meats and indigestible eatables that rob them of blood and vigor. These are also advised.

And there are practices that have to be gently remedied also, such as the liking for one foreign element in the community for winding the bowed legs that remain as an unsightly heritage all through life.

All the ills that childhood is heir to come to the Clinic is baby carriages and go-carts, and the attendants there do their utmost to save and preserve the young life of the city.

Is this not a worth-while effort. Even makers of varnish will tell you that when you "save the surface, you save all." Is not the surface of life in those early days and months when the child, projected often very rudely into a cold world, is striving to keep on growing and living and get the best possible preparation for the shocks and turmoil of later life?

Give a bit to the Well Babies Clinic on Saturday. Your nickel or dime or quarter may be the means of saving many a child from a penitentiary existence later on, for poor health and incapability in battling through life are very often marked as contributory causes to a career of crime.

On Wednesday evening, a very pleasant surprise shower was given in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wood, a recent bride and bridegroom, when about forty of their friends gathered at the home of his father, Mr. William A. Wood of 24 Stewart street. The decorations were done in a pink and white colour scheme with streamers and bells predominating. The table was lovely with a lace cloth and pink candles in silver holders. The centre-piece was a silver basket of pink roses with reflector. A feature of the evening was a mock-marriage, with Mrs. Fred Welsh as bride and Mrs. Roy Leach acting the part of the bridegroom. The bride entered the living room to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. H. Turner, while Mr. Turner acted as the officiating clergyman. At the conclusion of the mock ceremony a basket beautifully trimmed in pink and white was drawn in the room and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wood were called forward and attended by the mock bride and bridegroom they accepted and opened their many lovely and useful gifts. After thanking their friends for the delightful surprise, the evening was spent in cards and music. A bevy of young girls, including Miss Marion Wood, sister of the bridegroom, assisted in the service of dainty refreshments bringing to a conclusion a happy evening.

Just Between Us Women

With all the attention that is being paid to beauty treatments so that a woman may be good to look at, one essential is seldom heeded. That is the proper way to hold the head. So long as it does not set well on the neck and shoulders, there is something notably wrong with the picture, and no amount of powder on the cheeks and rouge on the lips—and cheeks too—can make the woman handsome. It is useless to say that nature formed us as we are, and we are not responsible for the carriage of the head, while all the time we are using cosmetics and lotions to change the appearance of the faces nature gave us. So mothers see that your daughters learn to hold their heads well up, and gracefully, too.

* * * * * *

It is not tradition alone which is responsible for the idea that the way the head was held denoted whether one was a plebian or patrician. It is a fact. Women of high rank were not permitted to slouch. It was part of their upbringing and education to hold their heads high. They must express in their carriage that they held themselves above mean and degrading acts. They must represent a fineness and nobility of birth and character by the posture of their heads. Those of lower rank might slouch, and unfortunately they usually did, for they were not trained to hold their heads high.

* * * * * *

There was one race of people who as an entire group considered themselves worthy namely, the Romans. Just to be a Roman meant superiority. Even to this very day the Romans hold their heads high. They have a certain majesty of appearance. One instinctively recognizes them as noble. Today to be said to carry oneself like a Roman is expressive of praise, and a not unworthy pride.

* * * * * *

To raise the chin alone is not sufficient, and it may be awkward if it is protruded. A good way to get the right poise of the head is to lift the crown up. This naturally straightens the neck, and the chin, while raised, will not be thrust forward.

* * * * * *

As a woman grows older there is a tendency to let the head and neck settle down. It is difficult to appear young when the head has this attitude. So mothers while reminding their children to hold their heads high, should follow their own good advice. This is a beauty treatment which costs nothing in dollars and cents and is invaluable.

* * * * * *

Moreover there is a subtle connection between attitudes of mind and body. With the head held high, the thoughts have the tendency to be above littleness. Both the eyes of the head and of the mind look down on the mean things of life, and true beauty results.

CAPTAIN TELLS OF SHIP CRASH

Reduced Liner's Speed Few Minutes Before Sighting Nantucket Craft.

UNUSUAL PRECAUTIONS

NEW YORK, May 18 (A.P.)—After testifying before a special investigation committee that his ship was going 16 knots when it rammed and sunk Nantucket lightship Tuesday, Captain J. W. Binks, commander of the Liner Olympic, said informally during a recess yesterday that when the crash occurred the Olympic was making "two or three knots."

Captain Binks, in discussing his testimony during the recess, said that when the lightship was sighted he ordered the engines reversed.

In testifying at the formal hearing, the Olympic's master said he had been proceeding almost at full speed, but had ordered the speed reduced at 10.56 a.m., ship time, 10 minutes before the collision and one minute after the last wireless signal from the lightship had been received.

Captain Binks testified that he had taken unusual precaution to give the lightship a wide berth.

"I thought that I was two miles away from the lightship at the time of the collision," he declared. "I had ported 10 degrees to bring the Olympic further away from the lightship. Then, to my horror, I saw it ahead."

OPPONENT QUIT, REFORMER VICTOR

Record of Toronto's First Mayorality Election Indicated Surprise.

TORONTO, May 18 (C.P.).—Celebration of the Toronto centennial also marks the 100th anniversary of the election as its mayor of William Lyon Mackenzie, Reformer leader and grandfather of the present leader of the Liberal Party in the House of Commons.

In announcing the selection of Mayor Mackenzie, chosen in those days as a chairman of the board of aldermen, the Toronto Courier of April 16, 1834, said Dr. Rolph had "expressly declared he would accept office of mayor if elected thereto," but "to the astonishment of everyone (almost everyone) who was not in the secret, Dr. Rolph did not, however, make his appearance. Instead, he sent a note that stated notwithstanding his promise of yesterday, he had made up his mind not to serve in the office of mayor and to withdraw from the corporation altogether."

The newspaper failed to explain connection of the sudden decision of Dr. Rolph with the subsequent election of Mr. Mackenzie, but promised "the conduct of Dr. Rolph will elicit further animadversions in a succeeding number."

SEE HINT OF NAZISM PASSION PLAY FOREWORD

(By Elmer Peterson, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany, May 17 (AP)—A suggestion of Nazism appears in the foreword of the Guide to this year's series of Oberammergau's world-famed Passion Plays.

Special guests—numbering some 5,000—who watched a dress rehearsal yesterday made note of this passage:

"Since the last Passion Play, Germany has struck out into new paths and has undergone a striking spiritual revival.

"The new age—welcomed by the Passion Play village—has detracted not one whit from the sacred dignity of the play."

The play itself bore no evidences of Nazi influence. The familiar Nazi flags were not in evidence, although this tradition-steeped village strongly supports Hitler.

The play does not deviate from the general outline of previous presentations.

PROPERTY VALUES SKYROCKET AS LONDON BUILDING BOOMS

Suburban Land Proves "Gold Mine" to All Classes of Owners

BIDDING IS KEEN

London—The empire's capital is the centre of a new goldfield, and "prospectors" are rushing to stake claims in this gold belt, 150 miles long, that surrounds the city.

The gold is in the earth, but there is no need to dig for it. It simply flows into your lap if you have land in the district for sale.

For London is reaching out again. New transport facilities enable city workers to live in the country—and people who bought land for as little as £30 an acre are now getting as much as £2,000 an acre for it from estate agents, builders, and land speculators.

Local authorities are buying back land they sold years ago. They want it for road building, and to secure it they are obliged to pay three times as much as they sold it for.

Enormous profits are also being obtained from railway companies requiring land for the extension of their suburban lines.

A correspondent who toured this gold belt was given stories of sudden fortunes as fantastic as any that ever came from the Klondyke.

Rural Cockfosters was brought within the northern area of London's gold reef by the extension of the tube.

School Makes Deal

It is there that the bidding for land is keenest. Land has soared in value from £200 an acre to £1,500 an acre. A school near Cockfosters sold its 40 acres of ground for £40,000 and amalgamated with another school in Bedfordshire. The property was originally worth £12,000.

Sir Thomas Lipton left his home, Osidge, at Southgate, on the Cockfosters extended tube line, as a hostel for nurses. It was found after his death that he had not left sufficient for its maintenance. The grounds were sold by the trustees for approximately £30,000. Sir Thomas paid £16,000 for the entire property.

Two people at Cockfosters have, however, turned a deaf ear to the site-hunters. One is an elderly woman who lives in a four-roomed cottage near Cockfosters station. She also owns the five adjoining cottages. The woman's cottages and the land on which they are built cost a few hundred pounds. She was offered a few thousand and refused. Bids rose to £10,000. They were turned down.

Covet Large Estate

The prize most eagerly sought in this area is the 1,000-acre estate of Sir Philip Sassoon, under-secretary of state for air. It is known as Trent Park. A surveyor stated that normally this land is worth up to £250 an acre. The same surveyor said that Sir Philip has been offered up to £900 an acre for certain parts of the estate.

Sir Philip is already a millionaire. He could add another half million to his fortune with ease. Instead he is now carrying out improvements to his golf course there. The builders' invasion is reaching the edge of his beautiful parkland. There is speculation on how long Sir Philip will hold out.

Christ Church, Oxford, was content for years to draw 30 shillings a year an acre for the grazing rights on 290 acres owned by the college at South Harrow.

The land was sold to builders for £63,250 three years ago. Since then its value has risen to £600 an acre.

The universities have made thousands of pounds' profit by selling land at Sidcup and Welling, in Kent.

The ecclesiastical commissioners, among London's greatest landlords, are now drawing ground rent of £1,500 a year from property that until a few years ago only yielded from £300 to £500 a year.

A famous west-end restaurant parted with its sports ground, acquired for a few hundred pounds, for £19,000.

Leading estate agents declare that peak prices for land have now been reached.

TITLED LADY GIVEN PRISON SENTENCE

London.—The Hon. Mrs. Greville-Nugent, aged 73, of Kingsley Dene, Green Lane, Dulwich, who walked into court with the aid of a stick, was sentenced at Westminster to two months in the second division.

"I am sorry to see Mrs. Greville-Nugent in trouble at her time of life," said Hay Halkett, the magistrate. Mrs. Greville-Nugent broke down and wept.

It was stated that Mrs. Greville-Nugent was married many years ago to the Hon. Patrick Greville-Nugent, a son of the first Lord Greville.

She was charged under the bankruptcy act with incurring a debt without disclosing the fact that she was an undischarged bankrupt.

FIND MASTERPIECE HIDDEN IN TAVERN

"Lord Howe's Victory" Canvas Slit by Thrown Tankard During Brawl

Greenwich.—A lost masterpiece—buried for 140 years beneath a crust of grime in a dockland tavern—has been unearthed and purchased for the new National Maritime Museum by an anonymous donor.

It is the masterpiece in oils of Robert Dodd, R.A., depicting "Lord Howe's Victory" over the French on the Glorious First of June.

Back in 1796 it was "on the line" at the Academy. The Prince Regent praised it. But Dodd refused all offers. It was a flash of inspired art that was to be his spur to greater things. Three years passed. Dodd had retreated into the last trenches of poverty. His chief creditor, keeper of the Halfway House Tavern, Commercial Rd., east, confiscated the picture.

Here, in the smoke-laden four-ale bar, the dust of years dimmed the picture's exquisite coloring. Once the canvas was slit by a tankard hurled in a drunken brawl.

Ninety years later Edward Wyatt, a sailor, saw and appreciated its beauty, though he did not realize its value.

For years he forgot about it until returning from a voyage and talking of old memories; he found that the picture had been painted by Robert Dodd.

He told the story to an art dealer friend of his father. For forty-one years they tried to buy it. They even tried to buy the inn, but the brewer owners refused to sell.

The value of the picture in their inventories was only 15 guineas.

Two years ago, when the inn was reconstructed and changed ownership, the dealer's firm bought the masterpiece—for £3,000.

The recovered treasure is vivid and graphic in all its glorious color. So real that one can almost hear "Black Dick" Howe shout battle directions from an armchair or the poop of his flagship.

GETS WHOOPING-COUGH

London.—Lord Noel-Buxton, former Socialist minister of agriculture, was prevented from attending a luncheon of the "Save the Children" Fund, of which he is president, because he was suffering from whooping-cough.

Lord Noel-Buxton, who is 65, contracted the infection while helping to nurse his three little daughters, all of whom have been down with the illness.

PRINCESS MARGARET'S DOLLY IS GOING TO LOOK SMART

Britain's Princess Margaret is just like other little girls . . . she's devoted to her dolly. When her mother, the Duchess of York, took her recently to the British Industries Fair, the princess's eyes happened to fall on a beautiful woolly doll's suit. Margaret Rose was quite certain that her dolly should have a similar suit. It would need it, she explained for the winter days. The company, of course, got an order to make up a suit, and the picture ABOVE shows it being completed in the factory at Blackpool.

"SCARECROW" HORSE WON BRITAIN'S GRAND NATIONAL

HAD MANY OWNERS

Liverpool.—No more romantic story has ever been told of the antecedents of a famous racehorse than that of Golden Miller, who won this year's Grand National for Lord Queenborough's daughter, Miss Dorothy Paget.

In 1914, when war was declared, a young officer quartered in Ireland went to the door of a County Meath farmer with whom he had had some horse-dealing transactions. He said he had been mobilized and was going to France, and would the farmer keep a mare for him until he returned. The farmer did not even know the name of the officer, but he said he would keep the mare.

The officer went to France and never returned, nor was the farmer ever able to trace him.

Some years later the mare foaled the horse that has now achieved everlasting fame as Golden Miller.

Not thought much of as a yearling, he was sold for something like £100 to a Limerick farmer, Mr. Quinn.

This gentleman kept him a couple of years and Robert Gore, who has won Grand Nationals with Jerry M. and Covertcoat, went to Ireland to buy him, but found he had been forestalled by Galway Greer, who bought him for £300.

Basil Briscoe, who had just come down from Cambridge, was then starting training and he asked his friend, Dick Farmer, the well-known Leicestershire dealer, who was going to Ireland, to buy him a horse. Mr. Farmer saw Golden Miller and bought him for £500.

Mr. Briscoe was not impressed by the horse, for he was a great, lanky, scarecrow-like individual. He began to pick up, however, and when he had shown some racing merit Mr. Briscoe sold him to the late Phillip Carr.

Not long afterward Miss Paget was bringing some of the Whitney millions, which she inherited from her American mother, into racing, and she gave £5,000 for Golden Miller.

His career since has been one of dazzling success, for he has won her no fewer than three Cheltenham Gold cups and now the Grand National.

"SACRED PURPOSES" CAR PLEA FAILED

Cleric Refused License After Dangerous Driving

Epping.—W. A. Evill, a solicitor, applied for the suspension of the disqualification of the driving license of the Rev. Norman Longdale, who two weeks ago was fined £5 and had his license suspended for six months for dangerous driving.

Mr. Evill said an appeal was pending and in the meantime Mr. Longdale needed his car for "sacred purposes."

He explained that his client lived at Draycott Ave., Chelsea, and his church was St. John's, Wilton St., Victoria. He needed the car to take him to and from early service.

The chairman said there were other means of getting about London than by motor car and refused the application.

IMPOSTOR DIRECTS PLAY REHEARSALS

Posing as Noel Coward's Sister, Woman Tricks Charity Workers

London.—A number of people who for the past three months have been rehearsing assiduously for a supposedly charity performance at the Rits hotel, which they had been told was being organized by Noel Coward, discovered that they had been the victims of an elaborate hoax.

A woman giving the name of Miss Doris Coward, and claiming to be Mr. Coward's sister, has been acting as an "intermediary," and all the people rehearsing for the "show"—professional and amateur performers—have for months past been receiving letters signed with Mr. Coward's name.

A number of these letters were handed to Mr. Coward's private secretary, who stated definitely that the handwriting in no way resembled Mr. Coward's. It was also disclosed that Mr. Coward hasn't a sister.

There was a dramatic scene at the rehearsal rooms in Polan St., Oxford St. W., when the woman arrived to "supervise" a rehearsal and found the bitterly disappointed company awaiting her, together with Mr. Coward's secretary.

Claimed Relationship

Asked point-blank why she had posed as Mr. Coward's sister, she replied, in an almost inaudible voice, that she was a relative of his.

When, however, the identity of Mr. Coward's secretary was made known to her, the woman—who was slim, well dressed, and spoke in cultured tones—seemed stunned by the turn events had taken, and beyond maintaining that her name was Doris Coward and that she lived in Surbiton, would make no answer to the repeated question: "Why did you hoax us?"

Finally she consented to sign a document, written out by a member of the company, admitting that she was not a relative of Mr. Coward; that the idea of the supposed charity performance was entirely hers; and that she had herself procured notepaper with Mr. Coward's name and address printed on it.

She also gave an undertaking never again to represent herself as a relative of Mr. Coward's or to make use of his name.

BAREFOOT WOMEN LAUNCH LIFEBOAT

Modern Grace Darlings Aid Menfolk During Raging Gale

Newcastle-on-Tyne. — How wives and sweethearts, barefooted, helped, near the scene of Grace Darling's heroic exploits, to launch a lifeboat in the fiercest gale that has ever struck the northeast coast of England was revealed here.

The women's courage was described by the crew of the tug and lighter, William Fallows, when it docked after a four-day battle with death near the storm-lashed rocks of the Farne Islands, off the Northumberland coast.

Off the Farnes, the boat was battered by the fiercest gale ever experienced and had to take refuge in the lee of the islands.

Food supplies ran short and the seven men and a boy who manned the craft were faced with starvation and exhaustion on the rocky shores where Grace Darling and her father kept the famous lighthouse.

Then the lighter with three men aboard broke loose from the tug and drifted helplessly towards the rocks.

Coastguards summoned the lifeboat at Holy Island. In the darkness and gale the hardy fishermen and fisherwomen of the island launched the craft.

Barefooted women helped their husbands, sons and sweethearts, and waited all night on the shore for the boat's return.

CONVICT STRIKES WARDER BESMIRCHING FINE RECORD

Model Prisoner for 15 Years Loses Temper as Release Nears

SERVING LIFE TERM

Maidstone.—For fifteen years a convict has been sweeping the yard of Maidstone prison.

He went there when he was reprieved after being sentenced to death for murder. He was a model prisoner.

Everybody knew the man with the broom—and liked him. He worked well. He never grumbled. He obtained every privilege for good behavior.

There is no official remission for a life sentence, but each case comes up for review after about fifteen years. Early this year the governor sent for this convict. "Your case has been considered by the prison commissioners,' he said. "You will be released in September."

The convict smiled, thanked the governor, and went back to work with something he had not known for fifteen years—hope. He was still under forty. Liberty meant a new life.

A few days later a warder found fault with the man's work. He reprimanded him. It was the model prisoner's first reppimand in fifteen years. He lost control of himself for one fatal moment. He hit the warder.

Coming before the prison magistrates, the convict was convicted, but the warder who had been struck pleaded for leniency for the man, voluntarily. Taking this into consideration, the lightest possible sentence was meted out: Fifteen days No. 1; forty-two days No. 2; nine months' remission to be lost. Number one punishment means that for fifteen days the man will sit alone in his cell all day. No exercise. No work. Bread-and-water diet. Number two punishmnt mans that for 42 days he will continue so, with slightly more bread and a plate of porridge each day.

And tne prison gates will open for him, not in September, but in June, 1935.

FLEET STREET CORNER VICTIM OF PROGRESS

London. — Clifford's Inn, one of London's quaintest, most historic and most peaceful corners, may shortly be demolished.

Registered letters arrived at all the flats and offices there, giving three months' notice to all tenants.

The letter explained that the owners of Clifford's Inn—the office of works—are proposing to "redevelop the property," and it is believed that modern offices and shops may take the place of the 400-year-old houses.

The inn lies off Fleet St. and Fetter Lane. Its use by students of law dates back to 1344.

DEATH CALLS CLERIC COMMENCING SERMON

"The Night Cometh, When No Man Can Work," His Last Words

Deal.—"I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work."

Rev. Herbert J. Justin was reading this verse of the Gospels when he collapsed in the pulpit of the Central Hall, and died immediately.

His young wife, whom he married two years ago, was in the congregation. She broke down and sobbed.

The preacher, who was only thirty-six, had gone into the pulpit to begin his sermon. He started reading from the ninth chapter of St. John, when he groaned and fell sideways.

A number of men and women rushed from the pews to Mr. Justin's aid, and a doctor was called, but it was too late.

A woman member of the congregation afterward said: "We have seen the hand of God. Mr. Justin said that he was only in Deal until the Lord called him away to some other and better place, and now he is gone to where the Lord willed him. He was extremely popular here."

FATE ENDS SAVINGS

South Shields. — After saving 12 sovereigns for 20 years, Mrs. S. Annie Smith lost them when taking them to Newcastle-on-Tyne, where she hoped to sell them.

TEST DOCTOR'S BLOOD FOR DRINK EVIDENCE

Greenwich.—A blood test taken from a man accused of driving a motor-car while under the influence of drink was put forward as evidence for the first time in the history of the British courts.

Dr. George Gordon Milne, aged 40, of Pickhurst-lane, Hayes, Kent, was the accused driver.

Eight doctors gave evidence, four for the defence. The divisional surgeon said that the blood test suggested that a fairly large quantity of alcohol had been taken.

Dr. Roche Lynch, the home office analyst, said that there was 15 per cent. of alcohol in the blood. Cross-examined, he agreed that from the medical evidence he had heard Dr. Milne seemed perfectly in command of his faculties.

Dr. Milne was remanded on bail for a week.

FASCISTS REPENTANT

Wortham.—The 19 Blackshirts who were arrested in connection with a tithe dispute at a farm, and charged with conspiring to effect a public mischief, were bound over. They promised not to repeat their offence.

"I am told you are good fellows," said Mr. Justice Hawke, addressing them, "and I hope you will remain good fellows."

CROOKED SPIRE ATOP AGED CHURCH SAVED

Built in Fourteenth Century Edifice Endangered

Chesterfield. — The crooked spire here has been saved from destruction at a cost of £3,000.

The tower supporting the spire which is on Chesterfield church showed signs of wearing away two years ago, and repair work was put in hand immediately, for it was feared that the whole structure would crash. Now the spire is safe from the danger of falling for very many years.

There are several theories about the crookedness of the spire. One is that the wood on one side has become warped and caused the tower to bend, while another is that the fourteenth-century architect who built it originally intended to lay the slates and leads in a spiral formation.

When he got half-way, however, he discovered the twist, and, to correct the error, he built the other half of the spire sloping in the opposite direction.

WOMEN JURORS WEEP AT GUILTY VERDICT

Five-Day Murder Trial Ends in Heartrending Scene

London. — Four women had to suffer the ordeal of helping to condemn a man when Reginald Ivor Hinks, aged 32, an electrical engineer, was sentenced to death at the Old Bailey for the murder of his 81-year-old father-in-law, James Pullen of Bath.

The jury, on which the women were serving, found its verdict in a little over an hour, but one of the women was so overcome that nearly another half hour passed before she could be supported to the jury box.

After five days in the jury box, the women had the additional trial of not only agreeing to the verdict, but of making a final examination of the gas stove in which Mr. Pullen was found. This grim exhibit was carried from the court into the room in which the jury considered their verdict.

Tears coursed down the cheeks of a second woman juror and the other two women sat with tense, pale faces, as if the ordeal was as much as they could bear.

"GIRL" BECOMES BOY

A "girl," aged 15, recently visited an aunt in the same county. When "she" returned home a few days ago "she" was dressed in boy's clothes.

The mother said that she became suspicious about two years ago, and it did not come as a great shock when she realized that her daughter had become her son.

She at once had his hair cut and put him into boy's clothing. The boy has taken to the change philosophically, and has adopted a new Christian name. There is now nothing feminine in his appearance.

WIFE'S PLEA SUCCESS

Leeds.—A wife's plea saved her husband from prison at Leeds assizes when Fred Calvert, aged 28, a canvasser who was found guilty of obtaining small sums of money by false pretences, was bound over for two years.

PRINCESS FOUGHT AT FRONT DECORATED FOR BRAVERY

BECAME OFFICER

Moscow.—How she fought with the Russian forces in the war, even spending a week in the front-line trenches, has been revealed by Princess Katherine Dadeshkeliani, daughter of a noble Georgian family.

The princess, who is only thirty-nine years old, was born in the Caucasus Mountains when he mother was only sixteen years old.

"My father (the late Prince Alexandre Dadeshkeliani) was determined that I should become a good horsewoman," she said, "so he put me bareback on a horse when I was three years old, and told me to 'stay there.' "He also taught me to shoot, and it was those two things which proved of enormous value to me during the years I spent as an officer in the Russian Army."

Her decision to enlist was made after the tragic suicide of her younger sister, Thamara, when she was completing her studies at Petrograd at the age of eighteen.

"I did not care what became of me," declared Princess Katherine. "I was visiting a friend one evening when she asked a colonel who was a guest of hers to take her to the war with him as a soldier. He laughingly refused, pointing out that she was the mother of three small children.

" 'Then take my neighbor,' said my friend, Mme. Zulgadar, turning towards me. The colonel looked at me and said: 'Well, why not? He had just lost a son, and said that he would engage me as his personal courier.

"So I enlisted in the name of Prince Djamal, was given a regulation uniform and papers, and became a member of the 4th Squadron of Tartans of the 2nd Brigade of the Division Sauvage du Caucasse. "I shaved my head, and, as my voice is naturally deep and my hands very masculine, nobody ever suspected that I was a woman."

Kept away from the trenches by her friend, the colonel, she at last protested that her companions would consider her a weakling, afraid of the firing line, and she at last obtained consent to spend a week in the trenches.

"It was a mistake," continued the princess, "and I was sorry from the moment I arrived. The trenches are no place for a woman during the war. She can much better serve her country as a nurse or with an ambulance unit, which is as dangerous, being often under fire."

Princess Katherine was decorated for bravery, after bringing 50 ambulances to safety after they had been lost for four days during heavy firing.

"I don't believe anything would kill me," she declared. "The closest I ever came to death was when a bullet grazed my forehead and shaved a straight path over the middle of my head like a parting. Another bullet passed through the cuff of my coat without touching the wrist."

In her memoirs, which are to be published soon under the title of "Princess in Uniform," the princess, who in private life is the Baroness Ixkul, tells how various girls fell in love with her when she was disguised as a soldier.

One Russian actress, who broke off a good engagement to follow the "Prince Djamal," had to be let into the secret before she would go away.

TOWER SAID USELESS GREATLY IN DEMAND

Paris.—The Eiffel tower, after long service as a radio station and more than a year as the world's largest clock, has now become the largest thermometer in the world.

A huge red electric line moving up and down the side of the structure marks the temperature in centigrade between below zero to 20 above.

When the tower was constructed, it was condemned by a good many critics as useless. But the building now, in addition to being a favorite vantage point for the view over Paris, houses the radio and weather stations, restaurants and novelty shops.

CURIO DEALERS GET TEMPLE'S TREASURES

Monks, on Small Income, Charged With Theft of Sacred Objects

Peiping.—More than 400 sacred objects, ranging from sacrificial articles to massive bronze Buddhas several times life size, have been taken from the Lama Temple in Peiping and sold to curio dealers by the monks, according to charges made by the Tibetan and Mongolian Affairs Commission. Three of the monks have been arrested charged with theft. They were ruthlessly dragged away from a 108-day chant of prayers for world peace.

One of the most notable articles stolen was the famous huge bronze image of Huan Hsi Fo, known abroad as the, Laughing Buddha. Many of the sacrificial vessels were of great value, richly encrusted with pearls, rubies and emeralds. These treasures were considered to be the property of the Chinese government and the ministry of finance remits $1,500 a month to the Lama priests. Besides the 200 who are stationed at the big Lama Temple there are 1,200 monks, all Tibetans and Mongolians, at other shrines in the city. This remittance, therefore, averaged only a little more than $1 a month each, and except for fees paid by worshippers and by tourists the monks have had no income, for their temple lands and farms have been confiscated by the government.

RADIO ON OLD TEMPLES

Shanghai.—Taishan, the sacred mountain in Shantung province, where for centuries China's sages and emperors have gone to worship the gods, is soon to be put to modern scientific use. Wireless towers will shoulder age-old temples.

The Central Observatory, attached to the Academia Sinica, has decided to establish a meteorological station on Taishan, on Sunrise Peak, and the necessary apparatus has already been ordered. A similar station will also be established at Suchow, in distant Kansu Province.

'BEGGAR' SPLITS WAGER WITH GOOD SAMARITAN

Small Loan Returned With Large Interest After Bet Won

Nice.—An English jeweller, Ernest S. Ingram, was walking along the Promenade des Anglais at Nice when he was accosted by a beggar, who appealed for help in broken English.

The man's tale seemed so genuine that Mr. Ingram gave him ten francs.

Now he has received a registered envelope containing 10,000 francs in notes bout £125) accompanied by an unsigned letter which appears to be from the "beggar" he befriended. The letter states: "Perhaps you are not aware that when 10 days ago you helped an apparent beggar on the Promenade, you were the only person I approached who genuinely took pity on me. I am in reality a rich man who only masqueraded as a beggar for a wager. I now have the honor and pleasure of sharing half of the proceeds of the wager with you."

WOULD-OE RESCUERS RUN FROM OFFICER

Outnumbered, Fifty to One, Cop Wins Skirmish

Sofia.—While two police in Svishtov were escorting to the railway station a high school boy, Peter Bakardjieff, who had been arrested for spreading Communist propaganda in the school, they were attacked by 50 of the boy's schoolmates who wished to rescue him. Several of the boys were armed, and shots were exchanged, though nobody was wounded.

But an officer who was passing drew his sword and revolver and charged the assailants, who broke and fled. Then police reinforcements arrived and arrested about 30 of the boys, who were sent for trial.

LOCKED IN TRUCK

Jackson, Mich.—A guard on an express truck spent two hours locked in the safety compartment of the vehicle when the driver dropped his keys into a manhole in front of the bank where they had halted.

GIRL DIES WITH HER LOVER ENDING FAMILY OBJECTIONS

Nobleman Woos Peasant, Refusing to Marry Wealthy Girl

SHOTS CLOSE DRAMA

Jassy.—Drama of a poignant character has been enacted in the famous monastery of San Carolus, in the mountainous region to the north of here. Within a few minutes of a young man, son of a noble family, falling lifeless on the altar, the village girl whom he had loved joined him, dead by her own hand.

The love affair of Stefan Abramovitch, whose parents belong to one of the proudest families in Roumania, and Olga Patricci, daughter of the village blacksmith in one of the hamlets on his father's estate, was short-lived.

It began when the girl was sixteen and the young man twenty. It ended a few weeks ago when his parents learned of it, and insisted that their son should become affianced to the daughter of another ancient house.

Cherished Only One Girl

It was in vain that the young man insisted that there was only one woman in the world for him. His parents would not hear of his union with a peasant girl, and the news was broken to the girl after her lover had left the district.

Her family decided that the young man must carry out his implied promise of marriage or die, and when they had found him they brought him by force to the monastery.

There they intimated to the priest-in-charge, a kinsman of the girl, that the marriage ceremony must be performed or else there would be a funeral.

Brothers Step In

The young man refused to assent to the ceremony, pleading that his pledged word had been given to the family of the girl his parents desired him to marry. "You were pledged to Olga before you gave your word to the other," he was told. "You must redeem your pledge or die. There is no other choice."

Given five minutes to make up his mind while the sobbing village girl stood there pleading with her brothers to have mercy, the lover still refused. Two of her brothers then raised their rifles and fired, both shots taking affect.

When the dead body of the man fell on the altar the girl gave a cry of anguish, flung herself across the prostrate body, and after kissing the man, passed to her mouth a fatal dose of heroin.

CAT OUTRATES HUMAN JUDGE'S ESTIMATION

'Cause of Science' Brings Small Fine Over Man's Death

Brussels.—Sentences pronounced by Belgian judges sometimes make curious reading, especially when they concern carrier pigeons. The owner of a Siamese cat that ate a prize pigeon at Coudekerque-Branche has been sentenced to pay 825 damage and the costs of the action.

On the same day, Max Cosyns and George Lhoir were fined $17 each, with benefit of the first offenders act if they refrained from anything of the kind for three years, for killing a workman and seriously injuring another, during experiments with a stratosphere gondola. The judge explained that they were working in the cause of science, but the cat had no excuse.

YPRES TO CELEBRATE

Brussels.—Ypres, the martyr city, where the German forces were held at bay by British troops, will celebrate its complete restoration this summer.

On July 29, King Leopold and Queen Astrid will make a state entry in the court carriages and Ypres will probably be the first Belgian city outside the capital to be visited by the new sovereigns.

Jef Denyn, the 73-year-old carilloneur of Malines, is busy trying out the new carollon for the Ypres Cloth Hall belfry, which will be dedicated during the celebration.

LLOYD GEORGE'S LOCKS DISLIKED BY BARBERS

Business Poor as Welshmen Emulate Their Favorite

London.—Welsh barbers are starting a campaign to dissuade men from growing their hair in the Lloyd George manner.

In Wales, admiration for Mr. Lloyd George has led men to allow their locks to roll in long sweeps over the neck.

Barbers are losing money, and so they are advertising in order to persuade Welshmen that short hair is not only healthier but smarter.

RADIUM IN SPRING WATER

Durham.—Rev. T. H. E. C. Espin, vicar since 1888, is an amateur scientist of distinction.

Some time ago he became ill and his doctors advised him to drink some of the well-known Spa waters. But after he had tried it he felt confident from his previous researches that the spring water at Bradley, in Weardale, about two miles from his vicarage, had just the same chemicals.

Prof. Curtis, of Newcastle, has tested some of the water found in the Bradley spring and he has stated that it is radio-active.

WIDOWED TWICE BY SEA

Grimsby.—Mrs. George Barker, whose first husband was drowned during the war, has been informed that her second husband was lost overboard off the Norwegian coast.

FAMED AMERICAN ARCHITECT CASS GILBERT TAKEN BY DEATH

Designed Woolworth Building, New York, World's Highest for Years.

LAUDED AS PIONEER.

BROCKENHURST, England, May 18. (A.P.)—The body of Cass Gilbert, famed architect, rested in a casket to-day pending arrangements for transportation to the United States for burial.

Here, in one of England's loveliest holiday resorts—in the heart of the famous new forest district—he died suddenly yesterday.

Mr. Gilbert was about to get out of bed in his hotel when he collapsed from heart disease. He died soon afterward. He was 74 years old.

He had not been well, but death came with startling suddenness while he was enjoying a restful holiday.

Mrs. Gilbert and the daughter are returning to London Saturday. They had planned to sail for United States then. A stream of messages of sympathy came to them to-day from the United States and many other parts of the world.

First Skyscraper

Gilbert designed the Woolworth building in New York—the world's tallest for many years—and numerous other notable structures, including the State capitol buildings of West Virginia, Minnesota and Arkansas, the New York Custom House and the George Washington Memoral bridge across the Hudson River.

His designing of the Woolworth building was regarded by many of his profession as an architectural jark. For Frank W. Woolworth, who had to pay for it, the project was looked upon as a pleasant folly.

But when President Wilson touched a button that bathed the 60-story skyscraper in electric light the night of April 24, 1913, marking its completion, Gilbert was lauded as a pioneer.

Born in Zanesville, Ohio, he attended public schools at St. Paul and then studied architecture at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

An Outstanding Man

LONDON, May 18.—(AP)— Cass Gilbert, who died at the age of 74 years yesterday at Brockenhurst, was described by the London Times today as "the most remarkable architect of his generation in America.

"His Work", The Times said in a review of some of Gilbert's better known achievements, "bore the impression of his personality and scholarship combined to severely practical attention to the purpose for which each structure was to be used.

"All of his work showed a freedom from servility and a frank appreciation of beauty."

Thursday Deaths

Brockenhurst, England.—Cass Gilbert 74, celebrated architect, known as the father of the modern skyscraper, designer of the famous Woolworth building in New York.

Los Angles.—Samuel I. Bernheim 33, part owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Baseball League and member of a prominent Kentucky family.

Lawrenceville, N.J.—Dr. Mather A. Abbott 60, native of Halifax and for the past 15 years headmaster of Lawrenceville school.

TWIN ELECTION SEEN COLLUSION

Frank Admission Henry, Anderson Sure of Being Defeated.

SAYS WESTERN LIBERAL.

MELVILLE, Sask., May 18 (CP). — Collusion between Premier Geo. S. Henry of Ontario and Premier J. T. N. Anderson of Saskatchewan in selecting June 19 as the date for general elections in both provinces to-day had been charged by C. Davis, K.C., M.A., Liberal candidate in Prince Albert constituency.

"What is the significance of this?" asked Mr. Davis in an address here last night. "It is a frank admission they are both afraid of being trimmed. If Dr. Anderson was sure of winning, you can bank on it our election would have been held before Ontario to assist his party in the eastern province. If, on the other hand, Premier Henry were sure of winning, Dr. Anderson would have held our election later."

Mr. Davis added the arrangement would go down in history as the "famous Winnipeg death pact," adding that both Dr. Anderson and Premier Henry were now "eligible for admission to the suicide club."

He charged the date was agreed to between Dr. Anderson and representatives of the Ontario Government who met in Winnipeg while Dr. Anderson was there to receive an honorary doctorate of laws from the University of Manitoba.

PETERBORO BOY INJURED WHEN TWO CARS COLLIDE

TORONTO, May 18 — Michael Sheehy, aged 12, of Peterborough, had two teeth knocked out and suffered cuts on the head last night when a motor car driven by his mother, Mrs. Mary Sheehy, collided with another car at Bay and Grenville Streets. The boy was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children. The other car in the accident was driven by Robert Hughes, 107 Neville Park Boulevard.

Croquet promises to become a craze in England this summer.

The 5th All Saints' Troop were the guests of 1st St. John's Troop in a joint meeting at St. John's Parish Hall. The meeting was opened with flag break, after which Archdeacon Dr. R. C. Blagrave delivered a brief address. Separate instruction periods were followed by the playing of games.

The 2nd Armour Troop had twelve members present under leadership of Scoutmaster Henry Nokes and A.S.M. John Langley. After flag break patrol corners were held during which morse signalling, knots and first aid were taught. Games were snatch the plank and improvised volley ball. President H. C. Sootheran paid a visit to the troop.

The 6th Peterborough Troop had twenty Scouts present under leadership of S.M. E. Wolff, A.S.M. Creighton and Troopleader Bill Flint. Second class work was reviewed. Games were earth, air, fire and water, and staff relay races conducted by Bill Flint. In a debate that was held, it was resolved that the train is more feasible for transportation than the aeroplane. F. Thomas and T. Goulah upheld the affirmative and G. Creighton and I. Baldwin the negative side. The judges for the debate were Dr. J. M. O'Brien and A. Primeau, who awarded the decision to the affirmative side.

The 8th St. Andrew's Troop had eighteen members present, opening with flag break, followed by patrol corners, second class and tenderfoot work. The troop was instructed in formation by hand signals. Games were police and robbers and prison bell.

During camp fire period Bill Beggs was invested as a Scout by S.M. Vic Millard and A.S.M. Max Hutchinson. Scouts R. Hart, R. Hamilton, W. Beggs, I. Cranford, W. Cranford, passed Scouts' pace tests. William and Thomas Kemp passed Kim's Game tests.

Members of the 8th Troop held an interesting hike, at which Scouts Bill and Thomas Kemp, G. White, Stan James, passed fire-lighting and cooking tests. J. Lillico passed his compass test. Tracking by signs was another feature of the hike.

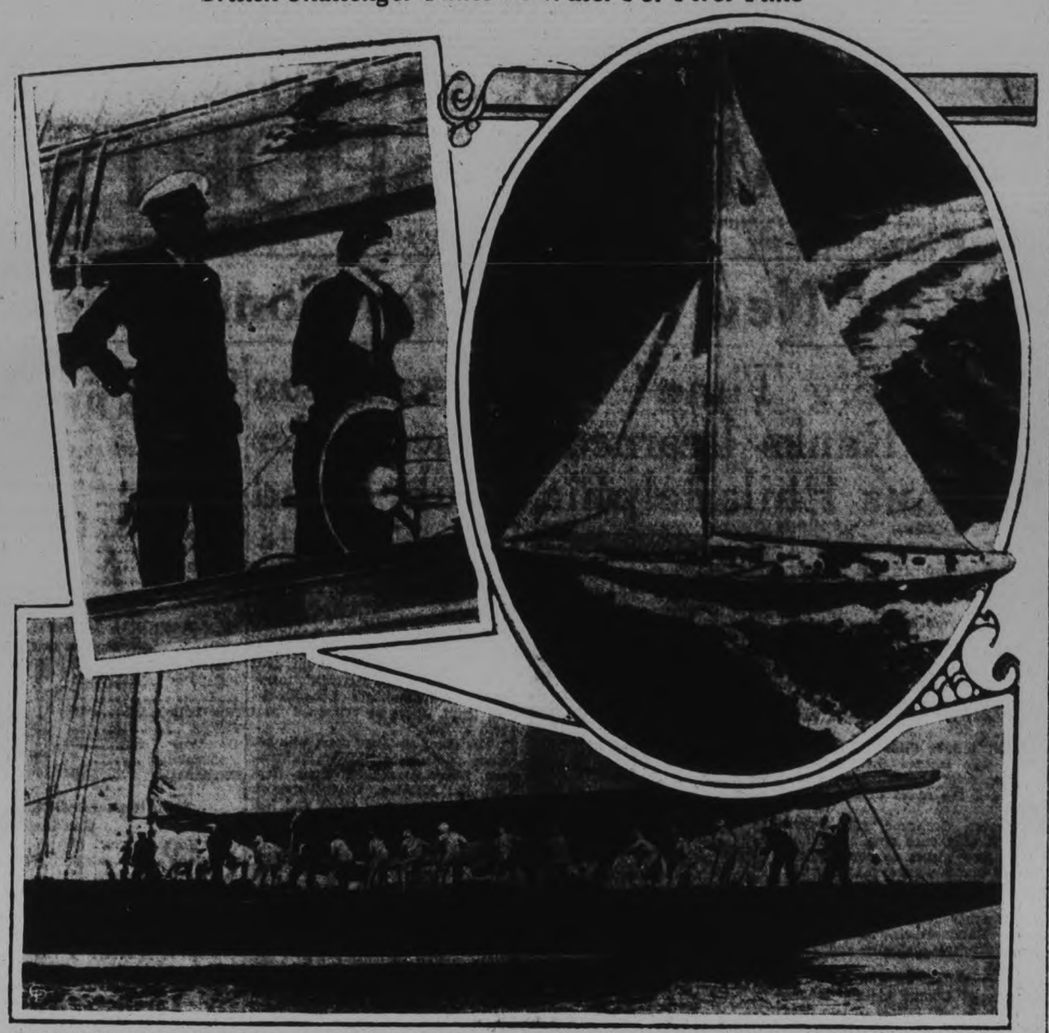
British Challenger Takes To Water For First Time



Shades of Sir Thomas Lipton! Here is a sight that would have gladdened the heart of the famous Irish skipper perennial challenger for the America's Cup. For here is the new challenger, Endeavour, as she took to water under full sail for the first time. T. O. M. Sopwith is the new owner and skipper and he is seen (UPPER LEFT) on the deck of the challenger. His wife, also an ardent sailor, is seen at the wheel. UPPER RIGHT, Endeavour in full sail seen from the air. BELOW, hoisting the sail for the first time on England's hope. The races for the America's Cup will be held late this summer. The above pictures were made on the Solent River.

Soviet Leaders Giving Fascist Salute?

Whereas May Day throughout the rest of the world is the signal for riots and demonstrations, in Russia it was this year a time for a two-day holiday, with one day for parades in Red Square at Moscow, and the second for festivals. The above layout shows an odd scene with the leaders of the Soviet seemingly giving the well-known German Nazi salute—and how the Communists love the Nazis! The three leaders shown in the foreground are LEFT to RIGHT, K. Voroshilov, Josef Stalin and Michael Kalinin. Voroshilov is the head of Russia's armed forces. In the background is seen the gigantic and colorful parade. That part of the parade shown is the civil air fleet.

PULPWOOD MARKET RE-OPENED IN U.S.

Constructive Efforts of Central Ontario Members Aided Indusry.

During the last three years the farmers and settlers in the Central Ontario region have greatly missed the United States market for their pulpwood. Since 1930 practically no buying for export took place as all Canadian inland exporters were faced with prohibitive freight rates which would not permit competition with waterborne wood, Russian Spruce or Scandinavian pulp. Many United States Soda Pulp mills turned to substitute woods, secured in their own country, as they could not pay the delivered price for Canadian poplar. The loss of revenue to the Canadian settlers was very large as pulpwood exports fell of nearly 900,000 cords between 1930 and 1933.

The Castanea Paper Company of Johnsonburg, Pa., the largest poplar using mill on the continent, had, for many years prior to 1931, been securing a large proportion of their annual requirements in the Central Ontario region through Gordon W. Jones of Bancroft, Ontario. This market has been lost since 1930. Last fall Mr. G. W. Jones of Bancroft appealed to Dr. A. T. Embury, M.P., for North Hastings to help him secure such freight reductions as would permit him to compete in the United States market and pay the Central Ontario farmers a fair price for wood. As a result of Dr. Embury's efforts, a reduction was secured to Willsboro, N.Y., which permitted a considerable movement of poplar wood from Central Ontario.

Dr. Embury then enlisted the aid of Mr. T. H. Stinson, M.P., Victoria-Haliburton and Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P., Hastings South and the three members made a careful study of the pulpwood situation in their ridings. As a result of their untiring efforts and carefully considered representations to the chief railway officials, a substantial reduction in the Johnsonburg, freight rate has been secured. Mr. Gordon W. Jones has received a contract for a large quantity of both poplar and spruce for Johnsonburg, Pa., and the farmers now have and proably will have for future years a reliable market for their pulpwood. Such constructive effort by these three members in the interests of their constituents is certainly well worth while and they are to be complimented on their success.—Bancroft Times.

JOBS INCREASE

MONTREAL, May 18 (CP)—An increase of nearly 600 in the number of men placed in jobs during the first four months of 1934 as compared with the corresponding period in 1933 is noted in the report of the Protestant Employment Bureau, just issued.

According to the report 1,618 men have been supplied with work this year.

Japan shipped 120,988,000 electric lights bulbs to the United States in 1933.

$283,350 FIRE LOSSES.

TORONTO, May 18 (C.P.). — Fire losses in Canada during the week ended May 16 were estimated by the Monetary Times at $283,350, compared with $78,600 during the preceding week and with $355,200 during the corresponding week last year. Fire losses since January 1 totalled $6,225,550, compared with $7,481,408 for the same period in 1933.

HARRY HUFFMAN IS LAID TO REST

Gathering at Church and Graveside Fully Representative of Entire City.

CITY COUNCIL ATTENDS.

Impressive tribute was accorded to the memory of the late Harry C. Huffman, native son of Peterborough, in the funeral services conducted by the Rev. Frank M. Wootten at Trinity United Church, assisted by the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, rector of All Saints' Church yesterday afternoon.

The gathering at the church and also at the graveside in Little Lake Cemetery, where the remains of the late Mr. Huffman were laid to rest, was fully repreeetative of the entire city, and the numerous organizations with which he was actively identified over a long period of years and through which he gave such full expression to his streng sense of citizenship.

Received at the foot of the church steps by the clergy, the remains of the late Mr. Huffman were borne into the church by a bearer party composed of fellow-members of the Kiwanis Club and by other close personal friends. The remaining members of the Kiwanis Club, including President A. B. Gates and also a representation from Lindsay Kiwanis Club, flanked the church steps providing a guard of honor through which the cortege passed.

The Mayor and City Council were also present to pay final tribute to the late Mr. Huffman, who for a period of three years from 1928 to 1931, gave outstanding service to his fellow-citizens as a member of the Council, during which time he was for one term chairman of the Board of Works.

Other organizations largely represented included the Masonic and Oddfellows' Orders, Peterborough Automobile Club, the Curling Club, and the Industrial Exhibition Board

Eloquent tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Huffman, with whom he had been closely connected particularly in the work of the Kiwanis Club, was paid by the Rev. J. D. Paterson. "There was never anything he left in our memories that were not worthy memories, and so this afternoon we can give thanks to Almighty God for his friendship and fellowship," the minister stated in speaking of the late Mr. Huffman.

He reviewed the life of the late Mr. Huffman, recalling the many outstanding services he had rendered to his community during a lifetime of unusual activity, and referring more particularly to his association with the Kiwanis Club spoke of him as "a tremendous worker and one who was easy to work with."

Pall-bearers were: Messrs. Ivan Lillico, H. R. Scott, John T. Hornsby, W. A. Richardson, E. Taylor, H. J. Fee, A. E. Bannister, and C. Agnew.

Mr. Huffman is survived by his widow, two sons, Charles H. and Robert D. Huffman, his father, one brother, H. S. Huffman of Peterborough, and two sisters, Mrs. T. H. Glover, Mark Street, and Mrs. Fred Pearson of Long Beach, California.

BY ART MURRAY

(By Art Murray)

WHEN STARTER Rowe tomorrow calls a small but select field of horses to the barrier to decide the historic King's Plate it will represent many thousands of dollars invested in horse flesh besides years of anxious endeavour by owners and trainers. It is every Canadian horse owner's ambition to win this coveted piece of plate and also the fifty guineas both presented by His Majesty the King. The Governor - General of Canada will be there in person to make the presentation. He will enter the grounds at the eastern entrance and drive up the track in an old time four-in-hand coach to the strains of martial music supplied by the 48th Highlanders band of Toronto and cheered by the twenty-five thousand fans in attendance.

The breeding of the thoroughbred industry received a great help some four or five years ago when R. S. McLaughlin, the Oshawa motor magnate decided to get into the game. He purchased the best stock that money could buy among whom were some of the most expensive sires from England and United States. He fitted up a palatial breeding farm on the Kingston road just outsideof Oshawa and it is safe to say that the calibre of stock bred in stock since his adventure in the industry has improved wonderfully.

HARRY HATCH of Toronto is another that maintains a large stock farm at Agincourt a few miles east of Toronto. Among his string is also listed a large number of importaned mares and stallions. With gentlemen like these, racing is just incidental to their vast enterprises. Their main objective is to improve the blood lines of horses bred in Canada. Closer to home we have Mrs. Livingstone's Pontiac farm, just outside of Cobourg on the Kingston road. She has not raced any horses in the past six or seven years but keeps close to two hundred head on her farm nearly all the time.

At last year's Royal Winter fair it was noticed that the stock of these above mentioned breeders were winning their share of prizes in competition with entries from all parts of the world. It is Mr. McLaughlin's life ambition to win the King's Plate as the conditions require that a horse must be bred in Ontario and not be out of the province for over one month, and although his horses have carried off many rich stakes he would sooner have the King's Plate than all the other prizes put together.

THE SEAGRAMS at Waterloo also have a stock farm that is the show place of Western Ontario, so you can imagine what a thrill any of these owners get when they see a three year old of their own breeding flash down in front in an important classic. Just to point out the sentiment attached to the King's Plate we might point out that during the war years when no betting was allowed in Canada, this famous classic was run as usual every year and interest maintained but the industry of stock breeding suffered as a whole. So tomorrow, which ever owner has the glory of winning we will know it will be a real honest to goodness Canadian sportsman.

CUBS REGAIN NATIONAL LEAD

Chuck Klein Gets 10th and 11th Homers to Give Chicago 10-3 Triumph.

HARTNETT ALSO HITS.

(By Canadian Press.)

The Cubs regained the National League lead in their first game in the east as Chuck Klein celebrated his return to his old stamping ground in Philadelphia by socking his 10th and 11th homers of the season and led the way to a 10-3 victory over the Phillies. Pittsburgh lost the place at the head of the parade when Earl Grace made a wild throw past first trying for a double play in the 10th inning of a hurling duel between Van Mungo and Bill Swift, and the error gave Brooklyn a 2-1 decision.

The St. Louis-New York struggle for third place remained unchanged as both clubs won. The Cards defeated Boston 5-3 as Virgil Davis and Manager Frank Frisch hit homers to back Paul Dean in his third pitching triumph. Big Fred Fitzsimmons pitched and batted the Giants to a 6-3 victory over Cincinnati, giving only five hits in the first seven innings and helping out with a circuit smash.

Nine "Big Time" Managers Risen From Ranks Learned Game Under Famous Philadelphia Club Head

Mackian Dynasty Augumented by Appointments of Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Dykes.

The Mackian dynasty of managers, augmented this season by two—Mickey Cochrane of the Detroit Tigers and the recently appointed Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox—gives old Connie Mack a new role—that of king maker.

Seven former Philadelphia Athletics, who learned their baseball cunning from the tall tutor, have decorated the roster of big league pilots.

However, Cochrane and Dykes are the only ones now managing, unless one wishes to count Eddie Collins who is general manager but not field boss of the Boston Red Sox.

The other four are or, rather, were: Harry Davis, Jack Barry, John (Stuffy) McInnis and Jack Coombs.

Infield on Top.

Three of Connie Mack's famous "million dollar" infield of two decades ago are included. They are McInnis, Barry and Collins. Only Frank Baker, third baseman in that noted quartet, did not end his active baseball days as bench boss.

McInnis, after fading from the big league limelight, popped up as manager of the Phillies in 1927. Barry bossed the Boston Red Sox for the season of 1917 and Collins was pilot of the Chicago White Sox for two years, 1925 and 1926.

CONNIE MACK

Harry Davis, who played for Mack from 1901 to 1911, had a brief career as manager of the Cleviand Indians in 1912. Jack Coombs, more famous as a pitcher of champion Athletic teams, served the Phillies as manager in 1918.

McGraw's Greatest Rival.

It is odd that the late John McGraw, who was Mack's greatest rival in winning pennants and in world series struggles, was also Mack's foremost foe for the title of big league king maker.

McGraw was the real Warwick of the majors. He saw nine of his players don the toga of a manager, the first being Wilbert Robinson, who succeeded McGraw as manager of the Baltimore Orioles in 1902 and later, through McGraw's influence, became manager of the Brooklyn team, where he remained from 1915 to 1931.

Three of Famous "Million Dollar Infield" of McInnis, Barry and Collins Piloted Teams.

The other ex-Giant stars who became pilots were Christy Mathewson, Roger Bresnahan, Buck Herzog, Art Fletcher, Dave Bancroft, Bill Hahlen, Heinie Groh and Bill Terry.

Three Piloted Reds.

Three of these managed the Cincinnati Reds in succession. Herzog became pilot in 1914 and remained until 1916 when Mathewson succeeded him. Matty went to war early in the 1918 season and Groh finished the campaign for him.

Bresnahan managed the St. Louis Cardinals for four pennant fights —1909-1912, Bill Dahlen was Brooklyn manager from 1909 to and including 1914. Art Fletcher saw service with the Phillies, 1923-1926, and Dave Bancroft was boss of the then luckless Boston Braves, 1924-1927.

The last McGraw player to become a manager was, of course, Bill Terry, who succeedel his old chief as pilot of the New York Giants in mid-season two years ago. Terry's appointment, as were most of the others, was at McGraw's own suggestion.

7 PROBABLE STARTERS LIKELY FOR KING'S PLATE SATURDAY

R. S. McLaughlin's Horometer Expected to Shatter Queensway's Record.

WEIGHTS-JOCKEYS.

TORONTO, May 18. — With the running of the King's Plate, blue ribbon event of the Canadian turf, just one day away, present indications are that only seven thoroughbreds, one of the smallest fields in the history of the classic, will face the barrier to vie for the money, fame and glory that comes with victory about 4.15 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

R. S. McLaughlin's Horometer, considered one of the finest Canadian-breds of all time, and his gallant little partner, Pitchblende, from the stable of R. W. R. Cowie, have frightened a good number away by their sensational form in workouts, and the only hope, it seems, for the remainder of the field is for the minor portions of the prize money.

Should Establish Record.

Yesterday Horometer was just galloped in order to keep on edge for the test. The big son of Hourless has benefitted greatly from the training, and it would occasion little surprise to see him crash Queensway's mark for the Plate and establish a new record that would stand for a good many years to come.

Accompanied by Mad Miss, a stable-mate Pitchblende yesterday morning worked six furlongs in 1.16 3-5. The son of Sweepster did all his real running in the first quarter, the handlers sharpening him up for the break. He covered the initial portion in :48.

Edward F. Seagram's two Platers —Candy Feast and Irish Kid—both went through their final workouts, working the full mile and an eighth in 1.59 4-5. Candy Feast led his stable-mate home by a length and a half. There was much activity in the infield, numerous owners schooling their charges "over the jumps."

While it is possible that eight will start, only the following seven thoroughbreds, with jockeys and weights, are expected to face the starter:

Horse.	Rider.	Wt.
Horometer	F Mann	117
Pitchblende	R. Townrow	117
Papalico	N. Foden	132
Speygold	T. Vercher	117
Sam Worthy	No boy	117
Candy Feast	N. Wall	112
Irish Kid	K. Horvath	112

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED AT HASTINGS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 18. — At a well attended meeting of the employees of the Hastings Tanning Company on Tuesday, the employees formed a Tannery Athletic Association to foster the tannery softball team entered in the local and district league. The following officers were elected:

Hon. Presidents: N. M. McCullough, L. O. Breithoupt.

President: F. Turcotte.

Secretary-Treasurer: Earl Hahn.

Mr. L. F. Daley was the unanimous choice for the position as manager of the team.

Nelson Scriver was appointed assistant manager.

Plans are almost completed for the grand opening on May 24th.

ST. LOUIS TOO MUCH FOR SOX REDS LOSE 4-3

Tommy Bridges Hurls Tigers to 5 to 4 Victory Over Yankees.

OVERCOME EARLY LEAD.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

St. Louis Browns, stimulated by the influence and example of Manager Rogers Hornsby, have begun to assume a threatening attitude toward the other clubs of the American League although they still are a long way from being a pennant contender.

After a bad start which allowed them to remain out of the cellar only because Chicago White Sox were even less successful, the Browns wound up their recent eastern tour with a flourish of four victories in their last five gaves. Returning home yesterday they avenged two defeats in Boston by trimming the Red Sox 4-3 and moved ahead of the losers into sixth place in the standing. It was their first real advance of the season and left them virtually tied with Washington for a higher notch.

Detroit Tigers made the only other gain in the American League as the western clubs, starting their home stands, swept the program. The Tigers beat out the league-leading Yankees, 5-4.

Cleveland's Indians spotted Washington four runs in the first two innings, then cut loose with a 17-hit attack on four Senator pitches that produced seven runs in the seventh and a final score of 14-6.

Zeke Bonura, Whitesox — Drove in three runs against Athletics with homer and single.

Paul Dean, Cardinals — Fanned five in pitching victory over Braves; hit double and single.

Charley Gehringer, Tigers— Had perfect day against Yankees with four hits.

Pat Malone, Cubs.—Limited Phillies to two hits in six innings of relief hurling.

Earl Averill and Frank Pytlack, Indians—Led attack on Senators with three hits each.

NEWARK BLANKS RED WINGS 1-0 IN FINAL GAME

Kleine Loses Game, Although Holding Bears to 5 Hits in 8 Innings.

DUKE, WINNING HURLER.

(By The Associated Press)

Rochester Redwings' big International League lead had melted away to next to nothing to-day and the credit, or blame, rests with Bob Shawkey's Newark Bears.

Six days ago the Redwings completed a 12-game winning streak and led their closest rivals, Toronto Maple Leafs, by six games. To-day, after taking five successive beatings, four in a row from Newark, Rochester still held first place but over Newark by only one game and Toronto by a game and a half. The intricacies of the percentage leave Toronto in second place, although the Leafs trail Newark by half a game in the games won-and-lost method of figuring.

Indian Sign on Wings

Newark's 1-0 conquest of Rochester yesterday served to call attention to the "Indian sign" the Bears have enjoyed over the Redwings all season. It was these two clubs' seventh meeting and Newark's sixth victory.

Singles by George Selkirk and Jack Saltzgaver in the eighth, followed by two long flies brought in the only run of yesterday's Newark-Rochester battle and spelled heartbreaking defeat for young Norbert Kleinke. This youngster gave up only five hits in the eight innings he worked, but Rochester, although touching Marvin Duke for eight safeties, couldn't produce when a hit meant a run.

Paul Stagg, son of the famous Alonzo, is now at Moravian College, Bethlehem, Pa., teaching sports.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL LEAGUE ORGANIZED

Five Teams Will Operate This Season in Northumberland Loop.

WARKWORTH May 18 (Examiner Correspondence).—J. A. Sykes was elected president and Nellie Greenly, secretary-treasurer, on Monday evening, May 14th, at a meeting of the Northumberland Girls' Softball League, held here in the Community Hall. Representatives from Castleton, Brighton and Warkworth were present. Although Grafton was not represented at the meeting, they will have a team in the league. No definite word has been received whether Colborne will enter a team or not, but it is believed that there will be five teams in the League.

The first two games of the schedule were arranged, the remainder of which is to be drafted by the president and secretary. On May 25th Castleton and Brighton play at Presque I'le and Grafton plays at Warkworth on same date.

Mark Koenig plays the piano.... Some of the other Reds should.... so thinks Mr. Crosley, the radio man, who now goes to the bank for the Cincy ball club.

While down town yesterday afternoon, we just thought we would drop in and see the chairman of the Greens Committee, Cecil Williamson, and try and get the low-down as to the condition of the greens. After Cecil got a lot off his chest, he finally told us that the greens would be in good shape for May 24th.

So we take that for granted, and now we will have to begin and pass on to the bowling fans all the dope for the coming season.

To begin with; we have the grand opening on the 24th, but we will give you more about that later—the regular Friday night tournaments throughout the season; the President and Vice-President Competition; the schedule games which last all season; the play-offs for the Central Ontario Association games; the Leads and Seconds; the Skips and Vice-Skips; the Doubles and Singles, and then besides all these local games, we have all the big open tournaments, the dates of which have been confirmed by the Central Ontario Association.

Of course there is a reason for publishing all this stuff. . . It seems that some of our best prospective bowlers thought that there was going to be very little bowling outside of the schedule games, and we thought we would just print all this, so they would be convinced that we are in earnest.

So you see if anybody joins the club and does not get his money's worth, it will be no fault of the Games Committee.

You must go out to the greens to bowl—the greens don't go to you.

CRICKET

The following members of Peterborough Cricket Club are asked to be on hand at 2.20 sharp at Nicholls' Oval on Saturday afternoon for a match against the Whittaker Eleven of this city: Binks, Blowers, Dyer, Gore, Langhorne, Lawrence, Lorne, Mawhood, Mitchell, Williams and Woorall, reserves Salisbury and Stuart.

BUTCHER HOLDS CARPETMAKERS TO SEVEN CLOUTS IN 8 FRAMES

Delahaye Leads Victors at Bat With Double, Two Singles in Four Times Up.

23 HITS IN ALL.

Fashion-Crafts made their debut in the Men's Softball League by walloping Brintons, 12 to 5, before a good crowd at Central last night. Big Chuck Butcher let the Carpetmen down with seven hits and he struck out sixteen in the eight-inning fixture, darkness stopping the game then. Behind this fine twirling, Manager Johnny Russell's team played sparkling ball to blank the Sturgeon boys the last six frames.

It started off like a romp for Brintons, three hits, two walks and a couple of wild heaves chasing in two runs for them in the first. They held the other side scoreless in their half, and stepped out and ran in three more in the second on five walks, an error and a single. That was the last of their scoring. Fashion-Craft kept pecking away to shove one across in the second, three each in the third and fourth, one apiece the next two frames, then two, and one in the last. Despite Butcher's frequent wild streaks—he walked nine—he got better as the game went on.

Brintons showed some smart fielding, also but kicked in with four costly errors. This and the bunched hits of Fashion-Craft in the third, fourth and last three stanzas, being nicked for ten hits as he struck out two and walked six. Bill Simmons worked the eighth and was touched for two hits and one run. Their teammates tried hard but found the whiz-balls of Butcher hard to clout.

Delahaye led the victors at bat with a double and two singles in four official times at bat. Gainey was next with a two bagger and two singles in five. McDougall, Wiley and Clarke hit safely twice each. For Brintons, Calladine was top hitter with three singles in five trips. Smith was the only other to get more than one, with two safeties. Fine throws from left field to cut off runners were made by Weir and Foley, while Gainey featured with a smart overhead catch going back.

The Teams

SOUTHENDERS TAKE CLOSE 10-9 WIN

St. Paul's Gives St. James' Juveniles Tidy Battle in Church League.

The best Church Softball League game of the evening last night was the 10-9 decision for St. James' Juveniles over St. Paul's at King Edward Park. It was tight all through with fine twirling on both sides. Six homers were knocked with Berwick getting two. Castle hit one with the bases full, while Whiteside, Morrow and Anderson got the others. Murduff did some swell fielding. The teams:

St. Paul's—Whiteside, 3b; King, 2b; Anderson, ss; F. Barr, 1b; Currie, p; Morrow, c; N. Barr, cf; Mackness, rf; McKee, rf; Easton, lf.

St. James'—Murduff, cf; Berwick, 3b; Leggett, 1b; Castle, c; Leether, ss; Wood, 2b; McGoveran, lf; Ridley, p; Piercy, rf.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Number 294

One of the things most golfers don't know is when to start the backswing. And this is mighty important, for a poorly timed initial move means a badly timed swing as a whole.

Most players simply stand over the ball until they've gone over, in their minds, a long list of don't that have been drummed into them.

Then they become conscious of keeping the rest of the foursome waiting, so they take off in a hurry.

This haste invariably finds the club being yanked away from the ball with little chance of any co-ordination between the body and the arms and hands.

The time to start the backswing is when you feel that your grip is firm and your midsection is quite free to move toward the right.

I like to study people, particularly when they're on the golf course.

The thoughtfulness shown around the course by a person who is most particular about everything outside of golf is amazing.

Saturdays and Sundays generally find most courses crowded to capacity. The usual congestion at the first tee finds many players anxious to get started.

Their nervous condition prompts them to swish clubs back and forth with little or no regard for those around them.

If you must swing a club get away from everybody and don't ever swing toward anyone.

St. John's Juniors Win In Exta Frame

An overtime inning was necessary before St. John's Juniors pulled out a 10-9 victory over George St. in a Church Softball League game yesterday. Smith drove in Vollans with the winning run. It was a fast game with George St. unable to hold an early lead. McKee, Patterson and Young all twirled good ball. Smith and Kingdon led the hitters. The teams:

George Street. — Kingdon, c; Ward, 2b; Rutherford, lf; Smith, 3b; Winslow, rf; Cassie, rf; Parnell, 1b; McKee, p; Wells, cf; Skitch, cf; Burns, ss.

St. John's.—Young, p, 3b; Patterson, 3b, p; Packenham, ss; Howell, c; Walton, 1b; Stephens lf; Pitchford cf; Vollans, rf; Smith, 2b.

Large Crowd Likely See Exhibition Game

A large crowd of early-season baseball fans is expected out to Stevenson Park to-morrow afternoon, if the weather is right, for the first ball game of the season. It is an exhibition affair, but promises to be very interesting. Cobourg plays the Petes at 3.15, the former team being generally rated of senior calibre, having played two years ago in the Central Ontario League and last year being an intermediate "A" Ontario finalist.

The Petes are being shaken into shape these days, and fans will be curious to see what they look like at the start of the 1934 race. While nothing official has been announced, Knotty Lee will probably start a lineup something like this:

Whatley c, Ash 1b, Murray 2b, Konopka ss, Batten 3b, Burton lf, Foley cf, Playford rf, with Calladine, Deyell, and McCarthy all available for pitching.

Several changes will likely be made through the game in order to see how they all shape up. It should be a real good ball game, even though it is an exhibition one.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer
Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C. J. P.

The Men's Softball League got away to a fine opening last night at Central—pay no attention to the game the previous night, it was just a bad rehearsal! Anyway, last night, Fashion-Crafts spotted Brintons five points in two frames and then stymied 'em back of the eight-ball the rest of the game. In fact, Brintons could see nothing but eigth-balls and they were behind everyone of them. Must have been seven or nine of these brunette balls. It was an upset to some, but not so surprising to others. Fashion-Crafts are good, and everyone who saw the game—including the Brintons—are now willing to admit it. Here's the layout: Brintons start like a bungalow ablaze, but died out fast after two innings. Meantime, the Clothiers, who had started slowly, didn't quit till the shades of e'en had fallen.

• • • • • •

Chuck Butcher, who works in The Examiner (Note: Advt.)—and if he'd lost, we admit we wouldn't have mentioned the employment angle—certainly whistled the ball by a flock of batters. Sixteen, if we must be technical. True, he walked nine but that's almost a new low record for Chuck, who generally fans a dozen or more and walks more than a dozen. The big speedball twirler has all it takes to be the best pitcher in town, except control. And he may improve that this season. He only gave seven hits last night and showed a nice comeback after getting off to a start that was shakier than the Carioca.

• • • • • •

But credit certainly goes also to the rest of Johnny Russell's smart team. They played bangup ball back of the good hurling, and hit hard and often to pile up the runs. This team will be hard to knock off, though of course a guy that started to count the ex-Sugar Bowlers, now with the Brintons, out of the picture so soon would be a bit balmy. They generally start off slowly and let the pack lead 'em clean around the back stretch, but they open up at the three-quarter pole and hammer down the stretch like "The Old Ninety-Seven" just before it was wrecked.

• • • • • •

There was a pretty fair crowd of fans on deck, though not as many as watched that one-sided thing up there the previous night. And, believe it or don't there was a fifty-cent piece and several two-bit pieces in the silver collection. This is indeed news, and the softball exec. hopes it becomes a habit. It was a good game all right, but still chunks of money like those were a welcome surprise. Maybe Dillinger and his gang were in the crowd.

• • • • • •

C.G.E. and Fashion-Craft are billed to play up there tonight. We hope the Electrics have strengthened up to what they showed the first game. Incidentally we heard from a member of that team that several employees of the C.G.E., who look like good softball players, were playing in the Southend League. Now, that loop has a ruling barring its players from taking part in City Softball League games. C.G.E. would like to try a few of those fellows out, but the boys are afraid to step up. They say "If we don't make good with you, then we're barred from the Southend League, too." We don't think it would hurt for the Southend Loop to allow them, say, three games to try out before barring them. C.G.E. is the only team affected, as the other three have full rosters. The executive of the Southend circuit will be invited to a meeting of the City Softball League at eight Monday in Duffus' to talk it over. We'd also suggest the Athletic Club at the C.G.E. get in behind its team and iron out any inter-department dissension there is, if any. That's the rumor. A fine team can represent C.G.E., so why not let it?

• • • • • •

Girls' Softball League met last eve and decided to not open their schedule for another week—that'll be about May 28th. Then, they'll play the first several games on the out-of-town diamonds, and their home games for the next two weeks or so at King Edward Park on Tuesdays and Fridays, and at Central on Wednesdays and Saturdays. President Scates of the Men's League granted them permission to use their diamond these nights. You see, the Ashburnham Bowl wont be ready for another three weeks or so, what with putting top soil on it, rolling it and planting grass seed. And it would be poor policy to get on it too soon and spoil a fine park. Schedule will be released shortly.

• • • • • •

M. E. Knox, local jeweller, has offered a forty-dollar wrist watch for the best hitter on the senior Petes' team this year. That's something worth shooting at, all right. Latest players to be signed—and there will be a few more jotted down later on—include Archie Dewell, Ike Batten, Len Hollingsworth and Al Clark. The latter may be used at second or short Saturday in the exhibition game with Cobourg here as Ash may not play owing to a slight injury which is liable to keep him out for one contest. The rest of the boys will be on deck Saturday and it should be a pretty fair tussle to start the 1934 baseball season.

• • • • • •

A meeting of the City Lacrosse League is called for at eight o'clock in Duffus' Monday night, and all should be present. Incidentally, the following clipping was taken from last night's Star: "It is expected that a strong delegation from the O.A.L.A. will shortly hold a meeting in Norwood or Peterborough, with the idea of forming an intermediate grouping to include Peterborough, Norwood, Campbellford and possibly Cobourg. The sooner the meeting is held the better, as the lacrosse enthusiasts in that sector are anxious to get going."

Bantam Pitchers Hit Hard in 31-11 Verdict

Four St. John's Bantam pitchers were unable to stop St. James' in last night's Church Loop fixture, and the latter won by a 31-11 count. J. Self and Grose were particularly dangerous at bat for the winners while Foster and Caster hit hard for St. John's. This is the fifth game this season that the winning team scored 31 games in this league. The teams:

St. James'—Sexsmith, 1b; J. Self 3b; Leether, ss; McMaster, p; Grose, c; Henwood, lf; Howden, 2b; Drysdale, rf; D. Self, c.

Knox Throws Upset With 31-10 Victory

Knox Juveniles in a Church League game last night pounded out a 31-10 verdict over George Street, providing something of an upset. Good pitching by Graham and hard hitting by Hughes, Williams and Lucas won for Knox. Stinson and McClellan were best for George Street. Gunsolus relieved Ash, who was wild. The teams:

George Street.—Bullock cf; Allison, lf; Gunsolus, ss, p; Stinson, 3b; Weese, 2b; Galley, 2b; McClellan, 1b; Parnell, rf; Ash p ss; McInnes, c.

RUGGER RELATIONS REMAIN STRAINED

Great Britain Not to Resume International Games at Present.

PARIS, May 18.— The time is not yet ripe for resumption of rugger relations between Great Britain and France, the French Rugby Federation was informed in a reply yesterday by the British Rugby Unions.

The unions across the Channel wrote they did not consider the French Federation had yet done enough to clean up the game in France. As long as rugby here was not played in the right spirit it is impossible to consider a resumption of the international matches, they said.

The international series with France was broken off some seasons ago following unruly conduct in French rugby in which spectators and players alike were injured in fierce battles.

Girls' Opener Is Postponed For Week

The opening of the Girls' Softball League was postponed a week at a meeting of the executive last night in Duffus'. In order to give the city workmen a chance to seed the grounds at the Bowl, it was deemed advisable to not play there for some three weeks. However, the league will open the week starting May 28th, playing most of its games at first in Keene, Lang and Omemee. Home games will be played at King Edward Park, and at Central—if permission for the latter is granted by the Men's League—the home games to be the first two weeks in June.

Those present felt it would nullify the work down at the Bowl by going on it too soon, and they believed that besides the games out-of-town, the home games at the uptown and southend diamonds would be a good thing for fans in these sections. There are opening dates at Central on Wednesday and Saturday evenings, and at King Edward Park on Tuesday and Friday evenings. Games will commence at 6.15 sharp. Due to chilly weather, early darkness and the grounds problem, it was decided that the opening might better be postponed a week. A few minor matters were discussed also before the session adjourned.

McLARNIN-ROSS BOUT HAS BIG ADVANCE SALE

NEW YORK, May 18 (CP)—The power of Jimmy McLarnin as a box office attraction is being demonstrated again by the heavy advance sale of tickets for the Milk Fund show at Madison Square Garden bowl, May 28, when the welterweight champion defends his crown against Barney Ross, lightweight titleholder from Chicago. The gate has already reached $40,000, according to announcement by W. S. Farnsworth, promoter of the battle.

The brisk sale of seats for the match which many predict will draw more spectators than the Primo Carnera-Max Baer bout on June 14, recalled the fact that the Irish-Canadian title-holder has been a $1,240,000 magnet at the turnstiles.

Fourteen of the fights in which he participated drew that total. His three bouts against Sammy Mandell alone crossed $314,000.

Lee's Mound Work Subdues Park St.

A big second inning aided materially in the George Street Bantams' 26-11 nod over Park Street, in their Church Circuit fixture last evening. Lee's pitching, and the batting of Wildman and Stewart were too much for Park Street. Sanderson and Tarkington showed up well for the losers. The teams:

Park Street.—Sanderson, 3b, p; McDermid, 2b; D. Martin, ss; H. Campbell, p, 3b; Jobe, lf; P. Martin, 1b; Tarkington, c; L. Campbell, cf; Briscoe, rf.

George St. Seniors Take 7-2 Victory

Behind fine hurling by Massey, George Street Seniors took a 7-2 win over Trinity in a Church Softball League game last night. Only five Trinity batters reached first. Ward, on the other mound, also was good, but his opposition was too tough. Grant, Miles and Payne went good for the loop-leaders. The teams:

Trinity.—Holgate, 3b; Morrow, lf; Ward, p; Ridyard, 2b; Clark, cf; Hayes, cf; Gadd, rf; Davern, ss; McBain, 1b; Mattice, c.

George Street.—Grant, c; Payne, ss; Lowe, 2b; Olmstead, 2b; Massey, p; Miles, rf; Seed, 1b; Cullen, cf; Hicks, lf; Reed, 3b.

Umpires.—A. Wedlock and J. Clayton.

Soccer Notes

The local soccer season under league auspices, opens on Saturday afternoon, at King Edward Park, when the Canada Packers meet the Caledonians. Kick off is scheduled for three o'clock prompt. The official referee, Harry Hotston, has been instructed to have punctual kick-off.

All players are requested to be at the pavilion no later than 2.30 and the teams will be selected. Bring boots, stockings and pants—sweaters will be provided.

A new field marker will be used on the re-arrangement alignment of the pitch which will correspond with the goal posts that have been raised to the proper standard. Spectators are requested to keep off the touch line so as to permit the official linesman an opportunity to carry out his duties.

Campbellford

Mr. Ray Oliver of Huntsville spent Sunday with his wife and family, who are the guests of Mrs. Oliver's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Innes, Seymour West.

Misses Jean Cox, Faith Boorman and Miss McDonald were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Long over the week-end.

MRS. BIRDSALL AGAIN HEADS WESTWOOD W.I.

Large Attendance at Second Annual Meeting of Branch —Much Business Done.

YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED

WESTWOOD, May 18 (Examiner Correspondence).—The second annual meeting of the Westwood branch of the Women's Institute was held on Tuesday afternoon, May 15, in the Town Hall with the president, Mrs. F. E. Birdsall, presiding.

Thirty-seven members answered the roll call by paying the annual fee, while nine other names were enlisted on the roll as promised members.

A letter from Mr. Runions of Peterborough, re coaching class on May 18, in Westwood Town Hall, was read and discussed. It was announced that Miss Ethel J. E. Robson of Denfield, Ontario, would be the guest speaker on June 18, in the Westwood town hall. The subject chosen for her address was "The Institute, a Liberal Education."

It was decided that the date of the regular monthly meeting remain the same for the coming year, which is the third Tuesday of each month.

The president reported that permission had been granted by the council to dig flower beds around the cenotaph.

Gifts of china were presented to five members who had been present at each meeting and had answered the roll call as requested, namely: Mrs. J. E. Thompson, Miss Helen Graham, Mrs. Fred Faux, Mrs. Don Cameron and Mrs. Jas. Clysdale. It was decided that this rules should hold good for the coming year.

The president ,Mrs. Birdsall, then addressed the meeting. She said she was proud to have had the honor of being president of the branch for the past year. Good work had been done by the executive, and most points required by the Department had been touched upon. She closed thanking the executive, commending all the members for their mutual spirit of good fellowship, and offering her best wishes for the coming year.

Reports Read

Reports of the different officers followed. The secretary-treasurer's report by Mrs. E. W. Sargent showed a successful year of community work and a substantial balance in the bank. The corresponding secretary's report by Miss Helen Graham was gratifying, as was also the library secretary's report by Mrs. Fred Neilson showing total receipts to be $7.79. Interesting reports on the following were also given: Historic Research by Mrs. Thompson, Health and Education by Miss Jessie Davidson, Home Economics, by Mrs. Morris, Immigration, by Mrs. G. Evnhurst, and Publicity, by Mrs. E. W. Sargent.

Federal Institute Pins were presented to four of the members, in recognition of services rendered: Mrs. E. W. Sargent, Miss Eleanor Garvey, Mrs. Fred Neilson and Mrs. William Morris.

Election of officers for 1934-35, then took place. The president, Mrs. Birdsall, who remains in office for another year took the chair. Two scrutineers were appointed:—Mrs. S. Elmhirst and Miss Edna Clysdale.

Officers Elected

The following officers were elected:

Vice-President — Miss Eleanor Garvey.

Recording Secretary: Mrs. Jas. Clysdale.

Corresponding Secretary: Miss Jessie Davidson.

Treasurer: Mrs. Don Cameron.

Librarian: Mrs. Fred Neilson.

Pianist: Mrs. Ross Lobb.

District Director: Mrs. Birdsall.

Directors: Mrs. Birdsall Mrs. F. Faux, Miss Mary Barrie and Miss Helen Graham.

Relief Committee: Mrs. Ross Lobb, and Mrs. D. McColl.

Program Committee: Mrs. Morris, Miss Rita Dickson, Mrs. S. Graham and Mrs. E. W. Sargent.

Current Events: Mrs. Victor Fortune.

Press Secretary: Mrs. E. W. Sargent.

Delegates to District Annual at Hall's Bridge: Mrs. Birdsall Mrs. E Sargent, Mrs. Clysdale, Miss E. Garvey and Mrs. Don Cameron.

Auditors: Messrs. F. E. Birdsall, and J. G. Manley.

Before closing the meeting it was decided that a prize be given at the Westwood school fair in September to the boy exhibiting the largest number of groundhog tails there.

Following the National Anthem dainty refreshments were served.

CAVAN

Mrs. Hunter, Miss F. Hunter, Mrs. J. G. Matchett and Mrs. Ray Syer motored to Emily, recently and visited friends.

Mr. Frank Arnott, Toronto, spent Wednesday and Thursday nights with G. E. Staples at his home in Cavan.

Messrs. T. Staples and V. Jackson, Bethany were visitors in Cavan and Millbrook on Wednesday evening.

The Misses Dorothy Cobley and Verda Braithwaita attended the musical festival at Bowmanville on Wednesday.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, May 19

The planetary operations for this day, both by lunar and mutual aspects, point to delays, difficulties, disintegration and possibly a sudden reversal of current affairs and interests. This may be precipitated because of a death or other bereavement, or it may be due to an unlooked-for upheaval or disruption landing one in strange fields of action with strange environs, associates and problems to be coped with. Be discreet in personal matters, safeguard the funds and where possible deal with mergers, rings, secret societies or through secret or quiet agreements and contracts. Then things may flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unsettlement; radical change and the sudden precipitation of new interests, opportunities and in new surroundings. A death or bereavement may bring this about. But preferably deal with rings, mergers, secret bodies or through methods of secrecy, diplomacy or tact. Be wise in expenditures and discreet in personal affiliations.

A child born on this day may be clever and talented but restless, unsettled and may meet grave setbacks in its affairs.

TRICKY SLIVER ENGLAND'S BET FOR CUP RACES

British Challenger for American Yacht Trophy Expected to Make Good.

NEW GADGETS—DROP KEEL

PORTSMOUTH, May 18 (C.P.)—A very innocent looking little craft was the Endeavour as she lay in harbor awaiting mast and sails, dwarfed by every passing barge and looking about as stable as a toothpick.

But to those who know their racing yachts, there is speed in every inch of the trim blue boat that T. O. M. Sopwith is taking across the Atlantic late this summer to challenge for the America's Cup.

Give a good broadjumper a running start and he could just about clear the Endeavour's deck at its widest point. Yet from end to end, the slim water sliver measures 130 feet. From the bottom of her leaden keel to the top of her hollow steel mast is almost 200 feet.

Fragile looking, she's all length and depth and scarcely any breadth. You marvel that she could dare the ocean. You feel an admiration for the picked crew that will take her across 3,600 miles of open water for the Cup races.

The secret of the Endeavour's seaworthiness, of course, lies in the great weight of its keel, which extends 15 feet below the waterline. The keel proper weighs 80 tons. Above the solid chunk of lead is a hollow space speveral feet in depth, into which a great piece of steel weighing many tons may be lowered when needed. This is a "drop" keel and something of an innovation.

Operated by an electric winch, the "drop" keel will be lowered into place when the Endeavour has a strong following wind. The added weight below the surface will help the challenger to travel on a straight line ahead, losing no time or distance through the wind's tendency to blow her sideways, or on a diagonal course.

Another tricky feature of the Endeavour is an electric wind vane and pressure gauge, the indicators of which will be right before Sopwith's eyes when he is steering. He will be able to see instantly how the wind veers to a fraction of a degree and tell its exact pressure and speed. Skippers of all other challengers have had to rely on their judgment.

Slim and unsubstantial as she looks from without, the Endeavour is roomy and comfortable inside. She has a spacious forecastle forward with good accommodation for the crew of 23, a large messroom for the officers with separate captain's cabin and berths for the two mates, cook and steward. The owner's quarters consist of three single staterooms, a bathroom and a large saloon.

HAND GOES FAR UNDER HANDLE IN WESTERN GRIP, EXPERT SAYS

Little Chance for "Flat Driving" in Use of This Style, Writer Shows

By JACK LIPPERT
Central Press Canadian Writer

If you lay your racquet on the ground, then reach for it, the result will be a grip much closer to the so-called western grip than to the eastern "shake-hands" grip. In learning to take hold of the racquet eastern style you will recall that the racquet, instead of lying with its face parallel with the ground, was held so that the face, if dropped to the ground, would make a right angle to it.

Photograph A shows the hand reaching to pick up the racquet, the ensuing grip being shown in photograph B. This is the front view of the forehand, (the stroke would be coming toward the reader). Observe how far under the handle the hand comes.

Compare this with the front view of the eastern style forehand, shown yesterday, and the difference in grips will be at once apparent. This grip automatically applies heavy top-spin to the ball for forehand strokes, but for backhand strokes the tendency is to impart slice.

There is very little chance for "flat" driving (the basis of Bill Tilden's and Ellsworth Vines', speedy driving) with the use of the western grip, though this is not to say that the western style forehand is impotent. It is quite the contrary.

Carrying such excessive top-spin the forehand drives fairly sizzle in their revolutions, and in their bounce off the ground they leap fast and deep. What the ball does after it leaves the ground is called pace. Variety of pace is obtained by applying various spins to the ball. These various spins we will take up from time to time in future articles.

Photograph C is the rear view of the western grip. The stroke would be going away from the reader in this instance. Photograph D is a front view of the western backhand, with the stroke coming toward the reader. In the western grip the same face of the racquet is used for hitting both forehands and backhands. Thus, it is not necessary to change the grip from forehand to backhand and vice versa, as it is in the eastern style.

FUR BREEDERS ELECT PATTE

REVIVE ANNUAL SHOW.

TORONTO, May 18.—At a meeting held in the Carls-Rite Hotel yesterday afternoon, the fur breeders of the province reorganized to form a new body, which will be known as the Ontario Fur Farmers' Association. J. E. Patte, Peterborough, addressed the gathering, and stressed the need for an active organization among those interested in the raising of fur-bearing animals. Fox farming had become a legitimate business and should be recognized in the same way as the breeding of cattle and horses, he stated.

Mr. Patte traced the efforts on the part of the fur men to organize and said that the Ontario Silver Fox Breeders' Association, which had been affiliated with the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association, had ceased to be of service, due to lack of support. He spoke of the need of the revival of an annual show in connection with the Royal Winter Fair. There were great benefits to be derived by the fur farmers in the marketing of their pelts with the help of a strong organization working on their behalf, the speaker maintained.

A Board of Directors was elected, with the first three members of the board holding office for three years, the next three members for two years, and the last three for one year.

The following executive was chosen: President, J. E. Patte, Peterborough; Vice-President, H. F. Morren, Barrie; Secretary-Treasurer, O. W. Thompson, Kitchener. Directors—A. J. Hilliard, Waterloo; J. J. McCague, Alliston; G. Cousens, Georgeville; Mrs. George Gillies, Arnprior; R. T. Corfield, Crookston, and Dr. W. B. Russell, Kitchener.

A COMPLETE Printing Service LOW PRICES

Little Aid Foreseen Lumber Rail Rates

MONTREAL, May 18 (CP)—If Montreal's lumbermen are correct in their beliefs, new rates for transportation of lumber by rail from British Columbia to Montreal will have little effect in increasing rail business. Announcement of a decrease of 15 to 30 cents per 100 pounds on railway tariffs for car lots from British Columbia to Montreal and interior points was made from Ottawa yesterday.

The new rate for transportation of construction lumber will be 60 cents per 100 pounds instead of 90 cents as formerly. All other lumber will travel at 75 cents per 100 pounds as against 90 cents formerly. This would leave the rate per 1,000 feet at $22.40 as compared with $28.30, the previous rate, a reduction of $5.90. It would work out at a saving of $132 to 198 per car, depending upon the destination.

J. E. Green, manager of H. R. Macmillan Export Company, said matters would be left somewhat the same as before, as the rate for water-borne lumber will be reduced by shipping people to meet the new competition from the railways.

Ten-Pound Pickerel Is Caught In Trent

TRENT RIVER, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence) — To John Garneau falls the honor of landing the largest pickerel in the Trent River Wednesday evening, while fishing with live minnows off the big pier. The fish weighed ten pounds, had 17 inches girth and was 30 inches in length. Mr. Garneau caught five smaller ones the same evening.

Rising tin prices as the result of the buffer pool plan are bringing joy to tin miners in British Malaya.

FRENCH AND ENGLISH

OTTAWA — The proposal that Canadian currency be printed in French as well as English, which aroused a stormy debate in the House of Commons before Easter, will be urged before the special parliamentary committee on banking and commerce when it resumes discussion of the bill to set up the new Bank of Canada or bank of rediscount.

GENERAL ARMS PARLEY

ROME — A communique setting forth the view held jointly by Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler of Germany that a general disarmament treaty is 'necessary' was issued here today.

It followed a long conference between the Duce and Herr Von Ribbentrop, special envoy sent by the Nazi chief to discuss the arms question with Mussolini.

NOT DILLINGER

FLINT, Mich. — A bank robber gang that acted with Dillinger-like technique was sought today in Michigan and Ohio, apparently without a definite clue to the whereabouts of the five men and a woman who looted a branch bank here of $35,000 yesterday.

After witnesses had studied photographs of the No. 1 public enemy of the moment, the first theory that John Dillinger had led the raiders faded.

PANTHAN MURDERS TWO

RAWALPINDI, India—Word of a double murder at the Danish frontier station at Mardan in the mountainous northeast frontier region stated.

One of the infants died shortly after birth, but the three other tiny tots are alive and, according to the attending physician, thriving.

AGED RESIDENT PASSES IN CITY

John Joseph Primeau, Native of Peterborough, Dies in 84th Year.

FUNERAL ON MONDAY.

One of the oldest native residents of the city passed away early this morning, in the person of John Joseph Primeau at his residence, 34 Cricket Place. He was in his 84th year.

A son of the late Charles Primeau and Mary McGarrity, the deceased was born in this city on January 10, 1851, at which time the family was living in the vicinity of Nicholls Oval. With the exception of seven years, when he was in business at Saginaw, Michigan, the late Mr. Primeau has lived in this community all his life. Associated with his brother, Joseph, who survives, he conducted a barber and tobacconist business which was located on the northwest corner of Hunter and George streets.

Since suffering a severe internal haemmorhage five years ago, Mr. Primeau had been in failing health, although he was up and around within the past day or so, and the end came quite suddenly and peacefully.

Besides his widow, formerly Mary Ryan, he is survived by seven sons, William and Joseph of Buffalo, N.Y.; Charles and Arthur of Peterborough, Alex and Frederick of Detroit, and Leonard of Toronto; one daughter, Mrs. Poole of Windsor; a brother, Joseph of this city; and three sisters, Mrs. Rose Power and Mrs. Susie Boutel both of Detroit, and Mrs. Margaret Huff of Chicago.

Throughout his entire residence in Peterborough, the late Mr. Primeau had been a devout member of the Church of the Immaculate Conception and was connected with the Holy Name Society of that parish.

The funeral is to be held from the family residence at 8.45 a.m. on Monday for a celebration of Requem Mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception at 9 a.m. Interment will be made at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Saskatchewan Prepared For Provincial Elections

HON. JAMES GARDINER — M. J. COLDWELL — PREMIER J. T. M. ANDERSON

By strange coincidence, both Saskatchewan and Ontario provincial governments will go to the polls at approximately the same time—if not on the same day. The Ontario election has been set for June 19 and word form Saskatchewan suggests that the same day will be chosen for election in the prairie province. Above are shown the three leaders in the Saskatchewan election. J. T. M. Anderson is present Conservative Premier, James Gardiner heads the Liberal forces, while M. J. Coldwell is Farmer-Labor chieftain. Both Anderson and Gardiner are Ontario-born.

LEAGUE SPEEDS ARMS EMBARGO

Authorizes Chaco Committee to Consult Munition Exporting Countries.

PROPOSAL DRAWN UP.

GENEVA, May 19 (C.P.). — The Council of the League of Nations to-day unalimously adopted a resolution authorizing its Chaco Committee to consult arms exporting countries for an embargo on shipment of arms and munitions to Bolivia and Paraguay.

Representatives of the two warring countries sat at the Council table, but did not speak.

The resolution was adopted in public session. It had been presented only a few minutes previous.

League jurists will now draw up a definite proposal to be cabled immediately to the various governments whose co-operation is sought.

Your Evening Smile

CONFESSING

"You're the kind of a fellow who sleeps with is clothes on."

University student: "Of course I am. Do you think the professors would let me take 'em off in class?"

On The Spot

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP) Senator Neely of West Virginia, just after making an eloquent speech in the United States Senate about his views on lipstick, found himself asked an uncomfortable question.

As the Senate was considering the Copeland Pure Food and Drug Bill, the West Virginian inquired if it did not forbid "the excessive use of the abominable lipstick."

He contended that "the excessive use of lipstick has greatly increased the world's troubles," and added: "Lipstick is not healthful for women. It is not safe for men."

"Does the Senator, asked Copeland of New York, "wish to testify on the subject at any great length?"

3 Killed, 5 Injured As Autos Collide

NOROLK, Va., May 19. (AP).—Three persons were killed and five injured early to-day in a head-on collision of two automobiles on the Suffolk-Portsmouth boulevard near the Nansemond county line.

The dead are: W. B. Lohman, managing editor of the Portsmouth Star; Mrs. C. E. Barricklow, of Suffolk, and Mrs. J. C. Adams, Jr., of Suffolk.

$35,000 LOSS LUMBER BLAZE

Chalk River Village Escapes Undamaged as Huge Pile Burns.

1,500,000 FEET RUINED.

CHALK RIVER, Ont., May 19 (C.P.).—Fire early to-day destroyed 1,500,000 feet of lumber which was piled along the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks approximately half a mile from the centre of this village. Starting about one o'clock in the morning the flames gained headway rapidly and burned unchecked.

Fortunately there was little wind and the flames confined themselves to the lumber piles. There were no casualties and the village was not harmed in any way. Ownership of the lumber was unknown, although it belonged, according to information obtainable, to Pembroke interests. The fire was practically burned out by five o'clock. The C. P. R. and Dominion forest protective officers were on the scene, but could do little beyond protecting the right of way. No estimate of the damage was available.

Later reports indicated that the loss would be approximately $35,000 partially covered by insurance. Practically the entire village of Chalk River assisted in fighting the flames, but could do little to save the wood which burned like tinder. The reflection of the flames could be seen at Pembroke, 22 miles away. The bulk of the wood burned was white and red pine and spruce.

Castle Motor Co. To Settle In Lindsay

LINDSAY, May 19 (Special) — The Castle Motor Company of Windsor has just purchased the factory premises formerly occupied by the Cole Manufacturing Company, and it is understood, the company is to commence production of the Castle Motor Head almost immediately. The building covers an area of 45 by 110 feet, is 2 storeys high and is partly equipped.

Messrs. Castle, Conway and Paige, officers of the company, were in Lindsay yesterday afternoon and were enthusiastic as to the prospects of the concern. Mr. Castle, a native of Peterborough, is inventor of the Castle Motor Head.

EXILED RUSSIANS ARE AGITATED BY THE EXAMPLE OF EX-PRINCE

Nobleman Accepted Soviet Invitation to Return, Now Holds Responsible Post.

SECOND INVITATION?

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

PARIS, May 19.—The example of Prince D. S. Mirsky, who returned to his native Russia two years ago to become a simple citizen of the Soviet Union, would to-day be followed by many other ci-devant Russian nobles living in exile in Paris if Moscow would once more open the doors to citizens of the former Russian empire who fled the country in the days of the revolution. Prince Mirsky, professor of Russian literature at the niversity of London, scion of an ancient noble family, was one of the few exiles who accepted the invitation of the Soviet government to all exiles two years ago. He is to-day one of the Literaturnia Gazeta of Leningrad and on the Istvestia, the official Soviet newspaper published in Moscow.

His decision to go back and "see for himself" what the new regime had accomplished in his old fatherland, his subsequent voluntary acceptance of "any work" in which he could be useful in socialist construction in the U.S.S.R., and finally his enthusiastic support of the Stalinist political and economic theories, earned him a volume of abuse, bitter and scurrilous, from the leaders of the Russian emigration in Paris. They said he "had sold his soul for Bolshevik gold."

Pneumonia Is Feared Archbishop McNeil

TORONTO, May 19 (CP)—Complications involving symptoms of pneumonia were noted in the conditions of Archbishop Neil McNeil to-day and physicians in attendance reported his condition was quite serious.

During the night his condition was not satisfactory, but since early morning he has been resting quietly and slight improvement was reported. Archbishop McNeil was admitted to hospital Thursday.

Temperance Forces To Meet Wednesday

The Peterborough County Temperance Association will hold its annual meeting in the Legion Hall on Wednesday May 23 at 2.00 p.m. Efforts are being made to have representatives present from every section of the county. All churches have been notified to send delegates if they so desired. The executive recently appointed committees to interview the various candidates in to the field as to their stand on the liquor issues of the day and these committees will make their report at the convention. It is expected that a great deal will depend on the report of these committees as to whether the association will enter a candidate in the provincial election.

Indian Charged With Obstructing Officer Having Illegally Quantity Of Maskinonge

Charged with obstructing a police officer while in the performance of his duties and having had in his possession illegally a large quantity of muskelunge, Noah Taylor, 32, Indian of the Curve Lake reserve, appeared before Police Magistrate to-day. He pleaded not guilty to the charge of illegal possession of fish and did not plead or elect to the charge of obstructing a police officer.

Hearing of both cases was adjourned until Monday.

It is alleged that on May 11, Fred C. Marshall, county fish and game inspector, searched a taxi in which Taylor was a passenger and found a large number of lunge which had been cleaned and cut up. Taylor it is said fled at the approach of the officer.

The man was arrested yesterday afternoon on a warrant by Inspector Marshall and two R.C.M.P. officers. The day previous, it is alleged, Inspector Marshall went to the reserve to arrest Taylor but was prevented from doing so.

Two city men and a resident of Otonabee pleaded guilty to charges of fishing for pickerel before the season opened. Inspector Marshall caught them fishing on Monday night. Each was fined $5 and $2.40 costs.

CANADA MAKING RAPID STRIDES TO NORMALCY

$200,000 A DAY.

Greater Car Loadings Both Railways—150,000 More Men in Jobs.

MONTREAL, May 19. (CP).—Increasing indications of the rapid strides made by Canada towards recovery are seen by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice.

In a speech before the Notre Dame De Grace Conservative Club here last night, the minister told of an increase of $11,000,000 in the past 46 days in the amount of national revenues compared with the estimated amount for the period—a steady gain since April 1 of more than $200,000 a day.

"Happy days are here again" Hon. Mr. Guthrie told his listeners as he reviewed increased [illegible] heavy gains in construction contracts, improvement in earnings of both the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National railways and higher production of automobile plant and attributed everything to Premier R. B. Bennett, whom he described as the "man who led us out of the mess the world found itself in the year 1930."

Canada is assuming the leadership. He said, among the nations of the world in emerging from adverse economimc conditions. Employment had registered a gain of some 150,000 with 4,899 firms reporting addition of 153,000 men to their ranks.

WINDSOR HUNTS DOG POISONER

Place for Person Responsible is Behind Bars Says Mayor.

OFFERS $100 REWARD.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 19 (C.P.).—Information which will lead to the arrest of a dog-poisoner in Windsor is worth $100 to the city. A reward of that amount has been offered by Mayor Frank H. Mitchell for the person who has information proving some person deliberately set out poison for the purpose of destroying dogs. The offer is effective for 30 days.

In a statement containing the offer of reward, the Mayor stated: "Many of these dogs that have been poisoned recently are valuable animals, highly bred, but I don't care whether it's a valuable animal or the lowest mongrel; it's somebody's pet. Anyone who is capable of poisoning a dog is capable of anything and the only place for him is behind jail bars for a term to teach him a lesson."

PARLIAMENT IS DISSOLVED BY KING BORIS

Entire Former Cabinet is Arrested, Placed Under Guard.

NATION IS QUIET.

Troops Occupy All Strategic Points—New Ministry Takes Control.

SOFIA, May 19.—(AP)—The army of Bulgaria today overthrew the nation's government and King Boris, approving the radical change, dissolved parliament.

Whether King Boris, one of the last of rugged individualist sovereigns engineered the military coup d'etat was not immediately apparent on the streets of the capital.

Certain it was, however, that the army had complete charge of the situation.

Soldiers were everywhere. They had rushed the barracks at the crack of dawn, stationed themselves at every strategic point, and had occupied all government buildings.

The public was quiet. The citizens stayed close indoors by orders of the army. No rioting was reported.

Cabinet Arrested

The former cabinet, ousted by the army, was arrested and placed under guard. A new cabinet, headed by Kimon Gueorguieff as premier, took office at once with the sovereign's approval.

It was rumored that the King had demurred for a time at dissolving parliament and establishing the new form of government which was described as dictatorial.

If that rumor is true, his hesitation only lasted a short time, for by noon he had signed 30 decrees of re-organization.

It was said that he was not even aware of the military movement until troops surrounded the palace, but there was no official indication as to what his knowledge of the situation really was.

Clockwork Coup

The whole operation of the coup d'etat went like clockwork. Not only did the military move with precision in Sofia but they operated equally smoothly in similar fashion throughout the provincial cities.

There will be no parliament from now on, and even the mayors of

'34 Worm Diggers

EAST HAMPTON, Conn., May 19 (CP)—Nord Berg plans to do lots of fishing this year—and no worm-digging.

A pair of robins built their nest at Berg's home, and in the nest he found three eggs.

So Berg says he is going to train the youngsters to fetch fishing worms for him.

FOUR ARE KILLED THREE INJURED IN PLANT BLAST

Chemical Explosives Stored in Ohio Factory Prevent Firemen Using Water.

ONLY SEVEN AT WORK.

Rescued Trio Burned So Badly No Details as to Cause Are Obtained.

PAINESVILLE, O., May 19 (A.P.)—Four persons were believed killed and three others were seriously burned to-day when an explosion of undetermined origin wrecked the plant of the Bronze Powder Works one mile east of here on Route 20.

The plant manufactures powder used in painting, but was stored with explosive chemical police said, which prevented firemen from turning water or any other liquids on the flames.

First reports to the police said only seven were in the building at the time of the blast. Three who were extricated were taken to a hospital in such serious condition from their burns they were unable to describe what happened.

PROTEST SHORT HOURS RECORD ALLOWED ON AIR

OTTAWA, May 19.—(CP).—Representing an electrical transcription company, Roy Forbes protested to the Radio Committee of the Commons yesterday against the restricted hours records are allowed on the air. He explained that it was unfair to smaller stations who could not afford other programs.

The regulations discriminated unfairly as between the wire companies and the producers of records. Mr. Forbes claimed the electrical transcription of to-day was of a very high order.

BRITAIN ABOUT TO DOUBLE SIZE OF AIR FORCES

Breakdown of Arms Parley Means Campaign to Reach Parity.

NOW IN FIFTH PLACE.

Plans For Air Conference Dropped as Cabinet Fails to Agree.

LONDON, May 19 (CP) Cable).—London newspapers to-day expressed the view the United Kingdon is preparing to double the size of its air force and lift itself from fifth to first world air power.

Consensus of the morning press was that a statement yesterday by Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, that breakdown of the World Disarmament Conference would launch Britain on a campaign to bring its air force to parity of that belonging to any other nation within striking distance, meant a vigorous building program.

Already, the papers said, an immense amount of detailed work has been accomplished; airport sites have been surveyed and tentative plans made to increase facilities for training pilots.

They added ample facilities existed for turning out machines owing to the up-to-date condition of aeroplane and automobile factories.

Some said supplementary estimates to cover the cost of such operations had been drafted by the government.

Drop Parley Plans

Meanwhile reports were current that British plans to submit an air convention to the Disarmament Conference had been abandoned owing to inability of Cabinet members to agree to such a course.

(It was reported unofficially last Thursday that the government was considering an air convention that would prohibit aerial bombardment but would oblige signatories to bomb any country violating the agreement).

No official reaction to these reports was available at once, but editorial writers speculated freely on the feeling of France which has

NEGRO ADMITS KIDNAP THREATS

Recognized on Street By Mother of Girl Notes Mentioned.

$10,000 ASKED.

NEWARK, N. J., May 19.—(AP)—A negro formerly employed at the South Orange estateof Mrs. J. K. Lasser was held today on charges he threatened to kidnap her four-year-old daughter, Barbara Anna, unless paid $10,000.

Mrs. Lasser's memory led to arrest of the negro, Horace Stevenson, 35. Police said he confessed the extortion plot.

After a futile attempt to trap the extortionist with a decoy package in Newark, Mrs. Lasser saw Stevenson loitering near the address where she had been directed to leave the money. She recognized him as a houseman who had been in her employ more than two years ago and she revealed, she said, that she once had heard him say that kidnapping was "an easy way to make money."

Stevenson was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Holland on charges of sending threatening letters through the mails and attempted extortion. He went to jail in default of $25,000 bond.

WHITSUNTIDE HOLIDAY STIRS PREPARATIONS OVER BRITAIN

20 Strikers Injured In Minneapolis Riot

MINNEAPOLIS, May 19.—(AP).—Twenty persons were injured in disorders in the market district today as attempts were made to move trucks with arms convoys after striking truck drivers had tied up commercial truck transportation since Tuesday night.

Serious trouble began when a large truck pulled up in front of the fruit company offices. Pickets rushed it as soon as it halted, but police clubs drove them back temporarily.

The pickets then hurled rocks and bits of loose paving at the trucks, and advanced again. Once more police swung their clubs and several pickets were injured. Their comrades carried them off.

HUMANE SOCIETY HEAD FAVORS STARLING DRIVE

TORONTO, May 19.—(CP).—"I don't like the idea of employing children to take life in any form," commented J. MacNab, director of the Toronto Humane Society, yesterday in connection with the offering of a bounty to St. Catharines children to kill starlings and crows.

In St. Catharines a theatre has offered school children tickets, as guests of the Lincoln County and St. Catharines Game and Fish Protective Association, for 10 pairs of starling legs or two pairs of crow legs.

"I don't think anyone would object to children killing rats, however, and starlings constitute an even greater nuisance, in my mind," Mr. MacNab sai 274 Special Trains Needed to Carry Crowds to Blackpool Alone.

ALL BUSINESS CEASES.

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 19 (C.P. Cable)—Two hundred and seventy-four special trains will carry Whitsuntide holiday-goers to Blackpool alone, and throughout the country preparations for thte holiday week-end were going forward today on a similar scale.

The House of Commons and government offices generally will take a long week-end holiday, and the stock exchange and business houses are closed until Tuesday.

All England has been suffering unpleasant weather during the week but prospects were for favorable weather for the holiday. The discouraging elements in any case have not affected the preparations.

Variety of special air trips have been arranged between several parts of England and the continent. Holiday-goers flying to France to-day or to-morrow, require no passports, providing they return Tuesday.

Whitsuntide is also a great season for all sorts of conventions, and there will be 20 such gatherings in different parts of the country. Four of the biggest will be held at Buxton, including the national association of headteachers. Peace problems will be discussed at the Federation of League of Nations societies meeting at Folkestone and Scarborough is entertaining municipal government officers. General municipal workers are meeting at Harrogate.

$700,000 FIRE HITS DOCK AREA IN NEWBURYPORT

Factories, Homes, Stores, Shipyard, Valuable Yachts Destroyed.

400 OUT OF JOBS.

Outside Aid Called — Blaze Suspected Work of Fire Bug.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 19 (A.P.).—A fire, believed incendiary, roared through the Riverfront section of the city to-day, destroying factories, homes, stores and a shipyard filled with valuable private yachts.

It levelled an area a quarter of a mile square and caused damage estimated by insurance underwriters at between $700,000 and $900,000. Four hundred persons were thrown out of work with the destruction of the Fisher Shoe Factory and a dozen families were made homeless by the burning of their dwellings.

It was the most destructive blaze in the long history of Newburyport, and for two hours it swept onward, uncontrolled. Aid was summoned from a score of surrounding Massachusetts and New Hampshire communities, apparatus coming from as far away as Salem, 26 miles to the south.

2 Firemen Overcome.

Only two casualties were reported. Both were firemen and both were overcome by smoke. Neither was in a serious condition.

The fire began in a long, wooden abandoned building, formerly a shoe fctory, just before two a.m. It was brought under control shortly before four o'clock. Sporadic bursts of flame still shot from the charred remains at daybreak and at intervals smoking heaps of debris flared up.

The belief that the fire was set came from an unusual series of events during the late evening.

Three alarms were sounded at close intervals just about midnight. The first was for a fire in a garage. The second was for a fire in a mattress in a nearby dwelling, which fire, officials said, was set. The third was a false alarm.

HENRY REGIME'S SPENDING ORGY IS CONDEMNED

Brantfordite Fears Continuance May Bankrupt Province of Ontario.

7 CANDIDATES NAMED.

Macaulay Charges Opposition Urged C.C.F. to Back Out in His Riding.

TORONTO, May 19.—(CP)—W... Ross MacDonald who was Liberal candidate in Brantford at the last Dominion elections, fears if the spending 'orgy' of the Ontario government is not checked the province might go bankrupt. In such a case, he says, the Dominion government would have to institute a commission form of government.

Mr. MacDonald expressed his fears last night at a Liberal rally in London where Dr. A. S. Duncan, Liberal candidate in London for the Ontario general elections, and Mayor David A. Croll of Windsor, Liberal candidate for Windsor-Walkerville, also spoke. All the speakers urged the electors to defeat the Conservative government at the coming elections and Mr. MacDonald dealt on what he described as the government's great extravagance.

Seven candidates were nominated last night. There were five Conservatives, one Liberal and one C.C.F. Hon. T. A. Kidd, former speaker of the legislature, was chosen again to represent Kingston in the elections, the third time he has carried the Conservative banner in a provincial election.

Toronto High Park Liberals chose James G. Culnan and Toronto Riverdale Conservatives named George Oakley as their standard bearer. He represented the riding in the last legislature. Other nominations included Fred G. Copp C.C.F. for Toronto Woodbine; A. St. Pierre, Conservative for Oxford, and J. Percy Moore, K.C., Conservative for London.

U.S. Makes Triple Play Against War

WASHINGTON, May 19. (AP).—A triple-play against war, through curbing of sale and shipment of munitions, began at the United States capitol to-day with President Roosevelt on the coaching line.

The President urged speedy Senate action on:

1.—A nine-year-old Geneva treaty to limit international shipment of war implements.

2.—A special resolution to prohibit the sale of arms in the United States to the Gran Chaco belligerents.

3.—A resolution authorizing $50,000 to find the special Senate investigation looking toward new legislation to curb "abuses" in the munitions traffic.

Chairman Key Pittman of the Senate foreign relations committee reported he would press steadily for early Senate ratification of the 1925 Geneva arms treaty. The President called yesterday for this action to halt the "mad race in armaments which, if permitted to continue, may well result in war."

Large Sums Voted.

The clash subsided almost as quickly as it arose. Apart from it the House was in an agreeable mood and voted large sums of money in estimates for a number of departments. The Labor Department votes were all approved and numerous miscellaneous items carried. Next Tuesday the House will stage its long-expected debate on sweepstakes. Party lines will be withdrawn for the occasion. Two lottery bills are on the order paper. One, already passed by the Senate, would authorize lotteries for the aid of hospitals and the other, recently introduced, would authorize them for educational and charitable purposes generally. Both contemplate the approval and regulation of the lotteries by Provincial governments.

HEATED DEBATE OVER 'HOPPERS ENLIVENS HOUSE

Motherwell Charges Gov't Done Nothing in Face of West's Worst Plague.

BENNETT DIFFERS.

Claims Prairies Show Little Gratitude for Efforts of East to Aid.

OTTAWA, May 19 (C.P.).—Not content with harassing the Western farmer, the humble grasshopper has come eastward to cause a dispute in Parliament and all but precipitate a bitter East against West wrangle.

The hopper's leaps across the prairies on his mission of destruction are no more lively than the witty sallies which passed across the floor of the House of Commons last night between Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, and the poisoned bait used to combat the pest carried no more venom than some of the words exchanged.

Mr. Motherwell started off by condemning the Government for cutting down agriculture estimates when a vote for the administration of the destructive insect pests act was before the House. He accused the Governmetn of doing nothing in the face of the worst grasshopper plague the country has ever had.

When the Prime Minister said the statements were "wholly incorrect," Mr. Motherwell told him to "get up and say something about them."

Every Request Met.

"This vote has to do with the investigation of pests, but it has nothing to do with the honorable gentleman," said Mr. Bennett. He explained the Dominion Government had met every request made by the provinces for assistance in fighting the grasshoppers. Action was taken last fall, poison was provided, and the farmers were exhorted by an intensive propaganda campaign to join in the fight.

"Propaganda won't kill grasshoppers," said Mr. Motherwell. "You have to give them the dope."

The Prime Minister recalled all the assistance which had been given the Western provinces and said the speeches of Mr. Motherwell and other Western members showed little gratitude for what Eastern Canada had done.

Nova Scotia had grasshoppers 40 years ago, and they did not come to the Federal Government for help to kill them, put in Col. Thomas Bailey (Cons., Pictou).

Mounties Lead 100 Searchers Through Sloughs, Thickets in Vain.

KIDNAPPING FEARED.

MOOSEHORN, Man., May 19. — (CP). One hunded searchers plodded through sloughs and fought their way through thickets to-day but still could find no trace of four-year-old Betty Wolfrum, believed to have been kidnapped Tuesday as she lay asleep within sight of her father.

The searchers under Constable R. C. Smith of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, found no trace of the child whatever. Every possibility has been probed, including the suspicion the child may have been carried- away by a bear wounded by Roy Rosin, hunting in the district.

Sergeant George Clifford of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrived late to take charge of investigation into the kidnapping suspicion. Statements by Mrs. Carl Wolfrum that her daughter might have been kidnapped for spite are being closely checked.

SHERIFFS FOIL RAID ON PRISON

Remove Negro, Held for Assaulting Girl, Before Mob Arrives.

LYNCHING PLANNED.

GREENVILLE, S.C., April 19.—(CP). The timely removal of a young negro accused of attacking a 13-year-old white girl to an unnamed prison to-day was credited with having prevented a charge upon the county jail here by a mob which at one time numbered around 1,000 persons.

Apparently convinced of officers' statements the prisoner had been whisked away some 12 hours before, the remnants of a mob which clamored for the negro's life during the night, finally dispersed shortly after 3 a.m. to-day, and Sheriff's deputies said they thought the "trouble is over."

The milling and armed crowd, however, gave up its long vigil only after a group had dashed in automobiles to Gaffney, a town 50 miles away, to find that the negro had not been taken there. When they returned to Greenville, a smaller crowd gathered around the jail, but apparently not knowing where to turn next, finally broke into groups an left.

Location Kept Secret

There whereabouts of the negro prisoner was a secret.

While the mob milled around the jail during the earlier part of the night, another crowd built a huge bonfire on the edge of town, near where the young girl was assaulted Wednesday as she was returning from school, and prepared to lynch the negro in event the mob should find him.

On the afternoon of the attack, a posse formed quickly and scoured the countryside for the unidentified negro. Twenty negroes were jailed the next day, all except one, whose name officers have refused to divulge, were released.

The victim of the attack was taken to the jail to-day, but was unable to identify the prisoner although officers said she remarked that "He looks a little like the man."

DISPUTE HALTS OVER LETICIA

Peru and Colombia Agree to Accept Formula by Brazil.

STICK TO TREATIES.

BY PAUL SANDERS

Associated Press Foreign Staff

RIO DE JANEIRON, May 19.—(AP)— The Peru-Colombian contest for the jungle border village of Leticia—a contest which threatened at times to break into open war—ended today with acceptance of a Brisilian formula.

The formula which ends a bitter, 20-month-old dispute between the two nations was drafted by Afranio de Mello Franco, Foreign Minister of Brazil.

Three major headings are embraced in the agreement.

1. A pledge by both nations to observe all existing treaties relating to the Leticia area;

2. Creation of arbitration and appeal tribunals; and

3. Adjustment of old disputes concerning sanitation river navigation, customs and duties, and the education of the Indians in separate accords.

In announcing officially that the formula had been accepted, Luis Cano, Colombian representative in negotiations here, said that ratification is assured.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND SOCIAL EVILS TO-DAY.

(Rev. G. K. Tyler, B.Th., Pastor Park St. Baptist Church.)

THE British coat of arms represents the Lion and the Unicorn as contending for the crown. Similarly to-day many forces threaten to seize the very crown of young manhood and womanhood and to dethrone the finest and noblest qualities that life possesses.

Among these forces, and possibly one of the most dangerous, is intemperance. Life is our country at present is subjected to an influx of the liquor traffic, the presence and extent of which constitutes a most vital peril—a peril which, if not resisted, will produce a condition of affairs here similar to that which King Arthur found long ago:

"So there grew great tracts of wilderness,
Wherein the beast was more and more,
But man was less and less."

A second force youth faces is a world which thinks war, talks war,

REV. G. K. TYLER, B.Th.

pictures war, prepares for war, and dreams of battlefields; surely a force which may seize and destroy the very crown of modern civilization.

Degrading pleasures must be reckoned with, too; those pleasures which destroy the desire for the spiritual and finer things of life and lead into a life which may be coarse and godless.

And materialism, the giving of undue importance to material things, until the spiritual is quite buried beneath those things which are seen, and touched, and handled. This is a force which bids to absorb thought and interest to-day until "worldly cares and deceitfulness of wealth and the excessive pursuit of other objects come in and stifle the message of the spiritual and it comes unfruitful."

These are a few of the social evils which threaten life to-day and which challenge our most serious thought and concern.

What form should our revolt against these forces take?

Surely we cannot manfully or successfully retreat into some hermitage far away from the evils and temptations which assault. "I pray not that Thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that Thou shouldest keep them from the evil," said Jesus in His prayer for the disciples.

Probably the most successful way of avoiding disease is not to isolate one's self for the life one follows, but to build up such a fine bodily resistance that one no longer need greatly fear the invasion of germs. So our revolt against evils will be successful when the inner, moral and spiritual life is built up and reinforced.

The Catalonians of Spain used to have a proverb to the effect that, "Every Catalonian has a king within him." Surely this can be true when one has received Christ into his life as the Captain of his salvation, and is willing to sing or say:

"Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown Him Lord of all!"

It is for young people, rejoicing in the saviorhood and kingship of Christ to declare, "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me."

Young people! As with a silver trumpet God calls you to a crusading revolt against the evil forces of to-day wherever they are found. So let victory be claimed through Him, who said, "I give you power over all the power of the enemy."

"Stand straight!
Step firmly, throw your weight!
The heaven is high above your head,
The good gray road is faithful to your tread.

Be strong!
Sing to your heart a battle song!
Though hidden foemen lie in wait,
Something is in you that can smile at Fate.

Press through!
Nothing can harm if you are true.
And when the night comes, rest;
The earth is friendly as a mother's breast." —Edwin Markham.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Religious and Social Questions Answered By DR. WYLIE CLARK

In prayer can we force our own selfish wills on God? — F.G.

Most of us have selfish streaks in our make up. These are continually making themselves felt in our desires and judgments. They force themselves to the front and demand attention and it is to be expected that they should thrust themselves into our prayers. It is almost impossible to be always unselfish when we pray. We need to pray daily, that in all approaches to God and our fellowmen we should be entirely beyond any selfish request.

Dr. Wylie Clark

If we selfishly pray God may let us have our request in order to show us that we are wrong, but He generally in His mercy deals with us by withholding the things we seek and leads us by experience to see where we are wrong.

What is meant by saying life is a road upon which there are always open doors?—F.H.D.

Life does not begin and end by going straight through. There are many incidents, many tenting places all along the way. There are wide open doors of opportunity, of service, of usefulness and of duty. There are also wide open doors of temptation, of idleness, of waste and of lost hopes.

We have to decide which doors we will enter and which we will pass. Upon our choice will depend the worth and happiness of our own lives and our helpfulness to the community.

At certain times in life many of the good doors seem to close and the number of the bad ones to increase.

When this happens we require to exercise great diligence lest we make a wrong entranle and lose our souls.

Are we on a short or long road to the final social condition of the world?—S.L.

One can scarcely think of there being a final condition in this world. That would mean that man would reach a state where he would stand still and could develop no more. One sees ahead ever increasing knowledge, widening experience and changing methods. The road so far has been long—running through all the centuries—and at the present there is much evidence that there is still a very long way to go before the improvement will be so great that those who pass over it will find the journey easy.

Our great hope is, that just as we have learned how to make good roads upon the surface of the earth over which we can travel swiftly and smoothly, so we will make roads of friendship, goodwill and peace over which we will go together to win our inheritance of the promised kingdom.

What would you say is the greatest truth in the Bible?—W.B.

The Bible is a book dealing with the relationships between God and men. It is a history of what has been and it is a promise of what may be.

The great truth then is: God is concerned about men and has devised means whereby they may know Him as their Heavenly Father, and enjoy His blessings and service.

Cathedral Musings

THE comparatively modern rejection of the doctrine of reincarnation is inexplicable in the light of reason. That the soul is immortal, that it always has been and always will be, is one of the fundamental truths of all religions down to comparatively modern times. In our own Bible there are many instances in which it is implied and, as it were, taken for granted, and in the early Christian church it was explicitly taught in what were known as the "Lesser Mysteries." Not until the Second Council of Constantinople, A.D. 553, was it definitely rejected, and that in spite of both the Scriptures and the teachings of the early fathers, such as Origen, who said:

"The present inequalities of circumstances and character are thus not wholly explicable within the sphere of the present life. But this world is not the only world. Every soul has existed from the beginning; it has therefore passed through some worlds (lives) already, and will pass through others before it reaches the final consummation. It comes into this world strengthened by the victories or weakened by the defeats of its previous life. Its place in this world as a vessel appointed to honor or dishonor is determined by its previous merits or demerits. Its work in this world (or life) determines its place in the world which is to follow this."

Reincarnation shows that God gives to each one of us opportunity to build our fate and create our destiny. For to-morrow is of to-day's making and our future lives are what we make them now.

"Build the more stately mansions,
O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length are free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell on life's unresting sea."

BIBLE CONFIRMED BY RECENT FINDS

Authority Says "Higher Critics" and Their Conclusions Being Discredited.

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, England. — Sir Chas. Marston, authority on Biblical archaeology, speaking to the Victoria Institute at Westminster, declared the whole trend of Biblical archaeology tended to confirm the Old Testament narrative.

During the past eight years the study and classification of life potsherds or broken pieces of earthenware with which the ancient sites of cities in Bible lands are littered and impregnated, has enabled excavators to assign dates to the sites and to the various strata of occupation lying beneath them.

"The knowledge thus acquired was used by Professor Garstang in his excavations of Jericho," Sir Charles said. He assigned a date of about 1400 B.C. for the ruins of the city destroyed by Joshua. The walls fallen flat outwards because of an earthquake and the burnt but untouched food stuffs inside the houses and store rooms, testified to the substantial correctness of the Bible narrative.

"It had been very generally assumed that the exodus from Egypt took place during the reign of the Pharaoh Merneptbah, about 1220 B.C. In that case Jericho should have fallen about 1180 B.C. Between that date and Garstang's date of 1400 B.C. there was a discrepancy of more than 200 years. So serious doubts began to be cast on the pottery dating."

But the cemetery or necropolis, in which the inhabitants of Jericho buried their dead, was discovered, and in the tombs Professor Garstang found quantities of unbroken pottery. There were Egyptian Pharaohs whose dates were known. This dated pottery verified the dates of the broken pottery in the burnt city.

Sir Charles said the so-called higher criticism and its conclusions were becoming discredited. "How desperate the position has become," he added, "may be judged from the attempt of some authorities who still cling to its conclusions to place Moses after Joshua."

Mental Attitude

WHEN I go to see a client and my head is hanging low, and my walk is just a shuffle, and my mental process slow, I'm just an advertisement for depression in the land and just about as potent as a snowflake hitting sand.

I don't even try to sell him, I listen to his woe; I know he needs insurance, but I take my hat and go.

And so I shuffle, shuffle, shuffle, along the busy street, lamenting this depression and hurting my feet.

Until I meet a rival with head up, going strong, and I think that if he can do it—I surely must be wrong. I watch him as he passes, a smile upon his face, and I feel the itch in two flat feet to get back in the race.

And so I give the old spine an upward jerk or two, and think of one hot prospect and set out on the clue. And heavens! what a difference just twenty minutes after, my heart is filled with sunshine and my mug just crammed with laughter.

For I've got the man's John Henry on a paper new and white, and I know that I'm not beaten for I'm right back in the fight.—Life Underwriters' Association of Vancouver.

GOLD

'Tis the topic of most conversation,
For love of it some become bold;
There's no deed too low or too cruel,
There's nothing they won't do for gold.
The rich, with their greed for more riches,
Say: "Keep what you have and get more";
While the poor man is well nigh distracted—
He can't keep the wolf from the door.
They say there is lots—but where is it?
It must be well hidden away;
No matter how badly it's needed
It seems to be put there to stay.
But there's plenty of gold where I'm going
To spend my eternity;
For the streets and the highways in Glory
Are paved with pure gold, just for me.
For there is no depression in Heaven,
The banks in that city don't fail;
The book-keeping's done by an expert,
And order is sure to prevail.
So while they are striving and fighting;
For my Heavenly Home I'll prepare,
Of gold here, I may have but little,
I'll have all I need over there.

Scripture—Matthew 24:1-25:30

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Seated on the Mount of Olives overlooking the city of Jerusalem and the temple, Jesus addressed his disciples foretelling many things about the destruction of the city and temple and about his coming again at the end of the ages.

Jesus predicted that "all the tribes of the earth shall see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory". It is not a thing to be feared but rather to be anticipated with eager joy.

Jesus taught that we should be watchful and ready for his coming like the five wise bridesmaids who waited for the bridegroom ready with plenty of oil for their lamps and not like the five foolish bridesmaids who failed to take oil for their lamps.

He also taught us to await his coming with faithful use of the talents he has entrusted to us, not like the servant who hid his one talent in the earth but like the two other servants who traded with their talents and multiplied them. (GOLDEN TEXT—Rev. 11:15.)

SATURDAY, MAY 20, 1934

THIS IS A GOOD BARGAIN FOR BOTH.

The Federal and Ontario Governments have been engaging in a little bartering in real estate, and the arrangement that has been arrived at between the two bodies seems to be a sensible bit of business.

Ever since the war when the federal authorities acquired a large tract of land near Barrie for the purpose of training aviators, a training camp for the Royal Canadian Air Force has been carried on there.

Now, however, new training quarters have been established near Trenton, and the tract of land at Camp Borden is no longer required for military purposes.

An arrangement has therefore been entered into with the Ontario Government by which Camp Borden is to be turned over to the province in exchange for the military reserve at Petawa, which is the property of Ontario, although the land has been occupied by the Dominion forces for many years, without the payment of rental.

This seems to be a good bargain all 'round, for the Dominion gains permanent title to a tract of land that is admirably suited for the purpose of artillery training, while the province comes into possession of a property that is well adapted for use as a reforestation area.

Already three million miniature trees have been planted there, and Camp Borden promises to be a splendid provincial asset in the years to come.

A LITTLE ABOUT GARDENS.

With the attention of most Canadians turned at the present time to gardens, it is interesting to learn from the Department of National Revenue that exported stock plays a big part in the beautifying of Canadian gardens.

Nearly half a million dollars was spent by Canadians in 1933 in bringing in garden stock, with the Netherlands, the United States, Belgium and the United Kingdom getting the bulk of the business.

Florist stock imports last year, including tulip and gladioli bulbs, ferns, dahlias, peonies, azaleas and rhododendrons, etc., were valued at nearly $455,000.

The tulip bulb imports alone totalled $136,674, of which amount $133,623 worth of bulbs came from the Netherlands.

France, Germany and Japan were responsible for small shipments of florist stock, while the trees, shrubs and plants imported by the Dominion last year.

Incidentally the editor of the National Revenue Review has found time to delve into the history of gardens, and he tells us that the very name "garden" meant originally a yard or enclosure conveying the idea of privacy.

The medieval monks of Europe cultivated their small walled-in plots, luxuriant with flowers, herbs and vegetables. These gardeners were in touch with many countries and so were able to introduce "outlandish plants and trees of curiosity," as foreign trees were variously called; fruit trees and ornamental ones, too, for the monastry gardens were good places to rest in as well as to work.

Many flowers, such as tulips, hyacinths and lilacs, that to-day are familiar sights in all gardens were at one time rare novelties brought back from the ast by crusaders and scholars.

THE EXAMINER AND THE UNEMPLOYED.

Attempts to show that The Examiner is attacking the unemployed are not likely to make much headway with the vast majority of the people who are on relief or with the public generally.

This paper since the depression began has been a friend of the victims of the unusual economic conditions.

We were the first to point out the need of adequate provision for taking care of the city's unemployed, and the first to stress the necessity of raising a proper relief fund, and on our own account we established a relief agency supplementary to the general body and offering assistance in cases not provided for under the regulations.

We have, in short, every sympathy for those who have been without regular employment, and consequently without regular income during the trying years through which the world has been passing.

It is because of that sympathy that we cannot stand idly by now and watch a section of the unemployed being led astray by outside leadership, by travelling organizers who seek to use the misery of the workless to further doubtful movements, and who are duping some of the unemployed into an alliance with Communism.

No one—least of all The Examiner—has ever been foolish enough to dub the city's jobless as Reds; we sincerely believe that all but a mere handful have no desire to throw in their lot with the Communists; but we just as sincerely believe that if some of our citizens shut their eyes to the facts and place their trust in these outside organizers they will soon have no cause to complain of being called Reds, because they will have been plunged over their heads into the thick of Red activities in this country.

When a man comes into town and shouts the merits of the Canadian Labor Defense League and of the United Front movement and exhort workless and workers to "fight" and "demand" and "strike," when he prepares the way for and arranges for a visit from such an outstanding Communist as A. E. Smith, it is up to sensible citizens to look behind the glib utterances of this imported spell-binder and see what he is really aiming at.

Is he here as a sincere humanitarian whose heart is bleeding because of the distress of the unemployed, or is he here as an agent of those forces whose chief mission is to sow the seeds of disorder and trouble everywhere?

Is Mr. Smith coming here to help solve the problem of unemployment and the care of the workless, or is he coming here as an advocate of a Soviet Canada, to preach the doctrine of class warfare?

Make no mistake about Mr. Smith; he'll not fly any false colors, even though his advance agent is careful to claim that the organization of which Mr. Smith is national secretary is not a Communistic organization.

Mr. Smith will surely not deny that he is a Communist as a matter of fact, he is to be the candidate of the Communist party in East York in the approaching election, and his mission here is unquestionably to serve the purposes of Communism by attempting to involve as many of the local unemployed as possible in the Red movement.

It is the duty of The Examiner as a daily newspaper, endeavoring to serve the interests of this community, to point out these facts; if any section of the city's population is led astray by outside leadership we at least will have the satisfaction of knowing that we sounded a rlear note of warning.

ROUNDING UP THE OLD GANG.

The Alberni Pacific Lumber Company publishes a large advertisement in the Vancouver papers: "Notice to Loggers—We are opening our camps . . the company needs to know what men in Vancouver are coming back to their former jobs. . . . We'd like all the old crowd back."

Loyalty works two ways. An employee's devotion to his job—or her job—is taken for granted. An adequate return in labor, to the best of the employee's ability, is the service for which wage or salary is paid. The other side of the story is the loyalty of the employer to his staff. Not so much is heard of this angle, but innumerable cases in recent difficult years have proved that the sense of responsibility, of obligation, is mutual in the relationship of employer and employed.

Everyone knows of employers, both on a large scale and a small, who have worried as much about those dependent upon them for the weekly pay envelope as over their own losses and difficulties. Many of them maintained full staffs throughout the depression, when there was no justification in strict business for such a course; many of them paid wages out of diminishing capital when there were no profits; they cut wages when no alternative remained, laid off men as a deplorable necessity.

To employers of this type, and their number is legion, nothing gives more satisfaction than the ability to send out a call for the crew to come back. They like "the old crowd," the men they know, whether in bush or shop or office, and joy over the revival of activity is as great on one side as on the other. The old theory that employees and employers were in different camps, their interests in sharp conflict everywhere, largely has been broken down by the new sympathy and understanding which have come out of our economic troubles.—Ottawa Journal.

NEARER TO THE HEART'S DESIRE.

The succession of shameful spectacles that have been dragged through American courts recently wherein parents, notably the parents of certain movie stars, have sued their children for support, does not shape the mouth well for enjoying the full flavor of Mother's Day.

Indeed, if we examine the relationship between parents and children in the harsh light of reality there are a multitude of circumstances that we must deplore.

There are mothers who fairly smother their children in their selfish show of devotion.

There are households where the rivalry between children and parents amounts to open warfare.

But the existence of these conflicts only emphasize the necessity for such an institution as Mother's Day.

So we invent and celebrate Mother's Day not out of the overwhelming sentiment we have for mothers but out of the shadowy sentiment that we feel we SHOULD have for mothers.

The day is a confession of our emotional shortcomings.

Like most of our celebrations, it is an attempt to substitute, for a fleeting hour, the world as it should be for the world as it is.

These sentimental adventures in which we so frequently indulge ourselves are sometimes garish, sometimes very lovely.

But we venture to think they are always wholesome.

For the stuff that dreams are made of is the stuff of which we will some day build a new heaven and a new earth.

The ideals of to-day are the realities of tomorrow.

We must accustom our feet to walk in the paths of sublimity.

For the beauties of the world, the loveliness of life and the magnitude of the human soul are only limited by our ability to receive them.

Our faith in motherhood is a greater thing than motherhood itself.

It is one of those rare things that enable us to look upon life as the years and generations go on and remold it, with Omar, a little "nearer to the heart's desire."—Vancouver Sun.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Advices from Ottawa indicate that the boys may yet be out of the parliamentary trenches before Dominion Day.

Evidence of Ontario growers before the Stevens probe indicates there is not much jam in the jam business for the original producers.

Mr. Bennett complains of newspaper rumors concerning Government policy. Of course, one way of avoiding such a condition is to be more frank with the press.

With five and six candidates in the field in a number of constituencies, Ontario's general election is already developing into a political free-for-all.

Another serious defect in the Canadian broadcasting system so far as Ontario is concerned will be the number of political speeches we will be deluged with during the next four weeks.

The Bennett Government has a good sense of timing. It brings in the reduced sugar tax right in the rhubarb season.

Roosevelt combines the worst features of Hitlerism, Communism, Fascism, Ham Fish says. In other words, this is campaign year.—The New Yorker.

Perhaps some of the acrimony in Washington toward Dr. Wirt grow out of a disinclination to divide the limelight with a rank outsider.—Detroit Free Press.

As a tired reader we make the respectful suggestion that the Government compel these authors of gargantuan novels to plough under every third chapter.—Toronto Saturday Night.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

READ THIS FIRST

Talking to her sister Etta, Alysia Naylor is resentful over the approaching marriage of their cousin John Tait and Lucy Burnham, a widow, because the sisters will have to leave Tait's home where they have been living. They relate the news to Reggie Claridge, Alysia's fiance.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

After Alysia's bitter reply a silence fell, broken only by the steady crunch of fresh toast. Suddenly Etta said gently:

"But perhaps his marriage won't take place after all. You never know."

"Only death ever stops what Aunt Norah approves of," retorted Alysia.

"Death does stop many things," murmured Etta in her tone of having just discovered a new planet and being anxious to impart the news to a listening universe.

"Will you murder John for us, Reggie darling, since after all he is a cousin, while I cross over to Vichy and attend to the widow? Let me see, what did I say her name was?" Alysia made a pretense of scanning the letter again. "Lucy Burnham."

"A pretty name," Etta murmured.

"And a very pretty woman, your aunt says." Without troubling to ask permission, Reginald had taken the letter from his fiancee's hand and was reading it very carefully indeed.

"Trust John!" Alysia said with a short laugh.

"In one way I'm glad," Etta now announced. "I've always felt that the attraction to Lady Ida was only a passing one, and John needs some anchor ——"

"You think marriage will act as one?" Reggie spoke with a careless laugh. His teeth were too white and too even. Just as his hair was a shade too wavy, and too thick, and grew in too much of a peak on his low forehead. "But I don't feel like murdering your cousin to stop it. Murders need such a lot of preparation nowadays, or they turn out wrong. Like that Welsh rabbit you made for us last night, Etta."

He was very polite to Etta as a rule. She had some really influential friends. More than Alysia had. He admired her more, too, but Etta had turned down Reggie Claridge with a firm hand in the beginning of their acquaintanceship. She now said reprovingly:

"You're like Claud. You read too many detective stories."

"Granted. Still, if you're thinking of bumping off any one, Etta, either your cousin, or this interloping widow, I should advise a course of them just the same."

"Certainly Claud could lend a hundred volumes with ease," Alysia said. "His shelves are littered with corpses. The Corpse in the Attic, The Corpse in the Cellar, The Corpse in the Armchair, The Corpse in the Bed, The Corpse ——"

"I'm hardly likely to kill any one," Etta interrupted her sister's list of dead bodies, "but if I did, I shouldn't need to read up silly ways of doing it. I should think out something fresh for myself." And picking up the cat, Etta left the two together. She was a remarkably handsome woman, Reggie thought; he had rather expected that she and this same John Tait would make a match of it, once the affair with Lady Ida seemed to hang fire and then slowly die out, but apparently the two cousins had only rather a tepid feeling of family affection to share between them.

"By jove, Etta could!" he now said, rising, and going towards the silent Alysia. "She preaches like a parson, but I always feel that she's pulling my leg really."

"It's some ridiculous affectation of hers, talking like that," Alysia said shortly; "she never used to do it. I can't think why she's taken to it lately. But about this coming marriage, Reggie, I wish you'd go to Vichy and save the situation—for us all." She hesitated for a second, her burning eyes on his, "Aunt Norah writes that this widow woman has lived an entirely secluded life, and is frightfully impressed by the certainty of John's getting a really big diplomatic post some day. You're ridiculously good-looking," she went on. "Oh, don't pretend you don't know it . . ." She stopped, then she went on again. "It's just a possibility, you're going for a holiday anyway tomorrow, why not try Vichy? Go to the Imperial hotel and see what you can do. It sounds horrid, but, as Etta would say nowadays, if dear Mrs. Burnham really loves dear John, why you won't be able to do anything, but if she doesn't, you might—might flirt with her sufficiently to come between them. . . . No one knows we're engaged. I'll wager Aunt Norah has never heard of you. And to John and Claud you're only one of a crowd."

He stood thinking.

"Let me read your aunt's letter again," he said finally, and read it over with great care a second time.

It began with an account of the motor smash about a month ago which had left Lady Tait and the hotel chauffeur senseless on the road. Fortunately a visitor to the hotel, a Mrs. Burnham, had seen the accident and taken them both back in her own car. Lady Tait knew that Alysia had heard all about the smash. Claud Naylor and John Tait had been wired for at her wish, and had stayed on with their aunt until her complete recovery. But Norah Tait did things thoroughly, and she wanted "the girls," as she still called her nieces, to have a clear idea of how Mrs. Burnham came into John's life. There was a great deal about the little lady in the letter, how pretty she was, how delighted the writer felt that John had fallen in love with her. Mrs. Burnham was further mentioned as wealthy, the widow of a well-known solicitor.

Reading it all through once more, Reginald stroked his neat little mustache, then his neat little head, handed it back, and smiled.

"Your idea is that I come between these lovers? Just long enough to separate them? Not a bad notion. I see they're all staying on for another week . . ." Before his mind ran the phrases about the widow being very pretty and wealthy. That latter word used by Lady Tait should mean at least some thousands a year, one would think.

"But there's one drawback," he went on, as though it was one that would prevent his pursuing the matter further.

Alysia turned swiftly, a glow in her cheeks. He was going to say that the drawback was that he loved her, and could not even pretend successfully to love another, but Reggie went on.

"Funds, beloved, or the lack of them. The Imperial sounds a trifle dearish. And I'm absolutely cleaned out. Last night's poker! Evidently unlucky at cards for the good old reason," he finished with a pat of her cheek.

"I thought of that. I can manage to let you have £15, Reggie. It ought to see you through the journey and let you stay a week at the hotel. It's the best I can do."

He studied her averted head stealthily and shrewdly, then he said with an air of casual good-nature:

"Well, it's only a try-on, isn't it? And as I'm going purely on your account, darling, so as not to let anything prevent our getting married, I'll take the £15, and try to use it to the best advantage. After all, a wealthy widow can always find consolation, and one must do the best for oneself—and one's friends—one can."

"Spoken like Etta!" Alysia said contemptuously, with a travesty of a smile, as she went to her bureau and drew out her check book.

OWN VILLAGE NEWS OF OUR

Geo. Gimblett, our energetic putter-outer of fires, celebrated his 12th anniversary as head of the village fire brigade this week. George will likely find that the 1st dozen years is the worst.

Election excitement in these parts aint got nowhere near the red hot stage as yet but most of the folks is expected to learn who is in the field soon and then mebbe the interest will perk up a bit as it were.

The Summer Gardens, just off Main St., opened with a bang Wed. nite and all and sundry opined that the decorations and such was real chick. A classy spot say we approvingly, in passing.

Clean up and paint up week in the village recently was a great success. Your scribe notes that some of the girls is still carrying on with the paint job, thus adding a bit of color to the landscape, as it were.

The pickerel season opened this week, officially, right after midnite Tues. and unofficially a day or 2 before that, with some lads catching a ticket for a visit to the magistrate. Life's like that, say we, consolingly.

We expect to see Perce Lancaster of Havelock, Jim Hawthorne of Dummer and John Sutherland of Toronto in our midst frequently from now on. Geo. Henry having named June 19 as election date. Come in any time, lads, say we, hospitably.

The s...berries in this district has been hit hard by the cold winter, your scribe learns. It looks like Geo. Gillespie, champion strawberry festival attender of these parts is going to have a tough season.

Keene

Mrs. Robt. Nelson entertained the Swastika Club of Keene at its final meeting for the year on Wednesday evening, May 16.

The Language of Flowers was the seasonable subject of the program, and Mrs. James McFarlane, who had charge of it, drew the hearty appreciation of all the members for the interesting legends, meanings and poems about flowers, for vivid sketches of gardens, and for striking characterizations of many flowers. Several members assisted with readings relating to the subject.

Mrs. W. Wood of Toronto sang a solo of Violets, also Miss M. Bryce of the Scotch Blue Bell, much in keeping with the program, and were much enjoyed. Miss Lenore Broatch gave several very clever impersonations from Dickens. A contest followed by dainty refreshments brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

Miss Minnie Brown of Peterborough is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown.

Mr. Gus Bolin was the lucky winner on Saturday evening of the Gold Seal Congoleum rug at G. S. Taylor's store. Mr. Bolin's guess was the closest to the hidden number.

Mr. A. E. Chalmers, county road overseer, was in the village Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Gall attended the double wedding of Betsy and Annie, daughters of the late Wm. and Mrs. Thompson, of Mount Julian, on Sunday at 8.30 a.m. at Haultain.

Miss Emma Allen, of Belleville, was visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elmhirst for a few days this week.

Foreign Affairs

RUSSIA AND SWEDEN.

Is an Investment in Russian Bonds the Safest Risk in the World?

(By H. W. L. MAHOOD)

Unexpectedly and with rapidity the sentiment of the world towards Russia is changing. Certain statements given to the public recently are foundationless. Reference is here made to business relations between Russia and the United States. The inside facts are radically at variance with the published. The United States has a Central Bank that takes care of foreign loans and foreign debts. Business matters between the two nations mentioned are amicable and are proceeding satisfactorily to both.

It does take a long time for the world to overcome prejudice. Russia's relationship to Europe and America is an instance. The overcoming has the upper hand just now. That it should be so is to the great advantage of the whole world. It will be an example and will lead to other approachments.

A growing number of people have discovered that bonds of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics of Russia can be purchased in the United States or the British Empire to yield seven per cent interest. The purchaser is protected against further depreciation of the dollar because the bonds are payable in gold.

Payment is not made by actual delivery of gold metal but is made in dollars based on the daily quotation of the dollar in terms of gold. This is true in regard to both interest and principal. In the United States interest is payable quarterly at the Chase National Bank of New York.

Often the most important news fails to reach the public. Attitudes of news purveyors deliberately suppress news they do not like. Much valuable news has been suppressed about the new Russia. Old Russia is still in the eyes of some of the nations. There is a new Russia. And the new Russia is on the way. Other changes will take place. Britain of to-day is not the Britain of the seventeenth century. A nation to survive must change. The nation that can change most and retain the essentials is the nation that will most efficiently serve the people.

Listen to this. The place is the Soviet-American Securities Corporation office in New York. Letters had been sent out to clients who had invested in Russian bonds several months before. We give you a copy of one of the letters. Here it is:

"This is to advise you that the Soviet Government Bonds which you purchased a year ago may now be re-sold at any time at their full gold value. At to-day's rate of exchange of $86.26 per 100 gold rubles the 103 bonds for which you paid $5,299.35 are now worth $8,886.84, plus accrued interest from December 1, 1933. This appreciation in the value of your bonds is due to the fact that they are payable on a gold basis and as a result of the fall in the value of the dollar, they have correspondingly risen in value.

Should you desire or find it necessary to sell your Soviet Government bonds at any time ,we shall be glad to be of service to you."

The following information has been received indirectly from the Soviet Government by this writer. In order to insure long term marketability, the State Bank of the U.S.S.R. has agreed to repurchase all bonds on demand of the holder at par and accrued interest at any time after one year from date of purchase. But nobody wants to sell. The Chase National Bank announces that several people have called to find out, if they could get the full price for their bonds, and on being answered in the affirmative, decided that they would rather keep the bonds. According to the bank authorities not a single bond has been offered to them for repurchase.

But the story grows more interesting. The most significant financial news item for several weeks has not been put on the front page of any American or Canadian newspapers.

Reference is here made to the decision of the Swedish Government to grant an eight year loan to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics—with an interest rate of 5½ per cent. Contrast this with discount rates of 25 to 35 per cent which the Soviet Government had to bear two or three years ago, even on short-term loans. And put it in contrast with the fact that Japanese 5½ per cent bonds are quoted currently at 78¾, and Argentine 5½s at 65, and German 5½s at 44¼.

Obligations of most of the outstanding governments of the capitalist world are obtainable to-day on a higher yield basis than 5½ per cent. This is true as regards such a traditionally sound credit risk as the Belgian Government. It is true in the case of Italy. It is true in the case of Norway and Denmark.

International capitalists no longer trust one another any further than you could kick an anvil. They no longer have confidence in the vitality of their economic structures. Nor have they faith in the stability of their regimes. Russia is one of the safest bond risks in the world.

A Thought

COURAGE

Courage is a fundamental quality of the spirit. Whether it should be classed with the virtues is open to question. Certainly bad men may be brave, and prostitute their bravery to base ends. But courage is the rock-quality on which alone strong character and moral achievement can be reared. Life is a great adventure, and only the man who looks out with fearless eye, faces its experiences with undaunted, even if quaking, heart, can be a hero. And however wicked a man may be, if he be brave the highest reaches of sainthood are open to him.

Courage is generally pictured as a dramatic quality that needs a big stage for its adequate display. Our heroic types—the soldier, the explorer, the pioneer missionary—are men who face life in dangerous forms. Such circumstances do indeed afford frequent opportunities for the exhibition of courage. But it is a great mutilation of the idea of courage to confine it to these cases of dramatic expression. Courage is an essential quality of the soul. It is an attitude to the world. In the tamest and most humdrum life a lofty courage is needed to live it nobly.—Ernest B. Storr.

NEW SAFEGUARD IN POULTRY ACT

Commercial Hatcheries Will Set Eggs Only From Approved Flocks.

GOV'T SUPERVISION.

OTTAWA, May 19.—(CP)—As a result of cooperation between the province and the Dominion Department of Agriculture new rules and regulations to govern commercial poultry hatcheries throughout Canada have been made possible with the passing by parliament of an amendment to the livestock and live stock products act. This means an important safeguard to an industry that in egg production alone represents an annual turnover of about $30,000,000. Already five of the provinces have agreed to adopt the new hatchery policy.

The regulations proposed embody the present hatchery approval rules which have been in operation for the past six years on a voluntary basis. Under the new policy, which will be proclaimed with respect to any of the provinces which desire to adopt it, all commercial hatcheries will operate under the new regulations which provide that such hatcheries shall set only eggs from flocks approved.

By the provincial authorities; that the hatcheries and their advertising shall be under the supervision of the live stock branch of the Dominion Department of Africulture.

According to this plan the quality of chicks produced in commercial hatcheries will be substantially improved since they will be hatched from eggs produced by pure bred flocks inspected by the provincial authorities. The chicks will also be produced in hatcheries in which strict attention is paid to sanitation and up-to-date methods of incubation.

Broker's Opinions.

19 reviewed. Bullish 6. Bearish 1. Non-commital 12.

Stein Bros. & Boyce.—We would accept porfits on stock bought earlier this week and await a more attractive price level. Still consider, however, that the lows of last Monday are a bottom.

Cassel & Co.— From a trading viewpoint it is our opinion that a paring down of speculative commitments on further strength is advisable.

Jackson Bros. & Co.—We look for higher prices over the near term in the equity market and would not be surprised to see a virtual vacuum for many issues which were under depressed recently.

Paine Webber & Co.—For quick traders, it would probably be good policy to lighten accounts on any further strength, with the idea of repurchasing on a minor set-back later. Investment accounts should be retained intact.

Standard Facts and Forecasts.

The theory that the stock market is celebrating the oncoming of silver legislation is not wholly convincing to facts and forecasts. On May 9th it was announced that the President had agreed with the silver bloc on a program but the news fell flat and stock continued weak. This time, the silver news happened to co-incide with a thoroughly sold out condition and the market was about ready to snap back on any kind of pretext. For the time being then it seems best to regard the rally as primarily a technical affair which may result in the recovery of approximately half of the ground lost between April 20th and May 14th. If this proves to be the case the upswing should be good for 2 or 3 more points, to about 92 in the Standard Industrial Index.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Drought reports, excessive heat and dust storms in the crop belt fell flat as market influence in wheat yesterday. An over-bought condition was disclosed when local longs started to sell. While the professional trade continues to take bullishly on the wheat situation, the public continues to hold aloof from the market and the erratic fluctuations in prices are regarded as due more to a lack of balance in the way of a broader speculative trade rather than to aggressive buying or selling.

LONDON, May 19.— Gold 34.80 unchanged.

Two Toronto Men Escape Crash Lightly

WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 19. — (CP).—Two Toronto men escaped fortunately in a highway accident on No. 2 highway, three miles west of the city, at an early hour this morning. Gerald Roberts and Cyril Morris were travelling east in a large roadster, and on attempting to turn out to pass a transport truck their machine left the road, ploughed along the ditch for about 100 yards, crashed through a fence and wound up its mad career against an apple tree.

The transport driver rushed the two men to Woodstock General Hospital, where it was found that they were not injured beyond minor cuts and bruises, whereupon they continued on their way to Toronto with the transport, leaving a badly wrecked machine by the roadside.

JAP OFFICIAL UNDER ARREST

10 FINANCIERS INVOLVED.

(By Glenn Babb, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

TOKYO, May 19 (AP)—The oft-told tale of political disaster—unworthy subordinates betrayed a leader's trust—seemed about to unfold again to-day on the Japanese political stage.

Hideo Kuroda, Vice-Minister of Finance, was arrested on charges of corrupt financial practices and the development was regarded as a serious blow to the Saito Cabinet.

The aged Premier presented a Leonine front to the pack circling for the political kill, denying the situation demanded the Cabinet's resignation, but foes already are discussing new Cabinet slates.

Vernacular newspapers described Viscount Korekyo Takahashi, Minister of Finance and hence Kucoda's chief, as disheartened by to-day's disclosures and ready to resign.

Specifically, Kuroda was charged with having been involved in alleged irregularities in administration of the semi-official Bank of Formosa, and affairs of the Imperial Rayon Company.

Ten financiers had been indicted before the law reached into official circles for Kurado.

BRITISH STAND DANGER TO CHINA

Open Invitation to Japs to Grab More Territory Says Oriental Official.

RAPS SIMON.

(By Harold P. Braman; Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

LONDON, May 19.—Sir John Simon's declaration that Great Britain is not pledged to preserve the integrity of China "constitutes an open invitation to Japanese militarists to bite off another chunk of China," an official in highest Chinese quarters said to-day.

Agreeing with Sir Stafford Cripps' assertion that "Japan is converting Manchuria and Jehol into a vast military base," the official told The Associated Press:

"China now is in the direst danger as a result of Great Britain's statement of policy," as enunciated by Sir John, Foreign Secretary, before the House of Commons.

"It looks," the official said, "as though Great Britain is moving in the direction of an ally of Japan to counter-balance the Russo-American rapprochament. However, the Chinese hope this really is not true, for Britain should line up with the United States and thus hold the balance of power against Japan.

Will Rush Campaign

"Unless this is done, Japan will continue her aggression in China."

Sir John spoke yesterday after Sir Stafford, former Laborite Minister, had charged that Japan is "pushing her imperialistic expansion into North China for the purpose of creating Manchukuo Number Two."

The high Chinese official termed Sir John's remarks "most unfortunate."

"They will delight the militarists in Tokyo, who will take advantage of the opportunity to advance further into North China—knowing England will stand back. . . .

"The Foreign Secretary always is talking about the rights of other powers in China and forgets the obligations of Britain and others under the treaties. . . ."

U.S Offers $6,000,000 Aid Drought Areas

WASHINGTON, May 19 (A.P.).—The United States Government opened its coffers to-day and planned to pour $6,000,000 a month into the parched farm states until the drought menace is removed.

Seven Federal agencies united in the relief drive. Official observers believed expenditures would run on into the winter as new relief problems are reached.

On Capitol Hill, Senator Burton Wheeler (D., Mont.) attacked another aspect of the farm problem. He demanded a thorough-going inquiry by the Federal Trade Commission into industries handling farm commodities.

His resolution pointed to charges that "various middlemen, processors, packers and handlers" have used "monopolistic, oppressive and unfair methods."

FIVE YEARS IN KINGSTON.

TORONTO.—Captured five minutes after he held up a downtown hosiery shop with a gun, Stuart Greatbach, 24, was sentenced today to five years in Kingston Penitentiary and 10 strokes of the strap.

Greatbach was captured after Mrs. Madge Gilderoy, employee of the shop, had participated in a thrilling chase through downtown streets. He pleaded guilty shortly after his arrest.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO MINES

TORONTO, May 19 (CP)—Volume of trading in mining shares fell off sharply to-day and prices were irregular as some profit-taking put Eldorado back a little and elsewhere price variations from Friday's close were narrow.

Hollinger held at $17 on light volume, Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves held small gains and the other big golds were unchanged. San Antonio added 5 cents and Little Long Lac was off 5.

A slightly better tone was exhibited by Falconbridge and that issue closed higher, while other base metals were quiet. Noranda and Mining Corporation closed unchanged.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 19 (A.P.)—The stock market to-day experienced one of the dullest sessions in nearly two years and mildly mixed prices ruled in the indifferent trading. There was some scattered week-end profit taking, but most offerings were absorbed without difficulty. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 325,000 shares.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS.

TORONTO, May 19 (C.P.). — To-day's industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange hung up a record for inactivity for a year at least. Some of the usual leaders recorded only a sale or two and prices barely moved away from Friday's closing level.

Distillery stocks, usually among the most active, had fewer than a dozen sales among them. Walkers Common held unchanged at 34, Distillers Seagrams at 15⅞ was down a half-point. Industrial Alcohol dropped ¼ to 11½, and Brewers and Distillers was unchanged.

Interlisted leaders maintained a show of strength with Nickel up 10 cents, Smelters a full point, and Ford A up ¼.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, May 19 (CP)—Prices declined on the Montreal Stock Exchange during to-day's short session. Losses, however, were mainly confined to fractions. Trading was of moderate volume.

International Nickel declined 20 cents at 27.40, while Brazilian Traction eased ⅛ and Canadian Pacific Railway ¼. Bathurst, Canadian Car Preferred, McColl-Frontenac, Montreal Power, Cement, Canadian Industrial Alcohol, Dominion Bridge and Dryden were off fractions.

BYRD'S PARTY BACK IN SCHOOL

Men Get Courses in Sledding, Radio, Geology and Tractors.

PREPARE FOR TRIPS.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctic, May 19 (A.P.). — (Via MacKay Radio).—A "back to school" movement is on to-day in the icy winter darkness of the Antarctic

Exploration and scientific research are the broad fields of daily study. The idea is to prepare the men of Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd's expedition for the spring and summer expeditions. There is a course in sledding under "Professor" Captain Allan Innes Taylor, the expedition's chief of transportation. He's doing a bit of lecturing, too, on tractor operations.

There are courses in radio under Amory H. Waite. Dr. Charles Gill Morgan is brushing the boys up on their geophysics and geology. Biology and zoology also are on the curriculum.

Classes meet in the mess hall after breakfast. The big tables are pushed back. The long benches are swung down the length of the room. The blackboard is hung in front of the shelves of groceries.

Then, while half the camp sits at academic ease, the other shovels under the direction of Executive Officer Noville. Working and studying in shifts this way, the men are fighting to hold a few square yards of surface against the burying drifts of the ever-flying snow.

And Commander Byrd? He doesn't live here any more. Yesterday, he entered the second month of his isolation at the Boiling advance weather base, 123 miles by trail south of Little America.

100TH ANNIVERSARY

BROCKVILLE. — Preparations are under way by the congregation of St. Peter's Anglican Church here to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of its consecration, a ceremony performed on August 31, 1834, by the Rt. Rev. C. J. Stewart, then Bishop of Quebec. The church, started in 1825, was opened for worship in 1834.

GEORGE BENOR TAKEN BY DEATH

Former Head Representative of North America Life in Central Ontario.

PROMINENT FREEMASON.

Resulting from a stroke he suffered some ten days ago, the death occurred at Nicholls Hospital late last night of George Alfred Benor, prominent Free Mason and former head representative in Central Ontario district for the North America Life Insurance Company.

A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Benor, the deceased was a native of Campbellford, where he resided before coming to this city twenty-one years ago as district manager of the insurance company, a position he held until his retirement was necessitated due to ill-health eight years ago.

The late Mr. Benor was a member of Corinthian Lodge A.F. and A.M. here, and was also a member of the Ionic Chapter of Campbellford.

Besides his widow, formerly Maude Mary Carnahan, Mr. Benor is survived by one daughter, Evelyn Marian; two brothers, James T. Benor of St. Petersburg, Florida, and Charles Benor of Campbellford, and three sisters, Mrs. Brennan of Toronto, Mrs. Coombs of Smith's Falls, and Mrs. J. Glassford of Campbellford.

The remains are resting at Belleghem's Funeral Home, from which place the funeral services are to be held on Monday at 1.30 p.m., with the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, rector of All Saints' Church officiating. Interment at Campbellford Cemetery.

The Weather

TORONTO, May 19.—Synopsis: An area of high pressure extends from Hudson Bay southeastward over the St. Lawrence Valley to the Atlantic Coast, while pressure is relatively low over the western half of the continent with a centre of dression, 29-7 inches, over South Dakota. Light scattered showers have occurred in the southeastern portion of Saskatchewan and a moderate rainfall is reported from The Pas, in Northern Manitoba, but the weather in the western provinces has been for the most part fair and warm. Light scattered showers have occurred in the Western Provinces, while in Ontario and Quebec the weather has been fair.

Georgian Bay.—Moderate southeast winds; fair. Sunday—Moderate to fresh southeast to southwest winds; partly cloudy and a little warmer; probably a few light scattered showers.

Northern Ontario.—Fair and a little warmer. Sunday—Partly cloudy; somewhat warmer with a few light scattered showers.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley.—Moderate winds; fair. Sunday—East to southeast winds; partly cloudy with about the same temperature; probably a few light scattered showers towards night.

Broiling Chickens Sell 30 Cents Pound

Little broiling chickens were selling at 30 cents a pound this morning on the market. Year-old birds were 18 cents a pound.

Eggs were priced generally at 15 and 16 cents a dozen and butter could be bought anywhere from 20 to 25 cents a pound.

Duck eggs were 4 and 5 cents apiece and turkey eggs 20 cents each.

Maple syrup was $1.70 a gallon and scarce.

The ice cream vendor, with melting sandwiches of cream, made his appearance on the market this morning.

On the open market, potatoes were quoted at $1.40 and $1.50 a bag. Little pigs were $8 a pair. Tiny White Leghorn chicks were a nickel apiece and larger birds of the same family were a dime each.

Delphinium and daisy roots were 10 cents each, while monks' hood and lemon lily slips were 15 cents. Little green ferns were 6 for 25 cts. Tomato plants were 15 cents a box and sweet alyssum plants were the same price. Pink and red blossoming geraniums in pots and soft blue lobelia blooms were 15 and 20 cents and pansies sold at two boxes for 35 cents. Ivy was in little pots at 4 for a quarter, and English ivy was 15 cents a pot.

U.S. And Her Debtors Play Waiting Game

WASHINGTON, May 19 (A.P.)—The United States and the nations that owe $175,000,000 on war debts on June 15 apparently are playing a waiting game—each waiting for the other fellow to make the first move.

Whether Great Britain has taken that step remained undisclosed yesterday amid speculation resulting from a visit to the president Thursday by Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador.

President Roosevelt has made known that this country expects payment in full on the due date—less than a month off now—but he stressed that the door was open to proposals from nations which felt they could not raise the entire amount.

PARLIAMENT IS DSSOLVED

Bulgarian cities will be appointed from the capital.

This puts an end to municipal elections which, in past years, have often embarrassed the government by returning a huge Communist vote.

The Mayor of Sofia was dismissed from office summarily.

A manifesto addressed to the nation attributed the change in government to a complete failure of the system of party government as the result of the extreme splitting up of political groups into internal struggles and political quarrels.

Yugoslav Troops Move

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, May 19 (AP)—Unconfirmed rumors to-day said Yugoslav troops of the Varbar and Morava divisions were concentrating as a result of the coup d'etat in Bulgaria.

A general mobilization of armed forces was considered possible since the new Bulgarian dictatorship was interpreted here as directed by King Boris against the anti-Yugoslav-Macedonian Revolutionary Committee.

It was reported that 700 arrests had been made in Sofia alone.

CENTRETON.

Mrs. A. Blodgett was hostess to the W.M.S. on Wednesday afternoon. There were ten present. Plans were made for a quilting on June 20th. The program consisted of readings and a duet by Mrs. Nichol and Mrs. Webb. On Wednesday, May 23rd, the society is having a play presented by Morganston talent.

The Y.P.S. held a social time on Tuesday evening under the leadership of A. Eddy. Plans were made to prepare a program for the invitation to Baltimore on Friday, May 25th.

The Y.P.S. are presenting their play at Morganston on May 28th.

Western Political Chiefs Take To Air

REGINA, May 19 (C.P.).—Use of airplanes by leaders in Saskatchewan's general election campaign was increasing to-day but for M. Coldwell, leader of the Farmer-Labor (C.C.F.) party it was just one bit of tough luck after another.

Four times to date Mr. Coldwell has ventured into the air to keep speaking engagements, and only once was a flight completed on schedule. Three times he was forced down, the third coming last night when his plane encountered wind and rainstorm in the Shaunavon district.

Hon. James G. Gardiner, leader of the Liberal Party and former Premier, has been more fortunate. He has made two flights, completing one last night from Saskatoon to Qu'Appelle to score two successful trips.

Premier J. T. M. Anderson, Conservative leader and head of the Co-operative Government of Saskatchewan, hasn't ventured to use a plane yet.

Radio Commission Asks To Pick Staff

OTTAWA, May 19 (C.P.)—"It is obviously necessary and desirable that thte Radio Commission have complete control of all appointments to the commission staff," states a memorandum from the Radio Broadcasting Commission to the special parliamentary radio committee urging that the commission be given the right by parliament to appoint all its employes without regard to the Civil Service Commission. The committee will consider the recommendation in drafting its report to the House of Commons in the near future.

At present thte radio commission has a staff of 76 persons, of whom two-fifths were appointed, temporarily, by the C. S. commission, and about 31 of whom were absorbed by the Radio Commission from the C.N.R. radio department by order-in-council of the government.

Nazi Prohibit Priest From Holding Mass

BERLIN, May 19.—(A.P.)—Trouble broke out anew to-day between the Roman Catholic church and the Nazi regime. Vetoing a permit already given Mgr. Nicholas Bares, Bishop of Berlin, to conduct a Roman Catholic Whitsuntide mass on Monday, authorities announced he could not speak.

An offer to let a substitute priest read Bishop Bares' sermon was indignantly rejected by Catholic churchmen, although it had been announced publicly, the service was cancelled.

Bishop Bares, who assumed his office only three months ago, bitterly denounced in a sermon recent Nazi publications stressing racial theories.

He called them the "propaganda of Satan."

CANADIANS WON GLORY AT PASSCHENDAELE--BUT AT A PRICE

PASCHENDAELE WAS A HORROR OF MUD AND SLIME

The first of the attacking Canadians, or some of them, had duck-boards to walk on or as guides, but the enemy guns found them leaving the terrible mud and the shell holes filled with water. Wounded returning to dressing stations stumbled into these and some were able to struggle out. You can see why others were reported "Missing, Believed Killed."

ROOSVEELT AIMS CONTROL ARMS

Asks Congress to Ratify Embargo Proposals From Geneva.

UNITED ACTION NEEDED.

WASHINGTON, May 10 (A.P.)—President Roosevelt asked the United States Senate yesterday to ratify the Geneva arms and ammunition convention in a move to obtain control of the traffic in munitions.

"The private and uncontrolled manufacture of arms and munitions," the president said, "and the traffic therein have become a serious source of international discord and strife. It is not possible, however, effectively to control such an evil by the isolated action of any one country."

The message made no reference to the British proposal for a world embargo on arms and munitions shipments to the warring nations of Bolivia and Paraguay but it was believed the president sought the treaty ratification to join in that effort.

Mr. Roosevelt also urged that the world disarmament conference reconvening on May 20 set up authority "for the supervision and control of the traffic in arms much more far reaching than those which were embodied in the convention in 1926" which is now before the Senate.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office by 5 p.m. on the day before insertion. All letters must be signed by the writer, although a pen-name may be used when inserting non-controversial subject matter. Letters over 400 words will be cut down at discretion of the editor.

A FOREIGN INVASION

To Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—A good deal of fuss is being made over what is called the toll-gate on foreign liquors. Are our politicians aware that something far more vital to the freedom and independence of Canadians has been going on and presumably is going on now?

On June 19, 1924, the L'Exporteur Francais, the organ of the French wine growers, in a lengthy editorial made the following statement:

"In Canada the year 1923 will rank as one of the most important in the history of prohibition. The anti-prohibitionist campaign which has gradually gained ground, carried two provinces, Manitoba and Alberta, and two other provinces, Ontario and Saskatchewan, will very soon succumb to its attack. The Wine Export Commission is entitled to claim the preponderating share of this success as being the only French or foreign organization which took part in the fight with its entire forces. The Premier (that is of France) and French Minister of Foreign Affairs thought fit on that occasion to express to the Commission satisfaction with the efforts it is making.

"Our action has taken the most varied forms — the preparation of leaflets and pamphlets, articles and controversies in the press, the contribution of funds at the decisive moment. Our activities were not confined to moistening those dry provinces in which it appears that action might prove useful. They were also devoted to the improvement of the system existing in those provinces where such action had already borne fruit. Thus we had occasion to state our point of view to the French government with regard to certain details of the working of the Quebec Liquor Commission, and again, quite recently, we organized a campaign in British Columbia for the adoption of certain measures favorable to the sale of our products."

That the liquor trade in Canada also exerted its monetary power in shaping our destinies, political and otherwise, is evidenced by the sworn testimony of Clement King, given during the Canadian customs probe. Mr. King was a director of Hiram Walker and Sons. He admitted that $183,000 had been paid under cover of protecting trade marks, which went to fight for Government control as against prohibition.

During the same enquiry at Montreal, Jos. G. Lawrence, secretary-treasurer of the Consolidated Distillers, admitted that from July 1923 to the end of 1926 $380,606 was paid out and went to both political parties.

Ontario is facing a contest in which the liquor interests, even those of France, are again interested. What they are doing now we do not know. What they did in the past we have on testimony that cannot be gainsaid. Neither domestic happiness, purity of government or national freedom are of the slightest consideration when the profits of the liquor business are at stake. Here is proof not only that our Canadian liquor interests give enormous sums to our political parties, for which no doubt they expect and receive favors, but that the great world liquor interest is active in shaping Canadian laws and institutions, and even the opinion of our people. Have our political leaders anything to say regarding this?

From the office of the Ontario Temperance Federation.

General Secretary.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

The appearance of the new commemorative issue of St. Helena created a furor in the stamp world, comparable to the release of a new model car at a motor show. The new issue surpasses all previous efforts in appearance and design. Without a doubt this latest British colonial stamp sets an example that will be most difficult to excel.

The issue commemorates the centenary of the transfer of the island from the East India Company to the crown. Ten denominations, in beautiful bi-colored pictorial designs comprise the set, a brief description of which follows:

In all cases the central portion is black, the colors given below being that of the border design, ½d, lilac. Lot and Lot's wife; 1d, green, a plantation; 1½, red, map of the island; 2d, orange, the quay; 3d, blue, James valley; 6d, azure, Jamestown; 1s, sepia, the Mundens; 2s 6d, crimson, St. Helena; 5s, chocolate, High Knoll; 10s, purple, badge of the colony.

Portrait vignettes of King William IV, Queen Victoria, King Edward VII and H.M. the King surround the central designs of the 1d, 1½, 2d, 6d and 10s.

More new British colonial issues are due to appear almost any time and if you wish to keep up to date, do not delay in securing the issues as they appear. Otherwise, you may find yourself swamped and unable to keep up with them. Also most of these new issues are of a commemorative nature; they will be in current use for a few months only, after which they invariably show considerable increase in value.

Chas. A. Keeling, Gem, Alta.

You do not state the country of origin of the stamps you have, thus it is impossible for me to give you any idea of their value. You may take it, however, that almost any stamps are of interest to collectors, providing they are not torn or mutilated in any manner. The stamps may be of value or may be quite common; that is impossible to decide from your description.

Miss Velma Bennett, Grand Valley, Ont.

The stamps you describe are Canada revenue stamps. They are not rare or valuable to any extent; either of them may be bought from dealers for from three to five cents each.

PARLIAMENT HILL HEARS

Premier Bennett, so I am told, is very popular with his secretarial staff. He is quick and efficient, and although he lets off steam occasionally, his bark is always worse than his bite—as an executive's, presumably, should always be.

He came in one morning at 9.15 o'clock. (I can't imagine what made him so late that morning) to find one of his assistants engaged in perusing a copy of the Ottawa morning paper.

"Young lady," he stormed, "is this what the nation is paying you for,—to sit here at a quarter after nine reading the morning paper!" And other appropriate remarks.

The young lady, who had passed through these minor cyclone's before, felt quite safe in replying, mildly:

"I'm sorry, Mr. Bennett. It wouldn't have happened if you didn't wear rubber heels!"

The prime minister's remarks before the Drama Festival about exits and re-entrances were given wide publicity, but an ambiguous remark about the province in which he resided for a quarter of a century did not seem to reach the papers.

Commenting on Thorlakson's play, "Derelict" which revolves around a sensitive architect who had lived in Alberta 25 years, was now unemployed and out of luck, and who indulged in some revolutionary sentiments, the prime minister is reported to have expressed some scepticism: "I find it difficult to believe," he said, "that the said architect could have lived for 25 years in Alberta and still remain sensitive." Probably Mr Bennett was thinking of the tough hide needed by such architects of fate as himself.

The House of Commons is not only a dull affair to listen to a lot of the time, but it leaves much to be desired as a colorful scene or spectacle. I gather from the reminiscences of the old-time gallery correspondents that around the turn of the century it was much more picturesque, chiefly on account of the hirsute or tonsorial decorations with which virtually every face was adorned. There were —so they say—infinite varieties of the King Edward beard, the handle-bar moustache, the Dundreary, the mutton-chop and all points west, but thos days are, alas! faded away. It is difficult these days for the House even to put on a good display of toothbrush moustaches. Sir George Perley boasts the most imposing beard, I should say, and there are a few with somewhat inferior pretensions. Dr. Hurtubise of Nipissing runs Sir George a fair second, and the president of the C.C.F. is not far behind. The Champlain beard is affected by one of the French members. Messrs. Carmichael, R. S. White, Jacobs and Motherwell are among the few who would not look too badly out of place in a group photograph of the 1900 members. But the leaders of the Conservative party and the Liberal party set the style by smooth-shaven faces, and many cabinet members and opposition front-benchers conform to their leadership.

Did you know....that "Malaria is still the greatest killing disease in the world....that plague carried by fleas annually kills hundreds of thousands of victims....that hook-worm infects 60 per cent of the earth's population and is the most important of all Imperial diseases?" I didn't either, till I read a fascinating address delivered by Dr. T. W. M. Cameron of MacDonald College, Quebec, and published by the National Research Council.

In that connection it is safe to say that much important and little known research work is being carried on both at the Ottawa laboratories and elsewhere in Canada, encouraged by the Nation Research Council. Working on serums, one scientist has isolated what seems to be a highly satisfactory antidote for poisoning, which annoys so many people.

This serum, if injected into the patient, renders him insensible to the effects of the plant. An interesting sidelight was revealed to me in this connection by a National Research scientist. He knows of a woman who is so ultra-sensitive to poison ivy that everytime her husband goes in the woods she suffers an attack! Apparently he brings back on his clothes or shoes minute particles of the poison ivy which comes into contact with her skin by direct contact or by their presence in the air. Other people can plunge around through the woods with complete immunity.

A friend of mine facetiously suggests a way in which would-be senators might make sure of their appointments. He recalls the device which was adopted by an aspiring Scot who was given some kind of an assurance that if he made a large contribution to the party funds of the party then in power in Great Britain he would, in a later honors list, be dubbed Lord Blank. He decided to avail himself of the proposition for ten thousand pounds, in favor of the party, signing it: "Lord Blank."

I saw last week....John R. MacNicol perusing with interest a small fac simile of what seemed to be a new design for a Canadian flag... in view of MacNicol's own strong views on the subject, I'm sure he didn't design it himself. It was a combination of the Union Jack and the tricolor. The first upright column, red in color, bore the Union Jack in the upper portion. The second column, which was white, had engraved on it a colored maple leaf, while the third upright strip was blue....

FIVE distinct, truck-built chassis are included in the sales-leading Chevrolet Truck line for 1934. New, larger, more convenient cabs are provided for all models. Increases in load-space range from 17% to 31% in the panel, single unit express and pick-up bodies—with correspondingly greater capacity a characteristic of the whole Chevrolet-built body line.

These facts indicate how Chevrolet truck-engineering meets and keeps ahead of the demands of modern hauling. In addition, Chevrolet engineers have made many chassis improvements, including: stronger frames, more durable clutches and transmissions, stiffer springs, longer-lived axles and the new Special six-cylinder Truck Engine with exclusive Marine Type cylinder head.

QUEBEC TO GREET SCIENCE SOCIETY

Canada's Savants to Hold Annual Meeting in Ancient City May 21-24.

OTTAWA, May 19 (C.P.)—Surnamed the "aristocracy of intellect" the Royal Society of Canada will hold its 52nd annual meeting here May 21-24. This will be the third occasion in its history that the organization of distinguished scientists has assembled in the ancient city.

Modelled on l'Academie Francaise and the Royal Society of London, and like them limited in its membership, the Canadian body was organized at Ottawa in 1882. Originally comprising four sections, each with a membership of 20, the Royal Society of Canada has now expanded to a total membership of nearly 250, almost equally divided among its various sections, devoted to literature, history, archaeology, sociology, mathematics, physics, chemistry, geology and biology.

As early as 1883 the Dominion government, impressed with the value of the Society's work, made an annual grant of $5,000 for publication of its transactions. That grant, increased in recent years to $8,000, has been continued for half a century.

In conjunction with the British Association for the Advancement of Science, the Canadian organization urged upon the Dominion government the importance of tidal observations, coast hydrographic surveys and an ethnological survey of Canada. It was instrumental in securing the preparation of the first large-scale map of the Dominion, the measurement of the 98th meridian in co-operation with the United States and the establishment of geodetic surveys.

It took active part in the movements for inter-imperial cables, time reckoning, and the improvement of geological nomenclature, in the encouragement of Arctic expeditions and the establishment of scientific research stations in Northern Canada.

The diploma of the Society dates from 1882. Three gold medals are awarded annually, one, endowed by Sir Joseph Flavelle, for science, one by Dr. Lorne Pierce for outstanding achievements in imaginative literature, and a third by J. B. Tyrrell for work in history.

In 1931 the Carnegie Corporation endowed a series of 10 annual Fellowships, to be awarded by the Royal Society, of an individual value of $1,500. The endowment covers five years.

Suggest Victorian Order Be Extended

OTTAWA, May 19. (CP)— More aggressive steps on the part of the Victorian Order of Nurses to bring its services to all sections of the community and to enlighten the public as to the value of its work were among suggestions thrown out at the annual meeting of the order here. Dr. A. Grant Fleming professor of public and preventative medicine at McGill University, who addressed the convention yesterday was inclined to be critical of the order's policy of 'non-aggression.'

A voluntary service such as that of the Victoria Order, he said, should give leadership and blaze a trail toward improved health services generally. Present economic conditions brought difficulties but also opportunities for the general public had never before been so eager for the services or the order.

Miss Elizabeth Smellie, chief superintendent of the order presided over the meetings.

NORTHUMBERLAND BOARD FAVORS BLOCK SYSTEM SELLING CHEESE

Campbellford Meeting Adopts Motion Despite Opposition of Belleville Buyers.

MERRILLS APPOINTED.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 19. — Despite opposition expressed by buyers on the Belleville cheese board against Campbellford cheese being sold there under the block system, the Northumberland County Cheese Factory Patrons' Association went on record again last evening as offering their cheese for sale on that board in this manner, and in the event of them not being sold, the salesmen were instructed to report back to the county executive for instructions.

The meeting, held in the St. Lawrence Hotel and presided over by the president, George Van Volkenburg, was called to consider the matter of cheese selling, and was featured by the presence of George H. Barr, director of dairying, Toronto, and H. B. Somerset, chairman of the Ontario marketing board who took part in the lengthy discussion in an advisory capacity.

One action the meeting took on resolution was the appointment of Alfred Merrills to sell cheese, with Thomas Fry, for the local cheese group. Mr. Merrils was appointed in the place of S. L. Joss, secretary-treasurer of the organization. He will be paid out of the association funds.

Mr. VanVolkenburg explained that the meeting was called following the report of Mr. Fry, who, although he had no cheese to sell, was present at the Belleville Board, and did not get a very good reception. Mr. Fry stated that as far as he could see the buyers wanted Campbellford cheese on the board, but did not want them assembled and graded in Campbellford, as they wanted to see them. They did not want anything to do with them if they came on the board in a block, he stated.

Fred Mallory, secretary of the Belleville Board, stated that they wanted Campbellford cheese, but wanted them sold as individual factories. "Many buyers wanted individual factories as they suit their own trade with a specific type of cheese", he said. Individual factories appeal to different buyers as the types of cheese appeal to different markets, he pointed out.

Montreal Opposes

Questioned by Mr. Barr and Mr. Somerset, Mr. Mallory stated that Montreal buyers at Belleville objected to buying cheese in block; that local buyers take more cheese than Montreal buyers, although one buyer from there is the largest individual purchaser; and that it is the local buyer that sets the price.

Mr. Barr pointed out to the meeting that many buyers liked to see the cheese they buy for although they may grade the same, they are of different types, and these types can be placed on different markets in Great Britain. "That was one of the reasons, he said, why buyers liked individual factories." The proposed system of selling the cheese was a new venture and the only way to find out if it is successful was to try it. He would like to know, he stated, if the heads of Montreal firms were in favor of the block system of selling cheese.

Discussion arose over the preferential between first and second grade cheese, Mr. Mallory being of the opinion that buyers often take second because they have to, but if these were auctioned off on the board, the spread would be a lot greater than at present.

Harold Wood of Trent River seemed to express the general view of the meeting when he stated that the organization voted in favor of selling cheese in the block, and so far the experiment had not been tried. This opinion was also expressed by Mr. Merrill.

About the only advice that Mr. Mallory could give to the meeting was, "If you want to save the Association, get your cheese on the Belleville board, and don't ask too many questions how." This was all he would say on the matter.

Mr. Fry, however, came back with the statement that he did not quite know what constituted the Belleville board, "but it looks to me as if they are out to knock the tar out of this organization." The association was to enable the producer to have some say in the sale of his own product, he stated, and he thought they should stand on their feet, and if they could not sell at Belleville, then find other outlets.

Mr. Somerset felt it was foolish of the Belleville board to put difficulties in the way of improving their own organization, by making it hard for cheese to be sold there.

Mr. Barr threw out the suggestion that instead of having salesmen for each factory in the three counties, two men from each county could easily sell the cheese for the whole group and this would make a saving of about four thousand dollars a year to the patrons. He pointed out that the Belleville board was well-known and held in high esteem in the Old Land, and by selling through that board Campbellford cheese would have a better name. This fact should be considered, he thought.

Other speakers taking a major part in the discussion were Mr. Nicholson of Belleville, Frank Harnden and William Anderson of Seymour, and A. J. Meyers of Campbellford.

FRISCO ENTHUSES OVER ART SCHOOL

Free Training in Painting, Modelling and Writing Draws Many Patrons Daily.

SAN FRANCISCO. — There is art for art's sake in San Francisco and "it's swell."

That's the verdict of nearly 400 men and women from 17 to 60 who climb a long flight of stairs several days a week to sketch, paint, model clay, write short stories and study novel and verse technique in six makeshift studios a block from the city's financial district.

It's the free school of the Artists and Writers' Union San Francisco's newest art and literary institution, and strangest relief project. "Golly, this is great," Dick Ayer exclaims as he models his first bust. "I never expected training like this—and for nothing. Look at this head."

He's one of 25 enrolled in the sculpture class. The students furnish their own materials, but everything else is free.

Obituary

ALEXANDER PIRIE

CAMPBELLFORD, May 19. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The funeral of the late Alexander Pirie was held yesterday morning from St. Mary's Church, Campbellford, where requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. C. J. Phelan, the intermemnt being made in St. Mary's Cemetery. The pall bearers were: Wm. Sarginson, P. J. Sarginson, Frank Lee, Hector Arnold, Hugh Innes, and John Thomson.

The late Mr. Pirie died on Wednesday last at his residence in Campbellford, where he had lived since last fall. He was in his 86th year. Born in Aberdeen, Scotland, he camoe to Canada with his parents at the age of nine years, and has resided in the same locality in Seymour Township for the past 76 years. Having as his life interest farming, he was a prominent citizen of the community and honored and respected by a very large circle of friends.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Rose Ann McGuire whom he married 57 years ago; one son, John, of Seymour Township; and five daughters, Mrs. Mary Flaherty of Detroit; Mrs. Leo Patterson of Wisconsin; Mrs. C. W. Murphy of Santa Cruz, California; Mrs. (Dr.) Darling of Detroit, and Mrs. Morris O'Connor of Ennismore.

REGAINED APPETITE AND WEIGHT WITH KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

Cereal Relieved His Constipation

If you are a sufferer from headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read this enthusiastic letter from Mr. McIntyre:

"For a long time my system was not in very good working order. But since eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, I have regained my appetite and my lost weight. And my system is in good working order. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN sure does the trick."—Mr. J. A. McIntyre (address furnished upon request).

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides the "bulk" needed to relieve ordinary constipation. It also contains vitamin B and iron for the blood.

You'll enjoy this delicious and healthful ready-to-eat cereal. Serve it with milk or cream—or use often in cooking.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is all bran with only necessary flavoring added. It contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Arrangements Made For May 25 Program

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, May 19. — The Omemee Athletic Association met in Coronation Hall Wednesday evening and considerable business was transacted. W. Mitchells tender for the erection of a small rest building was accepted. R. Faulkner was authorised to build a ticket booth and also a large portable booth for the sale of lunches, soft drinks and hot dogs. A. Roach and his Royal Canuck ten piece dance band was engaged for the round dancing. A Adams was instructed to get loud speakers and amplifiers from a firm in Markham. Dr. McPhee read a letter from the manager of the Oshawa soft ball team, winners of last yeears tournament stating they would be back to defend the cup rain or shine. Entries are also in from Selwyn, Campbellford, and Fenelon Falls. Anyone wishing to enter will please get their entries in to Dr. McPhee at once.

Farmers in Saxony and Anhalt, Germany, have been notified that if they fail to work their land properly their names will be publicly displayed on "black lists."

STRIKE TRUCE IN MINNEAPOLIS

Compromise Reached After Oil Stations Stoned, Pumps Wrecked.

84 ARE ARRESTED.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (C.P.).—Temporary truces relieved to-day the strain of strikes in several United States cities, but new labor troubles bobbed up in others.

Tentative agreements were reached to end the strike of truck drivers in Minneapolis and St. Paul, where the movement of food, gasoline, and other necessities has been affected.

Mediation of the drivers' demands for union recognition, closed shop and wage adjustments was proposed after a burst of violence in which gasoline stations were stoned, their pumps wrecked, and 84 persons arrested.

The tugmen's strike at Buffalo, N.Y., was ended by agreement of the workers to return to duty pending arbitration of their grievances over wages and hours. Striking tugmen at other Great Lakes ports are expected to do likewise

New Threats at Toledo.

New strike threats arose at Toledo and Cincinnati. At Toledo the Central Labor Union voted approval of plans for a general strike in sympathy with the walkout of 1,900 automotive workers and 500 employees of the Toledo Edison Company tentatively authorized a strike.

A two-hour general strike in Cincinnati on May 22 was urged by the Steel and Metal Workers' Union not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, in protest against failure of the Formica Insulation Company to recognize the union of srtiking employees.

Striking school teachers in Old Forge Borough, Scranton, Pa., watched from the outside as pupils returned to classes under substitute and non-striking teachers.

National Guard troops were called out to maintain order at a strip coal mine near Mobeely, Mo., after threats of violence.

U.S. OPENS WAR TO END CRIME

President Roosevelt Issues Call For All Citizens to Aid Government.

SIGNS SIX BILLS.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt called on all citizens of United States to marshal support to-day for the Federal Government's war on crime.

While the Department of Justice girded itself with new weapons to wield against criminals, the President said:

"I ask citizens, individually, and as organized groups, to recognize the facts and meet them with courage and determination."

Public intolerance of the evildoer, the President asserted, is needed to bolster the drive on inter-state crime.

In signing six bills yesterday to strengthen the forces of the Department of Justice, President Roosevelt signalized the action as "an event of the first importance."

"So far as the Federal Government is concerned," he said, "there will be no relenting."

"But there is one thing more. Law enforcement and gangster extermination cannot be made completely effective so long as a substantial part of the public looks with tolerance upon known criminals, permit public officers to be corrupted or intimidated by them, or applauds efforts to romanticize crime."

BIG VOTE URGED IN OLD ONTARIO

It is Recalled Large Percentage of Electors Stayed at Home Last Election.

TORONTO, May 19.—(CP).—It is expected the largest vote in the history of Ontario will be recorded when the province goes to the polls in June for the Legislature general election.

In the last general election there was a total of 1,014,311 votes. The popular vote for Conservative Government candidates was 596,677 and for opposition nominees 417,634. In ridings where acclamations took place there were 101,688 on the lists.

Total names on the voters' lists were 1,804,932, so nearly 800,000 failed to exercise the franchise. All parties this year are urging that every one entitled to the franchise votes.

TRENT WATERS ARE RE-STOCKED

Two Dozen Cans of Pickerel Fingerlings Are Placed Along Course.

ROAD WORK EXTENDED.

TRENT RIVER, May 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—A number of local men have been instrumental in having the Trent waters replenished with the finny tribe.

Twenty-four cans of pickerel fingerlings arrived from the Ontario Fish Hatcheries at Glenora and were deposited in adjacent waters, having been placed by the following men: Six cans of pickerel fry by Mr. James Cook, at Trent River;; Fred Keller, Healey Falls, 200,000 pickerel fingerlings; R. H. Cole, Crow Bay, 560,000; Fred J. Smith, Crow Bay, 200,000; Frank Menzies, Bradley Bay, 200,000; Garnet Lloyd, Cassidy's Bay, 100,000; P. A. Morgan, Haig's Reach, 100,000.

Work has commenced on the new Campbellford - Havelock highway under the Holdcroft Construction Co. of Kingston. The central office of three different sections of work is located at Havelock, one east and one west of the village, and the other in Campbellford.

The Department of Agriculture has resumed the standing field crop competitions. Those wishing to compete must be members of the Agricultural Society and must have their individual entries in to the Department of Agroulture by June 15th. Seymour Agricultural Society has decided to enter in the competitions in oats and corn.

BRITAIN ABOUT TO DOUBLE SIZE OF AIR FORCES

the world's biggest military air fleet containing about 3,000 aircraft, compared with Britain's 1,400.

Meanwhile it was clear the government has no intention of subscribing to sanctions against Japan's alleged imperialistic ventures in the Far East.

Japan to Observe Pact

Sir John Simon, foreign secretary told the House of Commons yesterday Japan had informed the British Government of its intention to observe the Washington nine-power treaty recognizing integrity of Japanese integrity. He made this statement in reply to an assertion of Sir Stafford Cripps leftwing Laborite, that Japan planned imperialistic activities in China.

Further, Sir John said, the United Kingdom had made no promise to apply sanctions in connection with the nine-power treaty. He said the country had promise dto respect China's independence, but not to protect it.

He said Britain would not apply economic or other sanctions against any power violating a treaty, unless all signatories to the treaty would agree formally to take joint action.

Economic sanctions, he said, cannot be applied without the risk of war."

of Highways, told the London Conservative convention that Ontario had been "in the van" in emplementing legislation to benefit the working man.

"We had workmen's compensation two years ahead of Liberal Quebec" he said.

Mr. Macaulay charged that Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, and Harry Nixon, Progressive leader, had sent "emissaries" to the highway minister's riding in an effort to have the C.C.F. candidate withdrawn. The Liberals, Mr. Macaulay said, promised to withdraw their candidate in Hamilton riding.

Mr. Macaulay said the Liberals attempted to reach such an agreement after the Hamilton C.C.F conference and added that the "same night in Toronto" Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader, was condemning the C.C.F.

BRIDGENORTH.

The W.A. of Bridgenorth Church met in the basement on Wednesday afternoon and quilted their autograph quilt, and as well decided to get an estimate on painting the church ceiling, suitable matting for the aisles, and several minor improvements will receive their attention.

The Selwyn ladies are busy preparing for the Young People's banquet on Tuesday evening. This event promises to be of unusual interest.

Rev. R. D. Wright is this week attending a ministerial conference in McMaster University, Hamilton. Mrs. Wright is visiting with friends in Toronto.

Rev. C. C. Miller and G. McIlmoyle attended the meeting of Peterborough Presbytery held in Norwood on Tuesday. Conference meets in Brockville this year, commencing on May 29th. Mr. Wilbert Bell is to represent the local churches.

He had become a traitor to his czar and his country. He had blasphemed God by consorting with atheistic Communists. But his disillusion would be terrible, the Vozrodenia (Renaissance) white-Russian journal published in Paris, predicted but a year ago. The Bolshheviks would torture him to death "in the secret and soundproof cellars of the G.P.U."

To Speak in England

When Citinzen Mirsky accompanied a scientific mission, in the capacity of reporter for the Moscow papers, to Northern Siberia, last summer, the czarist papers in Paris announced: "The merited end of a vile traitor has come," and they specified his departure for Siberia as "a gruesome exile to a barren, frozen tundra." To-day, Citizen Mirsky is back in Moscow, preparing for a lecture tour in England and France. He has written a book dealing with his experiences in New Russia in the last two years. Ida Treat is translating the book into English.

The first thing Mirsky went to see in the Soviet Union two years ago was the ancestral estate and the seigneurial mansion where he had been brought up as a boy. He found the house newly painted, the precious imported French furniture, including many art objects of great value, "perfectly intact and carefully preserved, the chairs covered with hulses, the floors polished, but the book-room turned into a public library for peasants of the neighborhood." The mansion where his ancestors had ruled as squires for centuries had been changed into a home for expectant mothers. The conservatory had been transformed into a small modern clinic. The prince sat in the old drawing-room, where his mother had entertained the rural society of her day, and talked with the free children" of peasants who formerly owed obedience to his father. He was deeply impressed.

Russia Exiles Disturbed

The Soviet government's invitation to the ex-nobles to come back was open for only six months. The czarist press in Paris branded the invitation as "a vile trick on the part of the red assassins to lure their vicims into a trap" and not many heeded the call. Prince Mirsky's experiences, however, have caused a certain agitation in exile circles. Many of the younger ex-nobles begin to feel a certain pride in the achievements of the Soviet Union. When I spoke to a young friend of mine, Prince Piotr Troubetskoye, of the things I had seen in Russia, the unimaginable cultural and scientific development, the educational reconstruction, the tens of thousands of schools built since the revolution, the unparalleled theatrical evolution, he, in spite of his bitter anti-Bolshevik sentiments exclaimed: "You forget that they are Russians. Russians were bound to take a first place in the world of art and science as soon as they had the opportunity. The myth of the ignorant, barbarous Russian moujik has lasted long enough!"....

Of course, the old guard of exiled generals and priests have no intention of surrendering. But like that other old guard at Waterloo, they are surely dying out. Their latest manoeuvre, an attempt to come to an understanding with the Japanese militarists in the event of a Japanese military agression against the Soviet Union, ought to make clear their dispositions toward their homeland and its present-day regime.

Nobles Pressed for Cash

Now that the economic depression at last begins to make itself felt in Europe and the cost of living in this country mounts to an unprecedented height, the Russian nobles who figure largely among the unemployed and who do not share in government relief because they have consistently refused to become French citizens, are hard-pressed and anxiously scanning the horizon for a way out of their distressful plight.

It is but natural and in fact inevitable that some of these men and women feel their thoughts turn to that old homeland to which they are so deeply attached. A passport official at the Soviet embassy told me that inquiries about conditions for returning home are becoming more frequent of late. "One man came in here theo ther day and said: 'I can stand it no longer....I am going crasy....I must see Russia....All day and all night I hear the ringing oif troika bells in my ears....I am devoured by nostalgia...."

"What happened?" I asked.

"I told him we had motor-cars in the Soviet Union and that one seldom heard the troika bells now, especially in the big cities!" the official replied.

"But where is the man now?" I insisted.

"He left two months ago for Moscow."

"Was he a noble?"

"He was an officer of the Preobrazkinsky Guard regiment!"

"His name?"

"Read 'Vozrodenia'," said the official, "and you'll find him denounced as a scoundrel who was lured to Russia by stolen gold!"

"Can they all go back now if they want?"

"No, the time-limit expired two years ago, but exceptions are made, and pretty soon there will be another general invitation," he said.

CAMPBELLFORD

NEWS ITEMS FOR THE TRENT TOWN DISTRICT

A very popular young lady of the town, and one who is a graduate of Campbellford High School, Miss Frances Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs J. A Anderson, Canrobert Street, graduated on Wednesday last from the St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing and was one of three young ladies out of a class of twenty-seven to win a special award, securing the prize for general neatness given by Corbett-Cowling Co. of Toronto. The graduation exercises were held in Parkdale Canoe Club, and Miss Anderson's parents attended the function. Miss Anderson, who received high praise from hospital physicians, is at present working on a case in the city, but at its conclusion will return to Campbellford for a rest, prior to establishing herself in the profession in Toronto.

Mr. William Runnells, for some time assistant in the Abernethy Barber Shop, Front Street, has purchased the barber business of Mr. Wilfred Potrier, Front Street, which he is now operating.

Added attraction to the town is being made by the Water and Light Commission Board, by making a very attractive layout at their office site on Front Street. Many trees have been planted and rose bushes placed in very attractive beds, and in addition the grounds are being cleared and made into a miniature park. Mr. P. C. Denyes, system manager, is looking after this work.

The Rev. J. C. Grier of Lindsay was the guest of Mr and Mrs. J. A. Anderson when he visited town on Thursday to address the Men's Club of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Mr. W. S. Wiggins was a business visitor to Toronto on Wednesday.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. P. L. Seymour were in Belleville on Thursday, attending to business.

Dr. O. C. Watson was a business visitor to Peterborough on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey were recent visitors to Stirling, the guests of friends there.

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Watson and little daughter are spending a few days the guests of Mr. Watson's parents, Dr. and Mrs O. C. Watson, Queen Street. Mr. Watson has just completed his senior examinations in the Toronto College of Pharmacy.

Trent River

Whitehall Gardens Pavilion had a most successful opening with a large crowd in attendance and excellent orchestra numbers supplying music.

The Young People's League of Havelock United Church visited the League here Friday night for a social time.

Mr. Harold Smith of Peterborough was a week-end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Garneau.

Mr. Will Hogle has returned to Montreal after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Garneau and family.

At the May meeting of the Women's Institute the subjects decided on for the summer series in June were "The Challenge of Age" and "Junior Girls," but in the meantime the members have been advised that two other neighboring Institutes have arranged for the same subjects, and the secretary of the Trent River Institute is selecting two other subjects for the benefit of visiting Institute members.

The summer series for Seymour West Branch of the Women's Institute is to be held Monday, May 28th. The speaker will be Miss Ethel J. E. Robson of Denfield, Ont. Her subject, "The Challenge of Age." It is expected to hold the meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Dobscha. "Puff Ball Inn." Failing this, it will be held at the home of Mrs. Charlie Macoun. An invitation is to be given the Seymour East newly organized branch.

Miss Ethel Horsman, of Campbellford, teacher of Ninth Line School, near Rylstone, is suffering from lock-jaw.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Houghton wish to express their sincere appreciation of the many acts of kindness shown by their neighbors and also for the beautiful floral tributes and messages of condolences received from their many friends, neighbors and relatives; from the C.G.E., 21st Batt., collegiate Institute, Boy Scouts and numerous others. We would thank Dr. Hammond, the Rev. Paterson for their kind help during the sudden passing of their beloved "Teddy."

ARMY BANDSMEN PLAN RE-UNION

Members Who Went to England in May, 1914, Will Meet in City.

MEMORABLE TRIP.

A reunion of those bandsmen who on May 28, 1914, crossed to England as the Peterborough Band to attend the International Congress of Nations in London will be held by the local band of the Salvation Army on June 2 and 3.

The visit of the Peterborough Band to England is an outstanding memory for the members of that organization and to the citizens of the city. Since the local band had to fulfill the place of the Canadian Staff Band of the Salvation Army, whose members were nearly all drowned in the sinking of the Empress of Ireland on May 29, 1914.

The special week-end commemorating this visit to London will commence on Saturday afternoon with a welcome to the bandsmen at the Temple at 3.30, after which they will go to Little Lake Cemetery to pay tribute to the memory of J. James, the only member of that band who has since passed away. Later in the afternoon there will be a reunion tea, a musical meeting, and illustrated views of the trip will be shown.

Adjutant and Mrs. E. H. Green, former Salvation Army officers of this city, will conduct special services during the week-end.

Home and School Association News

MAY'S SCHOOL

A large attendance of members, teachers and friends were present at the regular monthly meeting of May's Home and School Association which was held on Monday and took the form of a Pot Luck supper. A very enjoyable hour was spent. The business meeting opened with Mrs. Briscoe, President, in the chair. The theme, which was Fellowship, led the devotional period and was conducted by Mrs. Squires. A. Pitchford gave a short talk. Mrs. Land, President of Home and School Association, made a few remarks. Arrangements were made for the picnic on June 15th. A step dance by Miss Elizabeth Stilwell, with accompaniment played by Miss Todd was greatly enjoyed.

The next meeting is to be held the second monday in June.

Obituary

JAMES O'KEEFE

The death occurred with tragic suddenness to-day at his residence, 79 Lansdowne street of James O'Keefe, the beloved husband of Rose Whibbs, and father of Vincent, Hubert, Joseph and Francis O'Keefe, and Sister St. Oswald, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston; Catherine of Toronto, Sister Rose Marie, St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, and Josephine of Kingston.

Mr. O'Keefe, who was regarded as a landscape gardener of marked ability was at one time in charge of St. Peter's Cemetery here. As recently as yesterday, Mr. O'Keefe was at work, but stricken suddenly ill he had to be conveyed home, where he passed away a few hours later.

The funeral is to take place from the family residence, Lansdowne street, on Monday morning, at 8.45 o'clock to the Church of the Sacred Heart for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment at St. Peter's Cemetery.

FREDERICK DOUGHTY

Frederick Doughty passed away at his residence, 217 Dalhousie Street, on Friday night, following a comparatively brief illness.

A life-long resident of this district, the late Mr. Doughty was born in Dummer Township, and for many years had been engaged in business in this city as a general contractor.

Predeceased by his wife sixteen months ago, he leave two sons, William and Thomas Doughty, also two daughters, Mrs. Sidney Ferguson and Mrs. John Martin, besides two brothers, William Doughty of Norwood and Joseph Doughty of Kinmount. Two brothers predeceased him.

The late Mr. Doughty enlisted locally with the 93rd Battalion, in 1916, with which unit he served overseas. A keen follower of sports generally, he was always particularly interested in horseshoe pitching, being regarded as one of the best exponents of that game locally.

Funeral services are to be conducted by the Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, pastor of St. James' Church, at the family residence on Monday at 2.30 p.m., and interment is to be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

GEORGE DANIEL S. SLOANE.

Tribute to the memory of George Daniel Schlochow Sloane, professor of languages and music, was paid by a large gathering of relatives and friends at services held on Thursday afternoon.

A brief service at the residence of his niece, Miss Grieve, 55 Brock Street, preceded graveside services conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. W. Mackenzie, head of Grove Preparatory School, at Hillside Cemetery, Lakefield.

The late Professor Sloane, regarded as an accomplished muscian and scholar of languages, was a native of Germany. During many years' residence in this city he had been a member of St. John's Church. Besides his widow, formerly Julia Strickland of Lakefield, he is survived by two sons, Clifford of Toronto and Carl of Vancouver; also two daughters, Mrs. G Bartram of Toronto and Mrs. Moodie of Saskatchewan.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mrs. G. Bartrem of Toronto, a daughter, and Mr. Bartrem, also Mr. Fred Bartrem, and Mrs. Clifford Sloane both of Toronto. Other members of the late Mr. Sloane's family were only prevented from attending the funeral on account of the distance of the places in which they are residing. The pall-bearers were: G. Bartrem, G. Quartermaine, Dr. C. H. Amys, A. L. Amys, R. N. Stuart, S. Foster.

Camp Night Features St. Paul's C.G.I.T.

St. Paul's C.G.I.T. held their closing meeting last evening, May 18th at 8 p.m. in the form of a camp night.

The meeting was conducted by Frances Latimer, president of the Junior Group and Helen Miller had charge of the devotions.

A skit, "A Day at Glenmohr," written by Helen Latimer, was presented by the girl who attended Glenmohr Presbyterian Camp on Lake Simcoe, last year, followed by lantern slides of the various camps held at Glenmohr. Stewart Curry operated the lantern.

The highlights of the evening was the presetnation to eight girls who proved themselves to be all round C.G.I.T. girls a holiday at Glenmohr. Rev. Dr. Barr made these presentations on behalf of the C. G.I.T. to Jean Flett, Betty Jack, Margaret Jackson, Margaret Parker, Helen Latimer, Virginia Patterson, Jean Prophet and Frances Latimer.

THE STORK WINS

A rush call came in for an ambulance last night. It was a matter of seconds later that it was speeding to a Braidwood avenue address in the south end with siren screaming. Despite the haste that was made, however, the wily old stork got there first.

The ambulance operator picked up two "passengers" instead of the expected one and rushed mother and child to St. Joseph's Hospital, where this afternoon both are reported to be doing well. The child—a bouncing baby boy tips the scales at 7 pounds 2 ounces, it is stated. Dr. T. G. Loudon was attending physician.

Russia's plan to spend about $25,000,000 in establishing farms within the Arctic Circle in Karelia will include the introduction of cattle, hog and vegetable raising in that part the world.

POLICE PROTECT MINE WORKERS

15 Royal Canadian Mounties Sent to Glace Bay District.

PATROLLING HOUSES.

GLACE BAY, N.S., May 19 (CP)—Reinforced detachments of Royal Mounted Police carrying batons protected non-strikers to-day and the Dominion Coal Company's nine collieries were operating despite the Amalgamated Mine Workers call for a general strike.

Company officials estimated that 2,333 miners had gone below, compared with 3,043 a week ago.

No. 1-B Mine, where the strike was started by Amalgamated Mine Workers in protest again suspension of a miner charged with carelessness, was idle last night when only 23 men turned up, but was operating to-day with 231 out of a normal working force of 600.

Ignored Strike Call

United Mine Workers, rivals of the A.M.W., ignored the strike call.

Anticipating a concerted effort by pickets and unemployed to prevent miners from going into the pits, 15 Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers came into Glace Bay from Sydney and adjacent points in charge of Inspector John MacIntosh and Sergeant George Keohoe.

Pickets changed their tactics at Dominion to-day, patrolling rows of colliery houses instead of attempting to commandeer the train to No. 1-B as they did before.

Missionary Paper Read To Auxiliary

The May meeting of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox church was held on Monday evening, May 7th, in the Junior Class Room of the Church, with the President, Mrs. Howard Clegg, in the chair. The meeting opened with Hymn 286 played softly by the pianist, Mrs. Harry Williamson, which was followed by the call to worship, read by Mrs. Clegg. A devotional leaflet entitled "Andrew" was then read by Mrs. A. Pitchford. The devotional period was concluded with prayer by Mrs. E. Johnston and the singing of a solo by Mrs. Ross Williamson entitled "I Gave My Life For Thee." Mrs. E. Johnston read a paper on the missionary work in China, which included some intimate glimpses into the lives of our missionaries and their work in this great land. Mrs. E. Johnston and Mrs. A. Pitchford were in charge of the meeting.

MUTUAL LIFE OF CANADA

Reports Increased Business

April Sales Higher

The number of new policies paid-for in April 1934 exceeded by 30% the number for April 1933.

Policyholders Add to Insurance

Approximately 5,000 Canadians applied for and received Mutual Life insurance policies in amounts ranging from $500 to $120,000 and aggregating many millions, between January 1st and April 30th, 1934.

One-half of this business was taken by present policyholders—a splendid endorsement of the results of their original policies.

Payments to Living Policyholders Three Times Greater Than Death Claims

Death Claim payments in 1934 already total $1,128,954
Payments to LIVING POLICYHOLDERS in Dividends, Matured Policies, etc., in the same period amount to $3,745,438

An* EXAMPLE of how MUTUALITY PAYS

($5,000 Endowment in 30 Years —Issued in 1904 at age 25)

THIS MAN PAID
30 Annual Premiums of $159.75 ..... $4,792.50

HE RECEIVED IN RETURN
Face Value of Policy $5,000.00
Accumulated Dividends 3,223.20
Special Extra 1928 Dividend 23.00
..... $8,246.20

HE GAINED $3,453.70

This is a return of $172.06 for every $100 of premiums paid. If the assured had died at any time while the policy was in force $5,000 plus the accumulated dividends to date of death, would have been paid to his beneficiary.

It is to YOUR advantage to insure in The Mutual Life of Canada—the only Canadian life insurance company that since its organization (1869) has operated on a mutual basis—there is no capital stock — ALL profits from all sources belong to policyholders, who own the company in its entirety.

BUILD GIANT RESERVOIRS TO QUENCH LONDON THIRST

Survey Area From 'Planes, Opening Five-Year Water Scheme

LOOK DECADE AHEAD

A gigantic new water scheme for London which will cost $27,500,000 is being planned. It is anticipated that it will be completed during the next five years.

It was announced recently that the Metropolitan water board had been granted statutory powers to spend a large sum on new reservoirs and works in the Lea valley.

Powers will be sought this year to increase this sum so that one or two new reservoirs may be constructed in the Thames valley.

For the first time in the history of the London water undertaking aeroplanes are being used to make a survey of the land. The data which is collected during a series of flights will be submitted to the authorities, who will then proceed to choose a site for the new works.

Evade "Speculaters"

This aerial survey work is being carried out under conditions of secrecy so that land speculators shall not have any opportunity of "cornering" the ground which is likely to be chosen.

As a result of this development the storage capacity of the board will probably be increased by by 9,000,000,00 gallons and certainly by not less than 6,000,000,000 gallons. The recent water shortage was the most serious in the history of London, and when the new reservoirs have been completed a repetition of this will be practically impossible.

Gallons Go To Waste

Millions of gallons of water are now running to waste over Teddington Weir. Under the new scheme this rich supply will be tapped and taken into the Lea watershed. This is because it has been discovered that the board cannot rely on the Lea watershed in times of emergency. It will involve the construction of miles of new mains.

The move of industry southwards and the establishment of a vast network of new housing estates around London is largely responsible for the new development. It is realized that, although the present storage capacity of the board is 21,000,000,000 gallons, this may not be adequate at the end of another decade.

GOLF OPENS NEW LIFE TO SIGHTLESS OFFICER

Unafraid of Bunkers, He Plays Better Game Than Before War

Captain Gerald Lowry, the first British officer to lose his sight in the war, has taken up golf.

He has been playing only a few months, but already is as good as the average golfer. His latest feat is a round in seventy-seven.

Every morning he goes for half an hour's practice to the Kensington Country Club. One of the professionals there, Russell Kelly, has taken him in hand, and goes with him wherever he plays.

All Mr. Kelly does is to place the club behind the ball. Captain Lowry does the rest, and does it astonishingly well. He drove a ball recently to within three yards of the hole in one shot.

To learn how to teach a blind man to play, Mr. Kelly blindfolded himself. He found just how each club needed to be placed. The driver, for instance, is placed about three inches inside the ball. For a tee shot he puts Captain Lowry in the right position and tells him the distance from the hole.

"I'm playing better golf now than I played before I was blind," said Captain Lowry. "In some ways I have the advantage of the seeing golfer. I am not frightened by bunkers and obstacles because I don't know they're there. It takes me no longer to go round a course than it does anyone else. I enjoy myself tremendously. In fact, golf has opened up a new life for me. Golf is a social game. It brings a man into touch with lots of friends, which is so necessary for a blind man."

MYSTERIOUS MESSAGE MAY REUNITE FAMILY

Boy Missing 18 Years Is Heir to Father's Estate

Scunthorpe.—A mysterious message, unsigned and containing only four words, may be the means of reuniting a seventy-year-old mother and a son she has not seen for eighteen years.

Harold Rogers of Carleton, near Skipton, Yorks, has been searching for his brother Gilbert for seven years to tell him that he is a beneficiary under their father's will. Mrs. Rogers, too, has been trying to find her son since her husband died.

After following up in vain clues which took him to Scunthorpe, Mr. Rogers was about to return home when he received an envelope, in which was a slip of paper bearing the words, "New Rossington, near Doncaster."

The strange message was pushed through the letter-box with no further clue as to the sender.

Mr. Rogers left at once for New Rossington. "I hope, after all these years," he said, "that I have at last something substantial to go upon."

PRISONER TURNED HERO

Risks Life For Another After Leaving Jail

Glasgow.—A man walked out of prison where he had served a sentence of 18 months' hard labor and dived into the Clyde in a vain endeavor to save the life of a drowning man.

Before a crowd of citizens the man, fully clothed save for his hat and coat, leaped into the river from the parapet of the Albert bridge. The man, however, disappeared from view and was drowned.

SISTERS ATTAIN 100 YEARS

Ryde. — Mrs. Sarah Ann Long, of Milward Rd., celebrated her 100th birthday, and her sister, Miss Louisa Ann Tarver, aged 101, was the first person to congratulate her.

JUDGES RULE BEES CAN'T BE IDENTIFIED

Difficult to Steal Hive at Night, Expert Claims

Carlisle.—Can a bee be identified? Magistrates, after hearing expert evidence, decided that it could not, and they dismissed a charge against William Clark Milburn, gardener for Mr. Simpson of Whoof House, Aglionby. He was accused of stealing fourteen beehive bar frames and two stocks of bees, said to belong to John Holliday of Scotby.

When Mr. Holliday and a policeman went to Mr. Milburn's garden, Mr. Holliday claimed to recognise the hives as his property, one of the reasons for his claim being that the bees were unsettled.

Mr. Isaac Farquharson, secretary of the Cumberland and Westmoreland Beekeepers' Association, said it would be difficult to steal a hive of bees at night. In view of the homing instinct of bees, he would have expected the majority of the bees to have returned to Mr. Holliday's hives had they been his.

'BISHOP' DETERMINED TO RETAIN BUNGALOW

Minister to Van Dwellers Refuses to Leave Home He Built

Moreton.—"We are fighting to retain our home and to carry on what we believe to be God's work.

"If we have to leave this bungalow, on which we have expended a large part of our savings, I do not know what will happen, for we shall be practically penniless."

This was the despairing cry uttered by Pastor Alfred Harris, known here as the "Caravan Bishop," because of his 11 years of ministering to thousands of caravan and bungalow dwellers in this area.

He and his gray-haired wife—they are both 58— have been ordered to leave their bungalow home which, being in a scheduled clearance area, is earmarked for demolition.

Fourteen days' notice to quit expired recently, and now they are hoping for some last-minute intervention—three clergymen here of different denominations have signed a petition on their behalf—to save them from disaster.

"Our position is desperate," said Mrs. Harris. "We have received no offer of compensation. My husband has not a shilling a week pocket money."

BLOOD TURNS TO WATER

"Mysterious Disease" Takes Life of Cellulose-Sprayer

London.—The death of a cellulose-sprayer's mate, Charles Albert Ingold of Tooting, from "anaemia of the aplastic type" — described by Sir Bernard Spilsbury as a "mysterious disease" — was inquired into at a Battersea inquest.

The question whether the youth's death was the result of his occupation was discussed by the medical witnesses, and in the end an open verdict was returned.

Dr. W. L. MacCormac of St. James' hospital, who said that the youth died from anaemia of the "aplastic" type, explained that this meant that the blood-forming system was not working. Two days before death the blood had nearly turned to water.

Oxford. — After having been in Australia for a year, where he had gone on account of bad eyesight, a young undergraduate, D. Rawnsley, of University College, has flown back solo to England.

SON FULFILLING WISH OF GREAT EXPLORER

Captain Scott's Kin Studies Natural History — Has "Studio" in Marsh

London. — Twenty-two years ago Captain Scott, one of the greatest English explorers of all time, lay dying in a tent in the Antarctic.

The last letter he wrote was to his wife. He spoke of their infant son Peter. "Make the boy interested in natural history if you can," he said. "It is far better than games."

Peter Scott is 24 now. He has fulfilled his father's hopes. Recently he opened in Bond St. his second exhibition of paintings of bird life.

The grey light of dawn is there; so are the mudflats, the sinuous creeks, the ebb of the tide, and eerie, plaintive noises. The curlew calls; you can hear the piping of awakening redshank and stint. Grey geese rise V-shaped into the sky and flight shoreward to the fresh marshes of the mainland.

It is a world of thrills to the mere wildfowler. It is a world of exquisite joy to the wildfowler-naturalist, which is what Peter Scott has become.

He shoots little now, as he said recently, but night and day, the winter through, lies in a scooped-out hole in the Wash, or huddles in a pit in the salt marshes, waiting to catch the fleeting visions he has captured in paint.

GRIEF AT RETIREMENT KILLS FAITHFUL CLERK

Serves Town 32 Years, Dying Five Hours After Leaving Office

Morley—Five hours after Fred Thackray had left his office for the last time as town clerk of Morley—a position he had held for 32 years—he was found lying unconscious in his home.

A few hours later he was dead—he had died of a broken heart. The strain of parting with the office and the books he had cared for during half a century brought about a fatal seizure. He had been in the service of the town for 53 years, and was 69 years old.

"My husband had been fretting about the parting for weeks," Mrs. Thackray said. "When he closed his books and took away his wig and gown for the last time, he felt the parting greatly. I tried to cheer him, but although he brightened he was still feeling it."

The mayor of Morley, Alderman E. Barraclough, declared that Mr. Thrackray lived for Morley, and the thought of leaving the town broke his heart.

GOLD TAUNTS SEEKERS

Hazards Too Great in Terrible Desert, Sir Malcolm Finds

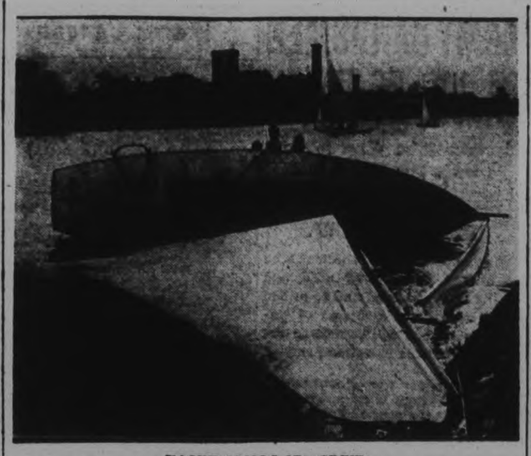
London. — "We found gold, but I fear that the country is so terrible that it would be almost impossible to work it without vast expenditure."

Looking bronzed but thin and weary after a month's hardship in the grim Nambi Desert, in south-west Africa, Sir Malcolm Campbell thus summed up his adventurous treasure hunt when he returned.

"I have brought back gold-bearing quartz. We also discovered vast quantities of mica and manganese, but owing to the absence of water and to the ever shifting sand, I doubt if it would be a feasible proposition to work them," he declared.

WOMAN GETS RARE HONOR

London.—For only the third time since the Royal Academy was founded in 1768, a woman was yesterday elected an associate of that institution. She is Mrs. Dod Procter.



YACHT SPILLS ITS CREW

All was well with the Surbiton Yachting Club's regatta at Kingston, on the Thames, until one of the boats took matters in hand and spilled its crew during an especially exciting time in the race. So here they are—out of the race—and calling for aid—but what's a race between friends. It's all a part of the fun to British sportsmen.

BRITISH AND FRENCH RACE TO COMPLETE HUGE LINERS

St. Nazaire Workers Have Head Start But Clyde Uses More Help

PRIDE AT STAKE

Clydebank.—War is raging in the shipyards of the Clyde and St. Nazaire—war to be first with a giant liner.

On the Clyde an army of men is working day and night to complete the Cunard liner 534. At St. Nazaire a handful of French workmen are laboring at top speed to put the final touches to the equally gigantic Normandie.

There are not more men because France is hard up. The French shipbuilding authorities fear that despite their long start they will lose the race.

Arc lights and flaring naphtha jets have turned night into day at Messrs. John Brown's shipyard, where hundreds of workmen are fighting against time to have the huge 534 ready for launching in September.

When the official intimation of a resumption of work on the ship startled Clydebank out of its apathy on March 30 the hull was without a stern and great holes gaped here and there along its length.

Challenge to World

In the three weeks that have passed main frames have been erected and plated. A beautifully rounded counter, as graceful as that of any yacht, now juts out into the river.

Back-breaking work is going on night and day, but it is regarded by the men not so much as work as a competition.

No. 534 is a nation's challenge to the world, and the pride of the Clyde is at stake. The design of the accommodation has been held up to the last moment, with the result that the steelwork in the interior of the hull is behind schedule.

Greatest progress has been made with the machinery, which is almost completed, and steel seatings for eight turbines and twenty-four boilers are now being built in the ship.

SETTLED MANY STRIKES

New York.—The regional labor board here has settled 325 out of a total of 437 strikes affecting 174,692 workers since its establishment Oct. 24, 1933.

AUTOGRAPH-HUNTER GOES OUT IN HURRY

"She Loves Me Not" Became Reality to Boy

London.—When the curtain had fallen on the first night of "She Loves Me Not," at the Adelphi theatre, celebrities crowding slowly to the street were startled by sounds of a scuffle and loud cries of "I want my book!"

They saw one of the officials of the theatre carrying out bodily a young boy who was struggling and uttering piercing screams.

He was an autograph hunter, aged sixteen—who owns ten books crammed with signatures of stage stars

SCOT'S FACE WAS RED AS LUGGAGE SWITCHED

Looking for Soccer Boots, Jimmy Connor Found Bride's Apparel

Glasgow.—Jimmy Connor, the Scottish outside-left on the Sunderland team, had the surprise of his life recently when he unfastened what he thought was his suitcase. It contained, not his football boots as he expected, but a high-heeled pair of shoes, a woman's pyjamas, and other feminine odds and ends.

Promptly he issued an S.O.S. for his suitcase. Not until shortly before the Scottish team left for Wembley was it returned to him.

It had come from the lost property office at King's Cross station. In it was a note which read:

"I only take threes! These boots are eights. I hope it is a happy augury for whoever wears them, but please, my pyjamas were bought for a honeymoon. I'd like to have them back." The note was signed "X."

MONKEY INJURES BABY

London.—The parents of a three-months-old child were at Bow County court awarded $115 damages and costs against a doctor whose monkey attacked the baby as she lay in a perambulator in the garden.

AFTER NIGHT IN CELL PRINCE'S PET RETURNS

Dog Leaps From Moving Car Upon Seeing Royal Master Again

Southampton. — Jiggs, the boon companion of the Prince of Wales, is back with his master again. The dog was found by a Mrs. Bishop, who modestly declined to give her address.

Mrs. Bishop was driving with her husband from London to Southampton. At Sunningdale they saw Jiggs running about the road among the traffic.

"We were afraid he would get run over," Mrs. Bishop said, "and as I am a dog-owner myself, I got my husband to stop the car. I chased Jiggs because he was in the track of a big lorry and trailer.

"When I picked him up I found he was bleeding from the mouth. Something must have struck him.

"When I saw that the Prince of Wales' cairn was missing I rang up Fort Belvedere at once.

"Shortly afterwards I received a visit from the police and the dog was later taken to the police station."

Jiggs spent one evening in a police cell at Southampton.

By morning he seemed to be getting home-sick, and had to be coaxed to eat his breakfast of fried bacon. An hour later he started whining, and as he was beneath the police court he had to be moved to a loose-box in the police stables.

The dog was then taken back to Fort Belvedere by Mr. Osborne, the Prince's steward. The Prince was waiting in the drive. Immediately Jiggs saw him he began to struggle to get out of the car. Before it had stopped he was scampering across the path to his master. He jumped up to be fondled, wagging his tail furiously, and yelping with pleasure.

The Prince picked him up. Later he and Jiggs went for a walk in Windsor Great Park. That night Jiggs slept in his usual place in a basket in the Prince's study.

WON'T PAY TITHES

Pastor-Farmer Prefers Prison to Payment

Oxford. — A meeting of farmers from every part of the county here unanimously condemned the government's tithe bill.

"Heaven help me if the government pass the bill," said the Rev. R. M. Kedward, ex-M.P. for Ashford, Kent. "If it means bankruptcy, if it means imprisonment, I shall never sign a cheque for a single halfpenny. There are thousands of men and women of sufficient calibre not to mind threats. The old English spirit is not dead.

"It will be a nice spectacle for the nation to behold the national church using as its tool the law of the country to imprison people who conscientiously cannot subscribe to its beliefs. I warn the government that if they put the screw on under this bill they will have grave trouble."

Mr. Kedward, who owns a farm in Kent, is president of the tithepayers' association.

TO BATHE BIG BEN

London.—Twelve men carrying pieces of machinery and sacks of tools climbed up Westminster clock tower recently to take Big Ben to bits.

The job will keep them busy for more than a month. They will clean and overhaul everyone of the moving parts of the five-ton clock.

REMEMBERS HOUSEKEEPER

London.—A fortune of $50,000 has been left to Mrs. Mary Ann Holt by her employer, Edward Fenn, a retired financial journalist, who died aged 81. Mrs. Holt was his housekeeper. She nursed the old man devotedly during his last long illness.

CANADIAN STAMPS OF 1851 AUCTIONED OFF AT $7,000

"Superb and Exceedingly Rare" Prizes Command Brisk Bidding

BUYERS GET EXCITED

London. — Seven thousand dollars for two little pieces of gummed paper, together less than two inches square. That is what happened at a sale-room in Bond St. W., recently.

True, the little pieces of paper are dignified by the name of stamps. They were two of the 1851 issue of Canada, valued 24 cents, and bearing a charming portrait of Queen Victoria in her early womanhood.

These stamps, described as "superb in every respect and exceedingly rare," were items in the collection of the late Arthur Hind, of the United States.

The renown of the collection brought buyers and commissions from all parts of the world, and in the saleroom were people whose names are familiar wherever stamp collecting is discussed—Messrs. Stanley Gibbons, F. B. Smith, T. Allen, R. Roberts, L. Aarons, H. Nissen, L. Gill, Josling.

"Immaculate Pair"

Experienced men of the world though they are, and doubtless acting on commission for clients, they were as excited as a pack of schoolboys about the treasures displayed before their eyes.

Bidding was lively. That for a block of four Newfoundland stamps started at $1,250, and rose to double that sum.

Then there was what was described as "an immaculate pair" of cold violet Nova Scotia stamps, used on an envelope to India with a yellow green. This fetched $2,600, but a prominent expert said afterwards that many collectors would not consider themselves robbed if they were asked $2,500 for this lot, because "there is hardly any doubt that another such pair does not exist in the world."

DAYS OF MIRACLES NOT OVER TO BLIND

Sightless Testify at Own Church Service

Lewisham.—Remarkable testimony of faith in modern miracles was given at the first parish church service in the metropolitan area for the blind.

Over 120 blind people were present at St. Mark's. The preacher was blind, there was a blind organist, and both lessons were read by blind men, who used copies of the scriptures in Braille.

Rev. Trevor Edwards, the vicar, read a message from the bishop of Southwark, welcoming the mayor and aldermen of Lewisham, who attended in state.

G. F. Mowatt, vice-chairman of the Metropolitan Society for the Blind, confessed that at one time he was constantly meeting with accidents. He had fallen on a railway line more than once and just been rescued in time.

"Now," he added, "I understand the power of God which is around me and I do not worry. The result is I never meet with accidents. I am absolutely certain that the days of miracles are not over."

3 MURDERERS TO DIE

London.—Three men faced the death sentence at the Old Bailey with extraordinary composure. They were found guilty of murdering Mrs. Eliza Juliet Ray, 76-year-old widow who was found suffocated in her home in Handcroft Rd., West Croydon, with a handkerchief in her mouth.

LOSES CLOSE FRIEND AND DRIVING LICENSE

Fatal Crash Results in 5-Year Ban on Racer

Feltham.—The driving license of William Berkeley Scott, the racing motorist was suspended for five years at police court here.

He was also fined $125 for driving dangerously. Mr. Scott, who is an old Cambridge rugby "blue," at one time held sixteen world's motor racing records.

The prosecution followed an early morning crash on Staines bridge, in which Walter Keith Seeman, a close friend of Mr. Scott's, was killed.

SOBER COP'S STUMBLE STOP DRUNK CHARGE

One-Legged Prisoner Freed as Result of Court Incident

Maidstone.—If a policeman stumbles out of a witness box in court, in broad daylight, is a one-legged man drunk because he stumbles when changing his stick from one hand to another on a dark night?

The jury at West Kent quarter sessions here, thought the answer to this conundrum was obvious.

That is why they stopped the case in which George Nash, aged fifty, a cartage contractor, pleaded not guilty to driving a motor car while under the influence of drink. He was acquitted.

Frank Powell, prosecuting, stated that a police car attempted to pass a car driven by Nish, but the latter repeatedly drove on the off side of the road and prevented it.

At last he drove into a side road and the police called on him to stop. He said, "I have lost my turning."

He smelt strongly of drink and his speech was thick. P.C. Plowright and another officer decided that he was under the influence of drink and told him so.

When he got out of the car he held on to the side, and when he went to change his stick from one hand to the other he fell against the police car.

P.C. Plowright said he made full allowance for Nash having lost a leg. Then he was asked to demonstrate how Nash fell against the police car. To the amazement of the court, P.C. Plowright stumbled right out of the witness box.

"Surely not so far as that?" asked counsel for the defence.

The Constable: "No, I stumbled!"

Sir Roger Gregory, the chairman: "As we have just seen people do stumble when sober." The Constable: "Yes."

The jury stopped the case, but said the mistake had been an honest one.

ADVENTURE BECKONS TO NAVAL OFFICERS

Call for Volunteers to Invade Unexplored Antarctic Lands

London—Two naval officers are being asked by the admiralty to volunteer for a great adventure.

They are being invited to serve for three years with an expedition which is to explore an almost unknown part of the Antarctic and which may prove whether or not the land round the South Pole is divided into two continents or not.

The appeal for volunteers was in an Admiralty Fleet order, which asked for the services of one lieutenant, who must be capable of commanding and navigating a three-masted topsail schooner, 112 feet overall, 24-foot beam, and with a 100-h.p. full Diesel engine. Experience in ice is not necessary, and one engineer-lieutenant, capable of taking charge of the engine and other machinery in the ship.

It is stated that the services of the two men would be required until May 1937.

The expedition is the one organised with the support of the Royal Geographical Society, and led by J. R. Rymill, a member of the Watkins Air Route Expedition, which will leave England in September.

Its chief object is to explore the coast between Luitpold Land and Charcot Land, a distance of about 1,000 miles.

CHILD'S SIGHT BACK THANKS TO LIGHTNING

Blind Since Birth, Girl Sees After Storm

Micklethwaite.—Storm broke over this Yorkshire hamlet as four-year-old Muriel Fearnley lay on a couch.

Lightning flashed. Muriel cried out, and put her hands over her eyes. Then she slept.

Morning came. Muriel awoke; and again she cried out. It was a cry of joy: "Mammy, I can see!"

For Muriel had been blind from birth. A fortnight ago doctors had pronounced her incurable. But the lightning cured her when storm broke over Micklethwaite.

TYPIST IS CYCLE ACE

Girl Thrills Crowd with 102 M.P.H. Riding

London. — A crowd at Brooklands was thrilled by the riding of Miss F. M. Blenkiron, who, in a high-speed motorcycle duel with Miss M. Moore, lapped the track at 102 m.p.h. and became the first woman to win a gold star. Miss Blenkiron is a London typist.

After hours she practises on motorcycles. She rode like a speed "ace," her head well tucked down on the bars, her rail body lying along the tank.

In the third circuit her engine seized, and in a twinkling she was fighting to control the machine. But she cleverly brought it to a standstill and calmly pushed it away.

Famous Sports Society Celebrates Centenary With Special Event

WON BY LONG SHOT

Paris.—Organized horseracing, in France is just one hundred years old, and recently at Longchamp a special race called the Centenary Prize was run.

It was the most valuable handicap over run in France, being worth nearly $20,000. The winner was Pulcherrimus, a 23-1 outsider. He belongs to M. Arthur Veil-Picard, a popular figure on the turf, who was so unprepared for victory that he had not put on the traditional silk hat.

He had to hide his hard felt hat under his overcoat when he was conducted to the president's box to be congratulated by M. Lebrun.

There was a pathetic incident owing to the failure of the hot favorite, Assuerus, who is entered, incidentally in the Ascot gold cup.

His owner, Comte de Rivaud, broke his legs at winter sports last year, and has since been a cripple. He insisted, however, on being present today, hoping to see Assuerus win.

His car was driven up to the foot of the stand steps and he was carried to his seat by attedants. He took Assueru's defeat without a murmur, and smiled as he was carried back to his car.

The anniversary is that of the Societe d'Encouragement, which controls Longchamp, Chantilly, and Deauville.

The societe came into being in November, 1833, as a result of a sudden storm over Paris which drove a number of sportsmen into a cafe at the Palais Royal. While waiting for the weather to clear up, they discussed racing, and there and then decided to form a racing society. The president was Lord Henry Seymour, about whom plays, films, and novels have been written. The first secretary was Mr. Thomas Bryon, an Englishman, who owned a Paris shooting gallery. The first race-meeting was held on the Champ de Mars, Paris, On May 4, 1834.

KAISER'S KIN NOW CIRCUS "SPIELER"

Wilhelm's Brother-in-Law "Sells" Man-Elephant

Paris—Alexandra Zouboff, brother-in-law of the kaiser, is once more in the public eye, this time exhibiting what he proclaims to be "A Man Elephant" in a show in a Luxemburg circus.

Between shouting "walk up, walk up, ladies and gentlemen, and see the man elephant," he spends his time answering letters from hosts of feminine admirers and trying to find some other country than Luxemburg willing to grant him shelter.

LOGGER STRANGLES WOUNDED COUGAR

Portland, Ore.—Youthful David of Bible fame, who defended his flocks from marauding animals by the strength of his bare hands, has a second in Clyde A. Corman, logging superintendent for a Longview, Washington, lumber company.

Corman grappled with a wounded cougar and strangled the big cat to death. About two years ago Corman gained public attention by bulldogging a wounded buck deer. So powerful was the lumberman's bulldogging twist, the animal's neck was snapped.

U.S. HAS 53 PER CENT. OF ALL TELEPHONES

Boston, Mass.—Of 32,941,570 telephones in the world 53 per cent. are in the United States, according to figures released by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Figures for New England show that Massachusetts has 799,896: Maine, 118,721: Vermont, 54,966: New Hampshire, 77,304: Rhode Island, 106,955: Connecticut, 293,579.

The figures also revealed that New York city has more telephones than France.

BLIND COUPLE FOUND LOVE AT 'FIRST SIGHT'

Unaware Each Other Sightless Until Courtship Began

Valenciennes. — Soon a marriage will be solemnized here. The contracting couple, though blind, declare that theirs is a case of love at first sight.

The bride-to-be lost her sight when a child after her mother's house had been struck by a bomb dropped from a German raiding aeroplane, and the man was blinded at the age of 17, in 1918, while serving as a volunteer with the French army.

They met for the first time eight weeks ago at the house of friends, and both declare that, though they could not see each other in the normal way, they had a sort of second sight that served them as well as ordinary sight, and they are as much in love with each other as though they had been in possession of their vision.

Certain Fiance Handsome

"I am quite certain that my husband-to-be is as handsome as any girl could wish, and I am very much in love with him," declares Mlle. Jeannette Lagrand.

Rene Simon, the intended husband, is equally certain that he could not have picked out a more charming partner if he had been in possession of sight.

The mutual attraction of the couple was marked by everybody at the party where they met for the first time, but neither knew that the other was blind until they started courting.

The president of the French Republic has sent the couple a letter wishing them happiness, and the former commandant of the regiment has undertaken to find suitable employment for the afflicted husband to enable him to supplement his pension.

POLICE CHIEF FACES 13 MURDER COUNTS

Prosecution to Demand Sentence of 290 Years for Massacre

Madrid.—When a former Madrid police chief is brought to trial shortly on a charge of murdering thirteen people, the prosecution will demand sentence of 290 years' imprisonment.

The case in which he is concerned has become known as "The Casas Viejas Massacre," and the police chief is ex-Captain Manual Rojas, former leader of the riot squad.

Villagers of Casas Viejas, some 18 months ago, proclaimed a preference for Communism and tried to start a revolution.

Capt. Rojas and his police riot squad went there and found nineteen Communists barricaded in a small cottage. In the cottage also was a daring and beautiful girl of 18 who calmly loaded the guns which her companions used against the police.

Capt. Rojas used bombs and machine guns and set fire to the house. The girl rushed out with her clothes all ablaze and was riddled with bullets. All the others died fighting. Then the captain rounded up a further thirteen Communists and marched to the burning house, saying: "There you see the result of your folly." One of them sneered at him, and, in the captain's own words, "I lost my temper at that and shot the man down. My men followed suit and shot down the other twelve."

SHEIK INSURES NOSE

Says He Would Have Nothing to Live For Without Smell

London.—An Arabian sheik has just insured his nose for $10,000.

He is Sheik Jelal Quraishi, of Mecca, whose hobby is collecting rare perfumes.

His sense of smell is so delicate that he can at once describe the constituents and their proportions in any perfume.

Quraishi explained his insurance by saying simply: "If I lost my sense of smell, I should have nothing to live for."

PARENTS WARNED BABIES PROPERTY OF GERMANY

Stone Figures Unveiled as Reminder of Motherhood

WEIGH 600 TONS

Berlin.—Shopgirls and typists on their way to work recently stopped in amazement in the Arnswalderplatz, one of the largest squares in the suburbs of Berlin.

A pink stone woman, 18 feet high, had been placed in the middle of the square, clasping a pink stone baby to her bosom.

The figures were the porphyry sculptures which Prof. Lederer has prepared for the great "fountain of fecundity," which is to stand in the centre of the square as a perpetual reminder to German women of the attractions of motherhood. They had just arrived from the professor's studio and had been hauled into position by chains and cables.

About 600 tons of stone are being used in the building of the monument. It will cover an area of about 70 feet by 55 feet.

Meanwhile a claim that children no longer belong to their parents but to the state is made by Reich "Youth Chaplain," Karl Friedrich Zahn.

Chaplain Zahn was entrusted by Bishop Mueller, the Nazi primate, with the task of effecting a merger between the Hitler youth and the evangelical youth organizations.

Writing in the Evangelical Church Press Service he says:

"Children are no longer the private property of individuals, but belong to the German nation. Anybody who does not acknowledge this fact must send his children abroad, as many have sent their gold abroad, in order to remove them in time from the scene of the German regeneration."

WOMAN FOR WORLD LEAGUE

Cambridge, Mass.—Word was received here that a Boston woman, Miss Sarah Wambaugh, daughter of Professor Emeritus Eugene Wambaugh of Harvard, was being considered for a place on the League of Nations commission to supervise the Saar plebiscite next January.

GIRL SLEW FATHER AVENGING MOTHER

Stabs Man, Fulfilling Wish of Wronged Parent

Budapest—"My mother asked me to swear that I would never rest until I had found my father and avenged the wrong he did her."

This was the dramatic plea of a beautiful gipsy girl of seventeen, Magda Szechavi, when accused here of the murder of Fritz Loebach, a former officer of a crack Hungarian regiment.

The girl said that her mother, when she died, had left a letter telling the daughter the name of her father, which had been kept secret. The man was Loebach.

Magda hunted Loebach at one of his haunts here and he became infatuated with her.

She resisted his advances until the anniversary of her mother's death, when, as he took her in his arms for the first time, she stabbed him to the heart.

AVENGE NAZI ASSAULT

Poles Close Customs When Own Official Harmed

Danzig. — Polish customs offices in the free city of Danzig, which is under the protection of the League of Nations, remained closed one day recently, thus preventing exports from Danzig to Poland.

The ground for this action was that a Polish customs official was assaulted during the Nazi parades in Danzig.

NAZI RADIO PROGRESS

Berlin.—Fostered by the government, the use of radio receiving sets continues to make progress in Germany. From January 1 to April 1, 1934, a total of 372,145 radio sets were added to the tax rolls, a number which reflects accurately the total sets sold in that period. The total number of radio receivers in Germany on April 1 was recorded at 5,434,758, an increase of 31,116,753 over the figure recorded on the corresponding date of last year.

A very enjoyable congregational social under the auspices of St. George's Men's' club was held in the church basement on Tuesday evening. This forms the closing evening of the club for the season, and was well attended by members of the congregation. President E. Styles, in welcoming the guests, referred to the activities of the club and their carpet bowling successes during the past few years. Four teams had entered the league during the past seasons, and two of them had been successful in winning prizes. The "Reach Cup," a trophy presented for the first time had been captured by one of the teams composed of Messrs E. Styles, A. Knott, A. Cuff, and A. Sims (skip). The much admired cup, together with many other prizes gained during the past seasons as well as the silver bonbon dishes and salad bowls received recently, were exhibited in the room. The evening's entertainment took the form of carpet bowling, six teams with five players in each team vieing with each other for first place. Miniature bagatelle games also proved an enjoyable sport. Mr. D. Leether was master of ceremonies. The prize winning team for bowling was composed of Mr. G. Anderson (skip) Mr. F. Dorrell, Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. C. Cole. The consolation prizes went to the team with the lowest scores, composed of the following: Mr. A. Thomas (skip), Mr. J. Adamson, Mrs. R. King, Mrs. W. Farr, Miss M. Sims. Refreshments were served by a committee of ladies including Mrs. R. King, Mrs. A. Thomas, Mrs. W. Harrington, Mrs. E. C. Styles.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Whether the family is large or small, someone has to do the catering for it. And this is true whether the food is cooked at home or whether it is provided from some near-by delicatessen shop. The family fare best and at far less cost when the food is home prepared as well as home served. Constant recourse to the food-shop simplifies getting food ready and cooked, but it also makes the table lack the pleasant variety which can be supplied when home-cooking is done.

* * * * * * *

There are two chief items to remember when catering to a family. One is food, the other is thrift. The food should be so bought that it can be served without monotony, and each member have some dishes to his or her liking at every meal. And couple with this the food should be so wisely bought that extravagance is not incurred. This is just management whether a family has ample means or must be penny wise.

* * * * * * *

It is not always luxuries which are responsible for extravagance in food costs. It is the wise use of luxuries and the distribution of them as occasions demand which should be considered. To have foods out of season is not as costly today as a generation ago, but still it is not actually cheap.

* * * * * * *

Where there is a large family or at least one that is not small, it is easier to have variety and everyone have dishes to the liking, than it is when the family consists of two or three. To cater to a fault-finding family is enough to wear the caterer down and a revolt may do good. Insist that someone else does the catering for just one week, go away for a few days, or supply the table from the food shop continuously over a period of a week or more. This will quell criticism, if, and provided, the one who is the caterer really does set a good table.

* * * * * * *

This advice is not for the woman who sets a negligible table. It is usually the case that a poor table is not a cheap one. It is poor because the one who does the catering is not interested in seeing that food is bought thriftily or served well. She probably could set a far better table on the same money if she gave the subject her real attention.

Frocks Look Cool

Left, white linen suit; right, pink chalk crepe jacket frock

BY LISBETH

Summer frocks are cool looking and dainty. No matter what the weather, a well-groomed woman always will manage to keep her frock pressed and herself looking fresh, no matter how warm she may be.

White linen suits will be a sort of uniform for women this summer. One is pictured at the left above—a double-breasted suit with a brown linen blouse dotted with beige and orange—the latest thing, you see—dark blouse with a white skirt and jacket.

The beige straw sailor hat has a brown band and an orange quill. The white kid sandals are coolly perforated, and have the lower heel which suits this type of costume.

Hibiscus pink is the color of this chalk crepe jacket frock, right. The dress has a square neck, and both collar and jacket are trimmed with hand fagotting. The crown of the hat is pink baku, while the navy blue kid pumps match the navy taffeta facing of the brim.

This menu may be prepared with little work. The scalloped potatoes may be replaced by baked, if you wish.

Today's Recipes

Pork Chops, Rice, Tomatoes.—Four large pork chops, one and one-half cups rice, one large onion, one pint tomatoes, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, one-half teaspoon paprika. Brown pork chops in frying pan and place in waterless cooker. Wash rice thoroughly, arrange on chops, place rounds cut from onion on rice, cover all with tomatoes and season. Cook three hours over low fire or in the oven.

Green Pepper Salad—Stuff green peppers with Philadelphia cream cheese to which ground nuts have been added. Cut crosswise in thin slices after letting stand in the ice chest. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing.

Pineapple Refrigerator Cake—Two cups cream, one cup crushed pineapple, stale sponge cake. Whip cream, add pineapple. Line bread pan with sponge cake. Pour in cream and pineapple mixture, cover with another piece of sponge cake and chill in refrigerator several hours.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Fried Cheese Sandwich

A delicious fried cheese sandwich can be made by buttering both sides of the bread and frying in frying pan. Place a small amount of butter in pan first and when melted put sandwich in and fry. Exert gentle pressure on sandwich with pancake turner while frying and fry both sides. Serve at once. junior year, was presented to Miss Aileen Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. WEST SAW HIS DUTY

All players are not as quick to see what they should do as West was. The bidding gave him an excellent picture of the situation, with both sides vulnerable. West's voluntary bid, after his partner had given up hopes of hearing from him, resulted in a pleasant surprise for both partners.

After two passes North did not have the strength in honors or major suits to justify on opening bid, particularly when his side was vulnerable but just the same he made an opening bid of one club. As it turned out East would in any event have made an opening forcing bid, as his hand more than justified such an act, although he, too, was vulnerable.

Bidding continued: East, 2-spades, the same as he would have bid had not North opened; South, 3-diamonds; West would have bid 3-spades had not South bid, as he knew that East would again be heard. West passed; North, 4-clubs; East, 4-hearts; South, 5-clubs; West, 5-spades, ending bidding with a double by South, as he gave credit to his partner for greater quick trick strength than North held. North dared not bid more, which was fortunate for his side, as West was keyed to the point where he would have ventured a small slam had opponents bid higher. He believed in his partner and his own void of clubs.

The opening lead was the natural one of the ace of clubs. Dummy ruffed, scoring first blood. The opportunity was too good not to try a lead of the 9 of hearts. When that card held, North dropping the 7 and South the 2, the declarer credited North with having left the bare K of hearts, but even if he held the K-4 he could be picked up at leisure later on.

Dummy's 6 of spades was led The J won the trick. Dummy ruffed another club, clearing East's hand of that suit and insuring one trick over contract, doubled and vulnerable.

The 10 of spades held the next trick, clearing dummy out of trumps, but making the hand a spread, even if East did not perform that ceremony at once. The declarer was one of the few players who now consider it impolite to spread a hand early in the game. He waited until he had picked up both missing hearts on the next lead, then spread his hand, offering opponents a single diamond trick.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

As I told you several days ago, the charming Norma Shearer is considered one of the most skillful make-up artists in the entire movie colony. Norma's make-up always appears absolutely flawless. She give attention to every single little detail when supplying her cosmetics. And she always gives her eyebrows special care. For Norma believes that the eyebrows have a great deal to do with the expressiveness of the face.

It's a funny thing, but Norma is one of the few cinema sirens in Hollywood who has permitted her brows to retain their natural lines. Jean Harlowe shaves off her eyebrows entirely, and uses an eyebrow pencil. Clara Bow does the same thing. And some of the other stars shave off merely the ends of their brows, in order to pencil in an upward tilt. Norma believes, however, that Nature shapes the brows in the fashion that harmonizes best with the facial features. And so she permits her brows to remain au naturel.

This famous star, however, always keeps her brows neatly plucked. She extracts any stray hairs that make her brows appear unruly. And she is most careful when she uses make-up on them. According to Norma, there are two ways of making up the eyebrows. And each of them is designed for special types of brows.

If the hairs of your eyebrows are long and strong, Norma says, you will get amost natural effect by darkening your brows with an eyebrow pencil. The pencil should not be used to draw a straight line, however. Instead, a series of short, upward-slanting lines should be drawn. Then the brows should be brushed into line with an upward movement. This gives a most natural effect, and tends to give the brows a clear, Garboish arch.

The second method that Norma advocates for making up the eyebrows is with mascara. Take a dampened eyebrow brush, touch it to a cake of mascara, and then brush your brows outward, touching the hairs only lightly. When the mascara has dried, brush the hairs into place. This gives each hair the slightest coating or darkener, and makes it impossible for anyone to detect the fact that a darkener has been used.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

If the cause of angina is due to changes in the arteries which supply the heart with blood and if, as outlined in the article yesterday, these arteries tend to become fewer and to narrow with age much of the treatment of an angina is self-evident. It consists in putting as little strain as possible upon a heart which can no longer rapidly supply itself with nourishment.

The patient who has had one attack of angina, in the words of a well-known American clinician, "Must ever after shape his life in accordance with his narrowed limitations. He should not exert himself unduly and should cease playing golf, tennis or similar active sports. Short business hours and a long post-prandial siesta are very desirable, and a five-day week is an excellent thing for such an individual. If economic conditions permit, the patient should take a winter as well as a summer vacation. Many spend their vacations unwisely. Instead of resting they work just as hard only in a different way."

The use of tobacco the patient himself usually learns to give up. Almost invariably tobacco, especially in the form of cigar or pipe, induces an attack. It is surprising how easy it is in most cases to give up this life-long habit. I remember condoling with a professional colleague of mine, who, like myself, had been a heavy cigar smoker, on the fact that he had to do without his comfort. His reply was, "Clen, if you had the kind of pain I have when I smoke a cigar, you would give it up with praise and thanksgiving."

This does not signify by any means that it is tobacco which originally causes angina, but after the anatomical changes have occurred in the heart and an attack has been precipitated, tobacco frequently induces an attack.

The use of other habitual stimulants, on the other hand, is on an entirely differnt basis. Coffee for these people I believe to be not only harmless, but absolutely beneficial. Coffee increases circulation through the heart muscle, and for that reason is a good thing. In fact, several of the drugs, such as theobromine and metaphyllin, which are used in this condition, are for all practical purposes chemically similar to coffee and similar in their action.

Whiskey and brandy also are actual medicine, beneficial in this disease. Among the first accounts that we have of it, the treatment which is recommended is brandy, and I know at least one patient who has had angina attacks, to my positive knowledge, for over 12 years, whose life, I believe, has been preserved for that time by a fairly regular and liberal use of highballs.

Deaths by drowning of 2,000 persons in England in the last year has started a vigorous campaign for the teaching of children to swim.

Bears Oust Toronto Leafs from Second Place

BEARS SLUG WAY TO 7-3 WIN OVER CHIEFS ON SYRACUSE LOT

Newark Runs Winning Streak to Seven Straight in Only International Game.

GLENN HITS CIRCUIT.

(By The Associated Press)

Newark Bears had run their winning streak to seven games in a row to-day and finally pulled into second place in the International League race, a half-game behind Rochester Red Wings.

In the only league game played yesterday, the Bears slugged their way to a 7-3 victor over Syracuse Chiefs, outsed Toronto Maple Leafs from second place by the slim margin of two points, and dropped Syracuse still deeper into seventh place.

It was strictly "no contest" for seven innings, as the Bears slugged Jimmy McCloskey for four runs in the first frame, added another counter in the fifth and two more in the sixth when Catcher Joe Glenn connected for a home run. While all this firing was going on, young Jack Larocca was holding the Chiefs scoreless.

Break Spell in 8th

Syracuse finally broke the spell with two runs in the eighth when Manager Andy High tripled with two on and broke Newark's shutout record after the Bears had held the opposition without runs for 28 consecutive innings. Larocca survived that rally all right but developed a streak of wildness in the ninth and was removed in favor of Frank Makosky with the bases filled and one man out. Makosky shut off the Chiefs with only one run.

Vince Barton, slugging Newark outfielder, continued his heavy hitting with three singles. Syracuse got only five hits all told.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Properly focusing your attention is half the battle in organizing your mental and physical processes. In this the eyes play a big part.

Very often the player who can't keep his mind on the ball stares at it without even seeing it. Other things hold his interest.

In order to take your mind off other things and keep it on the ball you must be interested in the ball. Surely you have a preference for a certain make of ball or one with a particular marking.

Then, take advantage of this by placing the ball on the tee so that you can read the trade mark or some other mark that you put on the cover.

C.G.E. UPSETS FASHION-CRAFT

Electrics Play Snappy Ball Behind Martin's Twirling to Win 14-10.

30 HITS IN ALL.

A bolstered C.G.E. team surprised Fashion-Craft and a good crowd of fans in a Men's Softball League game last night at Central by knocking off the Clothiers, 14 to 10, in a smart fixture. Playing snappy ball behind steady twirling by Fred Martin, the Electrics pounded two Fashion-Craft flingers for fifteen hits, including two homers that brought in seven runs, and finished strong.

The losers got away to a flying start with five big runs in the first frame on singles by McDougall and Dobson a double by Gardner, and triples by Webb, Gainey and Goodson. They were blanked in the second and fourth but shoved across two more in the third on three bingles and an error. Wiley homered for one run in the fifth, while a walk, two singles and an error gave them another pair in the sixth to wind up their scoring.

Newson tripled and scored on an out in the second for C.G.E. They settled down in the third and pushed six across on seven hits, including Miller's homer with two on, and an error. Nothing happened for them then till the sixth when four were chalked up, a single, two walks and Weese's homer to deep right doing the trick. Two errors, two singles and a walk gave them their final three in the seventh.

Martin kept the losers fifteen hits pretty well scattered after the first inning, while he fanned one and walked one. Herb Grisdale struck out one batter and issued six hits until he retired in the third with Naish replacing him. Ted allowed nine hits the rest of the way in a fair performance, and he struck out six and gave three walks. Fleming, Miller and Sproule for C.G.E. and Gainey for Fashion-Craft turned in some nice fielding. C.G.E. worked two double-plays, one a Fleming-to-Weese-to-Jones and the other by Fleming unassisted. Hope led the winners at bat with three singles in five, while Gainey and McDougall topped the other side's hitters with three safeties each in give times up. The teams:

Fashion-Craft: McDougall, 3b; Gardner, lf; Dobson, c; Wiley, 2b; Webb, rf; Gainey, ss; Clarke, 1b; Goodson, cf; Grisdale, p; Naish, p; Foley, cf; Delahaye, rf.

KLEIN LEADS SLUGGING CUBS

Connects for 12th Homer of Season as Chicago Defeats Phillies 9-5.

GIANTS LOSE BY RUN.

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Phillies forgot something when they sold Chuck Klein to Chicago Cubs. The bill of sale should have contained a clause making it a high crime for him to visit Baker Field again.

For the second day in a row, the great slugger annoyed his former buddies no end as the Cubs, pacesetters in the National League, bombed their way to a 9-5 decision over the Phils yesterday.

He had contributed two home runs and a single to the Cubs' one-sided victory in the opening game of the series Thursday, and yesterday he sailed his 12th homer out of the park with two on in the first inning, and later added a single to help the cause along. His batting average for two days in his old stamping grounds was .714. Klein's homer hurt, of course, but it was circuit driyes by Tut Stainback and Gabby Hartnett that featured the Cubs' six-run drive in the third inning when Ed Holley was driven to cover. With all this hitting behind him, Guy Bush had no trouble rolling to his seventh successive pitching victory.

Pirates Claim Berth

Pittsburgh maintained its hold on second place, driving young Charley Perkins to the showers with a five-run attack in the first inning and winding up with an 8-3 decision over Brooklyn Dodgers. New York Giants found the fourth starting pitcher they've been looking for in the young and left-handed Al Smith, although he failed to win. Poor support by his teammates and the gilt-edged pitching of Benny Frey sent Smith down to a 2-1 beating by Cincinnati Reds, although the youngster allowed only five hits. Boston Braves belted Jim Winford for three runs in the first two innings and turned back St. Louis Cardinals, 6-2.

HOROMETER PRIMED FOR KING'S PLATE

One of Heaviest Favorites Ever Chosen in Running of Famous Canadian Classic.

By DAN BURRITT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, May 19. (CP).—Horometer, R. S. McLaughlin's eventempered three-year-old was primed to-day in an effort to dispel any doubt that may have arisen regarding his chances in the 75th running of the King's Plate at Woodbine Park this afternoon.

Entered with five best three year olds and over that Ontario could produce, the unbeaten Son of Hourless-Star Pal will go to the barrier as one of the heaviest favorites ever chosen in the exclusive feature of Canadian turfdom. Generally selected winter-book favorite, Horometer's popularity increased over-night when he covered the nine-furlong Plate course in 1.54 3/5 to shatter the record of 1.55 1/5 established by R. W. R. Cowie's gallant little filly, Queensway in 1932.

The McLaughlin color bearer, which won easily each of its five starts as a juvenile, staged his spectacular trial just as racing followers were turning their interest on the country. Pitchblende, another three year old that will represent the Cowie stable in the quest for the Royal silverware and 50 guineas from the King, the Ontario Jockey Club has added $7,500 to the value of the race, run continuously since 1860.

TIGERS WIN FOR SECOND TIME AGAINST RAMPAGING YANKEES

Detroit Takes Second Place in American League by Reason of 10-3 Victory.

SENATORS BEAT INDIANS.

(By The Canadian Press)

Meanwhile, the Western clubs of the American League, led by Mickey Cochrane's Detroit Tigers, were giving the East a fine shellacking. The Tigers slugged Red Ruffing and Harry Smythe for 15 hits, including five doubles and a triple, smacked down the proud New York Yankees for the second day in a row, 10-8, and cut the New Yorkers' lead to three games.

St. Louis Brown moved into a virtual tie with Washington and Philadelphia for fourth place, as they tripped Boston Red Sox again, 11-3, battering out 17 hits of which the usual light-hitting Oscar Melillo contributed four. Buck Newsome stopped the Red Sox with eight hits and fanned eight. Joe Cascarella, unbeaten in four games, gave five bases on balls in the first inning, forced three runs across the plate and paved the way for a 5-4 victory for Chicago White Sox. Jimmie Foxx's seventh homer was the first ever hit into the centrefield bleachers at Comiskey Park.

Washington chalked up the only Easterly victory, beating Cleveland, 3-1, behind Southpaw Walter Stewart's neat pitching.

SPYING ON SPORTS

"GOSSIP AND SUCH

THE BASEBALL records reveal many interesting things besides the batting or pitching averages of major league players. For instance, the number of major league players, managers and officials who picked holidays on which to be born is surprising.

Here's the holiday birthdays of the big leaguers with their birth year:

New Year's Day, Jan. 1—Outfielder Ethan Allen, Giants 1904); Pitcher Charley Devens, Yankees (1910), and Infielder Henry Greenberg, Tigers (1911).

Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12—Outfielder George Davis, Giants (1904), and Outfielder Chick Hafey, Reds (1903).

Valentine's Day, Feb. 14 — None.

Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22—None.

April Fool's Day, April 1 — Pitcher Bob Brown, Braves (1911).

St. Patrick's Day, March 17—Pitcher Charley Root, Cubs (1899), and Infielder John Wingfield, A's (1910).

Memorial Day, May 30—None.

July 4—None.

* * *

OTHER HOLIDAY - BORN players:

Columbus Day, Oct. 12—Manager-Infielder Joe Cronin, Senators (1906), and Catcher Rick Ferrell, Red Sox (1906).

Armistice Day, Nov. 11.—Infielder Hal Trosky, Indians (1912); Infielder Rabbit Maranville, Braves (1892, temporarily out of game because of injury, and Harvey Hendrick, Phillies (1897).

Christmas Eve, Dec. 24—Pitcher Lloyd Johnson, Pirates (1910).

Christmas, Dec. 25—Outfielder Ben Chapman, Yankees (1908); Outfielder Joe Moore, Giants (1908), and Pitcher Lloyd Brown, Indians (1904).

New Year's Eve, Dec. 31—Outfielder Dick Porter, Indians (1902), and Pitcher John Pomorski, White Sox (1907).

MORE BIRTHDAY facts:

The Philadelphia Athletics boast the oldest and youngest men in the American League. Manager Connie Mack, the oldest, was born in East Brookfield, Mass., Dec. 23, 1862. Catcher Frank Hayes, the youngest, was born in Jamesburg, N. Y., Oct. 13, 1915. Connie's 71, Frank's 18.

Marvin Owen, Detroit infielder, and Julius Solters, Boston Red Sox rookie infielder, are "twins"—both were born on March 22, 1908. But a continent separated their birthplaces. Owen is a native of San Jose, Cal., while Solters was born in Pittsburg, Pa.

The date of Oct. 15 is a favorite one with ball players. So many have been born on that date. Five of them are Mule Haas (1903), and Evar Swanson (1902), Chicago American outfielders; Sammy Byrd (1907), Yank outfielder; Mel Harder, Cleveland pitcher (1909), and Coach Charley O'Leary, Browns (1884).

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

While Mister K. Lee's lads was scheduled to indulge in a preliminary canter against the boys from Cobourg, south of here, this Sat. p.m., the real big doings is scheduled for next week with the highly flying Grads of Toronto spending Victoria Day in our midst and the Kingston Ponies opening the C.O.B.L. season Sat. next.

Getting a chance to bring the Toronto gang here for the holiday was a real brake for the home fans, for the Grads is 1 of the real classy teams in the Queen City and has already give the Oshawa boys a double trimming. They will be plenty tough opposition for the local talent, and the 2 Victoria Day battles oughta be about as interesting as anything seen here this season. The Grads has plenty of pitching, a fast fielding crew, and they hit the old apple with plenty of gusto, believe you me. The Petes has been getting in a lotta hard work at practice, and they are hopeful of making a good showing against the stars from the big town. You can't afford to miss that holiday bill, neighbors.

And as for the fixture next Sat., well, the Ponies is the opposition, and that is enough to pack the ball park. The Petes and the Kingston crew is about as friendly as Geo. Henry and Mitch Hepburn, and every time and everywhere they clash there's sure to be fireworks. The Ponies is just as chesty as last season, and they figger on getting the edge on the Petes by cracking down on them in the opening battle. Mebbe they will, but they'll know they been in a ball game, brother.

Not much doing this week, old-timer. The Canadian Davis Cup team has been picked, or do you care? Anyway, the boys has had a lotta fun deciding who is going to get knocked off by the Yanks, who in turn ain't got much to look forward to in Europe but a artistic licking by the Aussies or the British.

The big leagues ain't produced much to get excited over during the week, Mac. The weather ain't been kind to the boys and they has been more poker than baseball played round the circuit most of the week. The biggest feat since my last wasn't in the big top at all, but in the main side show, the International, when the Buffalo Bisons slammed out 5 home runs in 1 frame for a new record. Looks like they must be using willow bats and a rubber ball, and if they keep up that kinda thing circuit clouts ain't going to rate a nickel apiece soon.

Well, Mac, I'll be looking for you next week when the boys swing into action. Until then, take keer yerself.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

St. John's Juveniles Nose Out Murray St.

St. John's Juveniles nosed out Murray Street in their Church League game last evening, 14-12, to tie up this section. It was a close, fast game, with smart fielding and good base-running all through. Vollans was the fielding star with Bowler and Chivras of St. John's and Robson and Partington of the other side battling well. The teams:

St. John's—Kent, 1b; Thirnbeck, c; Chivras, p; Bowler, 3b; Jeffries lf; Gibbs, ss; Vollans, rf; Smith, 2b.

Murray Street — Pammett, 2b; Strickland, p; Mortimer, 3b; Robson, c; Hawkes, lf; Foster, 1b; Partington, ss; Campbell, rf; Gillespie, cf.

Umpires — H. Castle and G. Whiteside.

King Edward Takes 19-5 School Victory

King Edward took a 19-5 decision over Queen Mary in a School Softball League game yesterday on the latter's grounds, a big second innings—li which they scored eight—ings—in which they scored eight—the K.E. boys also got five in the third and two each in the first, fourth and fifth. The losers shoved across two in the fourth, two in the sixth, and a lone tally in the seventh. Good twirling and fielding by the South-enders, besides their hard clouting, proved too much for the West-enders. The team:

King Edward — Mackness ss, Murduff cf, Berwick 3b, Castle c, Ridley p 2b, Williams rf, Leggitt 1b, Strickland p 2b, Fine lf.

Touring Aussies Thrill English Cricket Fans

A royal welcome has been the order of the day for the Australian cricket team in England for the test matches for the famous "ashes". Getting into shape for the games, the Aussies have been playing various teams on their tour. Here we see them in their opening match at Worcester against the Worcester cricketers. At TOP, W. M. Woodfull, the Australian captain, is seen hitting out. He made 48 in the first inning. The LOWER picture shows the famous Don Bradman of the team from the Antipodes hitting out. He made 206 before being bowled.

VISITORS WIN BY 72-51 COUNT

Competition Keen Throughout Although Orillia Swimmers Held Wide Margin on Points.

YOUNGSTERS TAKE PART.

A large crowd of spectators enjoyed the swimming exhibition staged last evening in the local Y.M.C.A. pool in which young natators of the Orillia Y.M.C.A. competed with those of the Peterborough "Y." Fifteen events were run off, and Orillia won the meet honors by 72 points to 51. Although the visitors gained a wide margin on points, competition was keen throughout and all races were close.

All the events except two were for younger swimmers, since the Orillia team did not include any seniors. As a result the local senior swimmers displayed their ability in several exhibition races among themselves and gave a smart display of diving.

Officials of the meet were:

Starter, F. French, physical director of Orillia; timer, D A. Loomis; scorer, J. McClenaghan; judges, J. Bennett, H. Robinson, and Dr. C. V. Scott, Orillia.

Manager Jimmy Newson's C.G.E. softballers came to life with a large bang last night and tossed the classy Fashion-Crafts for a 14-10 loss up at Central. 'Twas a swell comeback after a rotten start and the Electrics deserve a lot of credit. They were bolstered considerably by the addition of Bud Weese, Tommy Miller and Jack Hope. In fact the former clouted in seven runs between them with two might homers. We're glad to see C.G.E. in there now with a real ball team that will hustle any crew in the circuit every minute. It means a live-wire loop with every outfit a potential winner. "Iron-Man" Martin, who so far appears to be the Electrics' pitching staff, had real support back of him last eve and won his game.

As for Johnny Russell's team, they didn't lose any prestige by dropping this tussle. They played nifty ball, but just didn't hit in the right spots. And their pitching wasn't perfect. Both Grisdale and Naish will improve. Ted, who by the way is in training for a wedding along about May 24th, hurled good relief ball except for two of the five and a third innings he was on the mound. We thought it was a good softball game, and so did the fans. This was the first game since the season opened to go nine full frames.

There ought to be fun up there Monday night when Brintons and Johnston's Tires tear into each other. These lads don's like each other. In fact, Bert Deck's bunch and the ex-Sugar Bowl bunch were enemies several years ago and every game was a bitter battle, with the insults being passed back and forth. One of the Brinton boys was telling us last night: "We didn't get going the other eevning at all, but just watch up mop up on Deck and the birds he calls a team. Drop around, it'll be a scrap!" And, since we always like fights—as long as we're on the outside—we will accept the invitation and drop around. We don't know the reason for the rivalry, but there it is, no matter what teams the same two crowds play for, Harrison's, Deck's, Johnston's Tires, Sugar Bowl or Brintons.

Softball pitching is harder on a guy than baseball hurling. It just occurred to us that this is a fact. Our attention was drawn to the fact that in the School League games, the pitchers were rarely able to finish a seven-innings game, whereas they used to generally go through the full contest in baseball. And come to think of it, the very motions make it an obvious fact. The softballer has to throw underhand, and must use a snap or jerk to lend speed, without getting his shoulder back of the throw. In baseball, the average twirler uses an easy windup, and lets the ball go overhead or from the side with his shoulder back of it, and the whole motion and delivery marked with rhythm. Watch the two brands of hurling and see if you'll agree with us.

This morning we received a note from one of the 'Big Five' committee of the Church Softball League. It said: "I wonder if the executive of the Girls' League has noticed that the Church League has been using King Edward Park Tuesdays and Fridays for senior and junior games." Being at the gals' session the other night, when they decided to use that diamond those nights for a couple of weeks, we can answer his question and say the executive didn't know about the Church loop being there. They were told they could have the diamond then, no one else using it on those two nights. The two loops should get together on this question and settle it shortly.

Louis Yeotes is getting his "Hit Me" sign at Riverside all decked up. As it wasn't hit at all last season, he had enlarged it now to give home batters—the only ones eligible for the prizes—a chance. Drive a ball in the air that hits any part of the big sign in deep left now and the prize is ten bucks. Hit it on the bounce, or put a ball over it, and five simoleons is the answer. Takes a man-sized clout to hoist the pill over that fence!

Oshawa Dukes play again today, playing Danforths at home. After losing four straight there was trouble in the ranks. The players were disgusted and ready to pull out and the fans quit attending, the club thereby going away in the red. As the Oshawa Times had it: "On Tuesday, the club executive were just about ready to toss the well-known sponge unless they were assured of more co-operative support from all the players." However, the boys have been turning out since for practise, and if they can cop today's tilt, things may turn out all right gradually. If they can't—but why be pessimistic? Incidentally, they hope to protest their last Saturday loss at the hands of Riverdale Grads who used Solly Sone at short, the player having been refused his transfer.

• • • • • • •

That sheet also rambles on in this manner: "Bill Holmes, late of Peterborough and Belleville, was granted permission to play for Oshawa. Holmes is a hurler with a nice turn of speed and he may prove good medicine for the faltering Duke." The hope is wrong on two counts anyway. His name is Ernie, not Bill, and he never was noted for his speed. Ernie was a pretty fair chucker here a couple of years back, but he did not do much with Belleville last year and was dropped unceremoniously at the end of the season. However, he may go okay for Oshawa.

All Saints' Juniors Beaten By St. James'

St. James' Juniors beat All Saints 21-16 in a Church Softball League game last night, scoring fourteen runs in the first two frames. Riley pitched good ball till the fifth but blew up and gave way to Mowry. Worsencroft, Beauclerc, Simmons, Spencely and Smart all hit well. The teams:

All Saints—Webb 3b, Worsencroft lf, Platt ss, Livingstone 2b, S. Seabrooke 1b, Rusaw c, Fisher cf, G. Seabrooke p, Beauclerc rf.

St. James—Heal 2b, English 3b, Mowry ss, p, Ridley p, ss, Leggitt c, McGovern 1b, Grose 1b, Simmons lf, Spencely rf, Smart c.

Grade and Underwood Open Series To-Night

EDMONTON, May 19.—(C.P.) — Edmonton Commercial Grads, women's basketball champions of the world, to-day faced their severest test since defeat in an International series a year ago.

The challengers, with the Underwood International Trophy at stake, are the Spencer Coals of Chicago. The United States' team reached here yesterday and the three-game series opens to-night.

Second game of the series will be played Monday night and the third, if necessary, will be played Wednesday night. Boys' rules — the rules under which the Grads climbed to Canadian supremacy and the Spencer Coals to United States' leadership—will prevail.

JAPAN PREPARING

TOKYO, May 19. (AP).—It was said in authoritative quarters today that Japan is planning to strengthen her air defenses along coast lines near Siberia. Establishment of air squadrons at the Maizuru naval base, western Honshu and the Chinkai naval base, southern Korea, is contemplated, it was understood.

LAWN BOWLING

Herb Martin

At the early winter meeting of the board of management they decided to create a new committee known as the membership committee.

The idea was to try and have a full membership by the 24th of May and with that object in view this committee was formed, with B. Chesler chairman.

So thorough and complete has this committee functioned that they have not only succeeded in getting and filling their full quota of 40 rinks but they have gone one over. This was only done by real hard work and steady plugging and too much credit, for the success of this committee cannot be given to B. Chesler, J. T. Braund, and F. Brown — indeed the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club is greatly indebted to these three gentlemen.

× × ×

The games committee met last night and just about completed their pre-season work. The schedule is about finished and will be in the printer's hands on Monday morning—it it is expected to have these books for the players about May 24th.

MARK ST. BANTAMS WIN SLUGGING BEE

Eastenders Defeat All Saints 24-21 in Church League Tussle.

Mark St. Bantams defeated All Saints, 24 to 21, in a slugging church loop softball fixture yesterday, the win giving the Easterners a tie for first place. It was an exciting game. Craig, Scriver and Agnew were the main Mark St. hitters, with the latter fielding good, too. Hotrum hit hard for All Saints, but the latter's infield was shaky. The teams:

Mark St.—Brady, 3b; Craig, p; C. Ferguson, 1b; Scriver, c; V. Ferguson, 2b; Agnew, ss; Ball, rf; Clarke, cf; Grier, lf.

All Saints'—McDougall, p, 3b; Hotrum, 3b, p; J. Ackford, ss; Abraham, c; Tillcock, 2b; Morley, 1b; R. Ackford, cf; Dale, lf; Caumerick, lf; Bodidson, rf.

PERENNIALS ARE OFFERED FREE

Residents Along Horticultural Society's Drive May Secure Shrubs.

TO BEAUTIFY STREETS

Perennials and shrubs are offered free by the Beautification Committee of the Horticultural Society to residents on the streets of the Society's drive.

"In my travels I have never seen a more beautiful city than Peterborough," Joseph S. Bell told The Examiner this morning, "and because times are not good we should all endeavor to keep the city looking at its best. The effect re-acts on all of us, and creates a favorable impression upon visitors." The committee is able to make this offer to citizens through the kindness of friends of the Horticultural Society, which is continuing to do splendid constructive work.

Citizens along the drive are also invited to apply for the floral vases filled for their roadside front. They are offered to those residents who will take care of them during the season. There is also a beautiful cup to be won by the citizen who makes the greatest improvement during the year along the drive."

Mr. Bell emphasized the fact that the shrubs and perennials and vases are free. The streets comprising the Horticultural Society's scenic drive are mentioned again for the guidance of citizens who may wish to take advantage of this offer — Beginning at the Y.M.C.A. corner, Murray to Water Street, to Hunter to the Lift Lock, south to Eastgate, west to the Locks Bridge to Crescent Street, to Perry, George, Lansdowne, Park, Reid, Sherbrooke, Monaghan Road, Homewood Avenue, Belmont, Weller, Monaghan Road, through Jackson Park, Park Hill Road to Aberdeen Avenue, Benson Avenue, Park Hill Road, Water, north to the Waterworks and Nassau Bridge, cross the river, south past the Golf Links to Nicholls Oval, through the Park to Park Hill Road, Harvey Street, Antrim, Water, McDonnel, returning to the Y.M.C.A.

CAREFUL CHECK ON DEMAND FOR TIRES

Stocks for Car Models During Past Six Years Are Maintained.

This, in the tire industry and the retail tire business, is the year of change. To meet the requirements of the new streamlined cars, Canadian tire manufacturers, such as Gutta Percha & Rubber, Limited, have introduced new low pressure tires. But, at the same time, extensive reconditioning of cars now on the road to put them in shape for the open season on the highways, centres on brisk demand for tires which were standard throughout the motor industry till this season.

Length of Service.

Of the million cars and trucks registered in Canada at the start of the season, notes Albert Head of Gutta Percha, 80 per cent. are reported to have been in service for 4 years or more and 50 per cent. for more than 6 years.

"In view of the situation, we are naturally keeping a careful check to see that the stocks of the tires specified for models which came on the market during the past six years are maintained throughout the country," Mr. Head notes. "At the same time, of course, production of the new low pressure tires, introduced some months ago, is fully launched."

Speed And Wear.

Mr. Head noted that recent surveys had revealed interesting information on the effects of high speed and underinflation on tire wear, particularly tread wear. After 32 miles per hour, there is a very rapid increase in the percentage of tread wear. Four pounds of underinflation on a balloon tire will double the tread wear on 4,000 miles of travel.

Rubber laboratories, Mr. Head said, were keeping pace with all tire and tube requirements through such advances as greater resistance in the rubber used in treads and by built-in shock absorbers of live gum rubber in the tires themselves.

MAYOR MAY RUN IN BRANTFORD

Will Stand if Chosen "By Substantial Majority at Open Convention."

ISSUES STATEMENT.

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 19 (C. P.). — That Mayor M. M. MacBride will be a candidate to contest the provincial riding of Brantford took definite form this morning when, in an interview, he frankly stated he would run if chosen "by a substantial majority at an open convention of the citizens of Brantford." The Mayor's statement reads:

"If the nomination to contest the provincial riding of Brantford is offered to me, by a substantial majority, at an open convention of the citizens of Brantford, properly called and advertised, I will accept it."

Questioned further as to by whom and when such a convention would be called, Mr. MacBride said:

"It has been intimated to me within the last few days that a considerable number of citizens, representative of the Ratepayers' Association, Home Owners' Association, and the Liberal sentiment is desirous of having my name submitted to an open convention to be called in the very near future. In pursuance of my duty to the people of this city, who, it has been my privilege to serve, I shall certainly accept such a nomination if it is tendered to me."

Softball Notes

Game results last week:

Albions, 8; Cogs, 11.
Orioles, 11; All Saints, 9.
Cogs, 20; Orioles, 17.
Nationals, 7. Albions 20.

The standing:

	P.	W.	L.	P.C.
Cogs	2	2	0	1.000
Nationals	3	2	1	.666
Albions	3	2	1	.666
Orioles	3	1	2	.333
All Saints	3	0	3	.000

Games next week: Monday, All Saints vs. Cogs; Wednesday, Albions vs. Orioles; Friday, Cogs vs. Nationals.

The league officials are still looking for the sneak thief who stole the bases and other equipment at noon last Saturday.

In Monday's game, Cogs took Albions for a ride in a nip-and-tuck battle. Todd pitched for Cogs with Cavanaugh the losing hurler. Orioles handed All Saints their third straight loss by coming from behind in the last frame Tuesday. Gardino and Waterman of the Birds were tossed out of the game for arguing with the umps. Cogs looked good Thursday in licking Orioles. Todd took an early lead and pitched good ball to hold it. Waterman was hit hard on the other mound, but also had poor support. Albions, with a makeshift lineup Friday, gave the Nats a real lacing. Wedlock, Scott and Reynolds, hurling for the losers, had poor backing, and Reynolds was the only one to have any luck holding the slugging Albions. Cavanagh pitched good ball for the winners, fanning six.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Aileen Hefferman,
Norwood, Ont.

Your handwriting represents you as one whose thoughts associate themselves in meticulous order, out of which you form your plans. You belong to the professional business type. Your power to disseminate good from worthless is greatly appreciated by those who know you. Eloquence is noted in your writing and you are proud of this attribute. You are magnetic and energetic. You are musical and a fastidious dresser. Your good humor and ready wit make you quite popular with the opposite sex. Regarding your question about nursing I should say that you had chosen the correct vocation, and now that you know what you want to be, it will be easy for you to study accordingly. You have one of the most fortunate numbers for this line of work. Twenty-two, this creates inspiration and sympathy. Your birthsign also is in keeping with your chosen profession, Cancer the Crab. It also carries out the delineation of your writing, for it expresses eloquence of speech. You are ruled by the Moon. February and September are your best months. Monday your lucky day.

Josephine Hefferman,
Norwood, Ont.

Your writing has quite a lot of character for one of your age, and I hope you will continue to develop it as you grow older. Of course you must expect a certain amount of change to take place in your writing after you have been out of school for a while, because that is the time when you develop an individual character in writing. However, keep up the good work, and I feel sure you will find happiness and contentment. Your imagination is very good, so you will not experience much difficulty in wondering how to pass the time. The stately 'J' of yours illustrates an upright carriage and poise, this would lead one to believe that you enjoy anything which pertains to physical culture, and if you have not indulged in this pleasant and helpful pastime, it would be an excellent thing for you to commence as soon as possible. I suggest the Y.W.C.A. for this, because as you know, a sound body means a sound mind. You have a number three to help you along for luck, and you might enjoy working out the numbers of your friends, and if their number is an odd one like yours, you will get along nicely. Your birthsign is Pisces the Fishes. You are ruled by Neptune. May and June are lucky months. Saturday your best day.

W. Bud Darcy,
635 Charlotte St., City.

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis describes you as one who is ever seeking praise for work well done. You are diligent and intelligent. You are progressive and capable of managing the advertising side of large business concerns in such a way so that through your work in the interest of the business great success will be realized. You are interested in music and physical culture but do not care to expend too much in favor of either. Those expressive flourishes of yours illustrate a characteristic which tell of impatience, and they seem to portray the tendency to be the Jack of all trades and master of none. You can be master of one definite business if you se your mind to it and concentrate upon business above all else for while. You see 'Romance' will have to be put on the shelf, if you desire material success, and also without the success, you would of necessity have to put romance aside. You have expensive tastes, and if you wish to cater to them, you have to earn the money with which to supply your needs, unless you have a fairy godmother to assist you. I do hope that you good humor will come to your aid as you read this, or you won't think much of graphology, because of its truthfulness. Those downstrokes of yours reveal a great deal of driving force, but that is not exactly will-power is it? It is a certain something which leads on, and encourages you to think you are doing the right thing, simply because you want to do it. You seem to be restless, and fond of travel or getting about, but even at that it must be in comparative comfort. You should be musical too, but I am inclined to think that this is merely one of your many vocations. You are highly intelligent, and seem to be better mentally equipped than physically. This causes versatility, and makes you wonder what it is all about. I am sorry, if you wrote before and did not receive an answer. Perhaps you forgot to give your correct address, if so the reason is obvious. Letters will not be accepted unless correct name and address is inscribed. Your number is eight, a splendid business number. April and August are your best months. Your sign Gemini the Twins, ruled by Mercury. Friday the best day.

CHINESE COOLIES ON STRIKE

On this date, in 1881 there was a lively time at Yale, B.C. Two thousand Chinese coolies, who had been brought in by Andrew Onderdonk, the contractor for the Pacific section of the C.P.R. suddenly quit work, demanded higher pay and better food, and when that was refused formed up into columns and marched down on the little town determined to wreck it in their search for food. As has been so often the case the trouble was precipitated by "American agitators." While the majority of the Chinese had been brought direct from China, under strict supervision and guarantee that at the termination of their contract they would be returned to their homes, there was a number who had been working on railways in the States to the south and who had acquired a little more knowledge of the white men's ways than those fresh from Asia.

The situation looked desperate for a time. The coolies were not demonstrative; most of them marched along in silence, hoping for the best; a minority shouted and sang defiance to the bosses and threatened all sorts of trouble unless their demands were met. The women and children in the town were speedily shut indoors; the men abandoned their daily work and enrolled under police supervision to defend the town. There was a little fighting and scuffling as the town was entered, but there were no firearms visible among the Chinese and it did not take the police very long to put the fear of Canadian law into the raiders. The contractors and the magistrates finally persuaded the men to go back to work on the promise that the food would be improved and a bonus was offered to such as performed more than the previous share of work.

That was all the Asiatics wanted. There was no more trouble; Yale was uninjured save for some wrecking done by white hoodlums who took advantage of the situation. One wonders whether the fact that the first locomotive from the C.P.R. had arrived at Yale a few days before had anything to do with the trouble. It was the first engine many of the Chinese had seen; perhaps they look upon it is a labor disturbing element!

Shortness of Breath Weak, Sinking Feelings

If going up stairs, climbing hills, walking too far; if the least exertion causes you to stop to get your breath, or if you have weak, sinking feelings, it is time for you to stop and think as to the cause of your trouble.

What you should do is take a course of Milburn's H. & N. Pills. They tone up and strengthen the vital organs so as to prevent any harmful attacks of disease.

For Monday, May 21

Monday's astrological forecast is for a sudden and quite unexpected upheaval of current affairs, and while this abrupt visitation may ultimately bring about progressive and prosperous conditions, yet attendant are many prior adverse situations to be discreetly manipulated or wisely adjusted by personal acumen and the aid of wise counsel.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of the sudden precipitation of events and circumstances that may revolutionize the life.

A child born on this day may be original, independent, adventurous and unsettled. Success in higher research or unusual fields is shown.

GEORGE STREET SOCIETY WINS PLAY CONTEST

Young People's Societies From Three United Churches Present Plays.

WINNING PLAYLET 'BREAD.'

A dramatic competition of one-act plays in which three of the Young People's Societies of the United Churches of the city took part, was staged last evening in the concert hall of George Street United Church, before a very appreciative audience. The Rev. J. E. J. Millyard acted as chairman.

The contest was won by the Young People's Society of George Street Church, with their splendidly-enacted little drama of rural and domestic life, "Bread."

Taking part in the competition were young people from George Street, Trinity and St. James' United Churches, with two plays each scheduled for George Street and St. James', and the first act of their recent three-act comedy drama success, "Meet Uncle Sally," as Trinity Church's contribution to the entertainment of the evening. But, through a misunderstanding, the judges, who had retired prior to the commencement of the contest, to deliberate on procedure, did not return until the final curtain was falling on the first offering by St. James' Church, a one act play entitled "Ghosts." So St. James' members, instead of repeating their first entry in the contest, allowed their second entry to stand alone, and George Street members contented themselves with one offering.

The judges were Mrs. L. J. Pettit, E. V. Morphet and F. G. McNeely.

The cast of the winning playlet, "Bread," which is a powerful, brief sketch of life, with an underlying message that was well brought out by the actors, is as follows: Russell Lewis, as John Curtis; Miss Mary Square, as Martha Curtis; Miss Dorothy White, as Grandma; Miss Ariel Wildman, as Stella; Miss Mary Burnham, as Betty; Kenneth McKee, as Jim. Director, Mrs. C. S. Thompson.

The first act of "Meet Uncle Sally," the offering by Trinity's Young People, an affair that brought plenty of mirthful appreciation from the watchers, so entertaining is its comedy and so well was it done by the players, includes the following: Max Clarke, as Ben Blayne; Miss Addie Wright, as Betty Blayne; Miss Edna Forster, as Jenny; Miss Jessie Tully, as Sally Sherwood; Malcolm Latimer, as Bob Durant; Bill Panjoy, as Snorkins; Miss Mabel Ferguson, as Elaine Durant; Miss Nellie Boorman, as Aunt Dorinda. George Nicholls directed.

Bible Story

St. James' Church play, "In Quest of Treasure," was a very interesting and somewhat unusual offering in the range of one-act playlets. It was enacted with dignified solemnity suitable to the character of the story, which is based on the Bible tale of Naaman, the leper, and his healing by the Prophet Elisha. The costumes were elaborately designed and appropriate to the theme.

The cast included the following members: Ernest Davis, as Naaman; Miss Jean Hammond, as Naaman's wife; Stanley Church, as the prophet Elisha; Jack Higgins, as Gehazi; Miss Lillian Baldry, as the serving maid; Earl Wood and Stanley Leggott, as Naaman's attendants.

Three brief scenes outlined the story.

The first play presented by St. James' Church Young People, which was later withdrawn from the contest, was entitled "Ghosts," and was a 'spooky' piece also done in a trio of tiny scenes.

Members of the cast included Stanley Leggott," as Andy; Earl Wood, as Carl; Jack Huggins, as Dan; Stanley Church, as Bob; Miss Alberta Frost, as Jean; Miss Muriel Moorhouse, as Mildred.

During intermissions incidental piano music was played by George Nicholls and a piano duet was rendered by Miss Dorothy White and Miss Grace Pitman of Stirling.

CITY TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS FOR ARREARS OF TAXES CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

TO WIT:

BY VIRTUE OF A WARRANT issued under the hand of the Mayor and the Seal of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, bearing date the 19th day of September, 1933, and to me directed, commanding me to levy upon the several parcels of land, hereinafter described for arrears of taxes due thereon, together with all lawful costs and charges in connection therewith, I hereby give notice that unless the said arrears of taxes and costs be sooner paid, I shall, pursuant to the Provisions of The Assessment Act, at the City Council Chamber, in the City of Peterborough, on the 26th day of June, 1934, at the hour of Ten o'clock in the forenoon, proceed to sell, by public auction, the said lands or so much thereof as may be necessary to discharge such arrears of taxes and all lawful costs and charges in connection with such sale.

RADIO COMMISSION IS CHARGED WITH DISORGANIZATION, STUPIDITY

Former Employe of Commission Appears Before Parliamentary Committee.

DID GROUND WORK.

OTTAWA, May 19 (C.P.)—Disorganization within the Radio Commission, with chaos resulting from divided authority and "stupidity" was emphasized before the parliamentary committee on radio by E. A. Weir here yesterday. Mr. Weir, at one time director of radio for the Canadian National Railways, had been engaged by Hector Charlesworth, chairman of the commission, as director of programs. Subsequently Mr. Weir was displaced.

Thanking the committee for the opportunity of appearing before it, Mr. Weir declared his doing so was not a matter of personal choice nor "primarily to vent displeasure over the treatment I have received at the Radio Commission's hand." He believed, however, that the administration of the commission "has been inefficient and stupid, and if continued under present methods and set-up will ruin, beyond recovery, the whole project of public-service broadcasting."

Mr. Weir told the committee how, at the urgent request of Mr. Charlesworth, he had joined the commission in Nov. 1932, at a promised remuneration of $6,500 and with the definite assurance of Mr. Charlesworth that he would receive a permanent appointment. In various memoranda he submitted to the commission a course of action designed to get that body started in an organized way.

He had conducted negotiations with the transmission companies for wire services to carry programs across Canada and made other arrangements of an economical character designed to produce a maximum of service.

1932 Christmas Broadcast

Mr. Weir was responsible for the Christmas broadcast of 1932, he said. This was so successful that it gave a great fillip to the commission which, if followed up, could have been profitably exploited by that body. However, nothing was done to consolidate the position the commission then achieved and the spirit of public goodwill then generated was dissipated, said Mr. Weir.

All matters relating to appointments had to be left until the return of Col. W. A. Steel, one of the commissioners, from Europe.

Shortly after the return of this official, in Jan. 1933, Mr. Weir was informed that responsibility for program direction would be divided with Arthur Dupont of Montreal handling the east and Mr. Weir assigned to the West. Mr. Charlesworth himself then took over the title of director of operations.

On this point, Mr. Charlesworth had told him, continued Mr. Weir, that "the arrangement is merely nominal. You will be actively in charge of operations. You will really direct all networks, both eastern and western, reporting directly to me." Mr. Weir regarded that arrangement as unsound.

"I never could have meant anything because he (Mr. Charlesworth) could not possibly have discharged, nor could he have been expected to discharge, the functions of such a position. I was told there was to be no publicity about this change and obviously outsiders would have recognized at once its stupidity."

The whole thing was a fictitious set-up, "planned deliberately by Mr. Maher (another commissioner) and Col. Steel to jockey me out of my place, after I had given the commission invaluable information by which to get under way before I had had time to get really started on program organization," said Mr. Weir. "I believe it had already been determined, although the chairman was not aware of it, that I was to be eliminated, but not until a lot of preliminaries had been disposed of."

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Butter eased slightly on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter, in cartons or less, declined ¼c at 20¾c to 21c a pound. To retailers solids were 22c and prints 23c a pound. Receipts were 221 boxes.

Eggs were firm; graded shipments in cartons from the West sold at 20c a dozen for A-large, 19c for A-medium, 18c for B and 16½c to 17c for C. A total of 4,120 cases arrived. To retailers eggs in cartons were advance a cent a dozen.

Ontario colored cheese remained unchanged at 9½c a pound with offerings amounting to 908 boxes.

Potatoes were steady, Quebecs per 80-pound bag selling at 85c. New Brunswick Mountains per 80 pound bag at 90 cents and Prince Edward Island Mountains per 90-pound bag at $1.05 to $11.10.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 19. — Futures prices took a dive on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, influenced mainly by a big jump in wheat exports from Argentina, and the possibility of showers in North American spring-wheat areas. The day's decline amounted to 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents.

Most of the pit operations appeared to be local, with tired holders liquidating, and a little wheat coming out from the big longs. Foreign demand amounted to 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat for export, but this was not broad enough to be an important market factor.

Closing quotations were at or near bottom levels, with May resting at 68¾ cents, July at 69¾ cents, and October at 71⅝ cents.

A moderate export business in oats featured the cash and coarse grain markets, while prices slipped off in sympathy with declines in wheat.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Wheat suffered a decided setback in price late yesterday as a result of increased selling led by houses with connections east, but corn values gained.

The enlarged selling of wheat was attributed in considerable measure to notice taken that brought menace to crops northwest had failed to attract big public buying of a sustained character. Furthermore, reports were at hand that the United States 1934 wheat harvest would begin in Texas next week, with Texas promptly furnishing 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels to replenish the domestic breadstuffs supply or for shipment overseas.

Wheat closed weak at the day's lowest level, 1⅞c-2¼c under Thursday's finish, corn unchanged to ⅛c higher, oats, ¼c to 1c down, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 7c.

Death!

NEW YORK, May 19.—(CP).—Death is a marble, rolling on the street. . . .

William Abel, only six, pursued his "giassie" onto the pavement yesterday. It rolled under a concrete mixer. The operator of the mixer, not seeing the child, pulled a lever, the hopper descended. . . .

Death is a bird. . . .

Mrs. Margaret Cross was watching a sparrow. A cat pounced upon it. The sight so unnerved Mrs. Cross that she took a few drinks, to forget. Drinking, she delayed getting dinner for her cab driver husband, Alexander. There was a quarrel, their marriage license, neatly framed, was torn from the wall, and became a weapon that struck her down. The police, at any rate, say that is how she was killed and why her husband is held for homicide. . . .

Death is $1. . . .

With $1, Eugene Ruggiero, 16, bought a canoe. Two friends, Vincent Ruggiero (a cousin) and Salvatore Solona, went with him for a ride last night. The canoe upset. Eugene swam ashore. The others were drowned. . . .

Death is a wheel, turning, crushing. . . .

Nine-year-old Robert Meafee, hitching a ride on a trailer, slipped and fell. His little body was directly under the wheel, turning, crushing. . . .

Obituary

MRS. ADAM McGARVEY

MARMORA, May 19. (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Mrs. Adam McGarvey took place on Friday afternoon, service being conducted at St. Paul's Anglican Church by the rector, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. Interment was made in the family plot in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

The pallbearers were T. E. Potts, W. R. Linn, G. Wellman, R. E. Bonter, T. E. Warren and D. Shannon.

MRS. WILLIAM VANDERVOORT.

HAVELOCK, May 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Catherine Loucks Vandervoort, wife of Mr. William Vandervoort, whose death occurred here on Tuesday morning at 8.20, was held from her late residence, Alexander Street, on Thursday afternoon, and was largely attended.

Mrs. Vandervoort, who was in her 58th year, was born at Thurlow Township, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sandford Loucks. Besides her husband, she leaves a family of two daughters, Mrs. W. R. Phillips (Mae) of Campbellford, and Mrs. Alex. Cuthbertson (Blanche) of Madoc. She also leaves one sister and one brother, Mrs. Julian Carter of Renfrew and Mr. A. Loucks of Cannifton.

The funeral service was held at the house, Rev. S. A. Kemp of Havelock United Church in charge. The text was taken from the fourteenth chapter of St. John, the first and second verses: "Let not your heart be troubled—I go to prepare a place for you." The speaker described the beauties of the 'House of many mansions,' and the consolation of the bereaved family who have the promise of Jesus, Who asks only that we believe and trust in Him. How fleeting is the life in this world, compared to the life eternal where sorrow and partings will be no more."

Members of Havelock Dorcas Rebekah's Lodge 96, of which the deceased was a valued member until failing health compelled her to forego all community activities were present in a body, and held a brief service at the graveside. A sprig of evergreen, "emblem of the life eternal," was cast into the grave, while each member in turn spoke the last farewell over the departed member.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Edward Fennell, Ernest Seeney, Dave McAdamson, Robert Crawford and Clarence Waymark of Havelock and Ernest Haig of Campbellford.

Many beautiful floral tributes spoke eloquently of the love and esteem in which the deceased was held.

Among those from a distance who were present at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. D. Coyle, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. James Coyle, Mr. Harry Coyle and Mrs. Elliott of Colborne, Mrs. Allan Latta, Sidney; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Prentiss, Frankford; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Loucks and Mrs. Clarence Copeland, Cannifton; Mr. and Mrs. Julian Carter and Mrs. George Smith of Renfrew, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Cotton of Sulphide, also a large number of friends from Campbellford and vicinity.

VOTE TO MEN IN HIGHWAY CAMPS SURPRISE TO VICTORIA LIBERALS

Expect 200 Workers Engaged Filling Ditches on Whitby-Lindsay Road.

SERVICE MEDALS GIVEN.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LINDSAY, May 19.—Considerable consternation prevails in the Liberal ranks in the riding of Victoria and Haliburton over the announcement that the workers in the construction camps in the north may be given the privilege of voting in this riding in the approaching provincial elections. Wile nothing of an official nature has been given out by the Electoral Board, it is stated in well informed circles that the men will be accorded this privilege. There are over two thousand men working on the different roads in the north—many of them from different points in the riding. Such a move would add greatly to the voting strength of the riding. The Liberals did not figure on this possibility. One prominent Liberal stated yesterday that if any number of these men were added to the voters' list it would undoubtedly make the result of the coming contest very uncertain.

The Examiner was informed yesterday by a highway official that some ninety men were at present engaged in this district straightening the curves in the highways, filling in ditches, etc. He further stated that during the course of the next few days some two hundred men would be engaged in this work.

Hon. Mr. Finlayson, it is announced, will make a tour of inspection of the construction camps in the northern part of Victoria as well as in Haliburton County.

Lieut.-Col. R. I. Moore, O.C. Victoria and Haliburton Regiment, on behalf of the Minister of National Defence, Thursday night made the presentation of long service medals to three members of the regiment. The recipients were: C.S.M.F. Pullen, C.S.M.. P. Wilson and Q. M. Sergt. W. Smith. These men saw service in the late war.

The death took place yesterday of Mrs. James Dean, who has been a resident of Lindsay for thirty-six years. The deceased was a daughter of the late R. Arnott, of Manvers. Her husband was widely known throughout the Midland district as a phrenologist. She is survived by three sisters, one daughter, Mrs. C. Keenan, of Oshawa, and one son, Roy, of the Spectator staff, Hamilton.

Rt. Wor. Sister Wright, Grand Mistress of the Orange Lodge of Ontario East, of Peterborough, Rt. Wor. Bro. Ritchie, Deputy Grand Preceptor of the R.B.P. and Rt. Wor. Brother Porter, P.G.M., R.B.P. also of Peterborough were in town Thursday night. They were guests at the anniversary banquet of the local L.O.B.A. in St. Andrew's Sunday School room.

Chief of Police Irwin, of Fenelon Falls, is investigating a mean act of vandalism, and is in hopes of apprehending the guilty parties. The summer residence of Miss May Potts, at 'Sunny Brae Farm' on the Rosedale Highway was broken into and the contents thrown about in general disorder. Fruit, etc. had been carried from the cellar, and many articles are reported missing.

Dr. McPhee Resigns As Omemee Manager

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, May 19. — A meeting of the Omemee football team was held recently. Due to pressure of business the present manager, Dr. McPhee regretfully tendered his resignation from the club. No one was appointed to take his place but W. Prince and D. Hayes were appointed to pick a team for May 24th. The members will attempt to find a new manager in the meantime.

A large score board was presented to the Athletic Commission by the Imperial Tobacco Co., and will be erected on the grounds immediately.

Hard hats, special boots, knee pads and padded gloves are being introduced by a coal mining company in Scotland to decrease the number of accidents in the mine.

NEWSPAPER MEN AREN'T CYNICAL

People talk as if all newspaper men were cynical.

Well, I've been in this business since the war, and I have met very few cynical newspaper men. I have met some cynical gentlemen who were working on newspapers, but they weren't newspaper men, and it wasn't long before they got off the paper and into something else where they thought they could earn more money.

I've never met an "average newspaper man" either. Nor any "typical newspaper men."....And I've known but one newspaper man who was like the fellows you encounter in books, or used to see on the stage before newspaper men began to get their plays produced....Most of the newspaper men you read about are writing a book. I've known a few who have written books, but I don't know any now. Somehow or other the newspaper life has never been what fiction led me to think it would be....It's quite different—and better.

But about that cynicism business. ....The dictionary tells you that cynicism means a snarling, currish point of view toward life. And that the cynical man is one who believes all of our actions are dictated by self-interest. It's true that in newspaper work a man does encounter great crowds of people who are like that. After all, he's on a paper and he's likely to meet many people who want publicity, want to see their names in print. So he becomes rather wary of the average run of people. But eventually he gets so he can spot the "publicity hound" almost immediately; and he doesn't become cynical all over. He is merely cynical toward that type, not toward everybody.

After all, cynicism doesn't develop from living with people and getting close to their hearts in joy or tragedy. The cynical man is almost always one who hasn't been square with himself. (I mean the older cynic, not the spry young fellow.) Somehow he has failed, he hasn't kept his promises. He has hurt other people, he has denied their dreams and his own. And cynicism is his self-made defense, not against the world, but against himself. He wears the prickly, burning shirt of Nessus of his own choice, but he blames you for it. His self-pity has curdled within him....And you don't find many such cynics in a newspaper office. Ask any newspaper man if this isn't the truth.

AMERICAN TOURIST IS BURNED TO DEATH IN AUTO CRASH

PROBABILITIES.
Fresh south-east winds; partly cloudy and warm to-day and on Tuesday, with showers and thunderstorms.

The Peterborough Examiner

HOME EDITION

VOL. LXXII., No. 119 | PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, CANADA, MONDAY, MAY 21, 1934 | PRICE THREE CENTS

$10,000,000 FIRE CHICAGO STOCKYARDS

AS CHICAGO TOOK MORNING AFTER LOOK AT RUINS.

Scenes like this were viewed by early risers in the packing house district of Chicago following the most disastrous fire in the history of the city since the great conflagration of 1871, and which caused an estimated damage of $10,000,000. The view (at the right) was taken looking west on the ruins of the Armour offices and the gutted Live Stock Exchange, shown to the right in the photo. At the left, the ruins of Dexter Pavilion, scene of many horse shows and live stock expositions of international repute, are shown here. Fifteen hundred persons were injured in the blaze, which for a time threatened to sweep the city. Two thousand were left homeless.

WOMAN KILLED SECOND NJURED, BAKERY BLAST

Explosion Roars From Toronto Oven Door as Employee Approaches.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

Companion Rushes Victim to Hospital—Probe is Started at Once.

TORONTO, May 21. (CP).—One woman was killed and one injured seriously when the bake oven in a downtown restaurant exploded early to-day.

The dead woman is Mrs. Edith Brown and the injured, Mrs. Minnie Eadie.

Neither police, firemen or owner of the establishment were able to account for the cause of the gas blast, investigation was started immediately.

Mrs. Brown, an employee at the establishment, was walking towards the oven which she had lighted a few minutes before when the blast roared from te metal door and the flames struck her in the face

Coming from the adjoining dressing room, Mrs. Eadie approached the oven when the blast occurred. She was only a few yards away and saw the other woman fall as flames seared her face. Mrs. Eadie was burned only slightly. She dragged the unconscious woman to the door, commandeered a passing motorist, and rushed her to hospittal. She died a few minutes later.

STORE IS LOOTED BY LONE BANDIT

Ties Manager, Employee Sandwhich Brewers' Warehouse at Opening Hour.

ESCAPES WITH $600.

SANDWICH Ont., May 21 (CP)—A lone bandit held up and robbed the Brewers' Warehouse at the corner of Ranking Boulevard and Wyandotte street late this morning.

He escaped with $600 after tying up the manager of the store and another employee.

The man is described as being from 27 to 28 years old.

He was seen standing in front of the warehouse this morning waiting for the doors to open. He was carrying a carton in which were some empty bottles.

When the store manager opened the door, the bandit walked in and placed the carton on the counter. Then he drew a black automatic pistol and told the manager and the warehouse assistant to "put them up.

Tying up both employees, the bandit scooped up $600 in cash, walked out the door, and escaped.

$34.93 GOLD AT LONDON.

MONTREAL, May 21 (C.P.).—The fixed $35 Washington price for gold amounted to-day to $34.93 in Canadian funds. The London gold market was closed owing to the Whitsuntide holiday.

Big Hearted

MENOMINEE, Mich., May 21 (CP)—Russell Nelson is so big-hearted that it gets him into trouble.

He was released from jail a few days ago after serving a short term for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

But then he returned, the State charges, to visit his pals—and to treat them to some whisky he smuggled into the jail.

So now he awaits disposition of his smuggling case.

FINANCIAL SCANDAL.

Sentenced to Three Years, Along With Jarvis and C. R. Matthews.

STRATFORD, Ont., May 21 (CP)—Peter Smith, one-time Ontario Provincial Treasurer in the United Farmers' Government of Hon. E. C. Drury, died here to-day at the age of 56. He suffered an attack of heart disease.

Mr. Smith, widely known political figure of a decade ago, was a United Farmers' member of the Ontario Legislature for South Perth from 1919 to 1923. He served only one term in the Legislature. He was defeated in the 1923 election by 43 votes.

Previous to his election to the Legislature he had been Clerk of Downie Township from 1910 to 1911. He served a second term in that office from 1914 till 1920.

He was noted as a cattle breeder and his farm was considered one of the show places of this district.

Financial Scandal

Mr. Smith, a native of this city, was involved in a financial scandal arising from the purchase during the Drury regime of securities of the Provincial Securities Company and those from other sources in a manner which entailed loss to the Provincial Treasury.

Your Evening Smile

NOT HIS KEY

The miserable-looking man shook his head sadly.

"See that plot of land over there?" he said to his companion. "Last year I could have bought it for a mere song. It's now worth over $20 a foot."

"I suppose you couldn't sing?" said his friend lightly enough.

The other gazed vacantly at the land.

"H'm" he sniffed "I could sing all right, but I couldn't get the right notes."

1,500 INJURED BLOCKS RAZED IN HOLOCAUST

Dozen Major Buildings Wiped Out—Scores Left Homeless.

ONE BODY FOUND.

Army of 2,200 Firemen Battle Blaze—Cause Unknown.

CHICAGO, May 21 (C.P.).—Live stock poured into the Chicago Stock Yards to-day despite Saturday's disastrous fire which injured some 1,500 persons and caused property damage estimated from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000.

"Business as usual" was the slogan of stockyards officials, as workmen set about to clear away the charred ruins for the rebuilding with improvements of the district, approximately one-eighth of a square mile.

Man's Body Found

The charred body of a man was found in the ruins to-day as crews of workmen groped through the debris preparing the way for rebuilders.

Through acres of hot ashes, into heaps of bricks, skeletons of old landmarks and twisted steel girders the explorers dug, hunting valued documents and property that might have survived the holocaust, and hoping the loss of human life would not grow.

The one known victim was a man about 70, initials on his belt buckle leading to his tentative identification as Isaac Means, a stockyards worker. One other death was attributed indirectly to the disaster: Walter Burnfield, 33, who dropped dead of excitement as he watched the flames.

The cause of the blaze, which levelled scores of private homes, several flat buildings and more than a dozen major structures, including the International Amphitheatre, home of the International Stock Shows, was undetermined. Some investigators, including O. T. Henkle, general manager of the stock yards, said they were convinced the conflagration had its origin in a carelessly tossed cigarette.

Henkle said he did not believe there was any truth to reports that the holocaust was the outgrowth of labor troubles.

2,200 Firemen in Battle.

Fire Chief Michael Corrigan, the leader of an army of 2,200 fire fighters who succeeded in checking the flames only after scores of them had been injured, said that spontaneous combustion might have been the cause. Another theory suggested a spark from a locomotive.

Chief Corrigan said he feared for a while that the flames would reach Lake Michigan.

"When I arrived at the Yards the fire had gathered terrific force," he said. "It was coming towards us so

KAISER FEARS NEXT EMPEROR OF GERMANY WILL BE ADOLF I.

Hitler Blocks Every Move Made by House of Hohenzollern.

FAMILY RE-UNION

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Copyright by Central Press Canadian and The Examiner.

PARIS, May 21. — His Majesty Wilhelm II. is passing sleepless nights of late with the thought that the next German kaiser may not be a Hohenzollern, but somebody by the name of Adolf I. of the house of Hitler. The reassurances on the score by the crown prince, who has been to Doorn to put his father's mind at ease, have not the slightest effect. Ever since a couple of million storm-troopers swore blind and unswerving obedience to the Nazi Fuebrer, the ex-kaiser has been in a state of alarm. Wilhelm had figured to be back in Berlin within a year after Hitler's accession to power and fully counted on a grandiose welcome-home reception on the part of the German people. More than a year has elapsed now, though, and the idea of a royal Hohenzollern restoration seems further removed from the minds of the Nazi directors than at any previous time.

According to the Dutch press, a stormy family council was held at Doorn castle the other day in the course of which the ex-kaiser violently upbraided the crown prince

Parking Tricks

PITTSBURGH, May 21.—(C. P.)—Patrolman George Woods found a car parked on 'no parking' Ross street. As he wrote out a ticket, he found another tag already was on the car.

But examination disclosed that the first ticket was two-weeks old. So the patrolman slipped on the new one.

Four hours later he found the same car on Fifth avenue. The same old tag was there. Again Woods added another.

But he suspects that the motorist has ducked a lot of tickets by using his own.

Vacates House But Leaves Behind 12 Dogs Humane Society Authorities Are Called In

The authorities are faced with a problem.

"Doc Deremo," itinerant salve peddler and "dog fancier" recently decided to vacate the Waterworks Kennels. He hitched up his horse according to The Examiner's information, and removed to Douro Township leaving behind him not less than a dozen dogs of non-descript pedigree.

On Saturday last as a result of a complaint, Dr. Thomas Johnston, V.S., Humane Society Inspector, visited the "kennels." He found a number of hungry dogs, all in good physical condition.

He learned that "Doc Deremo" while having left the dogs behind when he removed to Douro Township, had nevertheless returned on occasions to feed the dogs. None of the canines is tagged and they cannot be allowed to remain where they are at present Thomas Sargeant Humane Society president, intidated.

Mr. Sargent said the prombelem is to be debated to-morrow morning at ten o'clock when a visit will be paid to the "kennels" by himself, along with Dr. Johnston also Reeve Allan B. Mann of Smith Township and Provincial Constable David Sylvester.

Man Feared Drowned Off Wolfe Island

KINGSTON, Ont., May 21 (CP)—Richard Clee, 26, a native of England, is believed to have drowned off Wolfe Island last night. Clee, who went to work for George Puke at Wolfe Island two weeks ago, went out in a small rowboat last night. About 9.30 o'clock his hat and the empty boat were found about 400 yards from shore and no trace has been found of the young man, though search is still being carried on. Clee, it is believed, has no relatives in this country.

FRED PERRY BEATEN.

PARIS, May 21 (C.P.). — Christian Boussus, leading French Davis Cup player, to-day defeated Fred Perry, ace of the English team, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, in a Franco-English team series played as a prelude to the French championships opening on Friday.

A Double Loss

TOPEKA, Kas., May 21.—(CP)—When Fireman Bill Boyd returned from a fire with a red face, he was blushing—but not from hero worship.

While fighting a blaze in a chicken house, he glanced around to see a goat making breakfast of his hat, that had been left on the fire wagon. He made a dash for the headgear, but was too late.

Both hat and chickenhouse were destroyed.

TWO TRAPPED COKE OVEN FIRE

One Dies in Flames, Second Leaps 24 Feet to Ground.

LIKELY TO DIE.

SYDNEY, N.S., May 21 (C.P.).—One man died to-day and a second life was flung into the balance as flames raced through an old wooden structure in Sydney's coke ovens district and trapped three occupants on its upper floors.

Felix Palimento, 50, died in the flames rather than leap 24 feet to the ground. He was dead, burned beyond recognition, when firemen crashed into the bedroom to find him lying across his blazing mattress.

One flight up, Mariano Matellini chanced the jump. A ruman torch, he leaped out of a mass of flame to the sill of his bedroom window. Horrified spectators saw him hesitate a moment, framed in a curtain of fire. Then, with a prayer on his blackened lips, he dropped toward the street, 35 feet below.

Halfway down his body struck a string of telephone wires, bounced upward and then toppled twistingly earthward again. Unconscious when he was picked from the sidewalk, he gained consciousness in a moment and the silent crowd heard his loud prayers as the doctors carried him into an ambulance.

In hospital, doctors held out no hope for his life. Seared by flames, his features almost unrecognizable he lay close to death, suffering possibly also from internal injuries.

In hospital too was Antonio Burrello, a third-floor occupant, who made his way to safety down a fire escape when the fire trapped the other two men. He was injured only slightly about the arms and face.

Truck Hits Bridge Falls 30 Feet, 5 Die

TYLER, Texas, May 21 (C.P.) — Five persons were killed and a sixth was injured seriously to-day when a truck hit a narrow bridge and went off a 30-foot embankment near Carroll, in this county.

The dead:

Troy Pool, 21, son of Jeff Pool, Carroll merchant.

Lloyd Dowell, 22.

Three negroes, Cleveland Griffin Julius and Martina Davis.

Another negro, expected to die was found wandering around about ¼ mile from the scene.

CAR PILES INTO GASOLINE TANKS AT STONEY CREEK

Blast Follows as Gas is Spilled, Enveloping Victim and Wife in Flames.

SWERVED TO PASS TRUCK.

Woman is Rushed to Hospital With Little Chance of Life.

STONEY CREEK, May 21 (C.P.).— Frank Martin, 344 Lewiston Avenue, Ferndale, Detroit, was burned to death and his wife, Lucy, was burned so badly her life is despaired of, when the car in which they were driving crashed into a gasoline tank of a service station east of the Stoney Creek Monument almost at noon to-day. Martin apparently was trying to pass a truck, and meeting an oncoming car swerved into the culvert thence into the tank, which burst into flames.

Mr. Martin was driving along behind the truck when he turned out to pass. As he did so, the truck also turned out to pass a car, which Martin could not see because of the fact that the truck was immediately in front of him. This crowded the Martin car far over to the left side of the road. It was travelling at a brisk speed and the left wheels struck the shoulder, causing the vehicle to swerve against a culvert. It crashed against the cement coping but continued travelling for about 100 yards, invading the yard of a service station.

Explosion Follows

Three gasoline pumps stood in a row, and the first was mowed down by the vehicle. It then struck the second, and there was an explosion and in a moment flames covered everything as the gasoline poured out in every direction. Martin crawled out from the wreck flaming like a torch, shrieking, "Let me die."

Mrs. Martin was also conscious and staggered from the machine. Doctors were summoned but Martin was dead in a few minutes. Mrs. Martin was rushed to the hospital in a very grave condition.

75 BATTLE BUSH FIRI

SUDBURY, Ont. May 21.—(CP)—Seventy-five men today were battling a serious bush fire in Moffat township, near Stupart on the Canadian National Railways.

The blaze which had been burning since Friday got out of control early today and 50 fighters were enlisted here and rushed to the scene by train.

TEN LOSE LIVES ACROSS ONTARIO OVER WEEK-END

Traffic Accidents Kill Five, Two of Victims Being Children.

LAD 13, DROWNS.

Hamilton Woman Hangs Self —Percy Man Suicides With Gun.

(By The Canadian Press)

Traffic accidents took a toll of five lives in Ontario during the week-end, five other lives claimed through other causes. One man died from a self-inflicted shotgun wound and a woman died from hanging. Three children were included in the death list of ten persons.

Thirteen-year-old Frank Zderliuk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Zderliuk of Waterford, drowned in a gravel pit pond when he became frightened and jumped into the chilly waters from a raft which he was attempting to pilot. His body was found by two men who jumped into 20 feet of water to bring it to the surface.

The two other children, Paul Couse, aged 6, and Lenore Spector, aged 5, met their deaths on Toronto streets when struck by motor vehicles. Paul died shortly after being hit by a motorcycle and Lenore was injured fatally by an automobile as she crossed the street.

Another motorcycle mishap claimed the life of 18-year-old Irene Conner of Toronto, who was thrown from the rear seat of a skidding machine and suffered a skull fracture. Sam Willis, driver of the motorcycle, was injured.

Found Shot in Swamp

Search parties spent 24 hours looking for Clarence Yule on his father's farm in Percy Township. They found his body in a swamp, a shotgun beside it, and the side of his face and neck blown away. The Coroner decided an inquest unnecessary.

Mrs. Marion Francis, in ill health for some time, was found dead in the cellar of her Hamilton home, her body hanging to a beam. The body of Mrs. Walter Foote of Galt was taken from a mill race at Paris.

A hurtling auto claimed the life of John Handy of Toronto near New Lowell and injured David Craddock and Harry Leaman, also of Toronto. The machine somersaulted, pinning Handy beneath it. Lehman, seriously injured, managed to walk a mile to New Lowell and obtained help.

A. R. McArthur, 34, of Brantford, lost his life when his car turned over five times near Ancastef. Jack Demille of Brantford was injured seriously.

The tenth victim was Joseph Leviller, 35, who died from an eye injury, suffered when a splinter entered the optic while he was constructing a block floor. The eye was removed but complications resulted in his death.

$35,000 LOSS LUMBER BLAZE

Chalk River Village Escapes Undamaged as Huge Pile Burns.

1,500,000 FEET RUINED.

CHALK RIVER, Ont., May 19 (C. P.). — Fire early to-day destroyed 1,500,000 feet of lumber which was piled along the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks approximately half a mile from the centre of this village. Starting about one o'clock in the morning the flames gained headway rapidly and burned unchecked.

Fortunately there was little wind and the flames confined themselves to the lumber piles. There were no casualties and the village was not harmed in any way. Ownership of the lumber was unknown, although it belonged, according to information obtainable, to Pembroke interests. The fire was practically burned out by five o'clock. The C. P.R. and Dominion forest protective officers were on the scene, but could do little beyond protecting the right of way. No estimate of the damage was available.

Later reports indicated that the loss would be approximately $35,000 partially covered by insurance. Practically the entire village of Chalk River assisted in fighting the flames, but could do little to save the wood which burned like tinder. The reflection of the flames could be seen at Pembroke, 26 miles away. The bulk of the wood burned was white and red pine and spruce.

Horometer Wins King's Plate Classic Before Vice-Royalty

Favorite for many weeks before the race, Horometer, R. S. McLaughlin's fine horse won the 75th running of the oldest horse race in America—the King's Plate, run at Woodbine Park, Toronto. Between 15,000 and 20,000 witnessed the race that saw the smallest field in years face the barrier. Only six horses started, and Horometer did as expected and won by a good five lengths. Speycrest was second and Papalico third. Governor-general the Earl of Bessborough and Lady Bessborough witnessed the race as also did Lieutenant-governor Bruce. The layout shows a section of the huge throng. LEFT, Horometer coming down the stretch well in front. INSET, R. S. McLaughlin as the governor-general presented the trophy. GREAT BATTLE ABOUT TO OPEN ON CHACO FRONT

Bolivians Repulsed as They Launch Surprise "Feeler" Attack.

(By Leonzo Lizieres, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

ASUNCION, Paraguay, May 21.—(AP)—Paraguayan men and guns were thrown into position along a 25-mile front today in preparation for a great offensive against the most important Bolivian stronghold in the Gran Chaco, Fort Ballivian.

Bolivian forces attempted yesterday to commence the long-awaited battle of the Ballivian front— expected to be a desisive climax in the warfare over the Gran Chaco border region.

Well-informed sources believed the expected crucial struggle was interrupted and postponed by the repusion of the 'feeler' surprise attack launched unsuccessfully by Bolivia.

Organizing Is Speeded

As this clash died into sporadic firing, the Paraguayans rushed the organizing of troops and accumulating of arms and munitions for use in the general offensive against Fort Ballivian.

After sweeping over all Bolivian forts throughout the Chaco, the Paraguayan high command has fast and the air was so hot no human could stand in its way.

"We tried to cut off the fire within the Yards, but every few minutes I would have to give the orders to uncouple and move back. I kept in communication with division marshals by messengers. Men were rushed to the roofs of buildings in the path of the flames to wet them down. Our job was to build a water curtain in front of the oncoming wall of fire, and this what we did."

The prolonged dry weather added to the handicap of the fire fighters.

40 Per Cent. Pens Destroyed

In addition to the International Amphitheatre, 40 per cent of the livestock pends were destroyed, as were the Livestock Record Building, the Livestock National Bank, the Stock Yards Inn with its well-known Saddle and Sirloin Club—all the property of the Union Stock Yards Company; the Drovers' National Bank Buildings, and the Drovers' Journal Building with its radio station.

The damage to the stock yards alone was estimated by General Manager Henkle at $5,000,000 or $6,000,000.

Although the fire was the largest since the great fire of 1871, which virtually wiped Chicago off the map, not a single life was lost as a direct result of the blaze. One death, however, was listed as an indirect result—that of Walter Burnfield, 33, who died apparently of excitement when the flames swept to within two blocks of his home.

Most of the injured received minor wounds, although some 400 required hospital treatment. Firemen were the chief sufferers.

The police estimated that no less than 150,000 sightseers pushed into the stricken area yesterday to view the smouldering debris. Some of them drove from Iowa, Missouri, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana.

HON. R. MEREDITH TAKEN BY DEATH

Former Chief Justice of Ontario Spent 40 Years on Supreme Court Bench.

PNEUMONIA VICTIM.

LONDON, Ont., May 21.—(CP)—Funeral services for Hon. Richard Martin Meredith, former Chief Justice of the Ontario Supreme Court who died here yesterday, will be held from his home at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. The services will be private and will be conducted by Very Rev. Dean Norman Tucker. Burial will be in woodland cemetery.

The former Chief Justice who spent 40 years on the Supreme Court bench, had been active until a few months ago. His health began to decline and four days ago pneumonia appeared. He grew gradually weaker and died yesterday morning.

The former Chief Justice retired from the bench in 1930. He was 87 years of age, a member of a brilliant family of which Thomas G. Meredith K.C., is now the sole survivor. He is London City solicitor, and a brother of the deceased.

Since his retirement the noted jurist had spent most of his time in his garden among the flowers he loved. His retirement came long after he was eligible to enter the lists of those receiving full emolument from the bench after years of service. He was determined to remain as long as he was able to perform his duties.

The bitter winters told on the aged jurist and two years ago he felt the chill climate severely. A few months ago he was stricken with a cold which led to his death.

Noted brothers of the former Chief Justice predeceased him in recent years. They were Sir Vincent Meredith, president of the Bank of Montreal; Sir William Ralph Meredith, another Chief Justice of the Ontario Supreme court and Edmund Meredith, K.C., of London, famous criminal lawyer. They all were sons of John W. C. Meredith of London.

HOUSE DECISION ON LOTTERY BILL LIKELY TUESDAY

Party Lines to be Forgotten —Free Vote After Debate.

TWO BILLS PRESENTED.

Bilingual Currency is Revived by Motion of Ernest Lapointe.

OTTAWA, May 21. (CP).—With two definite immediate objects before it Parliament resumed its sessions to-day for a short week's work.

Thursday, May 24, will be a holiday. The marketing bill, still in committee of the whole in the House of Commons, is due for advancement and to-morrow a decision may be reached as to whether lotteries may be conducted in Canada with the blessings of the law.

Notice has been given of the introduction of the public works bill to authorize a program of building amounting to some $50,000,000 and bills to provide additional credits for farmers and to provide facilities for them to compromise with their creditors as well as a new election act. Indications are, however they will not see the light until the marketing bill is approved. It has been the subject of lengthy debate.

Two bills respecting lotteries are before the house. One, passed by the Senate, would allow them for the aid of hospitals. The other, recently introduced in the commons, would permit them for any

The May meeting of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Lamb on Thursday afternoon, May 17th. Mrs. Rea was in the chair. Flower committees were appointed to look after the flowers in the church, namely Mrs. Morcombe, Mrs. Lambe, Mrs. Bradburn and Mrs. Moncrief.

The ladies decided that they will hold a tea on June 26th instead of the annual garden party. Ready-to-wear articles are being made and will be for sale at the tea. These are to be brought in at the next meeting. Mrs. Morcombe and Mrs. Bradburn were appointed to look after same. Miss Mary Weir was appointed to look after the posters. The menu committee is composed of Mesdames Moncrief, McPhee, Eggleston and Stinson.

The program included a reading by Mrs. Bradburn; a vocal solo by Mrs. Byers, and a reading by Mrs. Lamb.

Mrs. Poast closed the meeting with prayer. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Rea and Mrs. Moncrief. An interesting contest supplied by Mrs. Lamb was thoroughly enjoyed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Earle.

The members of the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. J. Eggleston on Wednesday night, May 16, with 17 members present. The president, Mrs. Rea, presided. Arrangements were made for summer meeting which will be held on June 7. The Reaboro W.I. are joining the local branch for this meeting. Announcement was made that Miss Hopkins will hold her coaching classes at Reaboro in June.

Miss Helen Rutherford contributed an interesting reading to the program. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Nicholls and Mrs. Magee.

Grant, who will celebrate Mass for the first time on Sunday morning next at the Chapel of Mount St. Joseph, will officiate at High Mass at the Cathedral on the Sunday following, June 3rd.

FASHION SERVICE

Here's a really charming and quickly fashioned dress.

Silk print in gray and red, which by the way, is very chic, made the original. Bengaline ribbon that toned with the red stripe, made the belt and shoulder bow.

To make it! Two parts to the bodice and raglan sleeves. The skirt has two parts and is joined to the bodice under the removable belt. Doesn't it sound simple? And it will cost you next to nothing.

Many lovely cottons, linen, tub silks, etc., would also be quite as smart.

Style No. 2708 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39-inch material with ¾ yard of 39-inch contrasting.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

At this time of year, just before the rush of early spring fruits and vegetables, meal planning is often trying. The foods we see in our cupboards, and even in the markets, have been with us a long time. We are perhaps tired of eating them and certainly of cooking them. In homes where dessert is an important part of the meal, the following recipes will do nicely to bridge the gap between the mince pie or plum pudding season and the hey-dey of berries and cream and peach shortcake.

* * * * * * *

Lemon Chifofn Pie is not only a year round standby, but it will compete for honors with the best spring and summertime treats. In most homes the pie is greeted with enthusiasm and is welcome at least once a week. With cornflake pastry, you won't mind making it often. The method is a time and labor saver and it is never-fail. Corn flake pastry is wholesome, too, and easily handled by even delicate digestions.

* * * * * * *

LEMON CHIFFON PIE WITH CORN FLAKE PASTRY

One and one-half teaspoons gelatin. One-quarter cup water. Four eggs, separated. One-half cup lemon juice. One teaspoon grated rind of lemon. One cup sugar. One-half teaspoon salt. Method: Soak gelatine in water. Cook egg yolks, lemon rind and juice and half the sugar in a double boiler until of a custard consistency. Add gelatine and stir often while cooling in a bowl of ice. Add egg whites beaten with rest of sugar. Pour into corn flake pastry crust and leave in refrigerator at least three hours before serving.

* * * * * * *

CORN FLAKE PASTRY

One cup corn flake crumbs. One-quarter cup sugar. One-half teaspoon cinnamon. One-quarter cup melted butter. (Roll or grind 4 cups of corn flakes to yield one cup fine crumbs). Mix crumbs with sugar, cinnamon and butter. Press the corn flake pastry firmly into an 8-inch pie tin.

If your family objects to eating spinach try this salad and maybe they will change their mind. Raw spinach is very good eaten in salads, and healthful.

Today's Recipes

Spinach Salad—One-fourth pound spinach, five medium carrots, one small head cabbage. Wash spinach well and snip it up with scissors. Grate the carrots and shred the cabbage. Toss it lightly together in a salad bowl and marinate it with dressing made by mixing equal parts of mayonnaise and French dressing sweetened with granulated sugar. Chill thoroughly before serving.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Symphony Cake Filling

Nice for special occasions is this cake filling copied from a paper.

One cup crushed pineapple, one cup water, three egg whites, one cup chopped pecans or walnuts, one-fourth cup candied cherries, one-half cup soft, shredded coconut. Drain pineapple thoroughly. Cook water and sugar until it spins a thread or to 240 degrees. Pour slowly over stiffly-beaten whites and beat until it thickens. Fold in pineapple, chopped nuts, cherries and coconut.

11 Japanese Slain In Raid By Chinese

TOKYO, May 21. (AP).—Eleven Japanese, including five schoolboys were reported to-day to have been killed when 100 Chinese irregulars raided a model Japanese settlement in Manchukuo.

The report, contained in a dispatch from Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo, to Rengo (Japanese news agency) said the attack took place at Lake Chinpo, northeast of Tunhua in eastern Kirino province.

Troops were dispatched to the scene from Tunhua.

CLOSE FIGURING

Last week I saw the declarer of the hand shown do some nice figuring. His explanations later were illuminating. It was a good lesson in what may be predetermined by careful thought.

	♠J743 ♥AK6 ♦Q94 ♣K103
	♠82 ♥Q3 ♦J532 ♣Q9652

East bid one spade, fourth hand. West went two hearts and East bid two spades. When West bid three hearts East shifted to four clubs, requesting partner to choose between those calls. West knew; East held at least one more spade than club, and that he was short of hearts, having no more than two low cards of his partner's suit. Opening fourth hand, with weakness in one major suit, and lacking a powerful two-suiter meant that East held a minimum of three quick tricks.

West reasoned out the above facts. He also knew that if East held only five spades, the odds were nearly 2 to 1 that the six opposing spades would break either 4-2 or 5-1. On the contrary if East held even a single heart the odds were better than 2 to 1 that neither opponent held more than three hearts, assuring West of winning four trump tricks if played at hearts. The honor held in side suits by East would be equally valuable whether spades of hearts were trumps.

If West became dummy it would be worth a single ruff of clubs, without costing East a trump trick. Unless East was worth at least three more tricks as declarer than as dummy, West had better be the declarer. West knew that he must bid once more, and he did four hearts. When East declined to outbid West, the latter felt that he had done the best for joint hands, whether or not he made four odd.

The opening lead was the nine of diamonds. Dummy won. The jack of hearts lost to South's queen. South led his last trump. North's king won. The queen of diamonds was led. Dummy's ace took the trick. Three spade tricks were run off. On the last one the declarer discarded his last diamond, leaving all his cards good, with the exception of a single trick which had to go to the top heart. West spread his cards for four odd. His closs figuring and good luck had yielded him a game which could not well have been won by East.

Played at spades the declarer would want to ruff two clubs, causing him to lose a single club trick and one spade. He also would lose a heart trick and a diamond trick. East could win only three odd. He was wise to let West play hearts.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

At a fashionable dinner dance given not so long ago by one of New York's social registerites, I noticed a young lass who seemed very woebegone and neglected. There were a good many extra men at the function, yet not one of the lads on the stag line even approached the girl. She was a distinct floperoo, and her unhappy expression indicated that it wasn't the first time she'd played the wallflower.

It's a funny thing about wallflowers. Almost anyone can become one, from the wealthiest debutante of the poorest wolking goil. Of course, there are many thing that tend to make a gal deficient in charm and attractiveness. But in most cases, I've found, it is simply that the perennial wallflower insists on covering up her best features and accenting her worst ones.

The girl I mentioned above is an excellent example of this. She wore a filmy, yellow chiffon dress that was probably very costly. But on her, it lacked distinction. The lines of the gown emphasized her height and made her look awkward and lanky. And the cut of the skirt made her waist and hips seem bulgy and shapeless.

In addition, this lass made the mistake of overdressing. She wore a pearl tiara, three strands of pearls about her neck, pearl earrings and clumsy gold bracelets. He hair was frizzled unattractively about her face. And while she had lovely features, her powder was too pink, her rouge too bright and lavish, and her lipstick too dark.

This young girl really could have staggered even the most sophisticated stag line, if she'd studied herself well, and sought to emphasize her good points. A sleek, clinging gown of proper cut would have brought out the good lines of her tall, slender figure. A soft, creamy touch of light rouge would have given her charming features just the right accent. And a sleek, closely molded coiffure would have added smartness to her entire appearance. Don't ever let yourself become a drab little wallflower. Try to emphasize your good points always and conceal your poor ones. For then you'll wind up by being the stag line ideal!

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

From Dr. Donald A. Laird's laboratory at Hamilton, N.Y., there comes a report on the subject of whether eating a meal before going to bed has any influence on the quality of sleep. Dr. Laird has for many years been making most interesting experiments on the familiar but mysterious subject of sleep.

It is a familiar thing that drowsiness is often induced by a heavy meal, but this does not necessarily mean that sleep which follows is long or restful.

It is known, on the other hand, that when the stomach is empty there occur contractions which are known as "hunger contractions", and these, like all other involuntary movements of the body, tend to interfere with sleep. If these hunger contractions could be eliminated, would the sleep be any sounder?

On the other side, it is also known that meals which are hard to digest will also cause contractions of the stomach, so theoretically we have the supposition that a light, easy-to-digest meal before bedtime, which would eliminate the hunger contractions and yet not cause the hard-to-digest contractions, would induce more restful sleep.

The test was made on a number of individuals, both adults and children. The measurement of the restfulness of the sleep was made with an ingenious instrument known as a Somnokinetograph, in which a receiving plate was put on the mattress and attached through the mattress to an extremely delicate tension spring which recorded all the movement of the sleeper. The result was to confirm entirely the theoretical anticipations of the experiment.

In mathematical terms it was found that with easy-to-digest meals, hot chocolate or corn flakes, the number of movements was decreased 6 per cent, while with the hard-to-digest meals, consisting of a variety of foods, especially those rich in roughage materials, the movements were increased 6 per cent.

Thus we have a scientific confirmation of the old notion that a warm drink or a light meal before going to bed is helpful to a good night's rest.

H. J. K.: "What is the cause of rheumatism and can it be cured? Is a warm climate of any benefit to the sufferer? Why does the approach of wet weather bring on attacks?"

Answer: Rheumatism is an infectious disease, the exact germ of which is as yet unknown. Climate has a great deal to do with the attacks and, in fact, in the southern and dry western parts of the United States the disease is rare compared to its frequency in New England, Canada and the lake region. The relation of the disease to wet weather is very definite, but no satisfactory explanation of it can be given until we know the cause of the disease. Possibly the germ has a life cycle which makes it active in wet, cold weather.

FALSE TEETH

"Stay Put" Says Druggist

"With my gums gradually shrinking I had difficulty keeping my plate in position with various denture powders. Most of them tasted only a few hours. Now I use FASTEETH, and what a difference! I now wear my plate for 24 hours with absolute security and comfort. Fasteeth does not wash away or become thinned out, but "STAYS PUT" until I am ready to remove plate. FASTEETH is tasteless. Does not sour or cause foul breath. Holds false teeth all day long."

PERCY W.I. SHOWS BALANCE ON HAND

Forty-one Boxes of "Good Cheer" Sent Out During Season—Fine Paper Given.

(Examiner Correspondent)

WARKWORTH, May 19. — The May meeting of the Percy Women's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Community Hall, with a splendid attendance. Mrs. Greenly occupied the chair and the newly appointed secretary, Mrs. Dave Massey acted for the first time. The secretary read the correspondence. The chief item was a letter from Mr. Putnam concerning the summer series, Castleton having accepted an invitation to join Warkworth. A discussion was held regarding the subject of the speaker for this meeting which will be held on May 29th in Warkworth with Miss Ethel Robson of Denfield as lecturer. Her topics are as follows, "The Institute", "A Liberal Education," "Reading," "Aid for Mothers," "The Junior Girls", "Music In the School" and "The Challenge of Age."

The financial report given by the secretary shows the Women's Institute has had a very successful year with a balance on hand.

A report from the Sunshine Convenor Mrs. Wm. Shaw showed that forty one boxes of good cheer had been sent out to the sick, twenty-three of these were hospital cases.

The members of the Institute are very grateful for the gift of $10.00 sent in by a friend to help on the good work.

Miss Mabel Brown gave a splendid paper on Current Events and Miss Blanche Baker gave a report of the District Director's meeting held in Codrington on Tuesday afternoon, May 15.

The district annual meeting will be held this year in Castleton. Six delegates have been chosen to attend and arrangements are being made for cars to take as many members as can attend. Miss M. Powel will be the guest speaker.

The roll call was answered by "Labor Saving Devices" and many helpful hints were given. The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

MISS PICKFORD'S GUARANTEE.

In reply to The Examiner's remarks in reference to the visit of Mary Pickford to Toronto, particularly to the statement that the Centennial Committee was said to have guaranteed her $10,000 for her homecoming, the Toronto Star remarks:

"In view of such an assertion, it should perhaps be said that the Centennial Committee guaranteed Miss Pickford nothing, and that all the city gave her was a luncheon, a drive around the city and the present of a tray and clip. Miss Pickford's business arrangement was with a theatre and not with the taxpayers."

The Examiner is glad to accept this explanation.

At the same time, however, it does not alter the fact that Miss Pockford obtained at least $10,000 for her trip back to the "old home town," and that if that sum had not been guaranteed her by somebody the centennial celebration would undoubtedly have had to get along without her charming presence.

Toronto accorded her civic honors and presentations and thousands of dollars' worth of publicity, and she departed with a huge cheque and, let us hope, with a lively sense of gratitude.

It must be a bit painful to the Queen City's civic pride that Toronto's most famous daughter should require a lucrative business arrangement to induce her to pay the provincial capital a visit.

We have never heard of any bonus being necessary to bring Edward Johnson back to Guelph.

MAKE SURE OF YOUR VOTE.

Urban electors are reminded that the enumerators will to-morrow begin their work of compiling the city voting lists for the coming provincial election, and that four days are alloted for this purpose.

It should be the concern of every qualified electors to see that his or her name is included in the list, and in order to make sure that it is so included arrangements should be made if possible to have some one at home when the enumerator calls in order that the necessary information may be forthcoming.

Voters who may be residents of boarding-houses can help by leaving a memorandum with the landlady, giving their full name and occupation, in order that the enumerator may be sure to obtain the facts needed to compile his list.

If for some reason or other the official fails to call during the next day or two, voters would do well to find out who is the enumerator in their district and see that the names are added before he turns in his lists.

Again if this precaution is not taken electors should consult the enumerator's lists to ascertain whether or not their names are contained therein, and if there has been an omission the matter can be adjusted by appearing before the revising officers, who will sit later for the purpose of correcting and preparing the final lists.

The elector who finds himself without a vote on election day will only have himself to blame, because there is ample machinery for obtaining correct lists and it is up to the voter to protect himself.

RESEARCH WORK.

It is to be imagined that the old idea that money spent in research work was practically wasted has been almost completely eliminated by this time.

The public has come to realise that the solving of one problem could quite easily make a contribution to the national wealth that would cause the annual expenditure on research to appear infinetesimal.

The annual report of the National Research Council of Canada shows how extensive are the investigations of that body and how varied are the problems with which it is called upon to deal.

During the past year there were 88 researches conducted in the laboratories of the Council, 38 investigations under associated committees, assisted researches in universities and other laboratories and under scholarship, 26 jobs of analysis and testing, and 101 reports prepared for individuals and business organizations.

The value of this work is unquestioned, because it is designed to iron out industrial and business problems affecting a wide range of products, while at the same time similar research is conducted by experts into many agricultural matters from the killing of weeds to the elimination of rust.

Many of the investigations are necessarily complex and involved, entailing long research and study, but the solution means a great deal to the country, and Canada's research experts have had a large amount of success.

Intelligent research work has been justified, and complaints against the expense involved are not likely to be numerous in the future.

AN APPALLING RECORD.

A review of the automobile accident record in Ontario during the past three years, as compiled by the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Department of Highways, contains little upon which motorists can look upon with pride.

The figures, as a matter of fact, are an indictment of automobile owners and drivers as careless to an appalling degree, for they show that in three years there were 27,046 automobile accidents in this province, as a result of which 1,476 persons were killed, 24,602 were injured, many of them seriously, and property damage to the amount of $3,000.000 was occasioned.

That is not a record to be proud of, particularly as it is true, as the department says, that most motor accidents are the result of carelessness at the wheel.

It stands to reason that where reckless practices are indulged in, although for the most part without any mishaps, that there must inevitably be a number of accidents, because drivers cannot hope to keep on speeding, cutting-in, passing on hills or curves or showing similar carelessness without sooner or later getting into a crash.

In connection a paragraph from the department's latest bulletin should be carefully read by every driver. It is as follows:

"Increasing numbers of cars and other traffic on the roads, with all manner of hazards and complicated situations to be seen, reacted to, and met within a very short space of time, combine to make driving to-day more than a matter of steering and shifting gears. The real driver to-day must accept responsibility, must be everlastingly alert, must know the fundamentals of safe driving and practise them, must have regard for the rights of others, keep his car in good mechanical condition, and must at all times make safety his first objective."

SIZING US UP.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

Failure of Canadians to co-operate for the common good is criticised by the Rt. Rev. Charles A. Seager, Bishop of Huron, in his annual charge at the Anglican Synod in London. He referred to the warring of factions which thwarted the efforts of governments to adopt measures for the general welfare. After recounting the economic difficulties through which the country is passing and referring to the signs of improvement that are now apparent, Bishop Seager deprecated the spirit of selfishness which invariably stood in the way of economic and spiritual progress. He condemned the tendency to break into warring groups, each seeking its own selfish ends and thereby encompassing a tragedy for all.

The situation outlined by Bishop Seager is apparent to all thinkers. There is a tendency to blame politicians, but the latter only represent the populace in general, and as water cannot rise higher than its source we are not likely to produce leaders in the political field who have better standards of honesty, morality and decency than those who vote them into office.

Any hope of obtaining improvement in the administration of our public affairs lies in the possibility of a general betterment of standards among the people themselves. No citizen need point the finger of scorn at those who happen to be for the moment in the position of dictating or carrying out public policies. They only reflect the qualifications of those whom they represent and self-analysis is bound to show that we have still a long way to go before we can expect perfection at the top.

THE RELIGIOUS OUTLOOK.

A very encouraging message in regard to the religious outlook in the English-speaking world was delivered by the Very Rev. Arthur Carlisle, Dean of Montreal, at the annual Synod Service in St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, recently. "Too many persons are inclined to regard the Church," he said, "as a very big and old service club, which stands for an unattainable ideal and attempts impossible things." This view, he declared, was not justified and he expressed the opinion that never before in the history of the church had such an opportunity been presented as that offered in the midst of the unrest and changing conditions throughout the world to-day. "On every hand," he said, "are evidences of spiritual hunger, and just as the Wesleyan revival was credited with having given England strength to resist Napoleon in the early part of the last century, so should the church to-day lead the way to resistance of the greater enemy of nationalism that threatens the existence of civilization." In this connection he said:

"I doubt if since the day of the Pentecost the church has been face to face with such a glorious opportunity as that which confronts her to-day. Who fails to recognize that movement, unfortunately named the Oxford Group, as one of the most amazing revelations ever made to a generation of men? Men and women almost without number whom we have known so well and of whom we never suspected such a thing are hungering for the secret of peace by which they might live most effectively. It seems the whole world waits to see what the church can give. When statesmanship with all its conferences and conventions has failed, the church is alled upon to bring into the world the day of universal peace. She is being challenged by His example to fight against injustice and wrong, filth and crime, sufferng and need."

There are countless numbers of people who will hope that Dean Carlisle has properly interpreted the spirit that is at work in the religious life of to-day. Statesmen occupying high positions in Britain, the United States and Canada have emphasized the fact that the foundations of civilization are spiritual and not material, and that the only salvation for the injustice, unrest and discontent of the present era is a great revival of religion. This great truth has been reiterated again and again, and constitutes the greatest challenge to the Christian church that has ever been issued, not only in regard to whatever reconstruction and reformation of society is needed, but also in organizing the forces that are opposed to war and in favor of peace.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Remember that if your name is not on the voters' lists on election day the blame will be upon your own shoulders. Make sure that the enumerator has you on his list.

Unwise leadership of the unemployed has caused trouble in several sections of the country—and the leadership all comes from the same quarter. That tells its own story and carries its own warning.

The favorite won the King's Plate on Saturday, but unfortunately for these who like to take a flyer, Horometer was such an unanimous choice that hardly anyone ventured a wager on the field.

Chicago has been the scene of another terrible fire that for many hours threatened to get completely out of control. On the face of such a conflagration, fire fighting forces have a task of extraordinary difficulty, and Chicago's department seems to have done an excellent job.

Mr. Ferguson is not coming home for the election, despite some predictions to the contrary. Canada's High Commissioner is probably too busy organizing his Maple Leaf tour which will bring prominent Britishers to the Dominion later in the summer.

In Montreal two bandits grabbed a payroll of $2.600 which a couple of girls were carrying from a bank. Any firm which would run a risk like that needed a sharp reminder.—Brantford Expositor.

Talking to her sister Etta, Alysia Naylor is resentful over the approaching marriage of their cousin John Tait and Lucy Burnham, a widow, because the sisters will have to leave Tait's home where they have been living. They relate the news to Reggie Claridge, Alysia's fiance. At Alysia's suggestion Reggie agrees to go to Vichy where their wealthy Aunt Norah is stopping with her stepson, Tait, and his fiancee. Reggie is to try to win Lucy's attentions away from John and prevent the marriage.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 3

Reggie took the check, talked a little about the route, said that he would start this very day at noon, and took his leave, professing to think it all an amusing little joke.

"And when John has lost his widow, we'll have our wedding," he called back softly before he opened the door and left her.

Etta, entering a second later, found her sister with her head down on the Bradshaw, her hands twisting the leaves into dog's ears.

"I heard what he said as he left," Etta murmured. "I take it that you're sending him to try and get Mrs. Burnham to fall in love with him instead of with John. It seems to me a very unkind idea, and not very wise."

Alysia jumped up and shut her bureau with a thud.

"I've sold Reggie for good food, the use of a town house, a car, and my accounts settled for me every now and then. For ease and comfort, in other words, and I shall never have a happy day again."

Etta said nothing.

"Of course he'll marry the woman. It's the only way. I shall always hate myself—and him. Oh, curse money! Curse it!"

"Why, I thought you wanted more of it," Etta said with a smile that was frankly satirical. "But as to Reggie trying to separate Mrs. Burnham and John, if she loves him she won't look at Reggie. And if she does let Reggie wheedle her away from John, well, wouldn't it be just as well for him to find out, before marrying her that her love wasn't worth having?"

"You always can find some smug reason for doing anything." Alysia squirmed in her chair. Suddenly she jumped up.

"I'm going too! I won't let him go alone. After all, this widow woman is very pretty, Aunt Norah says; that means nothing, but ——"

"Now, don't be silly," Etta spoke firmly. "Don't go to Vichy, too. You'll only spoil things. You've decided that it's worth while giving up Reggie for the sake of staying on here, living in John's house. Having decided it, stick to it. You'll spoil everything if you go."

"It's all very well for you," her sister fairly tore the Bradshaw between her groping fingers, "it's I who suffer. I who give up the man I love, not you, and yet you'll benefit too."

"The widow may not take him. In which case, you won't give up anything that is yours," Etta reminded her.

"I'd like to see the woman who can resist Reggie when he tried to be charming."

"He'll make no headway with Aunt Norah," Etta observed dispassionately. Even Alysia laughed. "I didn't count her in. No, I don't think Aunt Norah will become one of his admirers. But this other little simpleton, oh, she'll never have seen anything so handsome and so marvelous! He sweeps you off your feet, Etta, with that voice of his."

"He may sweep the widow off hers," Etta conceded, "and after all, there's no harm in Reggie. He would make a rich woman quite a husband. The pity is, that like Becky Sharp, he needs &5,000 a year to be good on."

"If only there were some other way!" Alysia said.

"Short of waiting till Aunt Norah has given John the £30,000 she writes of as her wedding gift to him, and then killing him off at once, I can see no way," Etta said pleasantly, "and somehow one doesn't feel like committing murder even for the sake of keeping Reggie in the family. But to be serious, there may be no marriage. There's Lady Ida to reckon with, too, you know. She's seemed quite determined on getting John back. And what she's determined on getting ——" Etta's unfriendly smile finished the sentence. "Personally I should have waited, before sending Reggie off, to see what she would do."

"Oh, Ida!" Alysia fairly snorted. "She's no earthly chance of getting John back. She had him at her feet once and he got up again and walked away. When a man does that ——"

"I've often wondered why he did do it." Etta murmured with retrospective curiosity. "If he did. I'm not so sure that there wasn't something else between them—not love, but business ——"

"Same thing with her!" snapped Alysia. Etta gave a reproving shake of the head as she hurried off in answer to a telephone inquiry.

It was two days after she had sent off her letter to the Naylor sisters, and Lady Tait was installed in the hotel lounge for the first time since her accident. She looked about her with the vivid interest of one who had not expected ever to see a lounge again. After all, she was over 70. But the present day 70 has plenty of fight and pluck. Silver-haired, black-browed, slender, handsome, energetic, she had come through with flying colors, and now, barring a limp, and a liking for chairs, was very much her old despotic self again.

To any one else, or to her at any other time, Vichy at this hour is insupportable. The papers had just arrived from Paris, and each vendor was shouting the name of his sheet in the peculiarly penetrating French twang.

"V'la Le France!"

"V'la L'Intransigeant!" reached her most clearly in the national daily Eisteddfodd held outside and around the so-called Parc of Vichy. A moment later and the most penetrating howl of all cut through the others. It was Le Matin. Its vendor even managed to make himself heard through the hooting of the motors, which consider it a point of honor to sound their horns at their loudest when rushing through Vichy.

Lady Tait picked out a macaroon from the plate and frowned. It was a most excellent macaroon. Such as only seem to grow in France. Grudgingly she admitted that much. But she regretted having come. Vichy water is all very well when drunk away from the springs with which she believed it to have no connection other than name, but she detested the place itself. She was not inclined to be pro-German, but when she compared French and German spas, her heart warmed to the Teuton.

Her English doctor hadn't wanted her to come. She had thought this insularity. Now she called it wisdom.

The French doctor to whom a friend had given her an introduction as one of the leading men there had just been in. Lady Taite's aquiline nose quivered with indignation. To stand behind her, put both his arms around her suddenly, and press his two outcurving thumbs hard into the center of her waistline, and then look grave because she gave a small howl of pain, was really not cricket.

Lady Tait was positive that Doctor Precheur would have shouted a great dealer louder than that, if she had suddenly tried it with him. And then to talk about her solar plexus needing toning up, and to write out fussy ordinances for hot spinal shower baths and rubbings.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

BRANTFORD ONTARIO

This city, which gave to the world, through Alexander Graham Bell, the telephone, derived its name, as almost every one knows, from the great Indian chieftain, Joseph Brant. Brant, a wise and powerful Mohawk chief, had remained true to the British cause during he revolutionary war and had crossed into Canada.

Brant arrived in the district in 1784, and lived in the district for many years. The locality became known as Brant's Ford, because the river was shallow as this point. But it was not until 1827, when the population numbered about 200, that a name was deemed necessary. It was known then as Grand River Swamp, but none wanted that name continued. One suggested Biggar's Town, for R. Biggar, a property owner; another Levisville, for the mill owner, but when someone suggested Brant's Ford, there was not a dissenting voice. With the passage of years the S was dropped and gradually the two words were conjoined.

LONDON, Eng. (CP).—Pentonville Prison is to be modernized instead of being pulled down, as the London County Council desired, the government deciding to keep the prison.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

CARTIER'S SECOND VOYAGE

On this date, in 1535 Jacques Cartier had begun his second voyage to Canada. The winter, after his return in September 1534, had been spent in preparation and the equipping of the three vessels which he had decided to take with him and provision them so as to enable him to spend a full year in exploration. On Sunday, May 16, "by command of the captain (Cartier) and the willing consent of all", the crews of the three ships attended church and were blessed by Bishop Bohier. On Wednesday, May 20, late in the afternoon the expedition sailed from St. Malo. It consisted of the Grande Hermine, 120 tons, the Petite Hermine, 60 tons, and the Emerillon, 40 tons. Cartier had on his flagship several gentlemen adventurers from Paris; in all, 112 persons sailed on the three ships, including the two young Indians who had been taken as hostages from Gaspe the previous year. The voyage was stormy; the ships got separated; but met, as agreed, at Blanc Sablon. The month of July was devoted to exploration of the north shore and on August 10 the feast of St. Lawrence, a bay was reached, opposite Anticosti and Cartier named it St. Lawrence's Bay. From this came the name given to the whole great river by Champlain.

Cartier named Anticosti "Tile de l'Assomption." Slow progress was made. It was September 1 before the Saguenay was reached. A week later found the ships at an island, which Cartier named in honor of Bacchus because of the great quantity of grapes there; but we know it as the Islands of Orleans. Then came the arrival at Stadacona (Quebec), and eventually the voyage up the river to Hochelaga (Montreal). The current was too swift to permit of the ship going up and the trip from Sorel to Montreal was made in long boats. The island was reached October 2; the next day Cartier landed, was much astounded by the richness of the soil and named the mountain Mont Royal. Thus began the real exploration of Canada.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

WORDS WILL HURT YOU

"Sticks and stones
Will break your bones—
But words will never hurt you."

You remember that old rhyme. Wehn we were youngsters and another child would call us names—"pigeon toed" or "flop ears" or "scaredy cat"—we could always stick our tongues way out and announce that sticks and stones would break our bones but words would never hurt us.

We believed it, too. Or we thought we did. Afterwards, long afterwards, we learned that sticks and stones would merely break our bones but words would bruise us forever. The sting of a word—that we spoke or that some one said to us—would never quite go away. No poultices, no liniment would soothe the injured feelings.

Bit by bit, in triumph or in defeat, we learned the power of words. We learned to use them and we learned to abuse them....And too often we learned to lean too heavily upon words. Once, I remember with shame, one who knew me exceedingly well, told me that I put too much faith in words, I thought I could get out of any difficulty merely by using words....And that remark brought me up sharply as if I had been hit on the jaw by Dempsey or ran solidly into a post in the dark.

It was true. I had drifted into that vicious habit. I'd begun to have too much faith in my words, to the neglect of my actions....But I wasn't the only one afflicted with that vice. Other people I've noticed since are cursed with it. They, too, think they can get out of difficulties with sweet words, with proclamations of remorse, by opening their mouths and letting persuasive conversation flow over their sins, their errors, their stupidities. When they're backed against the wall, they do not think, "What must I do to make amends?" Instead they think, "What can I SAY to get out of this hole I'm in?"....They talk little of ACTING, and in the end they pay for it!

Isn't that true?

A Thought

Two advertisement copywriters were lunching together, and they began to discuss the comparative advantages of society and solitude as aids to their professional work.

One of them argued that he developed more ideas in the quiet of his room at home than in any other way. Social life was a distraction, in the true and exact sense of the word, and mischievous on that account. It used up energy without yielding an intellectual equivalent.

The other man argued that, on the contrary, social life kept him near to the life of the people to whom he had to appeal; whereas silent study tended to rob his reflections of that human quality which a piece of selling copy needed.

Both stoutly defended their positions as they returned to the office building.

"They are both right," said a wise man who had sat at the next table and overheard the argument. "A man must live by himself to know what to say, but in the world to know how to say it."

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP) — Stocks to-day showed narrowly irregular price changes in one of the dullest trading sessions in years. Transfers approximately only 350,000 shares. Metals were firm. U.S. Steel, American Telephone, Howe Sound and U.S. Smelting were improved. Goodyear and Santa Fe showed small recessions.

BATTLE BREAKS

ASUNCION, Paraguay, May 21 (AP)—The Ministry of Defence announced to-day: "Heavy combat broke out in the "Canada" and "Strongest" sectors t o-day, with conditions highly favoring our army. In other sectors there were frequent skirmishes between advance guards of both armies."

Chicago Stockyards Fire as Viewed from the Air

A general holocaust threatened to destroy the entire south side neighborhood surrounding the Chicago Stock Yards. This is the greatest fire in Chicago since the ca astrophe of 1871. The inferno started in the stock pens of Armour & Company. An estimate placed the damage at $10,000,000. Picture shows an aerial view of the great fire. (C.P.)

DULL SESSION SENIOR GOLDS

Closing Gains and Losses About Evenly Divided Over General Board.

NORANDA COMES BACK.

TORONTO, May 21.—(C.P.)—All the senior gold shares took the day off to-day and only a small amount of business was transacted in the secondary gold group on the mining section of the Toronto stock exchange. Prices held up well thorughout the day over the board and narrow gains and losses divided about even at the close.

Awaiting something definite regarding Presidential plans for silver at Washington, the silver group showed very little of the activity that carried the leaders to higher levels last week. Eldorado traded in fair volume and registered a gain of 15 to 2.80 while Bear Exploration, White Eagle and Premier were unchanged and Nipissing gained 10 cents.

An early sag of more than a dollar in Noranda was erased in the early afternoon and that issue closed with a small net gain.

All the high-priced gold shares finished the day unchanged from Saturday's closing prices with exception of Lake Shore which dropped 50 cents and McIntyre, up 90 cents.

To-day's prices: Stratford, $7.75, up 20; Brantford, $7.85, up 5; Kitchener $7.75, unchanged; London, $7.60, unchanged; Hull, Que., $8.20, off trucks, unchanged.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 21 (CP)—Hogs got away to a flying start as the Toronto Livestock Market opened a new week to-day. After an unsettled opening in which packers were bidding at last week's closing level, the division shot up 15 cents this afternoon under active buying. Cattle trading was active with prices firm on most grades. Calves sold slowly while sheep and lambs were steady.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 3,160; calves, 680; hogs, 1,660; sheep and lambs, 630.

Choice weighty steers brought $5.75 to $6.25, with one lot of heavies at $6.50. Butcher cattle ranged from $4 to $5.25, with a few at $5.50. Good butcher cows sold at $3.50 to $4, and bulls brought $2.50 to $3.75, and at a top of $4 for one. Fed calves went mostly at $5 to $6.50, with a few tops at $7.

Calf trade was slow at prices steady with last week's decline. Choice vealers made $6 to $6.50, with the bulk of the supply going from $3.50 to $5. Spring lambs sold steady at $5 to $9 each, and good, light sheep also were steady at $4 to $5 swt.

Salesmen held their supplies during the morning on the hog division and their patience was rewarded when the price shot up 15 cents in the afternoon. Bacons were selling at $7.90 f.o.b. for bacons; $8.25 off truck, and $8.65 off car.

LIVESTOCK QUOTATIONS.

FALLS TO DEATH.

DINARD, France, May 21.—Son of Walter Allward, sculptor of the Canadian Vimy Ridge War Memorial, 17-year-old John Allward, was dead here to-day.

The young man, who was himself a well-known sculptor, was found severely injured in the garden of the villa "Amie Cendrillon," in which he was staying.

Leaning from his bedroom window, he had fallen over the low sill on to a granite stairway. Death occurred in a hospital.

TWO PHASES OF FRUIT INDUSTRY NEED INVESTIGATING PROBE TOLD

St. Catharines Man Appears Before the Mass Buying Committee.

"CAN MONOPOLY."

OTTAWA, May 21 (C.P.). — Investigations into two phases of the fruit-growing industry were suggested to the Parliamentary Price Spreads Committee to-day by H. L. Craise of St. Catharines. He proposed inquiry into the high price of fertilizers, particularly the spreads between dealers and farmers and the fact that Ontario growers paid more than Quebec farmers. And he said the price-maintenance system of the "can monopoly" should be investigated.

Representatives of fertillizer companies will come before the committee later to-day. They will be asked to explain some of the statements made by the St. Catharines fruit grower. He said the Empire Fertilizer Company of Chatham, Ont., sold sulphate of Ammonia to its dealers at $29 a ton who, in turn, sold it to farmers at $44, a spread of $15 or nearly 50 per cent.

The price of sulphate of ammonia in Quebec, or the area east of Kingston, Ont., was $34.50 a ton f.o.b., considerably lower than Ontario prices. But Quebec manufacturers, Mr. Craise charged, would not sell to growers living west of Kingston, Ont. Similarly, sulphate of potash sold for $70 in Ontario and $56 in Quebec.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, chairman of the committee, said the freight rate from Quebec to Ontario points was considerably lower than the spread between the two prices.

Asparagus Crops.

The plight of the Ontario fruit grower was the subject under discussion to-day by the committee. It was claimed by Mr. Craise that canners induced growers in 1928 and 1929 to plant more arparagus, with the result the price dropped from 15 cents to 10 cents a pound.

Last year, a verbal agreement was reached at a conference of canners, growers and the Dominion Government to pay 10 cents a pound for canning asparagus. Only two canners in Ontario, it was claimed by the St. Catharines grower, maintained this price, some paying as low as six cents a pound. The price to the consumer, he said, did not sag as a result of the lower prices.

Up until last year importation of States was very heavy. In 1932, imcanned asparagus from the United ports were 803,000 pounds but in 1933 this had dropped to 413,000 pounds.

The duty on asparagus was 30 per cent. under the general tariff. Between April 15 and May 31, however, the duty was "not less than three cents per pound."

The duty on canned asparagus was increased 3½ cents a pound last year, continued Mr. Craise. This benefited the canners more than the farmers.

"I am in hope," said the asparagus farmer, "if the marketing act is passed, this whole situation will be ironed out."

"You hope the industry itself will be able to help itself?" asked Mr. Sommerville.

"Yes, sir."

"Do you contemplate any reduction in production?" asked E. J. Young, Lib., Weyburn.

"No. I do not think so."

In the Niagara Peninsula, fruit growers were making profits on plums, pears, peaches and grapes, Mr. Craise said. He himself, on all his crop had "just gotten by" in the last five years.

"A great deal of our trouble can be traced to the fact the working man has no money," Mr. Craise said.

"Then," asked Mr. Young, "can you tell me how conditions can be better by increasing prices?"

Mr. Craise complained of the treatment received by Ontario peach growers on the 1931 crop. Just before the season opened, said witness, Canadian canners imported 15 cars of peaches in a very green state. The peaches were allowed to ripen and were then canned.

While the peaches were ripening, the canners offered the Ontario growers three cents per pound "to keep the grower quiet."

Immediately the 15 cars of imported peaches were sufficiently ripe for canning, the Ontario grower could only get two and one-half cents per pound.

The local manager in the St. Catharines district for Canadian Canneries then approached the manager of the Farmers' Co-operative and "brow-beat" the co-operative manager, telling him the canning company would only pay two and one-half cents a pound for peaches and that they would be given a reasonable inspection by the Canadian Canneries. The Co-operative Association agreed and in one day lost $7,500, said Mr. Craise.

He protested against car-loads of peaches being allowed to enter Ontario just before the season opened here.

Replying to Norman Sommerville, committee counsel, witness said he understood the canning companies paid bonuses as between their different local managers. This led to competition among these local managers.

Dominion Woollens May Earn Interest

Dominion Woollens and Worsteds is participating in the general improvement of business, and particularly in the improvement in the textile trade, according to well-informed sources, but statements that the company is earning at a rate that will allow it to recommence bond interest payments from Dec. 1, 1934, could not be officially confirmed.

Under the 1932 scheme of reorganization, the four payments of bond interest on Dec. 1, 1932; June 1 and Dec. 1, 1933; and June 1 1933; and June 1, 1934, were deferred, to become payable commencing Dec 1 1937. This, of course, means that regular interest payments on the 6 per cent bonds, due 1946, are scheduled to recommence Dec. 1, 1934. It is understood that so many factors may enter into the situation before Dec. 1 that it is not yet safe to predict definitely that the interest payments will be resumed.

The company's fiscal year ends June 30, 1934, and the annual report is expected to appear some time in September. Since the pound sterling has been at a premium for most of the company's fiscal period the detrimental effect on imports of foreign textiles will have been overcome, and should be reflected in improved earnings.

GENERAL PRICE TREND IS FIRM

Losses Outnumber Gains at Toronto But Are Mostly in Fractions.

INTERLISTEDS WEAK.

TORONTO, May 21 (C.P.). — While buyers were few in numbers on the industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange, there was very little stock overhanging the market and the general price structure held mainly intact. Losses outnumber gains, but they were chiefly in the interlisted group, while the gains were recorded by domestic listings. Volume was very little better than in the closing sessions of last week.

Distillery shares accounted for about a third of the day's turnover and the close was lower for the leaders. Walker's Common took the main loss, dropping ¼ to 32¾. Distillers Seagrams touched 15¼, but recovered to 15⅝ off only ⅛, and Industrial Alcohol lost ⅛ to 11⅜. Brewers and Distillers finished unchanged at 1.50.

The turnover was of average proportions and the price closed unchanged at 27.45. Brazilian was down a fraction and C.P.R. up ⅛. Consolidated Smelters fully recovered an early loss of 2 points.

Woman Is Scalded By Boiling Water

It was indicated that medical attendants expect Mrs. David Fenn, 58 Orpington Road, to recover completely from the severe burns she suffered last Thursday at her home. Although she will probably be confined to hospital for some weeks yet her recovery to date has been rapid.

Her condition was regarded as most serious when she was admitted first to the hospital immediately following the accident. She was carrying a large boiler of boiling water, which contained some lye, when overcome by a fainting spell she slipped and fell. The boiling water splashed over her. She was badly scalded about the face, arms, legs, breast and abdomen.

Dr. S. Y. Walsh who is attending Mrs. Fenn, said to-day that her condition was much improved and that she has made remarkable progress toward recovery.

STANDARD FACTS AND FORECASTS

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 21—The market seems to have worked itself into a position where the President's silver message, may decide the next two or the rumored move on silver last week was probably only the pretext for an advance which was overdue anyway. The rally however, failed to gather momentum and the technical position probably is not as good as before. An outside stimulus is needed to incite another advance, hence the focussing of attention to today's silver developments. The impression is so general that nothing much will be done about silver at this session, that any alleged "disappointment" over the president's attitude should not be taken too seriously.

CHICAGO, May 21. — Drought and intense heat have hit the small grain crops, except in winter wheat, a body blow from which they may never recover. The June first returns on condition may establish new all time record lows for this season of the year, unless there is immediate relief. While crop situation is sensationally bullish there is not the usual broad speculative interest. A good part of trade of professional. The market quickly passes from oversold to overbought condition or the reverse.

STORM DOES DAMAGE

MEAFORD, Ont., May 21 (CP) — A severe electric storm swept over this district in the early hours of Sunday morning, doing several thousand dollars damage.

Charles E. Benedict, St. Vincent farmer, had his large frame barn, 80 feet by 30 feet, and a driving shed together with all the contents totally destroyed by fire when lightning struck it.

DROUGHT CONTINUES.

WASHINGTON, May 21. — (C.P.)—Drought, aided by grasshoppers and chinch bugs spread further destruction through the United States' grain belt to-day, increasing crop losses to as high as 85 per cent in some sections.

Many farmers prayed yesterday in churches for rain.

BULGARIA QUIET UNDER CONTROL SVENO SOCIETY

Vast Change in Attitude Toward Italy Being Rumored.

SWING TO FRANCE?

Over 270 Members of Parliament Are Dismissed Under King's Decree.

(By Wade Werner. Copyright, 1934, By The Associated Press)

SOFIA, BULGARIA, May 21.—(AP). One of the smallest political groups in post-war history, was ruling the country to-day as a result of a week-end coup d'etat by members of the "Sveno"—an anti-parliamentary organization which long has advocated an authoritary regime for a reconciliation with Yugoslavia.

Called a "debating society" by some of its critics, the Zveno included a number of professors, writers, other professional men and leading army officers, such as Kimon Gueorguieff, who Saturday became premier.

From this group Gueorguieff chose those members of his cabinet named hastily during and after the bloodless, bulletless assumption of power. To-day, with their advice, he worked to complete the ministry and to rush promised reforms.

He declared his intention to follow along the general line of foreign policy adhered to by the former goernment, but observers saw in the ousting of General Ivan Volkof as Minister to Italy prospect of radical changes in policy toward Italy.

270 M.P.'s Ousted.

Of more than 270 members in the Parliament dissolved by one of the many decrees signed by King Boris after the army had taken over the capital and the Fascist-inclined party had laid before him its demand, not one represented the Zveno group.

A literary trend of the organization was seen in at least one of its appointments— the new chief censor, who is Secretary Polyanoff. He is a member o f the Bulgarian Pen Club and the author of several short novels.

Their coup d'etat aws so spectacularly peaceful that people still were awaiting to-day word of one violent incident in connection with it.

London Views.

LONDON, May 21.—(A.P.)—Expressions of concern clashed with words of praise as the press eyed to-day the military coup in Bulgaria.

The Liberal News-Chronicle, pending more definite news, sees in the incident merely an addition to the list of dictators.

"That in itself is not an encouraging sign for the future peace and prosperity either in the Balkans or in Europe," the editorial read.

"The twilight of democracy," said a Post caption, finding the coup a "fresh indication that there was a tide flowing in the affairs of men."

The paper forecasts the lamentation of the champions of Liberalism "who think democracy is good for all men at all times, everywhere. Upon such people lessons of experience are wholly lost."

The Times, referring to the bloodless and orderly character of the Bulgarian coup, asserted that "some men who made the coup bear a high reputation for integrity and ability, but it is too early for more than a conjecture of their real intentions.

"The obvious risks of the course they followed are bound to arouse the anxiety of the friends of Bulgaria in this country," the paper added.

Lauded in Belgrade.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, May 21. (AP)—News of the establishment of a military dictatorship in Bulgaria was welcomed warmly here to-day.

Reports that M. Batoloff, Minister of Paris, may be appointed Foreign Minister, led to beelief here the new government expects to bring Bulagria from the Italian into the French sphere.

KAISER FEARS NEXT EMPEROR OF GERMANY WILL BE ADOLF I.

for having stood idly by while Hitler dissolved the monarchist party and merged the organization of the royalist steel-helmet with his own storm troopers. For the first time Princess Hermine, the ex-emperor's second spouse, who cannot bear the sight of the crown prince and vice-versa, was present at the Hohenzollern family council. Prince August Wilhelm, known as "Auwie" in Berlin, had sent his excuses. He is serving as a storm-trooper in Herr Hitler's legions and had a date with Captain Roehm, chief of the Sturm-Abteilungen, for that day. "Auwie's" absence first made the kaiser suspicious, then furious.

Refuse Charity Sale.

Among the many grave matters threshed out at this private gathering of the ex-imperial clan, a good deal of attention was given to the refusal of the Hitler authorities to sanction the annual charity sale by Princess Hermine. She was all set to make her yearly voyage to Berlin and had, in fact, engaged a suite of rooms at the Adlon Hotel, when a curt telegraphic message from the ministry of the interior notified her that permission for the sale had been refused. No reason was given for this peremptory refusal.

Princess Hermine's annual visits to the Reich capital have always been more in the nature of political conciliabules than anything else. On such occasions, it was never a secret, she acted as the emissary of her illustrious husband. She had conferences with the monarchist leaders, met the loyal generals and pulsed many of the political wiseacres on the chances for a return of the imperial woodchopper.

The kaiser looks upon the refusal of the Nazi authorities to permit his wife her innocent little vacation as an effort to prevent any attempt at reconciliation between himself and the German people. Wilhelm knows that the Nazis have always considered him as "a deserter in the hour of the fatherland's darkest hour," but he is willing to let bygones be bygones and forgive the brown boys their short-sightedness. Wilhelm will, in fact, overlook a great deal, if only he can prevent a materialization of his worst fears.

Fears "Aloif I."

Kaiser Wilhelm has no illusions on Herr Hitler's brand of socialism, and he is afraid that the present chancellor harbors a secret ambition to have himself proclaimed emperor, if ever Hitler succeeds in realizing the Anschluss, the union of the Reich with Austria. The historic scene of the Galerie des Glaces of Versailles in 1871 would then repeat itself, but now in Potsdam or Schoenbruenn (palatial suburb of Vienna), and with this difference that the new master of the new empire would not be called Wilhelm II., but Adolf I., with Goering in the place of Von Bismarck; the loquacious little Goebbels in the place of the taciturn Von Moltke, and Von Roehm instead of Von Roon. The vision of such an eventuality has become a nightmare with Wilhelm. All the crown prince's reassurances failed to chase the gloomy picture from his imperial father's mind.

The conference occupied itself secondly with the financial situation of "the Court of Doorn." The abandonment of the gold-standard by Great Britain, where the kaiser has large investments, and by the United States, where the stocks and bonds he owns have dipped ominously, has inflicted heavy losses on the kaiser's private exchequer. On the other hand, the new financial decree in Germany which forbids the export or transfer of certain funds, placed him in grave embarrassment. In view of this situation, Wilhelm addressed a request at the Nazi authorities two months ago to permit him to return to Germany accompanied by the explicit promise that he would scrupulously abstain from all political activity. . . . Hitler, in spite of Goering's pleas, and Hindenburg's personal intervention, showed himself inexorable. The kaiser's request was turned down. Nor was he granted exemption from the application of the financial decree. With the upshot that the kaiser sees the future in very dark colors indeed.

Another subject of disquietude with his majesty is the fact that he feels the burden of old age creeping over him more every day. It would be a great consolation to him if he were assured that his mortal remains are assured a last resting place with those of his Hohenzollern ancestors in the garrison church at Potsdam. To this end he addressed a second request to Berlin. He fully expected a favorable reply, along with super loyal wishes for a long life. Instead he got a cold, almost brutal answer, containing, in effect, the following discouraging decision: "You die first, and we'll see afterwards!"

In the light of these dolorous circumstances it must be clear that the imperial conference at Doorn was not precisely a gay affair. In the end, however, Wilhelm rallied to the occasion and regained something of his old Caesarian spirit. That was when he drew up with his own hand a communique destined for the world press and the German people. This communique ends with the following statement: "Having terminated an examination of the general world situation and particularly the situation in the German empire, the family conference, upon the proposal of his imperial majesty, decided unanimously to permit the present regime in Berlin to continue in power, while expressing its confidence in the policies pursued by the imperial chancellor, Herr Adolf Hitler."

I dare say the Nazis had a good laugh when they read that!

Silver Plan Before U.S. Congress To-Day

(By D. Harold Oliver)

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP) — The United States silver forces drew closer to-day to their long-sought goal. President Roosevelt's special message recommending monetary elevation of the white metal was ticketed for delivery to Congress during the day.

Both Senate and House of Representatives turned to other affairs while awaiting the silver message, which was described beforehand as approving legislation to back American dollars with 25 per cent silver and 75 per cent gold.

Grain in Three Provinces Revive After Weeks of Drought.

MORE RAIN COMING.

WINNIPEG, May 21 (CP).—Already given a fairly good soaking in many places, Western Canada farmlands were due for more scattered showers to-day.

And it was the rain that counted so far as many districts of the West were concerned. Parched and plagued by dust and wind storms, growing grains were having a hard time until week-end rains in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta brought much-needed moisture.

The forecast for Manitoba and Saskatchewan said fresh winds, cloudy and cool weather would prevail to-day with occasional showers. Northwest winds were forecast for Alberta, with a few scattered showers and cool weather.

Manitoba and Alberta received general rains yesterday, but in Saskatchewan there was a combination of rain and dust storms. Cloudy skies over the mid-Western province gave hope a heavier rain would fall to-day. A short rain at Saskatoon was followed by a dust storm at night, but in the south the order was reversed—morning dust storms being followed by rain.

RYLSTONE.

On Wednesday evening, May 16th the Rylstone Community League held their meeting at the Union school, S.S. No. 16.

The meeting was opened with singing of hymn, "We have heard the joyful sound," followed with prayer by Rev. H. W. Foley. Scripture from Mathew 26 was read by Mr. Roger Lain.

A mock trial then was presented, the following being the characters:

Judge Foley—Rev. H. W. Foley.
Clerk—Roger Lain.
Sheriff—Laurence Meiklejohn.
Crier—Ross Thompson.
Lawyer Bonehead—Jim Barnett.
Lawyer Soakum—Murray Meiklejohn.
Provincial Police Catchum—Arthur Collet.
Plaintiff, Miss Primrose— Margaret Coel.
Her Witness, Dr. Killum— Fred Rutherford.
Nurse Dosum—Jean Stewart.
Farmer Timothy Corntassel— Roy Stewart.
Teacher Spanker — Mrs. Fred Rutherford.
Defence, Dr. Brown— Clarence Anderson.
Witnesses— Dr. Snookum, Kenneth Ray; Pete Husseler, Leslie Mos Keown; Mr. Slim, Carl Heath.

Jury were: Mr. John McKeown, Charlie Stewart, Lindsay Finch, Clarence Thomson, Raymond Anderson, Fred Thomson, Alex. Stewart, Arthur Ried, Vivian Meiklejohn, Leah Stewart, Pearl Stewart, Vera Finch.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Morton was filled to its capacity on Tuesday evening when a shower was given in honor of their daughter's marriage Ruby to Fred Petherick. Many lovely gifts were received by the happy couple.

Weddings

WALKER—REYNOLDS.

A wedding was recently solemnized in the United Church, Minden, when Annie, youngest daughter of Mrs. and the late Mr. Alex Reynolds, was married to Mr. Fred Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Walker. The bride, attended by Miss Cox, wore white Canton crepe with matching accessories and a veil caught with orange blossoms. The bridesmaid wore peach-colored rough crepe with matching accessories. Mr. William Walker was his brother's groomsman.

JONES—TODD.

An interesting wedding took place in St. James' Church, Manila, when Hazel, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Todd, was united in marriage to Mr. Lawrence Edward Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Jones of Lindsay. Rev. Mr. Greaves conducted the ceremony and the attendants were Mr and Mrs. R. Grant, of Fort William; Mrs. A. Greaves played the wedding music. The bride was in her bridal gown of ivory crepe; silk ruffles formed the sleeves and neckline with a brilliant buckle at the waist. A veil of silk net with cap of orange blossoms was worn and a tiny muff of silk ruffles completed the ensemble. She carried an arm bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. The matron of honor was in pale blue organdie. Mr. and Mrs. Jones left for Fort William, where they will live for the present, expecting to leave shortly for Kenora.

Nudist Colony For Alexandria Bay Stirs Protest, Nearby Summer Resorts

BROCKVILLE, Ont., May 21.—(CP)—Iroquois Island, situated in the Thousand Islands near Alexandria Bay and former Summer home of Harold E. Whitteman, one-time New York millionaire, is to be the site of a nudist colony if negotiations now in progress between the present owners of the property and nudist colony promoters from New York materialize.

Scouts representing New York nudist interests have been visiting the islands and investigations are now being made by the negotiators to ascertain whether there is any legal restrictions to establishment of such a colony. Protest against the foundation of the proposed colony is already being entered by owners of summer property in the neighborhood.

INDIAN GIVEN WEEK IN JAIL

Found Guilty of Obstructing a Police Officer on Curve Lake Reserve.

SECOND TRIP MADE.

Noah Taylor, 32, Indian of Curve Lake reserve, was found guilty today before Police Magistrate on a charge that he did last Thursday obstruct a police officer, Fred C. Marshall, county fish and game inspector, in the performance of his duties. Taylor was sentenced to one week in the county jail.

Inspector Marshall testified that on the evening of May 11 he stopped William Driver's taxicab in which Taylor was a passenger. Although he ordered Taylor to remain while he searched the car, the Indian ran away. In the car Inspector Marshall said he found 40 pounds of cleaned maskelunge.

The driver of the taxicab, William Driver, informed the witness that he did not own the fish but that they had been placed, all parceled up, in the car by Taylor, who had asked him to drive him from the reserve to Peterborough.

Witness stated that he visited the reserve twice and, informed that Taylor was absent, had left messages for the Indian to come and see him. He had also told Constable Samson Taylor, of the reserve, that he wanted to see Noah Taylor.

On Thursday he went to the reserve in company with Constable Taylor. After interviewing several of the wanted man's relations, witness, and Constable Taylor were walking through the reserve when they saw Noah Taylor in company with seven or eight other Indians.

"I went up to Taylor and put my left hand on his shoulder," Inspector Marshall said, "I told him I placed him under arrest for the illegal possession of the fish I had found in the car at Peterborough. I warned him that anything he might say might be used in evidence against him.

"He pulled away from me and another Indian grabbed my other arm and pulled me. Others made threatening advances at my rear, but Constable Taylor warned them away. Rather than precipitate a worse incident I decided to withdraw and not conclude the arrest. Taylor put his face up to mine and dared me to arrest him. He then ordered me off the reserve."

Constable Taylor, next witness, substantiated the evidence of Inspetcor Marshall as to what occurred during the rumpus at the reserve.

Magistrate Langley stated that it was clear that Inspector Marshall believed that he had sufficient grounds to arrest Noah Taylor and that the Indian had resisted arrest. His Worship considered, however, that Inspector Marshall might better have secured a warrant to make the arrest.

Lundy Boathouse Burned To Ground

Lundy's boathouse—the shack at the foot of Burnham street, which figured in the Reid murder trial as the place in which "Butch" Thomas, transient was stabbed to death with a rusty table knife, was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning.

The first outbreak of fire at the shack took the reels over to East City shortly after ten o'clock Saturday night. The roof was on fire. According to the Fire Chief the fire was out when the brigade pulled away, but some six hours later another alarm rang into the fire hall. When the trucks got to the scene on the second occasion the shack was being rapidly consumed by the flames while a sawdust pile nearby was also ignited and some trees in the vicinity were badly scorched.

Practical Joker?

LINDSAY, Ont., May 21 (Special to Examiner). — A party of Lindsay motorists returing from Barrie on Sunday night noticed what was thought to be a man's body on the highway near Derryville, a hamlet a short distance from Cannington. The figure was outstretched on the road with the head resting on an arm. Two other motor parties also halted near the spot and went back to investigate. It was found that the form was a dummy.

Obituary

FREDERICK D. ARMSTRONG.

The death occurred on Sunday morning of Frederick David Armstrong at his residence, 173 Prince Street, at the age of 78 years.

The deceased was a native of Otonabee Township, his parents being the late William Armstrong and Elisabeth Elliott. Surviving is his widow and two sons, William J. Armstrong and Sidney E. Armstrong, both of Toronto.

Mr. Armstrong was a farmer of many years' standing, and had lately been residing in the city in retirement. He was held in highest esteem by a wide circle of friends throughout the district.

The funeral is to be held from the family residence on Tuesday at 3 p.m., with services conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

JAMES PAYSON ELLIOTT.

The death took place at Melita, Manitoba, on Thursday afternoon, May 17th, of James Payson Elliott, following an operation, in his 53rd year.

The deceased was born in the township of Cavan, where he lived until young manhood. Going west he became engaged in farming near Melita, where he has resided practically ever since.

A son of the late Thomas and Mary Elliott, the deceased is survived by his widow, formerly Nellie Thompson, of Melita, one daughter, Elaine, and one son, Eldon, also three brothers, Lorne of the post office staff, Toronto, and Fred and Bruce of Cavan.

Besides his parents he is predeceased by his brother, William B. (Bert), who was killed in the Great War, and two sisters, Essie and Mary.

He was a member of the United church and Odd Fellows' Lodge.

The funeral was held at Melita Saturday.

JOSEPH McGINTY

Joseph McGinty, superannuated train employee, with over thirty-seven years' service as train inspector with the Canadian National Railways at Lindsay and Peterborough, to his credit, passed away at his residence, 237 Bethune street on Sunday morning. He was in his 80th year.

A son of the late John McGinty and Ann Rickard, who were of Irish descent, Mr. McGinty was born at Whitby, Ontario on September 29, 1854. For some years prior to the start of his railroading career he engaged in farming in Omemee district, where he will be well remembered.

Entering the service of the C.N.R. at Lindsay thirty-seven years ago as train inspector, Mr. McGinty came to this city twenty-five years ago. He was superannuated in 1926 and had since lived in retirement.

Besides his widow, formerly Ann Meagher, he leaves two sons, John Vincent McGinty, train despatcher with the C.P.R. at London, Ontario, and Joseph Cyril, at home. Two daughters predeceased.

The funeral will leave the residence at 8.45 o'clock on Tuesday morning for celebration of Requiem Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 a.m. Interment at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Truck And Trailer Ditched At Haultain

Stalling on the steep hill near Haultain, on the Apsley Road, in Burleigh Township this morning, a heavy truck with trailer, driven by Ralph McQuade, backed down toward the old bridge and overturend at the water's edge of Eel's Creek.

Mr. McQuade was not seriously hurt, and was fortunate in escaping the accident with only a shaking up. He is engaged in extensive wood-cutting and lumbering operations in the northern part of the country, was the largest contractor in supplying wood to the city last year, and has a woodyard off Hilliard street.

On the new Burleigh-Apsley road, the engineers have made a diversion to avoid the steep hill, where this accident happened.

DARROW REPORT CONDEMNS N R A

Administration Held Friend of Monopoly, Foe of Small Business.

FINDING DOOM BOARD.

WASHINGTON, May 21 (C P) —President Roosevelt will permit the Darrow Board investigating NRA monopolies to go out of existence upon completion of its present work, expected in a few days.

(By James Cope.)

WASHINGTON, May 21 (C.P.). —The Darrow report, excoriating the NRA appeared likely to-day to become the death-knell of the board that drafted it.

There were definite signs that the United States Recovery Review Board, headed by Clarence Darrow, faced prompt abolition because of its conclusion—set down in vigorous language—that the NRA is the friend of monopoly and the foe of small business.

The Board, which had been asked by President Roosevelt to review the practices of the National Recovery Administration, stabbed at the heart of NRA's principles of industrial codes by saying:

"All competition is savage, wolfish, and relentless, and can be nothing else. One may as well dream of making war ladylike as of making competition fair."

The Socialistic alternative of Government ownership was suggested in a supplement report signed by Darrow, 77-year-old lawyer, and one other board member—William O. Thompson of Chicago, former law partner of Darrow.

23,000 See Horometer Capture King's Plate

DREAM OF FIVE YEARS REALIZED AS R. S. McLAUGHLIN ENTRY LEADS FIELD TO CUT SECOND OFF MARK

Frankie Mann Brings His Third Victor to the Wire in Famous Classic.

SPEYGOLD IS SECOND.

Horometer to Run in $3,000 Breeders' Stakes at Woodbine on Wednesday.

(By Dan Burritt, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, May 21.—(CP)—Horometer, stout little crusader of the turf whose debut in senior company brought a victory sought for five years by the stable of R. S. McLaughlin was listed today as the speediest of 75 Ontario foals enrolled on the list of King's Plate winners since 1860.

The bay son of Hourless out of Star Pal scored an easy win in the 75th renewal of the royally-sponsored fixture, worth 50 guineas from the King and $7,500 added by the Ontario Jockey club over a small field at the opening of Woodbine Park Saturday afternoon. The McLaughlin color-bearer, under the capable guidance of Frankie Mann, who made it his third victory in the stakes, finished four lengths in front of W. H. Wright's Speygold who in turn was followed by T. S. Cochenour's four-year-old Papalico, carrying top weight; R. W. R. Cowie's Pitchblende, E. P. Seagram's filly, Candy Feast, and Sam Worthy, the other half of the Wright entry.

Cuts Second Off Mark

Urged only once by his rider as he pulled away from the rest of the field, Horometer galloped home to the cheers of some 23,000 racing enthusiasts, to cut a full second off the nine furlong plate standard of 1.55 1-5, and place the name of McLaughlin among the winners for the first time. McLaughlin received the prize from the governor-general who arrived with the Countessof Bessborough in state to make the presentation in behalf of the King.

From actual record Horometer's speed could be compared with previous winners only since 1924 when the plate distance was reduced from a mile and a quarter to the nine furlongs, but his trainer, Harry Giddings who has saddled six other victors in the classic, agreed with observers that the the McLaughlin gelding possessed the most speed of any they could recall.

Run Again Wednesday

Six strong victories behind him, Horometer will be given another opportunity to display his ability when he enters the $3,000 Breeders' Stakes Wednesday afternoon. Giddings said if his charge, which raced Saturday with Pitchblende as co-entry, led the way home in the Wednesday feature, Horometer would be given a rest until the running of the Prince of Wales Stakes at Thorncliffe, and the Hamilton Derby.

Despite the fact Giddings repeatedly has expressed confidence the McLaughlin three-year-old is the best Canadian foal ever produced, Horometer will not be sent to compete with more select company in United States. "At least, not this year," Giddings said, and after that it would depend on Horometer's performances.

The plate winner admittedly is capable of greater speed that he displayed Saturday and showed during his trials he could cover one and a furlong in 154 3-5 with a burden of 130 pounds. But he has not been pressed in any company and has had no opportunity to extend himself.

Two flying boats of twenty-passenger capacity will be placed on the Shanghai-Canton line in China.

BLANKET FIGHT FOR TOP PLACE IN INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE RACE

Wings, Bears and Leafs Overshadow Balance of Loop in Dog Fight for Lead—Toronto Takes 10-8 Win From Bisons—Rochester Splits Twin With Royals.

(By The Associated Press)

The International League race had developed into a dog-fight to-day, with Rochester Redwings, Newark Bears and Toronto Maple Leafs locked in a great battle for the lead. The slim span of a game and a half covered the three leaders with the rest of the field well back.

Newark's double triumph over Syracuse Chiefs yesterday, coupled with Rochester's even split with Montreal Royals, enabled the Bears to climb within a half game of the top. Toronto, meanwhile, kept pace, beating back Buffalo to trail Newark by only one game.

Newark was given the benefit of superfine pitching in trouncing Syracuse twice, 6-0 and 9-1. Hank McDonald allowed only four hits in the opener and Charley Devens and Vito Tamulis combined to limit the Chiefs to five safeties in the seven-inning nightcap. With that sort of hurling, Newark had no troubles at all. The Bears battered out 11 hits in the first game and swelled their batting averages with 12 more in the second to win as they pleased. McDonald, Dale Alexander and Vince Barton collected for homers in the first game and Bob Gibson contributed one in the nightcap.

Even Split at Rochester

Duplicating the crowd at Syracuse, 7,000 fans turned out at Rochester to see the Redwings take the first game from Montreal, 11-2, and then drop the second, 5-4. Johnny Michaels held the Canadians to eight scattered hits in the first game while his teammates were collecting 10, including a home run by Tom Winsett. Winsett also clouted a homer in the night-cap but could not save the Redwings from defeat as Montreal bunched hits off Jehn Berly in the early innings. Although a leg injury forced him out of the game after five innings, Chad Kimsey was credited with his sixt victory against two defeats.

Rallies to Win 10-8

Five runs in the seventh and eighth innings enabled Toronto to beat Buffalo, 10-8. Lisenbee and Kowalik pitched reasonably well, but five Bison errors came at critical moments and helped Toronto pile up its score. Walter Hilcher when the route for the Leafs, although walloped for 11 hits. He stopped Heinie Mueller's hitting streak after it had stretched through 17 successive games.

Senators Take Double

Six Baltimore pitchers vainly tried to halt Albany's sluggers and the Senators won two games, 9-7 and 15-2. Glenn Chapman, young Albany outfielder, collected six hits during the day including two home runs and a pair of singles. Fred Sington clouted a homer in each game.

On Saturday, Rochester's sluggers fell on three Montreal pitchers for an 8-3 win. The pace-setters showed a return to their earlier unbeatable form. The Leafs split a double bill with Buffalo, winning the first 10-4, and dropping the nightcap 4-1.

SENIORS HIT COBOURG PITCHING FREELY FOR SEVENTEEN CLOUTS

Give Clever Performance, But Game Too One-sided to be Exciting.

FINE LOCAL MOUND WORK.

Pounding two pitchers for seventeen hits, including a triple and five doubles, the Petes smeared Cobourg with a 17-1 shellacking in an exhibition ball game at Stevenson Park Saturday. A fair-sized crowd saw the Petes perform in classy style on their 'irst apperance of the year, but the game was too one-sided to prove very exciting. Hard hitting and fine twirling on the part of the locals accounted for the top-heavy score.

Cobourg were held to three scattered hits by three Petes' pitchers, Calladine blanking them the four frames he hurled, McCarthy allowing a double and single the next three innings, and Deyell giving a single the last two. Calladine fanned five, McCarthy one and Deyell four—three in a row in the ninth. Besides the barrage of base-hits laid down by the slugging Lee crew, they dished up some snappy fielding, though many of them didn't receive a chance all afternoon.

It started off like a close contest, but the homesters ran in two in the second. They began to hit hard after that and pushed home five in the third and sixth in the fourth to take a huge lead. Two each in the seventh and eighth wound up the scoring spree. A walk by Rollings and Ibey's double gave Cobourg its lone tally in the sixth. Neither Lefty Campbell, who started on the visitors' mound, nor Hoot Gibson, who replaced him in the third and finished, proved any mystery to the home hitters, and their support was only fair.

Burton, Calladine and McCarthy were the only Petes to go hitless. Len Hollingsworth led them all with three singles in three trips Whatley was the heavy gunner with a triple, double and single in four times while Foley banged out a two-bagger and two singles in five. Batten and Murray each hit a double and single, and Konopka clouted one for two bases. The others hit singles.

Murray, playing first in Ash's place, turned in a good job of it, while young Al Clark—in his debut in senior company—handled six chances like a veteran. Konopka took care of five grounders neatly.

DEAN BROTHERS ARE STAR ACT IN CARDS' RUN

Pair Have Accounted for Seven Victories in St. Louis' Advance to Second Place.

PIRATES LOSE 16-4.

Pirates Fall Under Phillies' 23-Hit Assault for 16 to 4 Setback.

(By Mugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer.)

St. Louis Cardinals, perched proudly in second place in the National League standing, can look back on a fine stroke of business that was accomplished when the Dean boys from Bradenton, Fla., were signed up to play in the Mound City.

In the course of the Card's winning streak which has brought 16 victories out of 20 games and in the past three weeks has carried them from a seventh-place tie to a spot only a single game behind the pace-setting Chicago Cubs, Dizzy and Paul Dean have accounted for seven victories between them with a single loss.

It was Big Brother Jerome Herman, known as the Dizzy One, who helped the Cards hoist themselves clear of the Giants' threat and past Pittsburgh Pirates with a 9-5 victory over New York Yesterday. Up to the ninth inning he allowed only four hits and three runs, accounted for by an error and Mel Ott's eighth homer of the season. Meanwhile Jim Collins, Joe Medwick and George Davis contributed circuit swats to the Cardinal cause and Manager hit a triple with the bases loaded to bring Carl Hubbel to grief.

The Pirates took the worst kind of punishment as they dropped to third under the Phillies' 23-hit assault that piled up a 16-4 score. Chicago's Cubs, still on top, saw their lead dwindle considerably when Van Lingle Munco of Pageland, S.C., and Brooklyn came back after two days of rest and limited them to six hits, while his batterymate, Al Lopez, led the Dodgers to a 5-1 triumph.

Close 21st Game

The cellar dwelling Cincinnati Reds put up a great scrap to escape their 21st defeat of the season, but finally yielded to Boston, 1-0, in the 10th inning of a hurling duel between Ben Wantwell and Silas Johnson. Buck Jordan's triple did the damage.

(By The Canadian Press)

Senior amateur baseball wars during the week-end developed a few upsets as the athletes advanced closer to real form in the Senior Ontario Baseball Amateur program. St. Thomas Tomcats, who captured the 1933 Senior O.B.A.A. crown, met their second straight loss, and Brantford Red Sox slipped a 12-3 lacing over Twin City Panthers.

Arm Armstrong launched the rally that gave London Winery a 6-5 victory over St. Thomas. He flipped out a scratch hit; Hallowell singled and McWaine scored on another drive to left. London only earned one of their six runs, and St. Thomas four of their five.

Brantford, Intermediate O.B.A.A. champions last year, batted Twin City pitchers about the lot. They knocked 16 off McCartney, Esbaugh and Lauvray, while Al. Hunt was tossing effectively for the victors. Kitchener's outfield play was poor and when Brantford jumped into the lead they were never headed.

First place in the Hamilton Senior City League was grabbed by Moodie Tigers, who stole a 7-2 win from Victorias. Johnny Anderson twirled for the winners and allowed only seven hits. Jimmy Simpson and Ted Jocelyn gave a pretty base-stealing display for Tigers in the opening frame.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Don Hurst, Phillies—Hammered Pittsburgh pitching for five hits.

Bob Burke, Senators—Limited Tigers to six hits for 4-1 triumph.

Al Lopez, Dodgers — Scored three of Brooklyn's five runs against Cubs.

Harland Clift, Browns—Led attack on Athletics with homer, triple and single.

Ben Cantwell, Braves—Limited Reds to four singles for 1-0 ten inning victory.

Eddie Morgan, Red Sox—Hit Homer with two on for runs that beat White Sox.

Frank Frisch, Cardinals — Knocked in three runs against Giants with triple.

Sammy Hale, Indians—Rapped Yankee hurling for three hits.

TENNIS MEETING.

The annual meeting of the tennis section of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling and Tennis Club will be held at 8.30 this evening in the clubhouse, and all members—junior and senior — are urged to be on hand. The election of the new executive will be held and various other matters of interest for the coming season dealt with.

CRICKET CLUB AGAIN SCORES EASY VICTORY

Peterborough Team Tallies 165 Runs for 6 Wickets in Saturday's Game.

MEET WHITTAKERS.

At the request of the Grove School, Lakefield, the match arranged with them for Saturday was postponed and a return match was played against Whitakers.

This resulted in another easy win for the Peterborough Club, who scored 165 for 6 wickets (innings declared closed). Whitakers replying with only 40. Peterborough made a poor start, but on Lawrence and Worrall becoming associated a long stand was made—putting on 85 runs; Lawrence's individual score was 49 and Rev. E. Worrall, 41. Other high scores were Frank Dyer, 20, and W. Binks, 20 not out.

On the Whittaker's side the only successful scorer was Hawthorne, who played a plucky not out innings of 16, out of their total of 40.

For Whitakers, the most successful bowler was F. Jefferson, 4 for 29; and the Peterborough honors were shared by Dyer, Lawrence, Worrall and G. Blowers. A marked improvement was shown in the fielding; this is important, for a good fielder can save as many runs for his side as the average batsman makes.

The following team has been selected to represent Peterborough County in the first round of the County Championship on May 24th, at Nicholls Oval:

F. Dyer (captain); J. Lawrence, R. Mawhood, Rev. E. Worrall, D. Mitchell, A. Hamilton, J. Gore, G. Langhorne (Peterborough C.C.); and G. Colbran, F. Jefferson and J. Wild (Whitakers).

It is earnestly requested that these players (and others), turn up to practise on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. And a cordial invitation is given to all interested in the game to turn up at the Oval on Thursday.

The opening of the bowling season, for 1934, of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club has been definitely set for Thursday, May 24th. The greens are in good condition, and the executive of the club hopes that the boys and girls will turn out in full force in order to start off right, what promises to be the best season yet.

It is the intention of the committee to run a mixed tournament, commencing at 2 p.m. The names will be drawn from the board, and there will be three twelve-end games. There is to be no admission fee, and good prizes will be given to the winners.

Telephone your name in early, or let R. Hendry know as soon as possible.

All players are asked to accept this notice as an official invitation.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

By C. J. P.

Hits, good solid base-hits, that's what the Petes lacked last year in the C.O.B.L. playoffs. Maybe they'll lack 'em again this year, but not if the lads clout the pill as they did Saturday. Seventeen clean smashes—including a three-baser and five two-baggers—greeted two Cobourg flingers and sent them home on the wizened side of a 17-1 score. Of course, Cobourg isn't a senior team and both Gibson and Campbell have seen their best days, but still that hitting by the Petes looked impressive. And so did the home hurling and fielding, though the locals didn't have much fielding to do. The pitchers did most of the work.

• • • • • •

Bill Calladine looked as steady and affective as ever, fanning five and allowing no hits the four innings he worked. In fact, not a Cobourg batter reached first. Gene McCarthy was a little wild the next two innings, but only one run was scored against him, and in his third frame he knocked 'em off one-two-three. Archie Deyell finished up in promising style, giving one hit and fanning four in two cantos. They should all go good in league games this summer.

• • • • • •

But that barrage of hits was what we liked. It didn't make for a close, interesting game, but it was fine practice for the Petes and showed fans the potential power offensively the Lee-coached lads have. Cy Whatley did himself noble with the club, smacking out a triple, double and single in four times. Foley also hit as behooves the best hitter in the loop. Len Hollingsworth—brother of Red, last year's shortstop and now with Oshawa—certainly started off right with a grand display of hitting. He hammered out three singles in three trips and scored twice. He would have scored the other time, also, but was blocked off the plate and tagged later.

• • • • • •

Al Clark, just a juvenile but staging a grand debut in his first appearance in senior company, not only handled six chances perfectly, but also hit safely once. He might fit in nicely on the Petes' lineup, but we understand he hasn't signed yet and is undecided whether to stay with Ralph's juveniles another season or go up. Jack Playford also got a square clout at the ball, and the ex-softballer—who starred on the small diamond but played very little baseball before—appears like a coming baseball star. He'll do in the field and will be oke at bat, too, when he starts hitting curves.

• • • • • •

The two newcomers, Konopka and Murray, showed promise and will go better, take it from us. Sig had four chances and didn't muff any, though he didn't have much luck at bat till the eighth when he rifled out a neat two-bagger. Bud Murray—a scrappy, peppy and swaggering player with a lot of color—filled the shoes of Ash fine on first, but Fred will be back May 24th for the Riverdale Grads' double-header. Bud hit two screaming liners, one good for two bases, while his quick resentment when Ibey nearly pushed him off first—and Murray promptly shoved Ibey off instead—gave fans a laugh. Yeah, it's beginning to look like a ball team, but we'll know more after next Thursday.

• • • • • •

Kingston—the team that opens our loop season next Saturday—entertained Napanee the other day and won, 6-4, errors and Smith's homer in the eighth doing the trick. Both Yammy Jamieson and "Speedy" St. Louis are reported as going okay on the Ponies' mound, but the winners were held to four hits by Blazetich of the Gibbards. Considering the fact that a week before the Gibbard "B" team walloped the "A" squad, Kingston didn't make such a showing in this tussle. However, they can generally be depended upon to dish up a lot of opposition on the Petes' stamping grounds.

• • • • • •

The Hollingsworth boys had themselves quite a time of it at bat Saturday. Len conked out three safeties in three times for the Petes against Cobourg here, while Red aided Oshawa considerably to break into the win-column by rapping out four bingles in four as Danforths took the sour side of a 10-6 verdict. We're glad to see the Dukes shake out of that losing streak, and maybe the crowd will now drop around once in a while to a game there. Fans are fickle. They want to see you win every time, whereas if you did win 'em all they'd lose interest anyway, and stay home saying, "Aw, heck, we want competition!"

• • • • • •

The O.A.S.A. has given its sanction to the Omemee softball tournament May 24th, and local teams may compete in it. However, Dave Leether—local representative—warns them to make sure whom they're playing against. "If they knowingly play against any team carrying a pro, an ineligible player or one going under an assumed name, they are automatically suspended," he said. It's also up to the Omemee officials to protect teams by checking up on these points. A number of local squads will be entered.

PACKERS WIN LEAGUE POINTS FROM CALEYS

Goal Scoring Aplenty — McCracken Gets Winning Counter in Last Minute.

PACKERS 5, SCOTS 4.

A smart brand of the soccer code was displayed, on Saturday afternoon, in the opening league engagement between the Caledonians and Canada Packers, on King Edward Park, before a fair attendance. Throughout the entire ninety minutes the players gave all they had and the Scots failed to hold their lead at the finish, for the winners to get two valuable league points. E. Tice, Scots goalie, got injured as he was clearing his goal when he was charge against the upright. There were nine goals scored.

Opens Scoring

Captain Dyer of the Caley's beat Captain Buchan on selection of the toss. The open style of play prevailed in the early stages with the custodians being called upon to save their charges. On mid-field tactics, Westwood forced the issue to give N. Downer an opportunity to score. Denisen tackled, to find himself giving away a free kick that caused his side a counter when Foster tapped the ball away from Scots, goalie. The Scots' half-backs replied with keen intercepting to confine the activities inside the Packer's area where Art Downer conceded a spot kick. Tommy Craig was trusted with the kick and sent a lightning low grounder for the equaliser.

Lacked Experience

Through the lack of experience, the Scot goalie had a busy session in between the stick holding his charge clear. In spite of the fact, that this was his first game of soccer he has the initiative to make an ideal custodian. Time and again, the Packer's forwards tore right in upon him but he nullified their efforts to score. Repeatedly the Caleys would transfer the ball to the other end where a stubborn defense met their onslaught with keen tackling that held them scoreless until a conceded flag kick awarded the Scots success through Barson who accepted a clever centre from the foot of Mayett. Interval—Caledonians 2, Canada Packers 1.

Goals Aplenty

No changes were made in opening the second half, also no subs being used. After five minutes playing, McCracken broke away on the right wing to land the ball into the goal mouth where Evans hustled the ball into the net. With a two-all count the players altered their style of play to the swinging passes. Craig intercepted a dangerous Packer rush to send the ball out to Mayette who travelled down the wing to gain a successful flag kick. He lifted the sphere into the centre of the goal. On a feint move, the Packers' defense were taken off the guard as Dyer sent a deceiving drive in between a sea of legs that Chamberlain, goalie, could not see going into the net. Evans went right to the other end to gain the equalizer.

A Sudden Relapse

Both teams were working hard for an opening to get the lead and it fell to the Scots' advantage when Craig rattled a rocket drive in below the cross-bar. Chamberlain with outstretched arms saved partially but witnessed the ball drop into the goal. The Packers' went back into the Scots' goal where a scrimmage ensued, with Tice being the outstanding performer and had to concede a counter when Foster sent a rising drive into the rigging. With only a minute to go, George Downer evaded three men cleverly to find an opponent full back watching him but to his surprise the former slipped the ball across the goal mouth where McCracken run in to give the Packers their first win. Canada Packers 5, Caledonias 4.

Goal scorers—Caledonians, Barson, Dyer (2); Packers, Foster (2), Evans (2) and McCracken.

Caledonians—Ed. Tice, goal; S. Agnew and Walter Dinesen, full backs; Deb. Whatman, T. Craig and R. Creighton, half backs; J. S. Leggitt, F. Dyer, Clifford Barson, Wm. Haller and J. Mayette, forwards.

Canada Packers — J. Chamberlain, goal; Art Downer and Asa Downer, full backs; J. Buchan, T. Westwood and Art Bromley, halves; W. McCracken, D. Evans, N. Downer, T. Downer and T. Foster, forwards.

Referee—Harry Hotston. Linesmen, Alex McKinley and D. Best.

SHAKE-UP IN AMERICAN LOOP OVER WEEK-END

25,000 Cleveland Fans See Indians Defeat New York Yankees 8-5.

SENATORS BEAT TIGERS.

Senators Hit Freely to Defeat Tigers 4 to 1 on Detroit Ball Lot.

Only the first, fourth and last places in the American League standing remained in the same hands after a day of keen battling among the closely bunched teams. Cleveland Indians moved into second place by blasting out an 8-5 victory over the league leading Yankees with an early attack on Danny MacFayden which offset Gehrig's ninth circuit swat.

Detroit took the corresponding drop when Bob Burke came through with a six-hit hurling performance against the Tigers, and Washington used five doubles off Schoolboy Rowe to gain a 4-1 triumph. The Senators failed by two percentage points to move up from fourth place.

Pair Advance.

St. Louis and Boston moved up a notch apiece by trimming Philadelphia and Chicago respectively and the defeated A's went down two places to seventh. Three runs in the eighth off Johnny Marcum, third Philadelphia pitcher, gave the Browns a 10-7 decision. The Red Sox had to overcome a long Chicago lead after Zeke Bonura clouted his ninth and 10th homers of the season but won out 6-5 when Eddie Morgan followed Zeke's example and hit for the circuit with two aboard in the seventh.

Heading the Saturday program in the American was the return to form of "Lefty" Grove. His Boston team-mates won 4-1 as the old fireballer held St. Louis Brown to six hits; then banged out a homer with two aboard.

In the National, the Giants showed up well in the pinches to snake out a 6-5 win over the Reds. Even Chick Hafey's two home runs couldn't beat the New Yorkers.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Simplifying a thing is the most difficult task you can set for yourself.

It's doubly difficult in golf for this is a game as complicated as life itself. It's complicated to most players because they have acquired so many false notions, so many bad habits about the swing.

Eliminating these notions and habits is a tough job mainly because these players can't bring themselves to believe that the successful swing is really a simple motion.

The first step toward improvement is to firmly convince yourself that the correct swing is simple.

Then, train yourself to follow the most simple positions and movements you can fi

ELECTRICS BEAT LINDSAY 8 TO 1

In Soccer League Game at Scugog Town—Lack of Training Evident.

Lindsay took a severe beating from the Canadian General soccer eleven on Saturday at Lindsay by the score of 8-1, through lack of training. The homesters were the first to carry the attack, but they dwindled to naught after the interval. N Dobie got the lone counter for Lindsay, while McMaster got three. This win gives C.G.E. two points.

First Half.

The visitors won the toss, the homesters facing the sun In the early stages, the players were cautious in their tactics. After twenty-five minutes' play, Quinn broke away on the right to place the ball to the foot of McMaster who opened the scoring. Another was added on the next visit. Lindsay penetrated the C.G.E. defence to finish poorly in front of goal. On an individual effort, Quinn carried the ball along the wing until near the goal area where he sent a drop shot into goal, the custodian being deceived by the flight as it dropped into the far corner. McMaster made it four. Before the interval a scrimmage took place in front of the Lindsay goal where Cooper connected to make the score: Canadian General 5, Lindsay 0.

Second Half.

On resuming, Lindsay forced the play against the visitors to find their efforts nullified by the Mitchell brothers on the defence. Continuing the attack, Burgess cleared upfield to drive a fast shot into goal. Munt jumped up to head clear, but instead deflected the sphere into goal. Ten minutes to go, McMaster outwitted the defence to beat Bacon at close range. The last counter was scored by Tom McPhate. Lindsay's lone tally, scored by Dobie, was the best goal of the game. Canadian General 8, Lindsay 1.

Goal scorers — McMaster (3), McPhate, Mitchell, Burgess, Quinn, Cooper, C.G.E. Lindsay, N. Dobie.

Lindsay — C. Bacon, goal; J Springhall and A. O'Halloran, backs; G. Dobie, G. Munt, and R. Worthington, halves. H. Keith, A. Moir, N. Dobie, H. Latham, and J. Wiles.

Canadian General — W. Curtis, goal; J. Mitchell and A. Mitchell, backs; S. Clark, E. Jones and A. Burgess, halves; J. Quinn, F. Earle B McMaster, W. Cooper, and T. McPhate, forwards; sub., W. McIntosh.

LAKEFIELD AUDIENCE IS TAKEN ON LECTURE TRIP TO EAST AFRICA

Wonderful Collection of Pictures is Shown by Frank Pullen, Oakville.

NAIROBI, HEADQUARTERS.

LAKEFIELD May 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—A large audience had a real treat on Wednesday night when Mr. Frank Pullen of Oakville gave an illustrated lecture on his trip to East Africa. It was the realization of a long-cherished plan of Mr. Pullen's, and he had the good fortune to have as a companion and conductor Major Anderson, who was with the Prince of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of York and their big game-hunting trips to East Africa.

The particular part visited was what was formerly German East Africa, but is now administered by the British under a mandate. The trip was made via England, Dover to Calais and through France overland to Marseilles, where the ship was taken (avoiding the stormy Bay of Biscay), through the Suez Canal and down to the port of Mombassa. Headquarters were made at Nairobi, and from there the party left for the hunting grounds and the variety and quantity of game was beyond one's wildest dreams.

Camera Shooting

Most of Mr. Pullen's shooting was done with his camera and the results were remarkably fine and held the audience, especially the schoolboys, spellbound. The country was in appearance not unlike our Prairie country, and was dry with few rivers. An extinct volcano, nine thousand feet above the sea with a crater like a huge saucer seven thousand feet above the sea level; the crater was twelve miles in diamater and in it were two large lakes. The party travelled by motor, a Ford, a Chevrolet and two motor lorries, which took the camp equipment, etc.

The arrangements were so very complete that the camp was very comfortable and the party moved back to Nairobi and got Mrs. Pullen and Mrs. Anderson, who thoroughly enjoyed the experience. The gun-bearers and camp staff were all natives and were loyal, reliable and honest, and never failed in their duties.

The variety of game was marvellous indeed, and on the screen the giraffe with its awkward gait and long neck which enables the creature to feed nicely from the higher and more succulent foliage, was seen wandering in its native haunts; not an individual specimen but literally in droves. The buffalo is one of the most dangerous in a charge and one has to use greatest caution. The rhinocerous is another tough proposition; the zebra is the prey of some of the larger and more ferocious animals. Vultures, flamingoes and eagles were abundant and in one of the pictures was a huge land tortoise.

Lion Leading Killer

The lion has accounted for more human lives than any other wild animal, but the buffalo, elephant and rhino all have taken a toll of human lives. Foolhardiness is one of the main reasons why big game hunters lose their lives. The elephant is found in thick jungle, and one may get very close without seeing them; but if the elephant gets the wind and scents the presence of the human it is the time for speedy retreat.

Mr. Pullen apologized for a tremor in some of the picture which was accounted for by the fact that they were taken from the motor car with the engine running. It was a remarkable collection of pictures of wild life in its native environment and the personal side gave it an added interest.

Mr. Pullen was introduced by Dr. Mackenzie as an ex-pupil of his and also as a friend of rare merit on a cruise on the "Gay Gelpie" in the holiday season. Mr. Pullen has been for many years a regular and welcome visitor at The Grove, and his story of his East African trip has been of especial interest.

Fire Destroys Home Of Lonsdale Widow

TWEED, May 19. — (Examiner Correspondence.) — On Monday morning, the home of Mrs. Sullivan, a resident of the community of Lonsdale, was completely destroyed by fire, while she was attending church. There were five small children in the house at the time and they were forced to make a hurried exit when the flames were discovered. Nothing was saved.

Mrs. Sullivan is a widow with a number of small children and her loss will be a severe one.

SEVEN INDIAN SKULLS FOUND

Believed Algonquin Victims of Iroquois' Raid 200 Years Ago.

NEAR PORT CARLING.

GRAVENHURST, Ont., May 21.—(CP).—The era when the Indian settled his dispute with the tomahawk and roamed the wild and picturesque country which is now Muskoka, was pictured in the minds of residents here to-day as they discussed discovery of seven Indian skeletons.

Buried standing up, the Indians whose skeletons were found were believed members of the Algonquin tribe and victims of a tribal clash which marked the lives of Algonquins, Hurons and Mohawks. The skeletons were found less than two feet below the ground which told a story of a hasty burial as the Algonquins fled in disordered retreat before a hatchet-wielding foe.

Workmen digging in a gravel pit at Pine Lands, near Port Carling on Muskoka Lake, unearthed the skeletons. The shovel of one workman struck a skull and disclosed the remains. Dr. R. E. Joyce, coroner of Port Carling on Muskoka Lake, declared there was no doubt the skeletons were those of Algonquin Indians who inhabited Muskoka about 200 years ago.

Buried Standing Up

One of the skulls contained teeth in upper and lower jaws and were in perfect condition but the other two skulls were completely decayed. Constable Bishton of Bala and George Mahon, road construction foreman, accompanied Dr. Joyce in his inquiry and were convinced they were Indian skeletons as the bodies had been buried standing up.

The skeletons were only 18 inches below the surface. Mr. John Wallace of Port Carling, pioneer of the district, also expressed the belief the skeletons were those of Indians. He was unable, however, to recall any historical events in connection with Indian tribes of the district. J. A. Burgess, postmaster and general merchant of Bala, old-timer and leading resident, could not remember any Indian burial ground located here.

Workmen gathered up the bones of the red skinned warriors and placed them in a box. They were interred in a marked grave near their original burial ground.

DOMINION WELL ON ITS WAY TO SURE RECOVERY

Optimistic Message Delivered by George H. Harris to Joint Rotary-Life Underwriters' Luncheon.

GROWTH OF INSURANCE.

Canadians Last Year Paid Out $225,000,000 in Premiums Speaker Asserts.

That Canada, next to the Mother Country, was the leader in the march back to better times and that this Dominion is firmly on the way to a substantial prosperity, was the optimistic message delivered by George H. Harris of Montreal, in addressing a joint luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club and the Peterborough Life Underwriters' Association at the Empress Hotel to-day. Both organizations were well represented at the meeting, which was presided over by Dr. A. Moir- president of the Rotary Club.

The encouraging outlook of business conditions given by Mr. Harris and his exposition of the progress and importance of life insurance made his address a noteworthy effort.

Wilson C. McCreery, President of the Life Underwrites' Association, introduced the insurance men present and called attention to next week's national campaign, while other visitors were welcomed by Mr. Fred L. Roy for the Rotarly Club.

The speaker, introduced by Rotarian N. J. Wootten, who referred to Mr. Harris as one of the outstanding insurance men of the continent, began with a tribute to the work of Rotary. Service clubs, he said, were doing in an amateur way what life insurance was doing professionally, and he believed skilfully.

Mr. Harris remarked that this was the second occasion on which he had addressed a joint meeting of Rotary and life underwriters here and pointed out that they were meeting to-day under much more encouraging auspices than two years ago.

It was safe to say, he declared, that Canadians could now look back upon the depression reminiscently. The corner had been turned a year ago and steady progress had been recorded since that time. Mr. Harris quoted some encouraging statistics in support of that contention, showing that the economic index had risen, car loadings had increased by 25 per cent, automobile production had shown a great gain, steel production was rising, and there were definite signs of a genuine recovery.

The speaker passed on to deal with the remarkable progress made by life insurance in Canada. In 1907, he said, the assets of Canadian insurance companies comprised 16 per cent. of the liabilities of the chartered banks of Canada to the public; to-day those assets represented 59 per cent of bank liabilities. Again in 1907 insurance assets were 21 per cent of the debt of the Canadian steam railways; today they represented 53 per cent, although the railway debt had enormously increased in the meanwhile.

Premium incomes of Canadian life insurance companies last year amounted to 225,000,000, which was greater than in 1929. In 1929 Canadians out of every $100 paid $3.50 for life insurance; to-day they are paying $6.25 out of every $100.

The payments made by life insurance companies were enormous. In the four years of the depression the life insurance companies of Canada and the United States had paid out 13,000,000,000 in death claims, maturities and in loans and surrenders, and it was significant that last year more than 50 per cent of the payment were for loans and surrenders, showing the value of life insurance in times of financial distress.

"Since Confederation," Mr. Harris declared, "no life insurance company in Canada has failed to discharge to the utmost extent, the full amount of its contractual obligations—a record held in no other country on the face of this earth."

Speaking directly to the underwriters, Mr. Harris advised them to approach the public with confidence and to tell the story of what life insurance meant to the nation and to the individual.

The thanks of the gathering were extended the speaker on motion of Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean for the Rotarians and W. O. Bennett for the life underwriters.

REV. S. H. MOYER IS LAID TO REST

Peterborough Presbytery Took Charge of Springville Minister's Funeral.

BURIED AT WESTWOOD.

The Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean Saturday afternoon stood in the pulpit at Springville United Church and delivered an eloquent funeral oration, on the occasion of the services held in tribute to the late Rev. Sylvester H. Moyer, B.A., B.D., who passed away in his 57th year.

It was from the same pulpit that the Rev. Moyer delivered his final message to his congregation on Easter Sunday, just prior to the development of an illness that was to confine him to his bed for a greater part of the time, until his passing on Wednesday evening last.

Under the auspices of Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church in Canada with the Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, chairman, in charge of the arrangements impressive tribute was paid to the memory of the late Rev. Moyer. Private services were conducted in the Manse by the Rev. William McDonald and preceded the public service held in Springville Church, where the late Rev. Moyer had held the charge for five years. For the public service the church was filled to capacity with a large representation from the Springville and Fairmont congregations over which the deceased held the pastorate at the time of his death, as well as by a large number of people who were present from Westwood and Grafton, where the Rev. Moyer had also held charges during his twenty-five years in the ministry.

The Rev. William McDonald and the Rev. A. H. Going took part in the church service, while the former also conducted the committal service at Westwood Cemetery where interment of the remains was made in the presence of another large gathering of people.

Members of Peterborough Presbytery consisting of a large representation of twenty-three clergy acted as honorary pall-bearers. The active pall-bearers, elders of the Springville and Fairmount churches were as follows: Springville Mellville Johnston, S. Fairburn, W. Tully, S. Connell; Fairmount, G. McBain, T. McIndoo, R. Earl and Mr. Wilson.

Besides his widow who was formerly Florence Copeland, the Rev. Moyer is survived by three children, Kenneth Moyer of Myrtle and the Misses Helen and Ruth at home.

Chrysler Sales Far Ahead Of Last Year

At the close of business Thursday, May 17th, Chrysler Corporation of Canada Limited had shipped more cars to Canadian dealers than in the entire year 1933.

This announcement was made today by Jno. D. Mansfield, president and general manager, as indicative of the strong upward trend in domestic business this year. And last year's Chrysler sales were far ahead of 1932.

During this spring Chrysler employment far exceeded the largest total in the history of the company's Border factories, and continues at a high level.

In addition to phenomenal increases in the sales of passenger cars, the demand for trucks has increased greatly, an excellent indication of general business improvement as their use is based entirely on commercial requirements.

not on the list, you do not receive the ballot to which you are otherwise entitled.

A qualified voter must be 21 years of age on or before June 19, 1934, must be a British subject, and must be a resident of Canada for twelve months prior to election day In the city you must be a resident as on May 17, and in the county residence of two months before June 19 is required.

When the enumerators have completed their work their lists will be printed, and copies will be posted in public places where the elector can find out whether his name has been omitted, if by chance the enumerator failed to obtain his name. In that case there will be a final opportunity to have your name listed at public sittings before the Revising officer, and public notice will be made of when these sittings will take place.

Use Municipal List.

In the townships and villages of Peterborough county the municipal voting list will be used as the basis of the provincial list for the general elections. Days are announced for the revision of the municipal lists, and on these occasions it will be the duty of the elector to have his name added if by chance it has been previously omitted.

A certain degree of initiative will be required from the electors themselves in taking the simple steps to secure the enlistment of their names. They must see whether their names have been omitted from the municipal list and then from the newly prepared provincial list. If they fail to take advantage of the opportunities the Government has provided for arranging the preliminaries of exercising their franchise it will be their own fault, the announcement points out, if any names are not on the list.

DEATH CLAIMS PETER SMITH

Following an inquiry in 1924 by a Public Accounts Committee Mr. Smith was sentenced to serve three years in Kingston Penitentiary, while Aemilius Jarvis, Sr., through whose company the purchases were made, was sent to York County Jail for six months and Charles R. Matthews Jr., Deputy Provincial Treasurer, was sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Mr. Smith was convicted by an Ontario Criminal Assize Court and sentenced on Oct. 24, 1924. He was released on ticket of leave in May, 1926.

Joint $600,000 Fine

He and Jarvis were ordered to pay jointly a fine of $800,000, which was reduced considerably after Jarvis appealed against sentence. He made restitution of $100,000 to the province and paid a fine of $60,000.

Mr. Smith appealed against the charge of conspiracy on which both had been convicted, but the Appeal Court upheld his conviction.

In the investigation which preceded the trial the Public Accounts Committee found, among other things, that the practice of buying up outstanding bonds of companies had been carried out loosely and that persons selling the bonds had made large profits at the expense of the Government.

Its report contained a finding of the Treasury Department that the Province had lost, on the purchase of subscribed stock and succession-duty-free bonds in England through Aemilius Jarvis and Company the sum of $527,020.

Smith was ordered to pay a fine of $100,000 for his part in the conspiracy through which the deals were carried out. His health failed before he was released from prison, but he recovered thereafter.

He is survived by his widow; two sons, Robert Smith of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Peter Smith Jr., of Stratford; and three daughters, Mrs. J. L. Grosch of Stratford, Mrs. Arthur Kent of Chicago, and Mrs. Alfred Cole of Toronto.

YOUNG FARMER IS FOUND DEAD

Body of Clarence Yule, Percy Township, Found in Swamp on Father's Farm.

SEARCH PARTY OUT.

WARKWORTH, May 21. (Examiner Correspondence)—Missing from his home under mysterious circumstances from late Friday night, search for Clarence Yule, 32-year-old son of James Yule, Percy Township farmer, ended yesterday morning when his body with par, of the head blown off, was found in a swamp about a mile and a half from his home. In his hands was clutched a shotgun.

Following his disappearance Friday niyht, neighbors instituted a search Saturday afternoon which was continued until dark and then renewed Sunday morning. Everett Salmis, aged 15, found the body in a clump of bushes.

Dr. C. C. Armstrong, coroner, was notified, while Constable Robert Kelly, of Warkworth, made investigations. Dr. Armstrong decided it was a clear case of suicide and no inquest will be held.

Cause Unknown

What caused the young man to end his life remains a mystery to the members of his family and friends. He was in good health and in his usual good spirits when last seen.

He went to bed with his brother, Gordon, Friday night, but about midnight got up explaining that he was going to the barn. Saturday morning he was missing and so was the family's single barrel shotgun and one cartridge. Becoming alarmed, a search was organized and the surrounding district was combed by searchers all day Saturday.

When the body was found Sunday, it was indicated by its position that the young man had held the gun against his chin and pulled the trigger. A nearby farmer said he had heard the sound of a shot about 2 o'clock Saturday morning.

Recently the young man had been suffering from severe head pains caused by an ulcerated tooth, but Friday evening he had suggested attending a dance.

Deceased is survived by his father, one brother, Gordon, and five sisters.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2.30 from the family residence to Warkworth cemetery. Rev. S. H. Hill, of Hastings, ofifciating.

HOUSE DECISION

charitable or educational purpose of a public character.

No Party Lines

Partly lines will be forgotten when the debate begins Tuesday and a free vote of the House will be the result.

The committees will be active again this week. The agriculture committee probing the desirability of establishing separate grades for garnet wheat, meets to-day and the mass buying committee is due to continue its investigation into the canning industry and the problems of the fruit and vegetable growers.

With the new Bank Act already approved the banking committee is now at work on the Bank of Canada Act the bill which will set up a central bank, and this week will be confronted with the question of bilingual currency. Under the Act all currency will be issued by the new central bank. The note issuing privileges of the commercial bunks are to be withdrawn gradually.

For a number of years some French-speaking members of the House have been attempting to secure the printing of Dominion Government notes in the two official languages of the country.

Now Hon. Ernest LaPointe, former Minister of Justice and a member of the banking committee, has given notice of an amendment to the Bank of Canada Act to provide that the bank's notes be printed in both languages.

Obituary

MRS. JULIA McAVELLA.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The funeral of the late Mrs. Julia McAvella was held on Saturday morning from St. Mary's Church, Campbellford, where requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. C. J. Phelan, interment being made in St. Mary's Cemetery. The pall-bearers were: Thomas McAvella, James Nelson, Ed. Clements, Mr. McMillan, John Roson and John O'Sullivan.

The late Mrs. McAvella died on Thursday last at the home of her nephew, James Nelson, at Peterborough. She was 78 years and 10 months of age. A resident of Campbellford all her life, she went to Peterborough to reside some seven years ago. She is survived by one son and one daughter.

JOHN W. PETERS.

HASTINGS, May 21 (Examiner Correspondence). — The death occurred early on Sunday morning, in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, after an illness of five weeks, of John W. Peters, a highly respected citizen of Hastings.

Born in Percy Township, deceased was the oldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Peters, and received his education in the Cobourg Road School. During his early life, he resided in Percy Township, but of late years lived in the village.

He leaves to mourn his loss three sisters and four brothers, Mrs. Fred Profit of Peterborough, Mrs. Bruce McMasters of Hagersville, Mrs. John Stinson of Manilla, Harry of Norwood, Ezra, Ross, and George, all of Percy.

The funeral will be held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Fred Profit, Armour Road, Peterborough, on Tuesday, with interment in Trent Valley Cemetery.

THOMAS CHRISTIE

Thomas Christie, well-known in the city and district as a prominent and successful retired farmer died at his residence R.R. 3 Indian River, Lot 18, Concession 2 Asphodel Township early Sunday morning after a brief illness. He was 76 years of age.

A son of the late William Christie and Margaret Boland, he was born in Asphodel Township and had spent his entire lifetime in the township. He was known as a very good neighbour and he bore the respect of a host of friends.

Predeceased by his widow, formerly Annie Galvin thirty years ago, he is survived by four sons, Leo Vincent, John and Leonard; two brothers William in Western Canada, and Charles of Toronto, and four sisters Mrs. M. Healy of Asphodel, Mrs. Duggan of Fenelon Falls, Mrs. Ward of Toronto, and Mrs. John Duggan of Western Canada.

The funeral is to be held from the family residence on Tuesday at 8.30 a.m. with a celebration of Requiem Mass at St. Paul's Church, Norwood at 9 a.m. Interment at St. Paul's Cemetery, Norwood.

What SHE TOLD WORN-OUT HUSBAND

SHE could have reproached him so for his fits of temper—his "all in" complaints. But wisely she saw in his frequent colds, his "fagged out," "on edge" condition the very trouble she herself had whipped. Constipation! The very morning after taking NR (Nature's Remedy), as she advised, he felt like himself again—

beamy alert, peppy, cheerful. NR—the safe, dependable, all-vegetable laxative and corrective—works gently, thoroughly, naturally. It stimulates the eliminative tract to complete, regular functioning. Non-habit-forming. Try a box. 25c—at druggists.

LEGS TREMBLED; HEART THROBBED

This "Hospital-Tested" Remedy Made Her Well and Strong

"I wish from my heart," writes Mrs. Louie Mitchell, of Oak Point, Manitoba, "I could persuade every person who is run-down to give Dr Williams' Pink Pills a trial. About a year ago I was suffering from a run-down system. Any little exertion would cause my legs to tremble and my heart to throb violently. I could not sweep a room or walk fifty feet without being exhausted.

"Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking only six boxes I am as well and strong as ever."

You, too, can rebuild a weak, run-down, exhausted system with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This is the remedy that was scientifically tested at a leading hospital with a group of 40 run-down people. It proved a remarkably efficient builder of red blood cells and haemoglobin, cleansing and enriching the blood of these patients quickly, and revitalizing their systems with vigor, vitality, and strength, making them feel like new people.

Get a package to-day from your druggist's. You'll begin to feel an improvement after a few doses. 50c a package. Results guaranteed or money refunded.

CAMPBELLFORD

NEWS ITEMS FOR THE TRENT TOWN DISTRICT

Charles Benor received word from Peterborough on Saturday of the death of his brother, George Benor. The late Mr. Benor was well-known in this section of the country and will be missed by his many friends.

The Venetian Gardens in Campbellford swing into action this week for the summer season, being under entirely new management. Bernard Kerr is now operating this dance hall, which has been newly fitted up, music at the dances being supplied by Edge Dolman and his Aristocrats of Campbellford.

Oddfellows Attend St. Andrew's Church

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The 115th anniversary service of Campbellford Lodge, No. 248, Independent Order of Oddfellows, and Loch Lomond Rebekah Lodge, was held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, last evening, when the lodge, under Brother Joseph J. Poulton, N.G., with Brother John F. McGregor, recording secretary, attended in a body to divine service, which was conducted by the pastor of the church, Brother Rev. J. C. Robinson. Special music was rendered by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Gwen E. Lewis, organist, which included the anthem, "Send Out Thy Light" (Gounod), and a bass solo by E. H. Lewis, "Not a Sparrow Falleth" (Gilbert). Besides the members of the Order there was a large congregation present.

The Rev. Mr. Robinson took for the theme of his sermon, "Friendship," upon which he delivered a very fine discourse, bringing out all the meaning of this very important word as applied to the Order present. It was a big word with a big meaning, he said, friendship in reality being the relationship that exists between people. It was never bad but came out of the high esteem and love one person had for another. It was a passion that entrances the people who possess it, he declared.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Butter, cheese and potato prices eased on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market last week. Egg quotations, however, were slightly firmer.

With the increase in receipts, fresh No. 1 butter finished the week at 20½c a pound for carlots or less, down ¾c from the previous week. Only 49 boxes were exported. To retailers solids were 22c and prints 23c a pound. Receipts amounted to 13,280 boxes, as compared with 9,790 the previous week.

A total of 3,533 boxes of cheese were exported last week. Ontario colored sold at 9½c a pound, off ¼c. Arrivals amounted to 3,393 boxes, against 3,412 the week before.

Quebec potatoes closed at 75c to 85c per 80-pound bag, New Brunswick Mountains at 85c to 90c per 80-pound bag and Prince Edward Island Mountains at $1.05 to $1.10 per 90-pound bag.

Lighter offerings sent graded shipments of eggs in carlots higher. Quotations were 20c a dozen for A-large, 19c for A-medium, 18c for B and 16½c to 17c for C. A total of 19,828 cases were received in comparison to 22,457 the previous week.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Buoyancy developed in wheat values Saturday, largely as a result of an official forecast indicating no likelihood of a break-up of drought next week.

Drought damage to wheat, especially in the spring-crop region Northwest, was reported as showing rapid enlargement owing to combined effects of high temperature and winds. These factors were asserted to be furnishing the worst possible conditions over enormous areas already lacking both surface and subsoil moisture of any adequate extent.

Wheat soared 2¼c a bushel, despite brisk profit-taking, with the close unsettled, 1⅜c to 1¾c higher than Friday's finish; corn 1¼c to 1⅝c up; oats ⅜c to ½c advance; and provisions exactly unchanged.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 21. — A weather map, which showed scarcely a vestige of rain in North America's wheat zone, bolstered prices on Saturday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Wheat futures got up 1 cent all around. May delivery finished at 69¾c, July at 70¾c, and October at 72¾c.

Bulls rejoiced, not only at North America's arid weather, but at unfavorable crop news from Europe. Fears were expressed important crops there had been permanently damaged.

Export business was virtually at a standstill, but support, most of it traced to commission houses, was sufficient to keep prices on the upside. Offerings were not pressing, though wheat came out on every fractional advance.

Some demand appearel for No 1 hard and No. 1 durum, but otherwise the cash market wa. dull. Oats featured coarse grains with a small gain.

Weddings

HAMBLIN—WELSH

NORWOOD, May 21. (Examiner Correspondence).—A pretty and interesting wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nixon Welsh, Ontario street at high noon, on Monday, May 14, when their daughter, Miss Beatrice Rebecca, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Andrews Hamblin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamblin of Norwood.

The parlors were lavishly decorated with spring flowers including lilies, gypsophila and evergreens and formed a delightful setting for the bridal party which entered to the strains of wedding music played by Miss Margaret Richardson of Lakefield, a cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride, entering on the arm of her father, was lovely in her wedding gown of white flat crepe with gardenias on the bodice in a smart jacket style with rope shoulders and long sleeves. She wore a wide-brimmed white modern hat and carried Laddie carnations gypsophila and adiantum.

She was attended by Miss Hilda Whattam smartly frocked in blue net with long full skirt ruffles edged in silver and pink girdle, a large pink hat and blue shoes.

Mr. Earl Hamblin, brother of the groom, performed the duties of best man.

Rev. David Wren of Picton United Church was the officiating clergyman. At the reception which followed, Mrs. Welsh was gowned in flowered georgette in blue and yellow shades with corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. Hamblin, wore a long black dress of crepe and lace and wore a corsage of Pierson roses.

The toasts to the bride and bride and bridesmaid were proposed by Rev. D. Wren and aptly responded to by the groom and the groomsman.

The bride's table was decorated with roses adiantum over a lace cloth and the wedding cake was encircles pink sweet peas. Mrs. M. E. Knox presided and dispensed coffee. Misses Hilda Whattam, Leola Palmatier, Victoria Rose and Mrs. Jean Rose, all in dainty frocks, were tea-room assistants.

Among the out-of-town guests were two aunts of the bride, Mrs. E. C. Holt of Oshawa, and Mrs. Beatrice Christie, Reg.N., late of New York; Rev. J. D. and Mrs. Glover of Clarmount Mr;. John Hamblin, Mr. W. McMillan, Mr. L. McMillan, Mrs. Alfred McMillan, and Mr. M. Andrews, of Norwood; Mr. F. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Richardson of Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Whattam and Norman of Bethel; Mr. Ronald Knox of Peterborough; Mrs. H. N. Rose of Cherry Valley.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. Glover sang "Until."

Mr. and Mrs. Hamblin left by motor for a brief honeymoon in Quebec and the Laurentian Mountains. The bride chose for travelling a blue tweed swagger suit with a pleasant blouse, small red hat and shoes and accessories. On their return they will resided on Queen Street, in Norwood.

Heavy Fighting Opens, Chaco Front

BOLIVIANS PLOT TO DRAW ATTACK ON FT. BALLIVIAN

Paraguayan Left Wing Reported Advancing From North.

DELAY MAIN DRIVE.

Few Details Leak Out on Casualties From Battle Zones.

(By Lorenzo Lizieres, A.P. Foreign Staff.)

ASUNCION, Paraguay, May 22 (A.P.). — Furious fighting raged to-day along scattered sections of the Chaco front as Bolivian forces were maneuvered in an attempt to draw the Paraguayan army into a premature offensive upon Fort Ballivian.

An advance of the Paraguayan left wing to the north was reported, but the Minister of Defence to Asuncion said word from the battle zones indicated the Paraguayan command was not ready to launch its general advance.

The delay in opening the offensive against the fort, Bolivia's most important stronghold, indicated that General Jose Estigarribia is taking fully into consideration the dangers that await his troops in what probably will be the decisive battle of the Great Chaco warfare.

Between the Paraguayan army and the fort lies a mile-wide plain. Beyond, before Fort Ballivian, the Bolivian troops—though smaller in numbers—are strongly entrenched.

Fighting centered to-day as yesterday around the bitterly-contested "Canada" and "Stronguest" zones. There was no indication as to the numbers involved. Paraguay has 40,000 men concentrated along a 25-mile front ;Bolivia 15,000 in and before the fort.

THE FINAL BATTLE.

(By Charles E. Harner, A.P. Foreign Staff.)
(Copyright, 1934, The Associated Press.)

Like two bulldogs, heedless of the spectators who seek to pull them apart, Paraguay and Bolivia are locked in a death struggle at Fort Ballivian.

The Senors despatches which have come through from Asuncion and La Paz indicate each nation has thrown the full power of its main armies into the fight in an effort to end the war decisively and in a hurry.

This rush of troops into battle has come just as the world Powers announced through Geneva, Washington, and London that the war in the Chaco must end.

Steps have been taken to shut off further war materials from the the compatants of embargoes. It is possible that the Ford Ballivian campaign, although in progress for four months past, is being expedited by both nations in an effort to beat the embargo deadline.

It probably will be weeks before any kind of authentic estimates come out of the Chaco as to the number of casualties in the Fort Ballivian engagement. The engagement, however, is only an incident in 400 years of Chaco fighting.

Just a Dream Of Hepburn's, Says Henry On Third Party Financing Accusation

TORONTO, May 22 (C.P.). — 'Just a dream," commented Premier George S. Henry to-day on charges of Liberal Leader Mitchell F. Hepburn that the Conservatives were financing third party candidates to assure Government victories in doubtful ridings.

"I am certainly not interested in all the candidates running in my riding of East York," the Premier said, pointing out that Liberal, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, and Communist candidates were contesting the riding. "And I don't know who is financing them," he added.

BLOODY BATTLE RAGES IN SQUARE AT MINNEAPOLIS

18 Special Officers Among 45 Badly Injured as Strikers Run Rampage.

ALL POLICE CALLED OUT.

Squad Cars Driven Into Crowd, Rifles Brandished Before Mob Gives.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 22.—(A.P.)—One man was killed and at least 44 other persons were injured, some seriously, in a riot at the city market to-day where striking truck drivers and sympathizers congregated to halt movement of trucks.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 22 (AP)—The City Market was converted into a bedlam of noise, flying missiles, and teeming strikers again to-day as truck drivers and their sympathizers rioted into a two block square area from which 45 person were taken to hospitals.

Eighteen special policemen, some believed seriously injured, were among those taken to the City Hospital in ambulances and police squad cars. The injured were bleeding profusely.

The mob was in riotous control of the Market Place. Police fighting desperately, resorted to driving squad cars with sirens screaming. squad cars, with sirens screaming, into the throng. Some dodged. Others did not ,or could not. A few strikers, struck down by glancing blows from fenders, were hurt.

First Avenue North, a block from the main traffic artery in the heart of the downtown district, was choked with persons from Fourth to Seventh streets.

Deputies Give Up Badges

Some special deputies, in fear of their lives, ripped their badges off and handed them to strikers. One special officer, cornered with a regular policeman, was severely beaten until he surrendered his badge.

Blood streamed from the nose and mouth of another unidentified deputy as he lay on the littered pavement after being beaten severely. Finally, room was made in an ambulance and he was rushed to a hospital.

Every available policeman in the city was ordered to the Market Place.

One of the injured, a special policeman, whose name was not disclosed, was unconscious and reported near death. With the arrival of regular policemen, brandishing rifles, shotguns and pistols, the throng that had swept everyone before it to gain control of the area quieted and some, in a response to a speaker, began to march out of the district.

Future issues of the Dominion Fruit Branch 1934 crop report, will cover conditions up to the 15th of each month and will be released on certain specified dates to be announced later.

Relief Program

OTTAWA, May 22.—(C.P.—The same provisions for relief works which prevailed in Ontario last year will be continued and a program, mostly of road building and repairs, is now under way at a cost of $366,000, to be shared equally by the Dominoin, the Province and the municipalities. The total expenditure will be for roads other than trans-Canada Highway.

CYCLONIC WIND DAMAGES KENT FRUIT, BUILDINGS

Barns and Silos Are Swept From Foundations, Some Wrecked.

RAIN AIDS CROPS.

Storm Follows Path Taken by Tornado Forty Years Ago.

LONDON, Ont., May 22 (CP) — Western Ontario farmers to-day were repairing the damage caused by an electrical storm which swept over the countryside, driven by strong winds and accompanied by hail and rain. Thousands of dollars damage was left in the wake of the storm which reached cyclonic proportions.

The hail battered greenhouses and pelted flowers and other plants, especially in the southern part of Oxford Township where damage is estimated at $5,000. Barns, silos and outbuildings were swept from their foundations by the fierce winds.

The rain, however, proved a benefit in areas where the land was dry and pastures and crops poor.

Matthew H. Gosnell's barn on the south middle road in Southern Oxford Township was wrecked and an apple orchard damaged. The barn was hurled from its foundations and crashed to the ground ten feet away. Roy Turner's barn and silo on the Johnston sideroad felt the storm's wrath when they were shifted a foot.

Turner was in his automobile when the wind and rain appeared, and he said the machine was moved down the road although it was in low gear. His barn, he said, was moved about the same distance by a cyclone two years ago.

The storm followed the path of the cyclone and also the same path as the tornado which swept the district 40 years ago.

HEALTH OFFICER IS BEING SOUGHT BY CITY COUNCIL

Council to Advertise for Full-time M.O.H. and City Physician.

WANT RIGHT MAN.

Local Doctors Will Be Given First Opportunity to Apply.

First move to secure the services of a duly qualified full-time medical officer of health and city physician for Peterborough was made last evening by the City Council at a special session, when it was decided that applications for the two positions, now temporarily filled by Dr. A. W. McPherson, will be sought.

Advertisements will be placed in The Examiner and applications will be received up until May 31 by the city clerk. Each applicant must state his age and qualification.

It was pointed out by Mayor Denne that the Council is not bound to make the appointment from the applications first received in this primary effort on the Council's part to secure a capable man for the two important offices. "We want to see first if we have a man in Peterborough qualified and willing to take the job," he explained. "If we haven't, then we'll widen out and look elsewhere."

Alderman McIntyre asked: "Have you anyone in mind."

"Absolutely not. It's an open book. There has been no man picked or mentioned for the job," replied the mayor.

Alderman Tuggey suggested that before taking any action in making the appointment the Board of Education should be interviewed regarding its co-operation in outlining the duties of the medical offi-

PREMIER OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN

Claims Over $8,000,000 Relief Indebtedness Being Wiped From Books.

TEARING UP NOTES.

REGINA, May 22. (CP).—Entering the political campaign with a declaration between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 of relief indebtedness was being wiped from the books, Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan to-day was leading his forces in a bid for relection June 19.

The Premier, head of Saskatchewan's co-operative government formed largely by Conservatives, made his first major address of the campaign last night at Weyburn. Hon. James G. Gardiner, Liberal leader, spoke at Strasbourg, attacking the government and its expenditures. M. J. Coldwell, leader of the Farmer-Labor (C.C.F.) party, had no speaking engagements.

Both federal and provincial governments were wiping out completely between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 of relief indebtedness incurred during the last few years by residents of the drouth-stricken areas of southern Saskatchewan, said Premier Anderson.

Handing Back Millions

"We are handing back to the rural municipal councils millions of dollars of indebtedness incurred in this regard" said Premier Anderson, "telling the rural administrations to cancel all of these obligations as far as the provincial and federal governments are concerned.

"We are tearing up those repayment notes and are wiping out those millions of dollars of obligations entered into because we realised that through successive years of crop failure they cannot possibly repay those amounts, and we want to give them a chance to re-establish themselves on a paying basis.

These remissions, Premier Anderson pointed out, applied to obligations entered into by the farmers through the relief commission.

TRAVEL BUREAU NEEDED AT ONCE FOR DOMINION

Senate Tourist Committee Suggests $150,000 be Voted by Parliament.

AID IN 1934 CAMPAIGN.

Claim Visitors' Trade Matter of National, Provincial, Municipal Concern.

OTTAWA, May 22. (CP)—A Canadian travel bureau should be established immediately as a branch of the appropriate department of the Dominion Government. This was urged in the report of the Senate tourist committee presented to the upper house to-day by Senator W. M. Dennis, chairman.

A sum of $150,000 should be voted by parliament to help in a campaign for tourists this year and a permanent progressive organization established. There should also be an advisory council of tourist and travel directors, federal and provincial, and the executive of the Canadian Assocation of Tourist and Publicity Bureau.

Eight Proposals

The chief recommendations of the comprehensive report follow:

1. That the tourist trade of Canada is a matter of national, as well as provincial, municipal and private concern.

2. That the touris, trade of Canada is capable of great expansion.

3. That an aggressive campaign of tourist trade promotion should be launched at once as a national effort and in co-operation with with tourist travel and publicity agencies, public and private throughout the Dominion.

4. That a "Canadian Travel Bureau" be established as branch of the Appropriate Department of the Dominion Government; such bureau to have a director at its head and be assisted by an advisory council consisting of the directors of information of the various provincial governments representatives of the federal departments and services interested in tourist travel promotion and the members of the executive of the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaux.

Bolt Leaves Sudbury In Dark 40 Minutes

SUDBURY, Ont., May 22 (C.P.).—All Sudbury was in darkness for 40 minutes last night when lightning during an intense thunderstorm struck the power distribution lines of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission in the city, burnt out the coils on the automatic switches on two transformers, and damaged the switchboard in the Hydro sub-station, from which the city system derives its current.

Flame from the switchboard set fire to the charts, and the records of the day's power consumption were destroyed. While the city circuit was hooked up again without difficulty, the power circuit, which serves factories in the city limits, was not repaired early this morning.

DENY MEMBERS GIVING SUPPORT TO ANY FACTION

No Saw-off in Legislature Says Chairman Spry Issuing Manifesto.

LENGTHY PLATFORM.

Will Back Bills on Merits Only Regardless of Sponsor's Affiliation.

TORONTO, May 22 (C.P.).—The Co-operative Commonwealth will not co-operate with any other political party in the Ontario general elections, a manifesto issued to-day by Graham Spry, chairman of the party's Ontario executive, says.

The manifesto says the suggestion "broadcast and insinuated in some of the Liberal speeches that the C.C.F. would give official support to the Liberals is utterly false.

"There will be no saw-off in the Legislature. C.C.F. members will vote on bills regardless of what party sponsors them, and support any bill on its merits only."

In a preamble the manifesto says the Federation stands for establishment in Canada of a "socialized and planned economy in which the principle of regulated production, distribution and exchange is service and not profit."

The Platform.

The manifesto contains these platforms:

"No eviction from farms or homes.

"Regulation and control of the distribution of prime necessities such as bread, milk, meat and fuel.

"Elimination of the principle relief at the earliest possible date by providing work at prevailing trade union rates of pay.

"Publicly organized health, hospital and medical services. Health services should be made at least as freely available as are educational services to-day.

"State responsibility for unemployment, sickness and accident insurance and drastic revision of the old-age pensions legislation, including extension of the Mothers' allowance Act to include mothers with one child.

"Free speech, assembly and association for all.

JAMES P. MOORE JOINS CABINET

London Member Made Minister Without Portfolio to Replace J. R. Cooke.

ELECTED IN 1926.

TORONTO, May 22. — (C.P.)—James Percy Moore, K.C., member of the Ontario Legislature for North London, to-day was sworn in as minister without portfolio in the government of George S. Henry. Mr. Moore will take the post vacated by Hon. J. R. Cooke, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, who is retiring from politics owing to absorption of his riding through redistribution

Mr. Moore was sworn in before Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce.

Mr. Cooke, retiring member for Hastings North, announced some time ago he wouud not seek re-election when Ontario goes to the polls June 19.

James Percy Moore, native of London, Ont., is 64 years old. He received his law training at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, and was called to the Ontario Bar in 1888. He was appointed a King's Counsellor in 1910. He was first elected to the Legislature in 1926 and was re-elected in the general election of 1929.

He is a member of the London Railway Commission and a Governor of the University of Western Ontario.

SYNTHETIC FOOD USED TO STOP WAR BLOCKADE

Hitler to Profit by Mistake of Last Year and Avoid Shortage.

BREAD FROM WOOD

Chief Cause of Germany's Defeat Will Soon be Wiped Out.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Copyright by Central Press Canadian and Examiner

PARIS, May 22.—Germany cannot again be brought to her knees by a food shortage in an eventual war of the future. Blockades will be ineffectual. Food manufactured from wood is going to carry Germany through the greatest emergency. A famine is impossible in the Reich after this. Coffee, potatoes, bread, vegetables, butter, eggs and meat are being made today from coal and tar products. Only in small quantities and for experimental purposes for the time being, but the process of manufacture has advanced so far on the road to perfection that huge supplies can be turned out in a few weeks' time, should the need arise.

Departing from the theory that Germany lost the great war because the imperial regime had insufficiently organized the food supply of the central empires and that Germany could have held out indefinitely and even have conquered the allies in the end, the Hitler government has rectified this error and now announces the Reich agriculturally self-sufficient. If an emergency should substitute every essential foreign product with one produced at home.

Farmer Is Stunned By Lightning Bolt

LIFFORD LINE, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence). — Edward Lathangue, farmer of this district, narrowly missed death while working in the fields during a severe thunderstorm, when a lightning bolt struck within a few yards of him and his team of horses.

With the rain beating down, the farmer was hurrying to draw home a few bags of unsown grain, when the lightning bolt, with a queer hissing sound and a bright light, fell near him. The bolt threw up the soil and made a hole in the ground the size of a man's head.

The farmer lay stunned for several minutes, and one of the horses fell against the tongue of the wagon and didn't fully recover from the shock for several hours.

Other farmers, it was reported, received minor shocks during the unusually severe storm, but no buildings were destroyed by fire.

PAPER COMPANY OWES THE BANKS $14,000,000

Attempts to Organize and Conserve Paper Industry Failed.

COMMITTEE IS TOLD.

No Great Profits Accrued to Any Person as Result of Mergers.

OTTAWA, May 22.—(C.P.)—Attempts to organize and conserve the newsprint industry in Canada over the period from 1923 to 1930 had been defeated partially because new companies kept starting up and brought on over-production, J. H. Gundy, priminent Canadian financier and associate of Sir Herbert Holt, told the committee on Banking and Commerce to-day.

Under questioning by Major C. G. Power, (Lib. Quebec south), who brought on this phase of the inquiry, Mr. Gundy led the committee through the maze of intricate merger operations which drew into the Canada Power and Paper Corporation a large number of leading pulp and paper producers in Canada.

No Great Profits.

No great profits had accrued to any person as a result of the merger operations, Mr. Gundy declared, and he personally stood to suffer a heavy loss. At the present time the corporation, recently organized as the Consolidated Power and Paper Corporation, owed the banks about $14,000,000, he said. This was secured by inventories and securities.

The mergers had been carried out in an attempt to eliminate causes of friction which threatened to destroy the industry, Mr. Gundy said. He denied that profit had been the chief factor, but admitted that fear of the growing power of the International Paper Company might have featured as one influence leading to the expansion.

Purchase of Anticosti Island for its free-hold timber limits, in which the Corporation had a one-third share, had turned out badly, the witness said. He would go so far as

FARMER IS HURT FIGHTING FIRE

Barn of Harry Miller, Emily Township, is Burned to the Ground.

SUSTAINED BURNS

(Examiner Correspondent)

EAST EMILY, May 22. — In a frantic but futile effort to save his barn from destruction by fire yesterday afternoon, Harry Miller, 2nd line of Emily Township sustained burns that necessitated medical attention. He was treated by Dr. G. N. Earl of Omemee and after the burns had been dressed was removed to his home. To-day he is stated to be resting comfortably.

The barn, a large frame structure was razed to the ground, while a quantity of grain and feed was lost in the fire and, implements were destroyed. Loss is only partly covered by insurance.

The fire first started in the hay mow early yesterday morning, but through hard and timely effort was brought under control. It broke afresh without any warning, while the Miller family were at dinner shortly after noon. Assisted by neighbors, Mr. Miller made a desperate effort to bring the fire under control, it is stated, but without success.

Almost Inch Of Rain Fallen Since Sunday Touching Countryside With Magic Hand

Almost an inch of rain has fallen since Sunday, Walter Peters informed The Examiner this morning.

Monday's precipitation was .64 of an inch, and the register for to-day was .19, a total since Sunday of .83 of an inch.

"You might call that a real good rain," Mr. Peters said, "and I don't think it is all over yet."

Sunday's heat and rain have covered the country with a magic hand. The trees have unfolded their leaves, and the meadows are lush with grass, providing timely feed for cattle for which dairy farmers have been waiting for weeks. Some of the clover fields are recovering to a far greater extent than was expected when the first estimate of the winter's damage was made. Spring seeding should germinate rapidly with the present moisture and the country prospects on the whole have brightened materially since the farmers realized that about 8 per cent of the fall wheat had been winter killed.

Start Filling In Old Welland Canal Will Use Bridge To Span Otonabee River

In line with T. P. Lancaster's recent announcement that he had secured the assurance of the Minister of Railways and Canals at Ottawa that the new bridge across the Otonabee River at the locks would be installed this year, is the report from St. Catharines that the Government is proceeding with the work of filling in the old Welland Canal, and the bridge from that point will be removed to Peterborough. By using this bridge from the Welland Canal, which is practically a new structure, and in every way suitable here, a large saving to Peterborough City and County will result.

The announcement from St. Catharines follows: "An expenditure of $85,000 will be made by the Dominion Government in filling in the abandoned Welland Canal. Alderman Frank Wilson announced at a meeting of the City Council to-night. The work will be commenced immediately. A steel bridge on Highway No. 8 across the canal will be removed to the Trent Canal, the council was informed. Filling in the canal will eliminate the need of a bridge at this point."

SWEEPSTAKES VOTE EXPECTED IN HOUSE TO-DAY

Strong Support Predicted from Quebec and B. C. Members.

NO PARTY LINES.

King Says Market Bill Plan to Put Empire Control in Hands of Few.

OTTAWA, May 22.—(CP)—Free from party control members of the House of Commons will today express their views on the desirability of legalized sweepstakes in Canada. The House will turn from its long argument over the Marketing Bill to debate the bill sent down from the Senate which would authorize sweepstakes for the aid of hospitals conducted under regulations to be laid down by the attorney-general of the province concerned.

A similar bill passed the Senate last year but the House of Commons rejected it with scant ceremony. This year Prime Minister R. B. Bennett has announced the government will take a neutral attitude and leave its supporters free to vote for or against the proposal as they see fit. There is no assurance a vote will be reached today as the number of members who want to speak may be large but when a vote does come it is certain to cut across party lines.

B. C.-Quebec Leaders

So far most of the demand for sweepstakes appears to have come from Quebec and British Columbia and members from those provinces will likely be prominent among those supporting the bill. Another measure of the same sort is before the House for second reading on the motion of Pierre Casgrain, (Lib. Charlevoix - Saguenay). It, however, would permit sweeps to be held for any public charitable or educational purpose.

The Marketing Bill moved slowly in committee of the whole yesterday. The long discussion over individual clauses was enlivened when Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, charged the bill was part of a plan to centralize the control of production and marketing for the whole Empire in the hands of a few men in London.

The fact other parts of the Empire had enacted or were enacting similar measures coupled with an evident tendency in the United Kingdon to discuss marketing on an Empire-wide basis was regarded by Mr. King as significant.

He raised strong objection to those clauses of the bill which would permit the minister to recommend the institution of a marketing scheme where the producers did not ask for one and which would authorize the government to prohibit the import or export of duties regulated under the bill.

A Bath Fiend

PHILADELPHIA May 22. — (CP). — Insistent on his bath-right to the pursuit of coolness led Boleslaw Szczyglewski to the "cooler."

The mercury reached 95 degrees and Szczyglewski insisted on taking all the cold baths he wanted to escape the heat. His landlord objected to use of so much water. A battle ensued and police arrived.

Szczyglewski barricaded himself in his apartment, but police broke down the door and took him to jail.

HEPBURN PEPS HIS CAMPAIGN

Promises 50 p.c. Cut in Cost of Administration—Social Services Untouched.

IN HAMILTON DISTRICT.

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

HAMILTON, Ont., May 22 (CP) —Swinging into full stride in the Provincial election campaign, Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal Leader, arrived here to-day, for a series of meetings in the city and adjoining ridings. His stay will be a brief one, for to-morrow he turns to Eastern Ontario prior to going north this week-end.

Opening his campaign at Thorold and Niagara Falls yesterday, the Liberal Leader attacked the present administration, promising a 50 per cent reduction in costs with no impairment of essential social services such as Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowances. In the latter case, he promised, there would be extension of the Act to provide for widows with one child.

The Government, he continued, was making strenuous but futile efforts to remain in office. Road workers had been given increased pay and relief grants had been increased by 25 per cent. However, he declared, if the Government had been sincere in its desires to help the unemployed, these grants would have been made two years ago when the need was greater than it is now.

There were many three-cornered fights in prospect, he said. But he intimated some of the third parties were financed by Conservatives in an effort to break the Liberal vote.

He had been subjected to many attacks by Government speakers, he continued, but in any case "Premier George S. Henry is the best Liberal leader the Tory party ever had, and I hope he stays there long enough for us to get at him."

DISTRUSTFUL VERA.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 22 (C.P.).—Vera, a footsore elephant, must plod the roads because she won't accept a ride. The six-ton feature attraction of a circus, Vera refused to ride in the trailer truck built for her. So now Vera's boss steers her down the roads at night to the next circus stand.

JUST ACCOUNTS.

PLATTEVILLE, Wis., May 22. — (C.P.).—Butcher Bill Brodbeck says the customers who bought meat from him "on the cuff"—and never paid—got more than the burglars who hauled a heavy safe from his market. There was nothing in the safe but account books.

Bulgaria in Hands of Military Fascist Group

Without firing a single shot, the military forces of Bulgaria last week end staged a coup d'etat, dissolved the Parliament and set up a Fascist state under the leadership of King Boris. The new regime is now entrenching itself with its only opposition coming from the independence-demanding state of Macedonia, from whom the new regime will attempt to take all present power. It is feared that armed opposition might result. King Boris (left), while he took no part, gave his full co-operation. At the right is seen Queen Giovanni. Top picture shows Sofia, capital, where the coup d'etat was carried out.

INQUIRY TURNS TOWARD RUBBER

Stevens Not Satisfied With Explanations of Fertilizer Prices West of Kingston.

CANNING TRICKS AIRED.

OTTAWA, May 22 (C.P.).—Another industry, this time the rubber industry, comes under the scrutiny of the Stevens Committee on Price Spreads and Mass Buying to-day. One more witness is to be heard in connection with fruit and vegetables and the committee will then turn to rubber.

Yesterday the committee examined A. L. Smith, head of the Eastern Ontario Fertilizer Association and Hon. H. H. Stevens, chairman, declared he was not satisfied with Mr. Smith's explanation of the prices charged for fertilizer in Ontario west of Kingston.

Earlier fruit and vegetable growers alleged prices in that area were as much as 40 per cent. higher than prices in Quebec due to the operations of the association.

Mr. Smith attributed the difference to freight and trucking costs and to the possibility of intense competition keeping prices in Quebec at unprofitably low prices.

Further complaints against the canning companies were brought to the committee yesterday by H. L. Craise of St. Catharines, who suggested the committee investigate the high price of fertilizers and the "can monopoly."

Canners, he alleged, were responsible for the low prices received by producers. One method used to beat down prices, he said, was to import a large quantity of a fruit or vegetable just at the start of the canning season in order to overload the market.

Out of Season

CHICAGO, May 22. (CP)—A hot weather Santa Claus and his two "reindeer" were arrested for disorderly conduct because a chimney was too narrow for a passageway.

Alfred Ralls, 19, told police he and Joseph Roberts, 18, were acting as reindeer for Walter Usumaris, 20, when the latter was caught in a chimney.

They freed him by knocking the aperture to bits, but this displeased the owner, who had them arrested.

BULGAR CABINET SLASHING COSTS OF GOVERNMENT

Predict Wholesale Resignation Civic Officials as Overlapping Bureaus Go.

30 OFFICERS ARRESTED.

Ministers Walk as Thrift Example, on First Visit to King.

(By Wade Werner, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 22 (AP)—The "Walking Cabinet" of Premier Kimon Geurgueff began hacking away to-day, as promised, at the high cost of Government in Bulgaria.

The Ministers themselves set an example in thrift yesterday, eschewing motor transportation; they went on foot to the palace for their first official call on King Boris since they vaulted into power Saturday in a bloodless coup d'etat.

Wholesale "resignations" of civil officials were predicted as the Government began bearing down against overlapping bureaus. A general program of consolidation and simplification of official business was undertaken.

Military leaders backing the new regime began weeding out all officers found unfriendly. Thirty officers taken in custody before the swift overthrow of the old Government, resigned.

Rigid economies will be necessary to carry out the announced determination to balance the budget and re-establish credit while making credit available to farmers and raising the cultural level of rural areas.

There was no sign or opposition to the regime.

WAYNE DOCTOR SHOT BY DEPUTY

Woman With Victim Claims Bullets Were Fired Without Warning.

ACCIDENT SAYS OFFICER.

DETROIT, May 22 (C.P.). — Dr. D. W. Johnston, Jr., Wayne County medical examiner, was shot and killed yesterday by a special deputy sheriff in nearby Macomb County while the physician was seated in an automobile with a young woman.

The deputy, Matthew Berger, a farmer living near the intersection of Twelve Mile Road and Schoenherr Road, where the shooting took place, told Sheriff Gerrett Smith of Macomb County and Assistant Prosecutor Vincent L. Fitzgerald that he fired accidentally.

Miss Anne Nixon, who was with the physician, said the shots were fired without warning, but the deputy said he fired two warning shots after approaching the car on a report that "there was a lot of noise" coming from it.

TORIES CHARGED WITH FINANCING THIRD PARTIES

Scheme to Capture Doubtful Ridings Says Mitchell Hepburn.

HEENAN ON WAR PATH.

Premier Predicts Conservative Candidate in Every Constituency by June 19.

TORONTO, May 22 (C.P.).—Conservatives to-day faced the accusation they were financing third-party candidates in the Ontario general election campaign to capture doubtful ridings. Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, made this charge when he addressed a Liberal rally at Niagara Falls last night as he continued a heavy campaign itinerary.

Hon. Peter Heenan, former Labor Minister in the King Liberal Government, took part in the election oratory last night when he spoke at a Toronto meeting and renewed his charge that a worker in a Government highway camp received a one-cent cheque, all that was left after the man had worked for a month and purchased "a few nick knacks and necessities."

Mr. Heenan claimed the present Ontario Government was the "remnant of the outfit Howard Ferguson deserted when he ran over to England, got himself a job and put the ocean between himself and the wrath of the Ontario people."

90 Tory Candidates.

Premier George S. Henry told the Canadian Greek Liberal-Conservative Club in Toronto that his party would have a man in every one of the 90 ridings when voting appeared June 19. He predicted there would be between 226 and 260 candidates in the fight from all parties by nomination day, June 12. He charged the three-cornered and four-cornered fights showed the intentions of the Opposition groups were to turn the Government out at all costs whether they could form a suitable administration or not.

John Digby Chick, who was chosen at the Windsor convention as Conservative candidate for Windsor-Sandwich, declared he was speaking on the authority of Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Ontario Minister of Highways, when he said the Government's beer and wine legislation would be in operation July 1 if the Conservatives were returned to power.

Besides Mr. Chick there were three other Conservative candidates chosen last night, bringing the total number to 85. The others were Edward G. Boyd, North Wellington; J. H. Findlay, South Renfrew; T. J. Mahony, South Went-worth. Rev. Dr. George Little, who opposes changes in the Liquor Control Act without a referendum entered the Toronto Eglinton riding as an Independent.

Communist Enters.

Sam Scarlett, vice-president of the Workers' Unity League, made his appearance in North Waterloo as a Communist candidate, and George Arnott entered the election in East Hamilton as a Workers' Party candidate.

Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Welfare, addressed a meeting at Kingston last night and Hon. Leopold Macaulay, highway minister, appeared before the Windsor-Sandwich Conservative convention.

The independents, according to R. J. Scott, president of the United Farmers of Ontario, will hold the balance of power in the next Ontario Legislature. He addressed an Independent Party meeting in West Lambton and declared Canada would be forced to lower its tariffs by means of bi-lateral and multi-lateral trade agreements.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION FOR CARTWRIGHT PLANNED

BOWMANVILLE, May 22.—At a meeting of the Centennial Committee, under the chairmanship of Reeve Norman Green, plans were completed for Cartwright Township's Centenary celebration on June 16, 17 and 18. The plans call for an ambitious program of sports to synchronize with the historic aspects of the celebration, and the various Committee Chairmen reported on their developing plans.

It is hoped to have Lieutenant-Governor Dr. H. A. Bruce, Russell Nesbitt, K.C., Dr. Fred Marlow and other notable native sons participate in the public addresses for the occasion. Among many special features will be the unveiling of a cairn in memory of "The Pioneers of the Township"; and the sports schedules will include a multiplicity of events, including an epic tug-o'-war between six-men teams representing North and South Cartwright.

POLICE ON TRAIL OF WIFE BEATER

Husband Eludes Party of Men After Woman Staggers to Street.

HEAD, SHOULDERS INJURED

CHATHAM, Ont., May 22.—(CP) —Police today are seeking Fred Primeau of Chatham who is alleged to have beaten his wife with a rusty pipe. The woman, according to witnesses, staggered out of her home covered with blood and collapsed on the street.

Witnesses said the husband fled from the home and eluded a party of men who chased him. Police said he has disappeared. Mrs. Primeau is in hospital suffering from injuries to her head, a bruised shoulder and an injured hand.

Sylvestre Faubert, a neighbor, rushed into the Promeau apartment and fought the husband with a chair and prevented further injury to the woman according to police.

JANETVILLE Y.P. PRESENT PLAY

"Go Slow, Mary" Draws Large Audience to Foresters' Hall.

C.C.F. HOLDS RALLY.

JANETVILLE, May 22.—Examiner Correspondence.)— On Friday evening the Y.P.S. of the United church enacted the initial presentation of their excellent three-act play, entitled "Go Slow, Mary," in the Foresters' Hall, with a large audience of appreciative listeners from far and near. All agreed that it was one of the best presented in this community for some time.

Between acts Mrs. C. Smith contributed delightful piano music. Rev. W. C. Smith introduced the play in an attractive manner. The cast of characters was as follows: Billy Abbey, the misunderstood husband, Howard Stinson; Mary Abbey, his wife, Gladys Irvine; Mrs. Berdin, the grandmother, Mrs. Wm. Sanderson; Katie, the popular maid, Bessie Howe, Dolly and Bobby, the two angels (?), Edna ackett and Ross Jackett; Burt Childs, Billie's friend, Grier Earl; Sally Carter, a friend of Mary's, Norma Stacey; Danny Grubb, the iceman, Jack Jackett; Murphy, the policeman, Russ Deyell; Marry Stevens and Jack Jordan.

A splendid moral was predominant in the play which was thoroughly entertaining, each character being particularly well chosen.

Miss Evelyn Millson, teacher at Janetville, received the sincere appreciation of the society for her untiring efforts in training at many late nights of practice. The financial returns exceeded the expectations of the young people. Lunch was served to the caste of characters and all assisting friends.

The Co-operative Commonwealth Federatnon held their initial meeting in the north of Durham on Monday evening in the Foresters' Hall, which was well filled. Miss Lorna Cotton, of the Provincial Council of C.C.F. was the special speaker for the meeting.

Miss Cotton spoke very forcefully and persuasively, pointing out the inadequacy of the Liberal and Conservative policies and stressing the need of facing the 20th century problems with a 20th century outlook. She expounded in detail the C.C.F. farm policy which guarantees security of tenure to the farmer upon his farm and re-finances mortgages at lower interest rates. The speaker stressed the need for strong appeal to build a new Canada for our young people.

Mr. Wm. Lyrett, teacher at Maple Grove, Bowmanville, acted in the capacity of chairman for the evening.

At the close of the meeting a number of interested men and women remained to form a permanent club in this district.

HASTINGS A.Y.P.A. PRESENTS COMEDY

Play, "The Private Tutor," is Presented in Westwood Town Hall.

WESTWOOD, May 22.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A very successful comedy-farce, "The Private Tutor," was presented in the Westwood Town Hall by the A.Y.P.A. of St. George's Anglican Church, Hastings, under the auspices of St. Michael's and All Angels' Church, Westwood, on Friday evening, May 8th.

Much credit is due the different characters for their splendid impersonation. The scene of the plot was laid in Fred. Spencer's rooms at Clearfield College, where remorse for a misdemeanor of the college rules was making Fred. and his chum, George Carothers, very miserable. The unexpected arrival of the Spencer family so complicated matters that one untruth led to another, making a very difficult situation for the college boys. During a month's suspension from college, spent at the Spencer home under most trying circumstances, reports of a murder and tragedy case were cleared up by a full confession by the boys.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Fred. Spencer, who believes experience the best teacher—Eric Pulfer.

George Carothers, his chum, who also seeks experience—N. Dainard.

Mr. Spencer, his father, who owns an oil well—Harry Tyrrell.

Hans Dinkiederfer, his undoing, leader of a little German band—Ray Pulfer.

Richard, servant at the Spencer's —Eddie Radford.

Mrs. Spencer, Fred's mother, who has social aspirations — Berniece Dainard.

Dolly Spencer, his sister, who has a mind of her own—Mary Pulfer.

Miss Snap, a detective—Myrtle Pulfer.

ELIE BRUNELLE GIVES REPORT ROTARY MEET

Campbellford Club Hears of 27th District Conference Held at St. Catharines.

FINE ATTENDANCE.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22.— A report of the annual district conference of the 27th District, Rotary International, held last week-end at St. Catharines, Ontario, was given the Campbellford Rotary Club at the noon luncheon yesterday, by Rotarian Elie Brunelle, club delegates to the conference, in which he stressed the good work being done by the organization and the interest being taken in its work by its members. President Clarence Williams handled the gavel for the meeting, which was held in the St. Lawrence Hotel.

Mr. Brunelle, in the course of his report, declared it to be the best district conference that he had ever attended. The governor's banquet was attended by over twelve hundred guests, with a 12-piece orchestra in attendance, and all meetings of the conference were exceptionally well attended, the large I.O.O.F. hall being filled to capacity for these.

Many outstanding speakers were featured at this gathering, coming from all parts of the district, which is divided between Canadian and American clubs. The elevation of the new District Governor was one of the main items of business, this office being filled for the 1934-35 season by James S. Dunwoodie of Erie, Pennsylvania.

In the address given by the governor it was brought out that the work among crippled children had been so well handled that at present there were 26,000 cases being looked after by the 27th District. The work had grown so large, it was felt that the government should now take over the responsibility of it. On the other hand it was felt that the very nature of Rotary made it an organization that should in reality concentrate on work among boys.

The real Rotarian was he that put something into Rotary, the speaker said. Rotary had a responsibility in the community he said, but this was very often overlooked in a small club. It was by attendance at larger functions such as the convention that one got the broader outlook, the ideal the inspiration, of the organization, and the conviction that Rotary was working to make the world a better place.

One of the mistakes of the smaller clubs, one speaker stressed, was the fact that nearly everything was left with the president and secretary to handle. This was wrong, for every department should function and in so doing retain the interest and support of all the members. If Rotary met as a social club only, it meant nothing. Every member had to be made to realize what it was all about if a greater success was to be registered in the work, and a greater service rendered to the community and country.

An appreciation of the report given by Rotarian Brunelle was expressed by Rotarian Bruce Longmore. The club decided not to meet on June 4, the day set aside by the Dominion Government for theobservance of the King's Birthday.

Ryan, Toronto, and Sister Mary Teresa, Peterborough, and five brothers, James and Joseph, Toronto; Frank, Norwood; Fred, Windsor, and Egbet, Chicago.

MRS. W. R. LEARMOUTH

HASTINGS, May 22. (Examiner Correspondence). — It was with feelings of sadness that it became known that Isabelle Anderson Thomson, wife of W. R. Learmouth and only daughter of the late Rev. Dr. D. A. Thomson, beloved pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who predeceased her two years ago, and of the late Mrs. Thomson who passed away five months ago, had also been called to Higher Service.

Deceased, who was in her 49th year, had not been in good health for many months and was taken to a rest home in Fergus, Ontario, where everything possible was done for her comfort.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon from her late residence to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church thence to Trent Valley Cemetery for interment. Her pastor, Rev. S. H. Hill, B.A., and four members of the Presbytery assisted in the service: Mr. Dutton of Peterborough read the first lesson, followed by prayers by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of Peterborough; the second lesson was read by Rev. J. C. Robinson of Campbellford, and words of consolation by Rev. Duncan of Warkworth and Rev. S. H. Hill of Hastings.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Dr. Wilson, T. A. Coughlan, John Wilson, Scott Fife, James Humphries and W. M. Fowlds.

Besides her husband, there are left to mourn her loss, three brothers, Rev. E. A. Thomson of Elora, John M. Thomson of Owen Sound and Walter C. Thomson of Toronto, and one stepson, Russel Learmouth, all of whom were present at the funeral.

MRS. CAROLINE TURNER

MILLBROOK, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence) — The funeral of Mrs. Carrie Turner took place on Friday at 2.30 p.m., from the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. G. Freelove, with the Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., assisted by Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., and the Rev. William Simpson, B.A., taking charge of the service.

Deceased, whose death took place at the Port Hope Hospital on Wednesday following an extended illness, was born in Millbrook fifty-seven years ago, and was a daughter of the late William and Francis Jane Bruce. Her husband, James Turner, passed away in 1906, and the immediate surviving relatives include three sons, Manly, Stanley and Fred; three sisters, Mrs. Harry Whyte, and Mrs. Mrs. George Freelove, of Millbrook, and Mrs. Maud Lowes, of Detroit; also three brothers, William, Millbrook, Walter, of Peterborough, and Norman, of Toronto.

Mrs. Turner was connected with the former Methodist and later with the United churches, and the home was well filled on Friday with relatives and other citizens who had gathered for the service. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. W. H. Coombe, S. E. Eakins, F. A. Kidd, P. I. Bentley, W. E. Ball and A. Hunter.

Interment was in the United Church cemetery (Gardiner's).

MRS. RICHARD NURSE.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Richard Nurse, whose death occurred on Monday morning, May 14th, was held from her late residence in South Monaghan on Wednesday afternoon, which was largely attended. Mrs. Nurse was in her 77th year, and had resided in the township all her life. She was loved and respected by all who knew her for her kindness and thoughtfulness toward others.

The service was conducted by her pastor, the Rev. Mr. Cooke of Fraserville.

She leaves to mourn her loss one son, Harold, at home; also two daughters, Mrs. Pearl Jewison of Hope Township, and Lulu at home.

The pall-bearers were: Clifton Lang, Gerald Lang, Sidney Lang, Vincent Jewison, Clifford Wood and Ewart King.

DR. T. J. C. TINDLE

TWEED, May 22.—Following an illness of a month, Dr. T. J. C. Tindle, prominent medical man of Flinton, died yesterday in Belleville General Hospital. Dr. Tindle had practised in Flinton for the past 31 years, coming to that community from Peterborough directly following his graduation from the University of Toronto. Fifty-eight years of age, he was known throughout Hastings and Lennox and adjoining counties. He was a Conservative in politics and was a strong supporter of the temperance cause. He is survived by his widow and half-sister, Miss May Jory of Peterborough.

GEORGE BENOR LAID TO REST

Interred in Family Plot at Campbellford, With Full Masonic Rites.

DIED IN PETERBOROUGH.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Under the auspices of Golden Rule Lodge, A.F and A.M., of which he was a member, George Alfred Benor, prominent Peterborough citizen and a native of Campbellford, was laid to rest in the family plot in Mount Pleasant Cemetery at that place yesterday afternoon, following a service in Peterborough, conducted by the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson rector of All Saints' Church. At the interment at Campbellford, the Rev. T. H. Floyd, rector of Christ Church, assisted. Pall bearers were: A. C. Connor, Davidson Wilson, A. J. Armour, T. J. Craighead, Hylton Coxwell, and J. Heptonstall.

Services held at Belleghem's Funeral Home at Peterborough, were under Masonic auspices, with pall-bearers mainly representative of the Masonic Order, being as follows: Messrs. James Skinner, William Buller, Morley Lyle, John Allin, Walter Blackwell, Harry Robinson.

The late Mr. Benor died in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, on Friday last, following a stroke he suffered ten days ago. Former head representative in Ontario district for the North American Life Insurance Company, he was a prominent Freemason, being a member of Golden Rule Lodge, Campbellford, Corinthian Lodge, Peterborough and Ionic Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, Campbellford.

A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Benor, the deceased was born in Campbellford ,where he resided before going to live in Peterborough, twenty-one years ago. Eight years ago he retired from business owing to ill health. Genial and kind, he was held in high esteem by a very large circle of friends and business acquaintances, and was well known as an ardent fisherman, a sport of which he was very fond.

Besides his widow, who formerly was Miss Maude Mary Carnahan, the late Mr. Benor is survived by one daughter, Evelyn Marian; two brothers, James T. Benor, of St. Petersburg, Florida and Charles Benor of Campbellford; and three sisters, Mrs. R. Brennan of Toronto, Mrs. J. Coombs of Smith's Falls, and Mrs. J. Glassford of Campbellford.

BOLIVIANS PLOT TO DRAW ATTACK

Hostilities started there in 1526, when Sebastian Cabot sailed up the Parana River to the Bermejo. Other conquestadores followed. They fought the Guaranos, the Indians who still live in Paraguay and whose language still is spoken there. Even though it is also a Spanish-speaking country.

Peace Ends

The Jesuits went there in 1605, baptized the Guaranos and established missions. They had an empire there for more than half a century.

Then came old-world diplomacy to wreck the peace. The King of Spain ceded part of this Jesuit territory to Portugal in 1750.

The Jesuits refused to acknowledge the dismemberment of the territory and both Spain and Portugal dispatched soldiers to subdue the fighting priests.

The Jesuits were driven from the country in 1769. Paraguay declared its independence from Spain 1811. Even in those days fighting was going on in the Chaco Boreal —which means "the forest wilderness," the sovereignity of which Paraguay and Bolivia are contesting. Then, it was warfare with hostile Indians.

This is not the first time that the Chaco has caused concern to the United States. One of the strangest episodes in United States history concerns an engagement between a United States navy and Paraguay which was definitely connected with the United States Civil War.

NEW CHILDREN'S AID HOME

BROCKVILLE — Announcement was made yesterday that the property on the outskirts of the town known as Fairknowe Home and used for many years as Canadian distributing centre for the orphan homes of Scotland had been purchased by Senator A. C. Hardy and Mrs. Hardy for presentation to the Children's Aid Society of Brockville as a shelter, the present quarters having become inadequate to accommodate wards of that organization.

MAKE SURE OF YOUR VOTE.

Once again may The Examiner warn its readers who are eligible to vote at the approaching provincial election that they make sure their name is on the list.

The enumerators commenced their work in the city divisions yesterday, and they are to have their task completed by Friday night.

If no one has called on you by that time it would be wise for you to get into touch with the official in your district and have your name added before he turns in his lists; otherwise you will have to make an appearance before one of the revising officers.

In spite of the publicity that has been given there seems to be some individuals who do not understand the purport of a visit from an enumerator, and who are inclined to resent being asked to supply the required information, apparently believing that it is being secured for some other purpose than preparing election lists.

It should be understood that this canvass serves no other end than of securing the names of eligible electors, and it is therefore a convenient way in which voters may be registered.

It should therefore be the duty of the public to give the enumerators every co-operation and assistance, for theirs is a task of great importance and it is essential that it should be carried out accurately and efficiently.

WALLACEBURG SHOWS THE WAY.

Up in Wallaceburg where, as in every other centre, there is a relief problem the Unemployed Association is showing its sound common sense by taking a definite stand against the activities of outside organizers and agitators who stir up strife among the workless.

The Wallaceburg unemployed have announced that any of these agents from out of town who come along in the hope of starting a direct action campaign among the town's workless citizens will be politely "shown the door"; they declare that they are quite capable of protecting their own interests without any professional meddlers, and that they require no outside assistance in presenting their case.

If some of the unemployed in other centres would show the same appreciation of the fitness of things and the same wisdom these imported organizers would soon be all back at their Toronto headquarters, entertaining themselves by squabbling with the Queen City police and singing the Red Internationale, instead of trying to get the workless off into dubious channels where nothing but trouble awaits them.

If there are conditions as to relief that should be improved the reforms can never be brought about by following the advice of agitators, who would rather see grievance go unadjusted so as to make it easier for them to stir up trouble.

THE SASKATCHEWAN MIX-UP.

If the political situation in Ontario threatens to become somewhat involved because of the number of candidates entering into the contest, electors in this province have the satisfaction of knowing that at least they have not such a confusing mix-up to deal with as have the voters of Saskatchewan, who also have to face the responsibility four weeks from today of selecting a government.

At the last election in the western province, it will be remembered, the Liberal Government was defeated, the electors choosing 27 Liberals, 26 Conservatives, six independents and five Progressives. When the third party candidates threw in their lot with the Conservatives Mr. Anderson, the Conservative leader, became head of a Co-operative Government, which has been in power ever since.

In the present contest the Government will be opposed not only by the Liberal party, under the leadership of J. G. Gardiner, former premier, but by the Farmer-Labor party, affiliated with the C.C.F. and led by M. J. Caldwell. All three parties express confidence in the outcome, but while it is difficult at this stage and from this distance to indulge in accurate predictions, the best guess at the present time is that the British Columbia results will be repeated, that is that the Liberal opposition will carry the day and that the C.C.F. group may develop into the official Opposition.

However, the new organization is well psepared and might quite easily slip into power over the heads of both old parties. It promises to be an interesting struggle.

THE DOG POISONER.

The dog poisoner is an individual not unknown in Peterborough, although fortunately his activities recently have not been very pronounced.

At present several Ontario centres are suffering an epidemic of dog poisoning, and two items yesterday were of particular interest.

One was from Windsor where Frank Mitchell, well known locally, has offered a reward of $100 for the conviction of the person or persons guilty of killing dogs in that neighborhood, and the other from Ottawa where a nine-year-old girl wrote to the Journal to tell of the death of her pet Peter who fell a victim to poison.

In both cases a point was stressed that The Examiner imagines must be totally disregarded by the individual who sets out to slay somebody's else dog, and that is the distress that is caused the owner of the poisoned dog, in many cases a child whose heart is broken by the death of a cherished canine friend.

It is probable that any person callous and cruel enough to poison a harmless dog would be impervious to the suffering his action might bring to some little boy or girl, but at all events no harm can be done by calling attention to that aspect of dog poisoning.

There is just the faint chance that a consideration of all that is involved might deter some would-be dog killer from going ahead with his dastardly work; and because of that chance this article is printed.

Incidentally let us hope that Frank Mitchell's reward may bring results in Windsor and reveal the identity of the coward who is slaying the dog population.

THE CHANGE IN THE TIDE.

People who still feel dubious as to whether we are really on the upgrade in Canada and whether we have really made any substantial advance will do well to compare the figures of our foreign trade in the last two fiscal years. They will find in them most significant proof of a change from a falling to a rising tide of trade.

During the last fiscal year—April, 1933, to March, 1934—the total trade of Canada amounted to $1,019,456,000. In the previous twelve months it amounted to $887,097,000. There was last year, therefore, a gain of $132,238,000 or 14.9 per cent over the previous year. The improvement did not take place in every month of the twelve. For the first three months of the last fiscal year on the contrary there was a decline in total trade. In the fourth month the first increase was registered and each succeeding month thereafter showed gains as compared with the corresponding month of the previous year.

The following table, which shows the changes month by month in our total trade as compared with the same month of the previous year, requires no comment:

April	Decrease	28.7	per cent.
May	"	7.7	" "
June	"	2.7	" "
July	Increase	11.2	" "
August	"	7.0	" "
September	"	25.7	" "
October	"	8.3	" "
November	"	24.0	" "
December	"	20.7	" "
January	"	40.9	" "
February	"	43.0	" "
March	"	51.0	" "

In the total trade gain both imports and exports shared, with the increase of the latter somewhat larger than that of the former. Total imports of the year were $433,776,000 as compared with $405,383,000 for 1932-33, making an increase of 6.7 per cent. for last year. From April to June there was a large decrease in imports, varying from 31.3 to 17.5 per cent. In July the decrease fell to only 0.04 per cent.; in August there was a gain of 6.1 per cent., and gains continued through the remaining seven months, rising sharply from 20.7 in December to 51 per cent. in March. Total domestic exports, as we have said, showed a greater gain than imports. They amounted to $579,368,000 as compared with $473,801,000 for the fiscal year 1932-33, increasing by $105,567,000 or 22.3 per cent. In April they decreased 25.7 per cent. as compared with April, 1932. The next month they made a sharp reversal, gaining 12.6 per cent. over the same month of the previous year. For each of the succeeding ten months they registered gains. The increase varied in the next seven months between a high of 37.0 in September and a low of 6.8 in October. In January it reached 47.8 per cent., dropped to 43.4 in February and rose to 57.6 per cent. for March as compared with the previous year.

A particularly noteworthy feature of these figures for exports and imports alike is the large increases in the last three months of the fiscal year or the first three of 1934. After some months of persistent gains last year trade showed a distinctly greater vigor from the opening of the present year. The remarkable gains for the first quarter of the calendar year have been added to in April, when the total trade of Canada was 64 per cent. higher than a year ago. The month's exports of domestic products, amounting to $31,382,000, were 57.8 per cent. greater than in April, 1933, while imports at $34,815,000 were 70.2 per cent. greater. The figures as a whole convey indubitable evidence of progress toward economic recovery.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make sure your name is on the voters' lists. If you find yourself without a vote on election day you can chiefly blame yourself.

It is difficult to believe that an election campaign is on. The Mail and Empire appeared yesterday without a solitary political editorial.

The C.C.F. organization is to have some 26 candidates in the field, which means that the new party will not have a chance to form a government or even to become the official Opposition in the next Legislature.

Captain Philpott says that Premier Henry and Mitchell F. Hepburn are fighting for the chance to become Ontario's bartender, which, come to think of it, is a very apt way of describing the current political situation.

Some old campaigners are dropping out of the fray in this election, but other veterans are coming back to the firing line, W. G. Welchel, Conservative candidate in North Waterloo, being one of the latest to return to the political wars.

Candidates in the provincial arena do not have to put up a deposit, which explains the large number of aspirants in the field. Some of the Communist, United Front and C.C.F. candidates are running merely for the opportunity of putting over propaganda favorable to their cause.

The robins are again heard in the land, but the sweetest return of music is that of the cash register. —Toronto Saturday Night.

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

READ THIS FIRST

Talking to her sister Etta, Alysia Naylor is resentful over the approaching marriage of their cousin John Tait and Lucy Burnham, a widow, because the sisters will have to leave Tait's home where they have been living. They relate the news to Reggie Claridge, Alysia's fiance. At Alysia's suggestion Reggie agrees to go to Vichy where their wealthy Aunt Norah is stopping with her stepson, Tait, and his fiancee. Reggie is to try to win Lucy's attentions away from John and prevent the marriage. Lady Tait, who is "Aunt Norah" to the Naylor sisters and their brother, Claud, is seated in the hotel lobby at Vichy.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 4

Fiddlesticks, thought Lady Tait, ruefully aware that her accident had at least saved her from the necessity of having three weeks of that sort of thing. As it was, she had agreed to try them for a week, coming back next year for the regular cure should she find herself benefited. Her maid, Rainer, came for her now. It was time for the first of the week's baths. Rainer wanted to go with her mistress, but Lady Tait did not want her. She liked exploring by herself. Lucy Burnham, too, would be at the Establissement des Bains, and they would come home together.

A minute later and the hotel car put her down at what looked like a Moorish palace of white stucco, a big building just behind the Parc. Lady Tait stepped into a vast, vaulted hall, made her way to a business-like looking desk, showed the doctor's ordonnance, and was given a ticket. She was directed down a passage which started with Eastern magnificence, but increased in simplicity with every step, until finally she was asked to wait in a ladies' waiting-room, which was a very creditable copy of the same room in an English country station. Here she was kept only a second, for two cheerful, smiling women pounced on her, declared themselves as Doctor Precheur's baigneuses, and took her into a tiny hall opposite. Here three wooden cubicles met her eye with a sort of sun blind across each doorway.

Lady Tait, as she undressed, wondered how stout women fared. Even for her the box was a tight fit. The next compartment was empty, the third apparently occupied.

"A lady, who comes frequently, had this, but we asked her to let madame have it, as madame is still a little lame from her accident," the woman had said on showing Lady Tait in. A very dashing garter on the floor suggested that the late occupant was young.

Lady Tait was undressing in her rather slow, methodical way, when she heard the door of the waiting room open, and a swift step on the tiles. To her susprise, a second later, a hand, fat, pudgy, thrust something through the side of the sun blind into her cubicle without a word. It dropped on the floor on one of her shoes, a plain, closed envelope. Lady Tait supposed it to be some toilet advertisement, or fortune teller's address. She slit it with an incurious finger preparatory to tearing it in half.

Inside, on a half sheet of paper, was written Reginald Claridge. Then came the following: "Lives by his wits. Penniless. Small salary with Decor, Ltd. No money. No family. But knows some good people." That was all. Lady Tait turned the paper over. Nothing was written on the other side. The message, whatever its meaning, was all that the envelope contained. It struck her as extraordinary, this singularly brief and unflattering resume of Mr. Claridge, written in English, and dropped into her cubicle here on the first visit that she had ever made to the baths. She read it again. Surely it was not some new form of advertising, too subtle for her to grasp.

She heard a voice speaking close beside her in French, a very trim shadow crossed her door blind. As she stepped out in her loofah shoes, and thick toweling wrap, the baigneuse, pocketing a departing tip, murmured to her "La jeune anglaise" who let madam have her cabin.

"Could this have been meant for you?" Lady Tait called, as she held out the envelope with its odd enclosures. She had quite forgotten that there was another occupant of the little boxes.

"It was dropped into this cubicle just now. It's certainly not for me, as I saw when I opened it."

She found herself looking into a very striking young face, but, to her, a very repellent one. Low-browed, loose-lipped, hair rakishly parted on the side, gray-yellow eyes that were hard, and bold, and calculating.

"And it certainly isn't meant for me!" the stranger said, with almost rude negligence, as she skimmed over the words. "More likely for a detective, I fancy. I'll give it in at the lost property office as I pass, since you say it isn't for you." The eyes rested impudently on the elder woman before she went on. Lady Tait felt that every white hair, every wrinkle, was noticed and scorned. That impression soon passed, but the incident itself stuck in her mind while one attendant played a hot water spray from across the large room up and down her spine, and the second rubbed her with Eau de Cologne.

She went on into the waiting room and related the little happening to Mrs. Burnham who, her own carbonic acid bath over, looked fresh and charming as usual in her shady hat and frock of colored embroidery.

Lucy Burnham was a very pretty, sweet-faced woman with a gentle, timid glance and manner that suggested independence as yet. Her unpowdered skin had no need to fear the light. Her curly hair still kept the gleams of a child in it. Figure, hands and feet were exquisite, and she was the kind who looks her best of a morning.

She burst out laughing at the account of the note, and refused at first to take it as true. But she was all eagerness to talk about a letter that John had handed to her from his cousin, Alysia Naylor.

"Ah, yes, Alysia." Lady Tait's tone did not suggest great affection. "A note of congratulation, of course."

"Such a charming letter." Lady Burnham handed the sheet to her companion, who glanced it over.

"She's very popular, so is Etta," their aunt said, handing back the letter. "Etta was my favorite until just lately. She's adopted a most trying pose of saintliness which is too much for unregenerate me."

"But I should have thought!" Lucy Burnham opened her eyes very wide.

"Oh, real saintliness is one thing. Every one admires that. But I can't stand goody-goodiness, which is quite another matter. I couldn't have Alysia here without her sister, and Etta would have paced my bedroom floor murmuring texts or sweet resigned words of consolation to me. I should have gone mad."

Lucy laughed again. "It's a charming letter," she repeated, putting it away in her bag. "The two have kept house for John for years, haven't they?"

"Around five, I think. But as to keeping house—I left my own old housekeeper when my husband died, and John took over the house. I don't care for Chelsea. Never did. But the two girls have played hostess for John. Claud has a couple of rooms there too. He's moving into the Temple. As for the girls, they'll be a bit at a loose end for a while, I fancy."

"That's why I think it's such a sweet letter. I was very much afraid they would be a little bitter about his marriage."

Lady Tait did not reply that, however bitter Alysia Naylor might be feeling, she would nevertheless write just that sort of letter under the circumstances.

"She says her sister is quite looking forward to making my acquaintance. John tells me that Etta is a regular Juno. I rather wondered ——" It was Lady Tait who laughed this time.

"No need to wonder, puss. John and the Naylor girls have never been particularly fond of one another. Besides, in confidence, my dear, it once looked as though Etta was about to make a very good match indeed." Lucy looked interested, but as Lady Tait's face suggested that she intended to say no more at the moment about any unfortunate love affair that her niece might have had, she too fell silent, only to reflect that, because Etta Naylor had been unable to marry where heart and interest led it by no means followed that she would not have been quite willing to take second best—to wit, John Tait, and that that might be why only one sister had written.

GREAT BRITAIN

We Are Living in An Age When the Word "Labor" Falls Upon the Ear Like a Discordant Note.

(By H. W. L. MAHOOD)

In Britain Labor has gained one objective. The greater is yet to be won. The outlook is not as bright as it might be.

Labor at this historic stage is not as weighted and as sordid as it has been. Some of the burdens have been lifted but many remain. The words uttered by the Carpenter Worker are to-day as pertinent as when first spoken. By experience He knew what it meant to labor and to be heavy laden. He discovered the only relief. What He found and experienced He could impart to others. "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." There are burdens resting upon all thoughtful, intelligent, sincere and concerned people to-day that would be utterly crushing without such words as these.

Labor Is Elected To London County Council.

It would be difficult to decide which is predominant in the quoted words of the Galilean carpenter, tenderness or majesty. He saw all the way through man's real condition. And He saw with a pity to be found in the heart of the Divine alone. When His eyes fell inquisitively upon the whole problem of the why of human burden bearing, it was with infinite compassion. Quite as compelling is the fact of His divine consciousness of power to give just the help most needed. In all the world the lot of labor is cruelly hard. Why has not the burdened turned to Him? Let labor give answer.

Labor has gone to one philosophy or another to find the way. The light is a spiritual experience. Philosophy can not see far enough. The quest to find the key in Britain has been of many days. The London County Council is perplexed.

CALIFORNIA

A letter written to the President of the United States ought to hold something significant. This letter did. It was written by a newspaper correspondent who learned of the little Mexican girl of whom we have been telling in this column. A copy of that letter is before me. It is a model of simplicity, and directness without sarcasm. It is a plea. But more is suggested than is said. The unsaid is as forceful as the said. That is disciplined newspaper writing. It is the best. That newspaper correspondent had a nose for news. But his pen is never dipped in the ink of the rude sensational. His ideal is to set forth the truth gently. To tell what ought to be told about the environment of this little Mexican girl and not offend good taste is difficult.

A Letter to the President of the United States.

We are in the home of the Mexican family again. You remember the electric bulb hanging from the center of the ceiling, almost black with fly specks. It cost twenty-five cents a month. The price was away beyond their purse. Water was as scarce as the workers pennies. To bring water eight miles after work hours. Terrible necessity! If the baby was not sick and ready to die, the light could be dispensed.

But that is not all the picture. The baby in the little iron bed is her wee sister. The fifteen year old Mexican girl is to have a baby of her own. Suppose it comes at night, and there is no light? She is going to have a baby in this outhouse of a home where her father and mother and two brothers live and sleep!

She wanted the newspaper man to request the President of the United States to get in touch with the Hotchkiss Ranch manager and have the twenty-five cents cancelled. A small matter for a newspaper man you may think. For this splendid type of man, it was not an insignificant affair. He wrote of the plight of the little Mexican girl and received a lovely reply.

BULGARIA

In 1918 the peasants and workers left the trenches and marched on Sofia to establish their government. The predatory capitalists were terror-stricken. They looked about for a leader Demagogue, and found him Blustering right under their Stambolisky. paws — in jail.

Alexander Stambolisky was their find. Because he was a gambler on the wheat market; a shady transaction cost him a jail sentence. He was daring and unscrupulous. He was handed power. A new king was enthroned. The revolution was accomplished. The rich bourgeoisie were joyous.

Stambolisky the blustering demagogue confronted the revolutionary peasants and the workers. Very soon it was as plain as day that he was determined to break in a smashing manner the power of the revolutionists.

In attacking the peasants and the workers Stambolisky ran head foremost against a stone wall. Quickly the Bulgarian common people organized. First, they ripped to tatters Stambolisky's dream of an Agrarian Bulgaria. When he saw that the people would not rally to his propaganda their leaders were thrown into prison. A price was put on the head of Dimitroff. Only the courage and quick wit of a woman saved Dimitroff from death. His actual hiding place was watched. The quick thinking of the woman planned his escape without a scratch and without arousing the least suspicion. The effort of Stambolisky to secure the death of Dimitroff was his own undoing. It was his abyss. The attempt to set peasant against worker led to his speedy downfall. In the early hours of June 1923 a militarist coup overthrew his government. He was trapped in the country and slain like a dog. His huge mountainous body was literally hacked into pieces.

With Stambolisky out of the way Bulgaria was still in the hands of the predatory capitalists. In the hearts of the common people there was a revolt that could never be silenced. A decisive struggle was imminent. It came and was over. The story now leads on to the story of the whole Dimitroff family.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

DARTMOUTH, N.S.

Founded in 1750, Dartmouth strove for years to establish itself in the face of continuous Indian forays, which decimated the population sometimes almost to the vanishing point, but the colonizers persisted, building their forts stronger and perfecting their defenses against the wily savages.

The Earl of Dartmouth, English secretary of state during the reign of Queen Anne, was one of the most outstanding statesmen at the time this town sprang into being and it was named in his honor.

Dartmouth was intimately associated with the stirring and picturesque life of Nova Scotia during the 18th century.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

A GREAT THING IN THE DARK

Here in this dark corner under the house, shut away from the sunshine and the clear, sweet air, something green is growing. A trailer from a vine that grows outside....I take it in my hands and study it carelessly. It is green, but the green is pale. It is tender and snaps easily in the fingers. There are no buds on it. No broad leaves grow here. No bud will ever come to blooming beauty on this pale branch.

What is it doing here? Why did it creep through that small crack in the wall and take up the adventure of life in this dank and gloomy corner? What impulse, obscure and perverted led this child of the bright sunlight to turn from its fair environment to this meager experience of living in the dark?

O, foolish branch of green! benighted twig! Outside your wiser brother sways in the breese of spring, battles the storm, struggles against countless small enemies, challenges the world and conquers or dies....Here you crawl upon the earth in the windless space, unchallenged and unchallenging, achieving at best but a pitiful victory. You are within drawn, and all the vital struggle comes to nothing. Sterile and frugal, timid and retreating, here you are, defeated thing, and you know not the sunrise and you know not the sunset, and you know nothing of the agony or ecstasy of living.

I have such a green branch growing palely in the dark. And I have seen men and women who have shut themselves away from life into such a dank and feeble desolation. Known people who thought the wide world too harsh for their gentle souls and have found a small opening into the darkness of themselves and have crawled in and shut the door and lived in whimpering, peevish loneliness all the rest of their days. I have known them, I have wondered, and I have been more mystified by them than ever I have been by any pale green thoughtless branch that wanders out of the bright outdoors into the darkness of a cellar.... The green things knows no better. Can any lost man or woman make so weak a defense of failure to be wise?

Lumberjack's Death Paid For On Gallows

WINNIPEG, May 22 (CP)—Julian Komarnicki paid with his life on the gallows yesterday for the slaying of Gilbert "Shorty" McQuade, Barrow's River lumberjack, last January.

An employee of McQuade, Komarnicki was hanged at 7:32 a.m. yesterday at Headingly jail.

A dispute involving a woman led to the quarrel, which ended in the lumberjack's death, police investigation revealed.

McQuade's frozen body was discovered on Jan. 8 lying on the snow in the bush three miles from his shack. A well-known woodsman, he had lived for some twenty years in the district.

TORONTO LIST FOLLOWS WALL STREET TREND

Roosevelt's Silver Message Has Bearish Effect on Whole Board.

INTERLISTEDS WEAKEN.

TORONTO, May 22 (C.P.).—Toronto Exchange industrial shares followed at a distance the New York downward trend which set in today after the Presidential statement regarding silver had been made public. The President's insistence on the right to say when the proposed silver backing for currency should be brought up to the 25.75 ratio to gold, was said to be one of the bearish features of the message. Losses were mainly in the interlisted section of the board.

Brazilian recovered to 10, closing ¼ off after hitting 9¾ in quite active trading. Ford 'A' was weak at 21, C.P.R. dropped a half point and Nickel, closing at $26.80, showed a loss of 60 cents. Distillery shares held up well until the last hour, when prices were shaded to ⅝ for Walkers Common, Distillers, Seagrams and Industrial Alcohol.

LEEMING AND LEEMING

Phones 2786—2787

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 22.—For moderate term speculation the outstanding issues are Balt. & Ohio, Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast Line, N. Y. Central, Del. & Hudson, Louisville & Nashville, Union Pacific, Atchison, Kansas City Southern & Nickel Plate.

The leading governments of the world are becomng more and more air conscious. Such nations as England, U.S.A., Germany, France, Russia, Italy and Japan are planning large increases in their aircraft eqipment. The leading plane manufacturers both in this country and abroad report both increased orders and a large number of inquiries. Speculative interest in airplane stocks is becoming more widespread and it is quite likely that a fair sized boom may be seen in that group before many months have rolled by. We think it will prove to be sound speculation to accumulate such issues as Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft and Curtiss Wright.

Cerro De Pasco stands out as a particularly attractive issue for long range speculation. In addition to being an important copper producer the Company also has very large silver ore reserves and turns out quite a volumeof both lead and zinc. It is a low cost producer and under normal conditions a fairly large money maker.

Broker's Opinions

12 reviewed. Bullish 6. Bearish 1. Non-committal 5.

Paine Webber & Co.—Recommend generally bullish attitude, firm in the belief that a higher level for commodity prices will be brought about either by nature or by administration activities, and that stocks will participate.

Goodbody & Co.—We are still inclined to the view that somewhat higher levels will prevail before this month has exhausted it's possibilities. Stocks may be purchased on moderate recessions.

Fenner & Bean—In the absence of any appreciable volume of offerings during this resting spell, technical market conditions provide sufficient support to permit average price levels to be maintained even though outside news influence are not immediately of a constructive nature.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, May 22.—(C.P.) — In sympathy with the downward trend in New York, prices on the Montreal stock exchange declined at the close to-day. The main part of the list which had shown resistance to the settling gradually moved lower.

International Nickel dropped 70 cents at $26.05, while Brazilian Traction after selling at a new low for the year at 9¾, finished the day with a loss of ⅝ at 9⅞. Among the other issues to record fractional losses were Montreal Power, Canadian Pacific Railway, Canadian Industrial Alcohol, McColl-Frontenac, Howard Smith and Dominion Textile. Dominion Coal Preferred lost a point at 64.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 22 (C.P.). — Led by metal shares the stock market turned sharply downward today following President Roosevelt's message to Congress on silver legislation. The selling which occurred near the end of the fourth hour was active for about 15 minutes, but trading again reverted to earlier dullness as mild rallying tendencies appeared.

Silver shares dipping 2 to 6 points at their worst, included U.S. Smelting, American Smelting, Cerro Pasco and Howe Sound. Utilities were resistant but industrial and rails lost 1 to around 3.

Transfers approximated 850,000 shares.

REMODELLING STORE

The store premises at the north corner of George and Brock streets, owned by Coleman Brothers and formerly occupied by the A. and P. Stores, is undergoing remodelling. Bert C. Graham, local contractor, has the work in hand of converting the property into double store premises, with a view of the owner securing early tenants.

MARK STREET Y.P.S.

The Rev. C. D. Daniel presided at a very impressive devotional period at the regular meeting of the Young People's Society of Mark street United Church, held last evening.

The program was in charge of the Citizenship department convenor, Miss Mary Terrace, who took the topic of the evening: "What is the Basis of Christian Giving?"

The Scripture lesson was read by Elmer Pearse and plans were made for the picnic which will be held at Wallace's Point, on June 14th, in conjunction with the Young People's Society from Stewart Hall.

TO CLOSE AT 5.30

In order to give their clerks an opportunity to benefit from the summer sunlight, clothing stores in the city have decided to close their stores each afternoon except Saturday at 5.30 during the summer months. The early closing for the clothing stores will commence on June 1.

TRAVEL BUREAU NEEDED AT ONCE

5. That a sum of $150,000 be voted at the present session of Parliament to finance this campaign during the present fiscal year.

6. That a permanent progressive program of Canadian tourist travel promotion be launched, with the closest co-operation between all agencies engaged in this work, the Dominion's share in effort and expenditure to co-ordinate and supplement the work already undertaken and proposed by all other agencies, and in no manner to supplant this work or the organizations engaged therein.

Contact With Parliament.

7. That a standing committee of this House (representative of all the provinces) be set up to bring Parliament into direct and permanent contact with this important national matter, to conduct an annual study of the tourist trade, and to consider means through which it may best be fostered and encouraged.

8. That the Canadian system of national parks be extended as a truly national policy, to embrace all the provinces and that greater efforts be put forth to attract visitors to these fine scenic and recreational centres.

The report recommends further that "there is need for the establishment as early a date as possible of a central organization at Ottawa to co-ordinate the multitude of tourist agencies, public and private," and suggests that the advisory council meet from time to time during every year to consider ways and means for the expansion of the tourist trade. Evidence was submitted, the report states, to indicate overlapping and duplication of activities of various departments of the Dominio nservices, as well as Provincial and private agencies in the dissemination of publicity. It is recommended that a co-ordination of these services would produce present results with greater economy, and enlarged results in proportion to the additional expenditure of funds and endeavor.

It is specifically declared in the report that the Dominion Government's efforts should be to supplement rather than supplant the work of existing agencies.

Campaign Notes

At a joint meeting of the executives of the Senior Conservative Association, the Women's Conservative Association, and the Young Conservative Club held in the Empress Hotel parlors last night, and attended by T. P. Lancaster, the Government candidate's plans were completed for the campaign Headquarters for both men and women workers will be opened in two stores in the Denne Block on Water Street on Monday next. Harry Foote will be the organizer for the men, while the women's activities will be in charge of Mrs. F. Miller and Mrs. J. Cridland.

12 DOGS LEFT BEHIND.

Fertile breeding ground for disease germs, would appear to be the most striking characteristic of the filthy hovel recently vacated by "Doc Deremo", and commonly known to residents of the city as the "Waterworks Kennels".

The Examiner visited the shack this morning in company with Dr. Thomas Johnston, V.S., and Cyril McMillan inspectors for the Humane Society. The reporter agreed with the inspectors that the burning of the shack and the refuse with which it is littered both inside and out, would be beneficial in the interests of public health.

But it was not as health inspectors that Dr. Johnston and his assistant paid their visit to the hovel, but purely in the capacities as representatives of the Humane Society.

Recently "Doc Deremo", aged salve peddler and "dog fancier" moved after ten years occupancy of the shack, to Douro Township, leaving behind a motley collection of not less than twelve dogs of nondescript breed.

The dogs which it is stated on reliable authority actually occupied the shack along with the old man and his female companion, remained in possession of the place. Some of them are still there, others have been caught and destroyed by the inspector.

"Doc Deremo", it is learned made one or two return visits to the pitiful shack which he had known as his home for so many years, bringing with him inadequate scraps of food for his dogs.

A complaint from a resident in the vicinity resulted in Dr. Johnston's first visit to the shack over the week-end, when the inspector came to the conclusion that the dogs, many of which were in a mangy and savage condition could not be allowed to remain at the deserted hovel. The inspector consulted with "Doc Deremo" and received the old man's permission to dispose of the dogs as he saw fit.

Last night after dark, Inspector McMillan visited the shack and succeeded in lassoing five of the dogs, which were brought into town and humanely destroyed. The bodies of two dead dogs were also recovered on the premises.

Upon his visit to the shack this morning, Dr. Johnston took with him a cardboard carton full of meat scraps and bones whch were readily pounched upon by the remaining four or five dogs. He and his assistant succeeded in confining two of the dogs within the shack, and tonight they are planning to effect their capture and dispose of them also by humane methods.

"Some of the dogs I destroyed last night", the Inspector stated, "had their hair off and their skin was red and swollen".

Adjoining the shack is a lean-to stable, in equally filthy condition. Sadly exposed to the elements, it is the stable, which according to Dr. Johnston, housed "Doc Deremo's" horse.

Among some of the numerous inscriptions, with which the eccentric 74-year-old hermit has inscribed and outside of the shack, are such as, "give a dog a home" and "let live."

MINING ISSUES SHOW DECLINE

Silver, Gold and Some of Base Metal Stocks Drop as Much as $1.

LIGHT RALLY AT CLOSE.

TORONTO, May 22 (C.P.). — Accepting the New York market's one, mining listings on the Toronto Stock Exchange sold down this afternoon soon after President Roosevelt's message to Congress regarding silver was made public. Silver, gold, and some of the base metal shares dropped as much as $1.00, but after a half-hour of unloading pressure wa lifted and firming process set in. The majority of the issues, however, were still on the down side at the close.

McIntyre was the weakest of the big gold group, closing at 43.60 for a loss of $1.40. Dome sagged 90 cents, Wright-Hargreaves 10. Braslorne 15, and Pioneer 10. Hollinger held a gain of 20 cen's at $17.35, and Lake Shore added 25 cents.

In the general pressure Eldorado was carried back 30 cents to $2.50 from which point it recovered to $2.65 for a net loss of 15.

Magistrate's Court

Noah Taylor, Curve Lake Indian, was found guilty to-day by Police Magistrate Langley on the charge of having had in his possession 40 pounds of cleaned maskinonge illegally on May 11. Stating that he was disposed to treat Taylor leniently, His Worship imposed a fine of $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days in jail. Practically the same evidence was produced to the court as that given yesterday in another charge again the same man. F. D. Kerr, K.C., appeared for the prosecution, and J. A. O'Brien for the defence.

DENY MEMBERS GIVING SUPPORT

"Abolition of the Lieutenant-Governor and transfer of other unnecessary, expensive and overlapping services to the National Government.

"Minimum weekly wages for all workers based on the cost of living and drastic reduction of working hours.

"The socialization of Hydro powers so that every community, rural and urban, shall be adequately served at a minimum uniform cost.

Loans to Farmers.

"Mortgage loans to farmers through the Agricultural Development Board at the lowest possible rate of interest. Whilst the family farm is the accepted basis for agricultural production in Canada, the position of the farmer may be improved by: (a) Extension of consumers' cooperatives for the purchase of farm supplies and domestic requirements; and (b) the extension of cooperative institutions for the processing and marketing of farm products. Both of the foregoing to have suitable state encouragement and assistance. The substitution for the present system of foreign trade of a system of import and export boards to improve the efficiency of overseas marketing, to control prices and to integrate the foreign trade policy with the requirements of the national economic plan.

Consolidate Debts

"Consolidation of private debts, both of farmers and others, and to this end a provincial conference of all creditors (banks, mortgage and insurance companies) for the purpose of reducing principal and interest charges.

"Extension along its original lines of the Provincial Savings Bank which has been undermined for the benefit of private banking interests.

"A new taxation policy designed not only to raise public revenues but also to lessen the glaring inequalities of income and to provide funds for social services.

"Abolition of direct taxes on farmers for the upkeep of provincial highways.

"Free education from public school to university.

"Removal of the liquor question from politics by having all decisions regarding it made by referendum."

PRIESTS FLEE FROM SONORA

Governor Halts Religious Services in All Catholic Churches.

HAVEN IN U. S.

NOGALEZ, Ariz., Mayy 22 (AP) —Catholic priests were reported fleeing from Sonora, Mexico, toward the United States to-day under an order issued by the Governor of the Mexican State.

Reports from the border State said religious services were at an end in all Catholic churches in Sonora and that many were closed.

Governor Rudolfo Elias Calles, son of the former Mexican President under whose regime many Catholic dignitaries fled charging religious persecution, said at Tucson, Ariz., his order merely enforces provisions of the Mexican Constitution of 1917.

He said Mexican law requires that ministers of any church must be Mexican citizens, that the Republic has provided all church property is state property, and the government has limited the number of any ministers in any community.

Frafael Ru'z, Mayor of Nogales, Sonora, said the order was caused by priests delving into politics and interfering with the government.

NEW EXPLOSIVE BEEN INVENTED WINNIPEG MAN

Offers of Two Foreign Governments to Buy Process Refused.

GOES TO GREAT BRITAIN.

National Research Official Sent From Ottawa to Make Report.

WINNIPEG, May 22 (CP)—Examination of early tests and study of preliminary reports on a new high explosive were underway here to-day by F. G. Green, Ottawa, a member of the National Research Council of Canada.

Mr. Green came to Winnipeg yesterday at the request of Dr. H. M. Tory, chairma nof the council to investigates tests made at the Manitoba Creosote Company here which promised revolution in the aniline dye and high explosive industries.

Information on the tests has been laid before Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, it was learned. Nature of the new process, discovered by B. M. Weston, a graduate of the University of Manitoba, in experiments at the plant. The nature of the new process has not been divulged.

No Details Given

R. L. Millar, manager of the plant, admitted chemical experiments had been carried out at the plant, but declined to detail what had been done or what had been achieved. Two foreign governments had attempted to buy the explosive process, but Mr. Millar declared "the explosive development must go to Great Britain. That's where it belongs."

Mr. Millar said success had been achieved in removing all the carbon from coal tar, something which had previously been considered impossible. The process also recovers 31 per cent of the coal tar oils against nine per cent recovered in previous formulas. Oils of heavy gas-house coal tar form the base for manufacturing high explosives, aniline dyes, perfumes and medicines.

4,900,000 Pickerel, 605,000 Maskinonge Fry Being Placed in Waters of This District

That fishermen in this district are going to enjoy good fishing in the years to come as a result of the work of the Fish and Game Department in placing fish fry in the surrounding waters is indicated in a letter received to-day by T. P. Lancaster, from D. McDonald, Deputy Minister of the Department. According to this letter, the department will "plant" 4,900,000 pickerel fry and 605,000 maskinonge fry in the waters of Victoria, Peterborough and Northumberland Counties this season.

The allocation of the fish fry is as follows:

Pickerel.—Victoria County (Trent Creek and Talbot River, 500,000. Lake Dalrymple 200,000, Balsam Lake 250,000, Young's Lake 50,000); Peterborough County (Belmont Lake 200,000, Crow River 100,000, Rice Lake 1,000,000, Otonabee River 250,000); Northumberland County (along the Trent River 1,350,000, Healy Falls 200,000, Crow Bay 300,000, Campbellford Reach 200,000, Trent Creek 100,000, Bradley Bay 200,000, Rutherford's Cove 100,000, McKenzie Channel 200,000).

Maskinonge. — Victoria County Burnt River 15,000; Fur Farm Stream 75,000, Pigeon River and Lake 100,000, Sturgeon Lake 50,000, Omemee Pond 25,000, Scugog Lake 75,000, Pigeon River, the balance). Peterborough County (Round Lake 20,000, Belmont Lake 20,000, Indian River 10,000, Katachawanooka Lake 10,000, Clear Lake 15,000, Rice Lake 75,000, Stoney Lake 75000). Northumberland County Trent River at Seymour, Healy Falls and Haig's Reach 30,000, Bradley Bay 10,000).

Some of these fry have already been "planted" in the streams it was learned.

PAPER COMPANY OWES THE BANKS

to say the results had been "terrible" but the real story has yet to be written.

Five directors out of 17 on the Canada Power Board had been directors of banks, Mr. Gundy said. He personally was not nor never had been a bank director.

Mr. Gundy was being questioned by various members of the committee when adjournment was taken at noon and his examination continued this afternoon. Several other officials who figured in the mergers were also present and will be heard later.

In answer to Mr. Power, Mr. Gundy said that he was connected with Wood, Gundy and Company, and also Holt, Gundy and Company. The latter company had not been operating for two or three years. One of his associates in the latter company was Sir Herbert Holt.

Consolidate Industry

He and his associates had made an attempt to consolidate the pulp and paper industry Mr. Gundy said, but he thought that there were as many companies after their attempt as before. He agreed with Mr. Power that the pulp and paper industry before the formation of Canada Power and Paper might be classed roughly as follows: Abitibi group, the International Paper group and the Holt Gundy group, which eventually became Canada Paper. He thought, however, that the third named group might more appropriately be termed the "Wood Gundy Group" as Holt, Gundy and Company had not been active in connection with it.

Mr. Gundy sad that he had a large interest in both Wood, Gundy, and also Holt, Gundy.

He had decded to go nto the paper business following the financing of the Bay Sulphite Company, afterwards the Port Alfred Pulp and Paper company, said Mr. Gundy.

The consolidation of the St. Maurice Paper Company and the Belgo-Canadian Paper company was the nucleus of the Canada Power and Paper Corporation, Mr. Power continued. Mr. Gundy agreed and said he was an interested party. The Port Alfred Company did not come in with the original companies but entered later.

The Union Bag and Paper Company of New York owned the St. Maurice Company. A new company was formed with all the physical assets of the St. Maurice Paper Company purchased outright from Union Bag, and 85 percent of the Belgo shares, bought for cash. It was called the St. Maurce Valley Corporation and started in 1925 with authorized capital 160,000 shares and an authorized bond issue of 15,000,000 of which around $9,000,000 were issued. Assets were set at $54,000,000. The Union Bag shares were bought at par.

The next step was acquistion of the Old Canada Paper company located at Windsor Mills, Que., followed by the purchase of Anticosti Island from Senator Meunier of Paris bought the Valley Corporation, Wayagamack Pulp and Port Alfred bought the entire island for $6,000,000 with all rights, the three companies sharing one third each. There were no commissions paid on the purchase, witness declared.

Next came the merger of St. Maurice Valley Corporation and Laurentide, in 1928. The same year the Canada Power and Paper Corporation was incorporated to take over the St. Maurice Corporation and Laurentide. The first chairman of the board was Sir Herbert Holt, the president J. A. Cahoon, head of Laurentide and Mr. Gundy was a director.

The capital of the new corporation was 750,000 shares (no par value) of which 688,000 were issued, 288,000 going to Laurentide shareholders, share for share plus one $100 five and a half percent debenture, and 400,000 shares to St. Maurice shareholders at a ratio of two and one half to one. The authorized bond issue was $100,000,000 of which $38,000,000 was issued all of which went to Laurentide shareholders. Nothing went to the public.

Underlying Reason

"What was the underlying reason for bringing about this merger?" asked the chairman, R. B. Hanson, (Cons., York-Sunbury).

"To eliminate causes of friction which were destructive to the industry," replied the witness.

"Was there no question of profit?" asked John T. Hackett, (Cons., Stanstead).

"There was no profit in the Canada Power and Paper merger," Mr. Gundy replied. There had been no commissions, and no profits to banks or financial houses.

Major Power: "Was it not a fact that you were afraid of the influence of the International Paper Company?"

Mr. Gundy: "That might have had something to do with it. They were an aggressive, active company."

Major Power: 'Was there not some question between Sir Herbert Holt and A. R. Graustein of the International company as to the growing interests of the latter in the power business, and when they could not get together Sir Herbert and yourself decided to expand in order to fight off International?"

Mr. Gundy: "That's something you had better ask Sir Herbert. So far as I am concerned there is nothing to that."

Indict Shipping Official In Debutante Murder

Denying any connection with the brutal attack and murder of Louise Jeppesen, beautiful Ogden, Ut., debutante, above, Millard Hickman, 48-year-old wealthy San Francisco shipping official, also shown here, has been indicted for the slaying at San Francisco. The girl's body was found in Golden Gate park, a victim of strangulation, following a foursome party.

COUNTY BOILER BEING REPAIRED

Boiler Used to Heat County Building Sprang a Leak.

WORK DELAYED.

The large boiler that provides the heat for the county buildings, including the gaol, gaol officials' residences and offices is undergoing repair. Recently the boiler which is housed in a separate building facing Brock street, sprang a leak, and for over a week the county buildings have been without heat.

With the mild weather that has been experienced since the boiler has been out of commission little or no inconvenience has been caused. It is easy to imagine the discomfort and inconvenience that might have been caused had the trouble in the boiler developed any earlier than it did.

Repair work which is now well in hand and rapidly nearing completion, was delayed it is learned, owing to government regulations requiring that the boiler must be riveted and not welded.

It had been the original intention of the County Property Committee to have the break repaired by an acetylene weld, but when the boiler inspector insisted that the break must be rivetted the next difficulty that presened itself was to locate a boilermaker. Apparently there is a scarcity of available boilermakers in this district, but Charles Wright, former employee of the William Hamilton Company was located working on a farm out in the district.

The services of Mr. Wright were secured and the work is now nearing completion with the assistance of the Harnden Welding Company, and Cuffe Brothers who are doing the bricklaying.

According to James Brownlee, caretaker at the County Buildings, the boiler is in good condition except for the break which occurred at the rear end, which had become corroded and weakened from seepage water. The boiler house is erected on the side of a slope, and moisture had seeped in back of the boiler from the elevated ground at the rear.

NEW WORK GIVES JOBS FOR MANY

Unemployment in Northern Part of County Well Taken Care of, T. P. Lancaster States.

With several new work projects launched in the northern part of the county, some one hundred settlers in Chandos, Harvey and Galway townships are now employed in road work under the colonization road plan. T. P. Lancaster informed the Examiner today. In addition to this road work two drainage projects in Galway and Harvey townships have been started under the Public Works Department and are providing jobs for residents of the district. The unemployment slack in the northern section of the county has been pretty well taken up, Mr. Lancaster states.

10 C.N. Cars Ditched Near Belleville

BELLEVILLE, May 22 (C.P.). — Ten freight cars of a Canadian National train were derailed one mile west of the city limits early to-day, and traffic blocked on both tracks. The auxiliary is working, clearing the debris, and it is expected the track will be cleared in a few hours. No one was injured. No cause was given for the derailment.

THREE MEN ARRESTED, IMPERSONATING POLICE

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., May 22 (C.P.). — Charged with impersonating constables, Alfred Savage, Gaspe, and Eugene Peltier, Montreal, were under arrest here to-day. They appeared in Police Court yesterday and were remanded. Albert Allarie, Montreal, charged with vagrancy, was also held.

According to police the three hired a taxi in North Bay and went to Sturgeon Falls, intending to return. While in Sturgeon Falls they are alleged to have visited a house and demanded the right to search it. When refused, one of them allegedly showed a police badge.

FIND LOST SHOE IN MURDER CASE

Montreal Police Believe Spot in Suburb is Where Divorcee Was Shot.

MYSTERY CLEARING.

MONTREAL, May 22. (CP).—A rain sodden high-heeled shoe found on the edge of a road near Riviere Des Prairies in the north end of the city to-day led Montreal Detectives to believe they have discovered the approximate site of the murder of Graziella Viens, 26, a week ago. The woman's bullet-riddled body was found crammed into the rumble seat of a roadster abandoned in a downtown street.

One shoe was missing. Detailed descriptions of the shoe were made public by the detectives assigned to the case and early to-day Alphonse Messier of Riviere Des Prairies reported to police he had found the missing shoe.

A week ago Miss Viens, living at home since her divorce from Noel Rondeau, announced her intention of spending the week-end at St. Jerome a few miles north of Montreal in the foothills of the Laurentians. She did not say with whom she planned to stay. Monday her body was found slumped in the rumble seat of a roadster belonging to Joseph Alisero, a friend. Alisero told police he had lent the automobile to Miss Viens for the week-end. He is being held as a material witness pending resumption of the coroner's inquest May 29.

TAKE YEAR BREAK BOOTLEG TRADE SAYS U.S. ALCOHOL CONTROL HEAD

Probe Shows Sale of Illicit Liquor Higher Than Licensed Product.

CUSTOMERS DUPED.

WASHINGTON, May 22 (A.P.)—So deep are the roots of the bootleg racket in the United States that Joseph H. Choate, Jr., Federal Alcohol Control Administrator, estimated yesterday the campaign to eliminate it would require a year.

"The back of the trade might be broken in less than that time but I think it is unlikely," he said in an interview.

"The only thing," he said, "that could greatly reduce production of illegal liquor would be a tremendous wave of enforcement and a tremendous wave of refusal to buy bootleg. Proceedings have been started to increase enforcement and possibly the public will be moved not to buy so much bootleg."

Saying reports from a number of areas indicate that sales of illicit liquor are higher than those of the licensed trade, Choate added that prices are steadily dropping.

His information is that stills dot all sections of the country. The south has the greater number and the north the better equipment.

He indicated that restaurateurs have found it easy to slip adulterated beverages over on customers.

BOMB EXPLODES IN POST OFFICE

WASHINGTON—A bomb which inspectors say was destined for the Balkans exploded in the Post Office dead letter office yesterday, shattering a clerk's hand and slightly injured a Negro messenger.

It was concealed in a hollowed-out book, and went off when the volume was opened by Myrton L. Genung.

Genung was in too critical a condition after to tell what happened.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"DEATH TAKES A HOLIDAY" AND "SEARCH FOR BEAUTY."

This whole double bill provides one of the most "different" types of programs conceivable. It would be hard to imagine anything more strange than the first feature, and the second is so entertaining that the gallery applauds itself hoarse and giggles echo through the house.

And the animated cartoon, "The Three Bears," is a gay little bit also.

Fredric March, who provides a guaranty of excellence for any production in which he appears, has a macabre role in "Death Takes a Holiday," and handles it with his usual pre-eminent skill. And Evelyn Venable, as the saintly Grazie, although she may appear almost too saccharine in other parts, is exquisite as the leading woman of the strange story which deals with a holiday in which Death takes on human form and has a three-day vacation from his weird business. Sir Guy Standing, as the Duke who acts as host to the Grim Reaper, has another fine part.

"Search for Beauty" is one of those pictures, believe it or not, where the masculine interest dominates. It looks as though men were coming into their own, at last. Even the large magasines, of late, have taken to using men, and not always young or handsome men either, as leading lights in their advertisements. The pretty young girl who occupied the leading position for so long has been relegated to the discard, in many cases.

So "Search for Beauty" depends on James Gleason and Robert Armstrong, two not so good-looking males, for its interest, and does not depend in vain. The thin Mr. Gleason's thin voice is heard in wise cracks that rock a pleased house, while Armstrong is the guy who is his pal.

Oddly enough, instead of glorifying immorality, this picture takes a real jab at it and gets in some good work. Armstrong and his pal, the svelte lady Jean, just out of prison on a confidence game charge, take on a defunct health system and start publishing a magazine that caters to the pornographic instincts of its readers. They swim along beautifully, until an athletic chap and a very pretty girl swimming champion (the blonde English Ida Lupino, by the way) put a crimp in their designs. Ida enacts the role of a girl who yearns for real athletic work, rather than catering to the morbid taste of a public interested more in sensations than in health. Can this be a propaganda picture? Is the sly eye of a reformer peering around the screen, to watch the effect? Well, if it is, it certainly gets there. It is one of the most entertaining and genuinely amusing picures seen here in many a day, and the whole bill is one of thorough enjoyment.

—Jeanette.

NOTE

68e. Within four days after the posting up of the polling subdivision list by the enumerators as provided in section 68d, any person whose name has been entered on any of the said polling subdivision lists in the electoral district, may file with the proper clerk of the revising officer appointed for the polling subdivision, a complaint that there has been included in the polling subdivision list as compiled by the enumerators, the name or names of persons who should not be entered therein. Such complaint shall be prepared according to Form 26 and shall set out the reason for complaining and shall be accompanied by an affidavit of the complainant, Form 27, and the same shall be filed with such clerk of the proper revising officer not later than the first day appointed for the sittings of the revising officer.

Copies of Form 26 and 27 may be obtained upon application to the Returning Officer or to the Clerk of the Municipality.

68q. Any person resident in any polling division included in the registration district, whose name has not been included or has been incorrectly included by the enumerator in the list of voters for such polling subdivision, may apply at the registry office for the registration district to have his name included in the list or to cause the entry in the list relating to him to be corrected.

68r. Every person so applying shall sign an application, Form 29, in which all the information required by the said form shall be sufficiently filled in, either by the applicant personally or by a revising officer at the applicant's request, and before entering the name of any such person in the list of voters or before correcting such list, as the case may require, the revising officer shall satisfy himself that the applicant understands the effect of the statements in the application and that he is entitled to have his name included in the list or to have the list corrected pursuant to his request.

68s. Whenever the language of the applicant is not understood by the revising officer, an interpreter may be sworn and may act; in the event of inability to secure an interpreter, the application small, for the time being, be refused.

68t. If it appears to the revising officer that the applicant understands the effect of the statements in the application, Form 29, and that the applicant's name should be included in the list, or that the amendment thereof which he requests should be made, he shall certify accordingly by signing te said application.

68u. If, in the opinion of the revising officer, the statements made by the applicant in his application do not show that the applicant is entitled to have his name included in the list, or to have the list amended as requested, he shall advise the applicant that his application is refused, stating the reasons for such refusal, which reasons he shall endorse on the application form.

68v. If any person who claims to be entitled to have his name included in the list of voters or to have the entry relating to him therein corrected, is unable personally to attend the registration and revising sittings by reason of sickness, disability, or necessary, temporary, unavoidable and bona fide absence from the municipality in which the registration area is included, then a relative or such person by blood or marriage, or his employer may, if he has a sufficient knowledge of the facts, appear before the revising officer and complete the application, Form 29, to have such person's name included in the list of voters, or to have the list corrected, as the case may be.

68w. If the relative by blood or marriage, or the employer so appearing, substantiates,—

(a) the cause for the non-appearance of the person immediately concerned to be as hereinbefore set forth;
(b) the existence of a relationship by blood or marriage or the relationship of employer and employee; and
(c) the facts relevant to the qualification, name, address or identity of the person immediately concerned so far as such facts are requisite to cause the name of such person to be included in the list, or to cause the list to be corrected, as the case may be, the revising officer may act upon such application as if the person immediately concerned had appeared in person before him.

Form 29, referred to in Section 68t, may be obtained from the Revising Officer.

Clerk of Election Board, Court House, Peterborough.

ROBERT RUDDY,
Chairman of the Election Board, Judge's Chambers, Court House, Peterborough.

SLAV STUDENTS HOLD COLLEGES DEFY OFFICERS

Threaten to Throw Professors From Windows if Police Attack.

60 CO-EDS INVOLVED.

Officials Cut Off All Water Supply n Effort to Quell Rioting.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, May 22 (A.P.).—Yugoslav students, in control of two university buildings, stood off a police attempt to suppress their rioting to-day with the warning that they would throw five professors they hold as hostages from the high windows if the police enter.

Six hundred students, including 60 co-eds, took over the two buildings yesterday.

Police were rushed from all over the capitol city to form a cordon around the university district.

They have cut off the water which supplies the building and have also stopped the water mains for all buildings within a two blocks' radius of the university buildings.

The police announced they expected an early surrender of the stubborn students as a result, but this afternoon the students still defied the authorities.

The students' leaders announced they had filled every available receptacle in the two buildings with water and that they had sufficient food to stand off a five days' siege.

As hostages they hold the Dean of the Faculty of Law, the Dean of the Philosophical Faculty and three other professors.

Diplomats Involved In Dangerous Trade War

That ascending line of Japan's foreign trade is one of the chief reasons why Japan is seemingly in disfavor among the nations. When nations find someone taking their trade away from them with lower prices and dumping, they usually get angry. Three men who have cause to get angry are shown in the layout. At TOP, Koki Herota, Japan's first soft-spoken foreign minister in years; LEFT, Cordell Hull, Secretary of State for the United States, also lauded for his clever diplomacy in handling Japanese matters. CENTRE, Sir John Simon, Britain's foreign minister, from whom none can get more than he feels called upon to give a nd who says there is no cause for alarm in the Far East.

HEALTH OFFICER IS BEING SOUGHT

cer of health in the schools.

Mayor Denne and Alderman Macdonald maintained that the time was not opportune to sound the Board of Education on this question, and both referred to the failure of a similar mission some years ago. "Let us profit by our experience gained at that time," urged Alderman Macdonald. "We should first appoint the right man and after he has the confidence of the people it will be time to interview the Board of Education."

Mayor Denne stated, "We don't have to accept any of the tenders we receive, but it will give us an opportunity to see who we have for the job. I want to see some progress made in this direction. There has been too much dilly-dallying."

The motion to advertise and receive applications for the two offices was carried unanimously.

Regarding the discharge of Dr. T. W. H. Young, the following communication was received by the Council from Hon. Dr. John M. Robb, Minister of Health:

"I have the honor to acknowledge yours of May 8 enclosing a certified copy of a resolution passed by the Municipal Council of the corporation of the city of Peterborough respecting by-law No. 3111, also copy of by-law No. 3111, being a by-law respecting the office of medical officer of health of the city of Peterborough passed by the Municipal Council of the city of Peterborough on May 7, 1934.

"Subject to the provision of section 36 of the Public Health Act, as amended by the Legislature in the year 1934, I hereby grant consent and approval to the action of the Council as outlined in the said by-law No. 3111, it being understood and accepted that this approval is granted without in any way prejudicing the validity of by-law No. 3085 of the city of Peterborough, or admitting any invalidity in the consent and approval of the said by-law given by me under date of October 30, 1933."

This letter from Hon. Dr. Robb caused no comment among members of the Council and was "received."

LOST AIRMAN'S BODY FOUND.

SYNTHETIC FOOD USED TO STOP WAR BLOCKADE

Hitler administration has wiped out what it considered one of the chief causes of the country's defeat in 1918. "If Germany is to be conquered again — something that is now virtually impossible — it will have to be by different means than starving our women and children," remarks the "Reichswart," an official Nazi journal. "The cowardly nations which could not win a fair fight on the battlefields in the war years, but who had recourse to the barbarous trick of depriving little German children of their milk and bread, can now rest assured that their 'heroic' performance of 1918 is not going to be repeated. If the gentlemen of the general staffs in Europe again hope to use the food blockade to crush the German people, we can now advise them that they must change their plans. It can no longer be done!"

The first thing Adolph Hitler did when he came to power was to institute a reorganization of German agriculture. Foreign competition was completely eliminated by giving home agriculture far-reaching protection by high tariffs. This completely upset and ruined the agriculture of countries like Holland and Denmark, but it proved a heaven-sent boon to the feudal landlords of eastern Prussia, who, in addition, received large state grants of money. By putting hundreds of thousands of unemployed to work, at less than one mark a day (the mark is about 40 cents) on land reclamation work, drying swamps and plowing up large estates formerly exclusively used for hunting, the productivity of the German soil has been enormously increased. At the same time industry received huge government orders to enable it to withstand "the temporary loss of exports until better times arrive."

Make Sugar From Wood

Prof. Alexander Bergius, who discovered a process of making oil from coal, has now made a cheap grape sugar and bread with a high quality protein from wood. Scientists pronounce the bread perfect. "We only had coal and wood to make Germany self-sufficient in the matter of food," said Dr. Bergius. "We simply could not go on living with the spectre of mass-starvation through an economic blockade hanging forever above our heads. Hitler realized this and science has come to the aid of Hitler. Where there is a will there is a way. We now have all the bread we want."

In spite of the fact that the German farmer produces enough wheat and rye to supply the nation, however, the limit of developing agriculture and intensifying production has been reached. Chemistry had to step in to fill any future deficiency. For that reason coal and wood have suddenly become Germany's most valuable raw materials. Here are a few of the things that German chemists produce, directly or indirectly from a cheap grade of bituminous coal and ordinary forest timber:

Cotton, wool, silk, gasoline, oil, grease, alcohol, rubber, fats, cattle fodder, milk, eggs, butter, lard, meat and sugar.

The newspaper Deutsche Zukunft declared: "Coal has become a raw material offering a secure and ample supply of oil for centuries to come."

Textiles Also From Wood

Cotton, wool and silk have been replaced by new fibres, made from wood. A new artificial silk fibre closely resembling wool is, in the opinion of textile experts, destined soon to replace cotton and wool. Another new process calls for a mixture of this fibre with wool grown in Germany. An import of over 800,000 tons of foreign textiles will thereby be replaced.

Rubber is being made in large quantities from coal by the giant chemical trust, I. G. Farben. German automobiles had steel tires in the last war. They will run on rubber ones in the next.

"Germany still imports foodstuffs totaling roughly 4,000,000 tons annually," Prof. Bergius explained. "This includes a large percentage cattle fodder. On the other hand, 20,000,000 tons of wood are wasted in the Reich each year. This waste wood consists chiefly of branches and twigs unusable in the lumber industry.

"To replace 4,000,000 tons of imported foodstuffs by food made from wood, only 8,00,000 tons of wood would be required. Besides very edible biscuits for human consumption, we make excellent poultry, cattle and pig fodder from wood. It has a high nutritive value and in some respects is superior to ordinary fodder. In this way, meat, lard, butter, milk and eggs are indirectly produced from wood.

No Fear of Blockade

"Sugar can be made in large quantities from ordinary timber. It is like pure grape sugar rather than like beet or cane sugar. From this sugar all forms of carbohydrate product can be made. Pure alcohol is one of the valuable by-products derived, as is also acetic acid.

"It will be evident that Germany no longer need fear a blockade. Nor must Germany starve for territorial expansion. The Reich, thanks to chemistry, is now large enough to feed its population adequately."

Another step toward saving the home supply of oil is a new Diesel engine, invented by the German engineer Rudolf Pawlikowski. It runs on almost any kind of combustible material—powdered charcoal, coal, peat, hay or straw. Its operating cost is declared to be 50 per cent less than that of the gasoline or oil engine. Seven such motors have been tested for 1,000 hours with success.

The wood-motor, too, is gaining popularity in sections where wood is cheap. This engine is driven by ordinary kindling wood transformed into gas by a newly invented carborator. Its cost of operation is declared to be very low.

ARMLESS EDMONTONITE BESTS ADVERSITY BY USE OF HIS FEET

Writes Perfectly, Shaves—Urges Aid for Crippled Children.

GIVES MOTHER CREDIT.

MONTREAL, May 22 (CP)—This is the tale of a man with courage. Not the kind of courage it takes to tackle three armed bank robbers single-handed. Or the kind it takes to plunge into the ocean after a drowning man. It is the story of a conquest over almost unbelievable odds—of a man who has been without arms and hands since birth, yet who shaves writes perfectly, does a hundred things. All with his feet.

He is William R. Watson, of Edmonton, in Montreal to attend the convention of the International Society for Crippled Children. He wanted to see established in Canada vocational training schools for handicapepd children. That is his aim in life.

You couldn't help admiring and liking Mr. Watson—from the time you enter his room and see him extend a toe for you to grasp with the words, "Shake hands with me." You see him open a zipper brief case with his feet, reach in and sort among some papers to bring out what he wanted. You see him pick up a hair brush and brush back his neat hair.

A Man With Courage

His life is a story of courage. He graduated in arts and law from the University of Alberta, taking his lectures down by writing with his mouth, an accomplishment he has mastered equally as well as writing with his feet. He learned to swim, to ride, to eat with his feet. He calls foot writing "pedescript." He skiis and plays bridge, using a ledge for his cards at his end of the table and playing tricks with his toes.

And to whom does he give the credit for his present position? To his mother. His mother he said, has stood be him all his life, has been the driving force beind his accomplishments. William Watson is proud of his mother.

And his mother has every reason to be proud of him.

ENVOY'S MISSION TO ROME PLEASES BERLIN OFFICIAL

BERLIN, May 22.— (A.P.)— A note of dstinct satisfaction pervaded official circles to-day as the government reviwed the accomplishments of General Von Ribbentrop, Chancellor Hitler's special disarmament commission, who has returned from conversations in Rome and London.

An official commentary on Von Ribbentrop's mission stated that Italian and German viewpoints agree in many particulars. The nations are agreed, the commentary observed, that some form of disarmament treaty, even if it entails only reduction of present armaments, would be better than no agreement at all.

To Lead Elaborate Expedition Into Canadian Wilds

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES E. BEDAUX AND MME. ALBERTA CHIESA

These are the three people, photographed on their arrival in New York, who will head an elaborate expedition into the wilds of northern British Columbia this summer and fall, doing some 150,000 sq. miles. Already organized at Edmonton and Fort St. Jorn, the Bedaux Canadian expedition will attempt to cover uncharted lands in the Yukon and British Columbia. Leading the party is Charles E. Bedaux, famous French explorer and wealthy industrialist, who will be accompanied by his wife, her French maid and Msdame Alberto Chiesa as well as a party of thirty men, five especially equipped automobiles and about 100 horses. Among Canadians included in the party are J. B. Bockock, geologist, two geographers, Frank Swanell of the department of lands; E. C. W. Lamarque, and Bruce McCallum, Vancouver wireless operator. Inset above is a map showing the route of the expedition.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF., MAY 19—In fear of her life, Mae West has walked between armed bodyguards and has inquired about the the purchase of an armored car. But it was not under world guns but a microphone boom on her own set recently gave the blonde star her narrowest escape from death.

Mae West

The presence of mind and the stalwart backs of the assistant director and the timer for the "It Ain't No Sin' troup averted a tragedy.

Mae was sitting in a chair between scenes when soundmen started to trundle the 400 pound boom (it was the old-fishioned cast-iron kind) to a new position. In some manner, the counterbalancing lead weights came off.

The boom swung rapidly towards Mae. Many shouted, but Assistant Director James Dugan and Timer Harry Scott made a dash and huddled over the star. The heavy weight struck their backs, flinging them to the floor, but was deflected from Mae's head.

An examination at the studio hospital discovered that the two rescuers had escaped with bruises and stiff backs.

Mae was so unnerved by the incident that she left the set at 9.30 a.m. and did not return until mid-afternoon.

The star recently received the relic as a gift from an anonymous admirer, who vouched for its history. He wrote that it came to him from an archeologist, who had taken it from the tomb.

The srarab is seven inches in circumference, green in color and carries an inscription which the donor says has defied translation.

Several local Egyptologists express the belief that the relic is authentic.

DO NOT WANT CHARITY

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Will you please allow me a few remarks concerning an editorial in Saturday's Examiner regarding the unemployment situation. It is true your paper has been prominent in any movement charitably to relieve temporarily distress caused by unemployment. But well meant as this may be it is like pouring water through a sieve and only touches the surface of things. Grateful though one may be for charity it is not what any independent man wants. Rather would be welcome the support of your paper in his efforts to better this intolerable state in which he finds himself. He wants to earn his own living not to live on the goodwill of others more fortunate.

You object to him using the word "demand" but I ask you if he has even the right, if there is still any spirit left in him to "demand" that the terrible state of affairs in which he has been struggling so long and so hoeplessly cease? A right to demand a decent living for his family for which he is eager to work? What have your years of patience and long suffering accomplished? Has it got him anywhere? No, and never will. He has tried that long enough.

I would be the last to advocate any united violence on his part which would only be put down with an iron hand by the "Powers that be." Lawlessness and disorder could only result in added suffering. But the men of this country have never learned to crawl, to humbly cower under threats of armed "might" which seems to be the "right." We would not make good serfs in this country. It is not in our blood. To be brow-beaten, treated with contempt or discourtesy by those clothed in a little brief authority. It marks the petty nature of some offkials who take advantage of their positions to insult those who are as good as themselves only less fortunate. This time next year they too may be facing the spectre which haunts the other man waking or sleeping. Is it not enough to make a man desperate to see his children deprived of everything but life itself? What can their future be? What lot of citizens can the next generation be under present conditions?

People who contribute cheerfully toward foreign missions can have no idea of conditions in their own land. Charity begins at home. Christ himself began His work among His own. This dealing out of relief must have an end surely. It is like an endless treadmill. Yet how can it end, when the people have no way of earning their own? Nothing is being done. It is heart sickening to hear the possibility of more relief being discussed. End relief and make work. What can compare with one's own sweet dollar?

Some people not understanding seem to look down on the unemployed man. Why? These men always worked. Kept up decent homes, were proud of their well-earned prosperity. Have they all suddenly become worthless and lazy this last few years since their very livelihood was taken from them. No sensible person could entertain the idea. Their present predicament has been forced upon them. Why should they be made to feel inferior then? Is a man's worth measured then by the dollars he can pile up regardless of how he gets them? Never.

If Abraham Lincoln had never "demanded" that slavery of the blacks must cease they would still be slaves. Is any worth while achievement ever brought about by such uncomplaining endurance of wrongs? Yet is it criminal to "demand" the right to earn our living or will it accomplish more if we beg for it?

Thanking you, I remain,
Yours truly,
"One of the Jobless."

TOOK FRUIT-A-TIVES AND INDIGESTION DISAPPEARED...SAYS MOTHER UNDER OATH

Mrs. Adam Normandin, Montreal, Que.

TO help you, and others, and so that you may have positive proof of the truth, Mrs. Normandin voluntarily has stated before a Notary how Fruit-a-tives helped her get rid of indigestion. She says:—"I Make Oath and say that I was sleepy and dizzy after meals. I suffered badly from indigestion. Everything I ate formed a lump in the stomach and gas which caused heartburn. I found that by taking Fruit-a-tives my indigestion disappeared. I am lively and energetic all day now."

Mrs. Normandin

A statement to the above effect was made under oath before a Notary Public at Montreal, November 3rd, 1933. Original on file.

BUS OUSTS REINDEER

From Lapland comes the latest trade-in story. Up in that semi-Arctic country, where roads are practically non-existent, horses cannot be used in the deep snow, and the favorite form of transport service is by reindeer and pulk, the latter being an amphibian sled found nowhere else in the world. Last year they built a road from Karasjok to the Arctic coast, and many reindeer and pulk owners in Karasjok bought cars, trucks or buses. One reindeer driver bought a bus which was the first General Motors product to be seen in the town. To the dealer it seemed fitting that the discarded outfit of the new bus owner be absorbed in the deal, and that explains why the General Motors Export Museum at New York is clearing a conspicuous place to receive one genuine reindeer and pulk from Santa Claus land.

TWENTY THOUSAND MILES OF CARS

Ottawa, Canada—The motor vehicles of Canada, if mustered out in one monster parade with a hundred feet of highway allowed to each vehicle, would form a procession over 20,000 miles in length—four-fifths of the distance around the world at the Equator. With a little crowding, and utilizing the trucks and buses, the whole population of Canada might be carried. Such a motorcade, in motion, would consume more than 50,000 gallons of gasoline for each mile of travel.

CAR'S NAME "IN LIGHTS"

The Chicago skyline will soon be dominated by the world's largest electric sign. Built for Chevrolet, the display is located at the north end of Grant Park, on the air rights of the Michigan Central railroad. It spans two driveways and six railroad tracks, and is said to be the only electric sign in the world to be built on the air rights of a railroad company. Plainly visible from a distance of six miles on land, and by vessels more than 10 miles out in Lake Michigan, flashing lights of the sign will fall upon the "Century of Progress" exposition grounds, two miles away. The steel structure, which contains 330 tons of fabricated structural steel, rises 275 feet from the ground level and is 153 feet wide. The distance from the ground to the bottom of the display proper is 122 feet. The display itself is 153 feet long by 148 feet high. It will be illuminated with 17,240 lamps and 1,100 feet of neon tubing. Wiring of this display consumed more than 22 miles of insulated cable and the display itself weighs approximately 150,000 pounds.

NEW CARS ARE MOVING

A late Spring? According to the calendar the answer is in the affirmative, but Spring with the motor car purchasers is really a state of mind, and snow and frost were powerless this year to prevent an upturn of buying. Car manufacturers in Canada in March showed an increase of 114 per cent over the production in March, 1933. April continued the good work. By May Day, the new registrations in Toronto, taking the Queen City as an indicator, were approximately twice as many for passenger cars and two-and-a-half times as many for commercial cars as during the first months of 1933. No signs are noted, as yet, of any let-up in demand.

AT WORLD'S FAIR AGAIN

Installation of equipment for the assembly of Chevrolet automobiles in the General Motors Building at the 1934 "Century of Progress International Exposition," Chicago, has already been started. Complete installation will be effected well in advance of the scheduled re-opening of the 1934 World's Fair on May 26, assuring early visitors that they will be able to see an automobile built up from the bare frame to the completed car, from the opening till the closing day of the exposition. Machines will again be finished in silver with black trim, and will be manned by approximately 200 workers in white uniforms. There is a balcony seven feet above the assembly line and erected in circular form so that the maximum number of visitors may walk completely around the line and watch every operation in the building of a typically modern automobile.

THE LETTER ARRIVED

People often like to play jokes on postal authorities, but the post office people are not so dumb. Letters addressed to Hollywood and with no other inscription except sketches of a large mouth or a large nose were delivered, respectively, to their proper destinations, namely Joe E. Brown and Schnozzle Durante. Something like this happened the other day when the Toronto Post Office stopped to puzzle over a letter addressed to the "Largest automotive company". That was the full address. "Try General Motors" was the sorter's verdict. He was right, first guess.

SAFER HEADLIGHTS

With motor cars travelling at higher speeds each year, the need for powerful illumination has increased. At the same time the need for properly protecting oncoming drivers from dangerous and illegal glare has increased. Pontiac engineers have met this double problem in the 1934 models by a multi-beam combination for country, city and passing which eliminates glare and yet provides sufficient light where it is most needed. For country driving a strong beam from each light stretches far ahead and spreads each side of the road. When passing approaching cars the left hand headlight is depressed to flood an area close in front at a level below the eyes of the approaching driver. The beam from the right hand headlight is thrown ahead as before with that portion that would shine down the left-hand side of the road masked off by lens. This provides a strong beam that will illuminate objects on the right side of the road.

HITS CITY TASTE IN BUILDING ART

Toronto Professor Severely Critical of Provincial Pile and Other Structures.

TORONTO (C. P.) — Generations yet unborn must harbor a legacy of the enthusiastic indiscretions of Toronto's architectural youth in buildings, calling up the thought that in an architect's Utopia a disposition to arson would be one of the great virtues, according to F. R. Arthur, assistant professor of architecture at the University of Toronto.

In an article reviewing the city's architectural history, written for The Mail and Empire's centennial number, Mr. Arthur has several uncomplimentary things to say of buildings that time, associations and heavy coatings of grime have hallowed in the minds of Torontonians.

Citizens of the future, he believes, will gaze at the Ontario legislative buildings in Queen's Park, the government's new East Block, Victoria College, Government House and the City Hall, and "wonder that such things could be." Casa Loma, the mediaeval pile Sir Henry Pellatt built, and which the city is considering scrapping for taxes, "takes the palm, or the biscuit or whatever inexpensive prize we may award it," in Mr. Arthur's opinion.

Architecture here since 1834, when the city was granted its charter, may be likened Mr. Arthur says, to a fine old man gradually losing his faculties until, coinciding with the arrival of the railway in 1854, "he went quite insane and remained in that unfortunate condition, with flashes of intelligence, for 46 years. Since 1900 the state of the patient's health has been reversed—he has been reasonably intelligent, with marked signs of a return to his former vigor and gradually diminishing reourrences of insanity."

The provincial parliament buildings Mr. Arthur calls "an unusual but substantial monument to a man's skill at poker," which he explains by writing that the architect was given the commission "after he had endeared himself to the powers that were at Queen's Park with his social gifts and ability at cards."

TIMES PICK UP SHANTIES GONE

Tearless Goodbye to Pioneer Settlement in Shadow of Sky-scrapers.

NEW YORK, May 22 (C.P.) — Shantytowns—children of the depression—soon will be no more in Manhattan.

Recently better times have cut their drifting cosmopolitan population in half. Now the law has ended the most colorful colonies ever built in the heart of the great city.

In the shadow of the skyscrapers and by the side of the river that Hendrick Hudson's Half Moon first exploded, the men who lead pioneers' lives in the centre of a 20th century metropolis are breaking camp—for good.

The city is tearing down the last of their colonies — camp Thomas Paine. The 75 men—all who remain of the 300 that settled on the Hudson when the bonus army marched back from Washington, have brought down their flag and sounded taps for the last time.

Camp Thomas Paine was the most substantial of the shantytowns, penniless veterans built it with odds and ends from lumber yards, with old furniture vans, with battered sheets of tin, with anything they could lay their hands on.

They lived there under military rule, abided by the decisions of their elected commander, pooled their earnings—if any—and their food. They christened their shanties "Grand Hotel," "Rain Inn," "The House That Jack Built"—names that demonstrated their ability to laugh off their troubles. Sometimes they fed nearly 150 homeless men who were not members of the camp.

Several million dollars will be spent in public works in British Malaya.

To improve the labor situation in the shipbuilding centres of El Ferrol and Cartagena, Spain has authorized extensive naval construction.

Employment in Belgium is now above last year's figures.

● THE TIRE SURPRISE OF YOUR LIFE is waiting for you—Goodyear's new Pathfinder. When you are shown this new tire you will conclude you are looking at the most expensive tire made. You'll see a centre-tread pattern never equalled for firm traction — a flatter tread and broader non-skid shoulders — thicker rubber to give 25% more tread wear than formerly — a tire oversize in all dimensions — the handsomest and by all odds the best tire in its price class!

But what you see is only half the story. The inner carcass of the Pathfinder is actually heavier and stronger than most top-price tires of other makes. Goodyear's exclusive Supertwist cords put sinewy toughness into the Pathfinder which yields greater mileage. Two cord breaker-strips under the tread—sometimes called "extra-plies."

Prices on the new Pathfinder are not higher, but 10% to 15% lower than the prices of so-called "standard" tires . . . in fact they are very little higher than the prices of risky "bargain" tires.

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

MILLBROOK LADY IS 90 YEARS OLD

Mrs. I. E. Needham Guest of Honor at Afternoon Tea on Birthday.

GRACE CHURCH W.M.S.

MILLBROOK, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence) — Mrs. I. E. Needham who has for many years resided in Millbrook celebrated her ninetieth birthday on Friday, her wide circle of friends being delighted to learn that she had sufficiently recovered from her recent serious illness to be able to assist in receiving the guests entertained at afternoon tea in honor of the occasion.

The home was lovely with fragrant hothouse flowers, and the guest of honor, who in spite of advanced years and only a fair measure of health, retains her faculties to a remarkable degree, was the recipient of a number of dainty gifts as well as telegrams and messages of congratulation from relatives and friends.

Miss M. E. Needham assisted her mother in receiving her guests, and though Friday was the actual date of the birthday anniversary, the birthday party was arranged for two afternoons in succession to make her share of the duties of hostess less of a strain on Mrs. Needham who has but recently passed through an illness of a severe character.

A number of friends from Peterborough, as well as local guests, were present on Thursday afternoon, the tea table being attractive with a lace cloth, gold candles burning in silver holders, centrel with a silver basket of daffodils, and the service entirely of silver. Mrs. G. Howson poured tea and serving the guests were Misses Margaret Widdess, of Peterborough, Margaret Simpson and Eva Howson, of Millbrook. Mrs. H. W. Johnston assisted Miss Needham both Thursday and Friday afternoons in the entertainment of the guests, Miss May Duncan being another helper on the second afternoon.

Grace Presbyterian W.M.S.

Mrs. A. Coyte entertained the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian Church for its May meeting last week when twenty members were inattendance, and the president, Mrs. W. T. Deyell, in the chair.

Mrs. J. N. McGill assisted the leader with the devotional period, and the program was featured by a paper on "Things to be Remembered," by Mrs. F. J. Deyell who pictured the future built upon the past, its ideals and actions; a talk by Mrs. Z. Seaton on "Springtime, Nature's great transformation," and a second paper on "Golden Days," by the president who spoke of "our yesterdays and to-morrows being all God's days, and our responsibility is to make them our days of service and growth."

Mrs. S. E. Eakins reported $15 remitted to the Presbyterial, and was appointed in charge of the program for the June meeting, which will be at the church, the convenor to choose her own helpers.

A 'grab bag' added to the interest of the occasion, each member contributing a bag containing an article worth not less than ten cents, and also purchasing a 'grab' before leaving. A nice sum was realized from this diversion, and the service of afternoon tea also added $1.40 to the treasury. The hostess was warmly thanked for her hospitality before departure of the guests for home.

Golden Links Mission Circle

Mrs. J. Spence, and her daughter, Miss Gertrude were joint hostesses for the May meeting of the Mission Circle, held at their home, Main street, on Wednesday at 8 p. m., the president, Miss Spence, being in the chair and giving the devotional talk.

A novel feature was the calling of the roll with each member responding with some outstanding fact about China; Mrs. E. C. Richards gave a reading, "Mother's Mite Box," and the closing chapter of the study book, "Lady Fourth Daughter of China," was taken by the leader, Mrs. G. Fallis, Mrs. J. McKnight, and Miss Jean Burnham.

Planning a picnic for the June gathering took up some time, and at the close a social hour was enjoyed with the service of refreshments, and music. Sixteen were in attendance.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Butter and potato prices declined, while cheese and egg quotations advanced on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter was quoted generally at 20¼c a pound, off ¼c, with the range being 20½c for carlots or less. To retailers solids were 22c and prints 23c a pound. Receipts were 695 boxes.

Prince Edward Island Mountain potatoes declined 5c to 10c at $1 per 90-pound bag. Quebecs per 80-pound bag at 85c to 90c were unchanged.

Ontario colored cheese advanced ¼c at 9½c to 9¾c a pound. A total of 115 boxes arrived.

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less were ½c higher. A-large were quoted at 20c to 20½c a dozen. A-medium at 19c to 19½c. B at 18c to 18½c, and C at 16½c to 17c. Offerings amounted to 2,654 cases.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Official forecasts indicating much cooler weather with frost possibilities for the Dakotas, Minnesota and Nebraska last night did much to make grain values average lower yesterday.

An outstanding feature of wheat trading was slackness of sustained buying on price advances, the most noticeable of which accompanied definite word that President Roosevelt's silver message to Congress would be delivered to-day. The chief apparent reason given for lack of continued aggressive buying was talk in some quarters that the domestic carry-over of wheat July 1 next promised to total as much as 250,000,000 bushels, a considerable portion of which would likely have to be disposed of abroad.

Wheat closed unsteady at about the day's bottom level, ⅞c to 1⅛c under Saturday's finish; corn, ⅝c to ⅞c down; oats, unchanged to ⅛c higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 22. — General rains over Western Canada held buyers aloof on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange until near the close yesterday, but a late movement to purchase was insufficient to fully recover earlier losses Closing figures were ½c to ⅝c off.

May wheat ended at 69¼c, July at 70¼c, and October at 72c. Prices followed a 1c range during the session, with trading almost entirely local in character and in quite moderate volume.

Export business was restricted by the holiday in European markets. Except for some buying based on United States crop conditions and the late accumulation, there was no real support in the market.

Statistics for the past week were featured by an increase of about 2,000,000 bushels in world wheat shipments, which totalled 10 896,000, North America, chiefly Canada, furnished more than half this amount.

UNVEIL TABLET ON EMPIRE DAY

Lakefield to Unveil Memorial Tablet to Memory of Miss Isabella Duff.

51 YEARS TEACHER

LAKEFIELD, May 22.—In connection with the Empire Day program to be held on the Public School grounds on Wednesday afternoon, May 23rd there will be a memorial tablet unveiled to the memory of the late Miss Isabella Duff and to honor her service as teacher in that school for fifty-one years. There are few if any such records in the Province of Ontario. Miss Duff began teaching in 1877 in Lakefield and for years taught the third book in the room now used as a science room by the High School. In 1908 when four new rooms were added on the east side of the school she took the south upper room and took on fourth book work and the Entrance class and later was made principal of the Public school. The Entrance class was her especial pride and year by year she worked early and late that there would be a hundred per cent take pass standing at least and that a pupil of the Lakefield Public school would take the county prize. And her success in this regard was so great that in nineteen years the records show that twelve times the coveted honor was won by one of her pupils. As this was one of Miss Duff's greatest joys in life, the committee in charge are trying to get as many possible of these young people to be a Guard of Honor at the unveiling ceremony. The following is the list:

The ceremony which will form part of the Empire Day celebration will take place on the grounds of the school at 2.30 p.m., and in case of rain, in the Town Hall, and the pupils and ex-pupils of the school are particularly invited.

SYMPATHY IN EAST.

SASKATOON, May 21. (C.P.)—"I found in the East a real appreciation of the necessity of maintaining the solidarity of the Canadian provinces," Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Premier of British Columbia, said as he passed through Saskatoon from Ottawa, evidently happy at the success of his negotiations with the Federal Government.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A GREAT CAREER WAS BEGUN

On this date, in 1803, a young Scot was ordained at Quebec as a deacon of the Church of England, who was to become a notable figure both in church and civil history. John Strachan was born of Presbyterian parents in old Aberdeen and when he came to Canada in his youth he was a very dour Scot indeed. After serving for a while as an upper servant (designated tutor) in the family of Hon. Richard Cartwright at Kingston he opened a private school there and decided that if he wanted to progress in the new country he must become an adherent of the Church of England and a Tory. So, having decided his destiny, he became the embodiment of all that was tyrannically Anglican and the Toriest of all Tories. Step by step he carved his way; priest in 1804; rector of York in 1812; archdeacon 1827; the first Bishop of Toronto, 1839; and almost from the first of his days at the capital a politician with all the passion and prejudice of his time. To him any person who refused to acknowledge the authority of his church was anathema; all who declined to submit to rule by the Family Compact were rebels.

A strange figure! Yet, despite his faults, and because of his fighting qualities, he did much for the advancement of education; he foresaw the great future of Canada and he planned for it; and when he died in 1867 he had lived to see the Province of Canada united with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and the Dominion of Canada launched, largely through the efforts of men whose fathers and whoselves had been damned by him as disloyal reebls.

Perhaps Strachan's most virulent hatred was against William Lyon Mackenzie. It was a hatred that was reciprocated. It had began simply. The rector was chairman of the school board; Mackenzie's brother-in-law was an applicant for a post in a school; Mackenzie went to Strachan to plead his relative's case; Strachan ordered him to be shown the door. From that time on until the rebellion the rector and the editor were deadly foes. When the latter fled and left his dupes to pay the penalty of revolt. Dr. Strachan must have chuckled. He had won! But Mackenzie had the last word. After his return to Canada and his election for Haldimand in 1851 there came a day when the bishop entered the Assembly chamber to present a petition. To impress the legislators Strachan had with him a procession of clergy in cassock and surplice. Mackenzie caught a glimpse of the parade rushed into the chamber, took his seat and, immediately upon the Speaker taking his chair, began a question on the orders of the day and inveighed with all his vigor against "prelates and clergy meddling and infesting the lobbies when they should be engaged in higher matters," talking against time and compelling Strachan to stand for over half an hour at the bar. Eventually Mackenzie ceased and the petition was received, but Mackenzie had avenged the "Show him the door" of forty years before!

John Strachan was at once the best loved and the most hated man in Upper Canada, yet was a living proof that ability would win, for who could have predicted that the raw young Scot of 1799 would have become a man before whose frown the most powerful politicians would shrink?

SURVEY REVEALS ROOSEVELT IS COMPLETE MASTER OF NATION

Editor Says Half 50 Officials Supposedly in Control, Only "Yes Men."

WIFE CHIEF ADVISER.

AMARILLO, Texas, May 22 (AP) —Gene Howe, Amarillo editor, said to-day a survey he had just completed revealed President Roosevelt as "having complete mastery of the nation," in contrast with the fifty men James W. Gerard said were running the United States in 1930.

Howe, son of Ed Howe, famous Kansas editor, and a controversialist who has tilted with Mary Garden and other notables, picked 49 of the President's chief advisers, "who are consulted at his pleasure rather than their leasure." He called at least half of them "Yes" men, and said "There is not one of the remainder who can speak for the President without first consulting him."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt heads the list of advisers which Howe, with the aid of newspapermen in Washington, New York, Chicago, and other Eastern cities, selected after a month's survey. Howe made one trip through the East to obtain first-hand information.

Gerard's list was made up principally of bankers, financiers and big industrialists. Howe found that these classes are not represented among Roosevelt's advisers.

One "Near Financier"

"The closest approach to a financier," he said, "ise Bernard Baruch. Then there is Jesse Jones, a spectacular real estate operator. Jones, who is a natural leader and tremendously ambitious, is reasonably close to Roosevelt, but the President keeps everyone at a respectful distance.

"Louis McHenry Howe is his intellectual valet; Jim Farley, his political strategist, whose advice is seldom taken except regarding party organization. Vice-President Garner doesn't speak or understand the language of most of those who surround the President. The thunder is his own, the lightning Roosevelt's.

"Rex Tugwell is a socialite, a brilliant conversationalist, a dull thinker. He has become publicity goat of the Administration, and likes it. Salvos hurled at him are intended for the President. He is headed out."

Howe said he found the "brain trust not very brainy," and Roosevelt's Cabinet "mediocre."

Obituary

MISS HARRIET HALL

The remains of Harriet Hall, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hall, were laid to rest in Little Lake Cemetery following services at St. John's Church on Friday afternoon last. The pallbearers were: Messrs R. E. Layfield, Thomas Barrie, A. Brundrett, Fred Hall, M. Comstock, J. Comstock.

A native of England the late Miss Hall had resided in this city for a greater part of her lifetime. She died at her residence, 373 Queen street, following upon a brief illness at the age of 82 years.

Her father the late Albert Hall formerly resided for some time in Ashburnham, at which time he was proprietor of a confectionery store in the premises now occupied by the Peterborough Hardware Company on George Street. He also operated a business at Lindsay for some years, in which town the family was well-known.

JAMES O'KEEFE.

The funeral was held on Monday morning from the family residence, 79 Lansdowne Street, of James O'Keefe, the beloved husband of Rose Whibbs, who passed away early on Saturday last.

Solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated at the Church of the Sacred Heart by Reverend J. J. O'Brien, with Rev. C. J. Maloney as deacon, and Rev. Dr. V. J. Masterson as sub-deacon. Present in the sanctuary were: Most Rev. Bishop Denis O'Connor, and Rev. V. Corkery Rev. J. Finn, Rev. J. McGuire, Rev. Paul Costello and Rev. J. J. Garvey.

The sermon was preached by Rev V. J. McAuley, formerly curate of Sacred Heart Church. In a few appropriate words, he outlined the exemplary life of the late Mr O'Keefe as head of a Christian family, and made reference to the fact that he had given two daughters to the religious life.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Peter Milloy, A. J. Rose, William Grady, John Kenneally, John McFarland and Timothy Collins. Honorary pall-bearers were six small boys from Sacred Heart School.

The schoolgirls' choir also participated in the service, under direction of Sister Augustine.

The late Mr. O'Keefe was well-known in the city, having spent his entire lifetime here. He was a contractor for landscape gardening, and has left many monuments to his work at Prince of Wales, Queen Mary, and the Normal Schools as well as at the Filtration Plant. He was engaged in completing work at the Church of the Immaculate Conception when he was stricken ill on Friday.

He leaves, besides his widow, the following family: Patrick Vincent of Yonkers, N.Y.; Sister St. Oswald of Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston; Sister Rose Marie of St. Joseph's Hospital, of Peterborough; Herbert O'Keefe, of this city; Josephine O'Keefe, R.N., of Kingston; Joseph J. and William Francis O'Keefe, both of Montreal, and Catherine, of Toronto.—Kingston and Toronto papers please copy.

HARRY W. CRESSMAN

Word was received in the city to-day of death at his home in Vancouver, B.C., of Harry W. Cressman, son of A. W. Cressman and the late Clara Cressman. The late Mr. Cressman was well-known in Peterborough, having been identified with his father in the operating of Cressman's Departmental Store here for many years. He was interested in sports while here and was manager of the Cressman baseball team in the Mercantile League.

MRS. MARIA CORBY DIES

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 22 (CP) —Mrs. Maria Corby, widow of the late Senator Henry Corby, died at her home, 169 George street, today, after a short illness in her 84th year.

Deceased was an active worker in St. Thomas' Anglican Church and known for her many philanthropic efforts. Three daughters: Mrs. C. S. Laidlaw, Toronto; Mrs. F. S. T. O'Mara, Ottawa, and Miss Alice at home, survive.

SUMMER GARDENS DANCING POLICY

Complete Band very Night—New Song Hits Every Week.

The Brock Street Summer Gardens have set a policy which will be in vogue until further notice, and is to the effect that the full band of eleven pieces will be used every night, so that those dancing are assured of the best of music no matter what night they attend. There will be no cut dances and music will, as usual, be kept right up-to-date.

Already quite a few parties that have been arranged for fulfill the first part of their program and adjourn to the Summer Gardens for dancing. This is going to be quite the thing this summer. There is no finer way to entertain friends from in or out of town than by spending an hour or two at the Brock Street Summer Gardens.

Arthur Ottawa 18, a popular Canadian field pea over a wide range of conditions, is the most commonly grown variety for the pea-soup trade.

ENGLISH WIDOW CLAIMS TO BE SOLE HEIR ST. THOMAS ESTATE

Says Man Who Married in Canada, Had 5 Children, Left Her 50 Years Ago.

DEMANDS THE CASH

LONDON, Ont., May 22 (CP) — Claiming to be a lawful widow and children of George Emery, who died three years ago at St. Thomas, three English women have started action in the Supreme Court here to wrest his $15,000 estate from the woman he alleged married in Canada. Emery, it is stated, left his first wife and two small daughters in England more than half a century ago and came to this country, starting a new life, and had five children by his second wife.

The application for possession of Emery's property reveals one of the strangest alleged marriage tangles to come before local courts. The woman who claims to be the lawful widow is Mrs. Emily Emery of Wrington, Somerset, England, while the daughters are Mrs. Kily Kelly and Mrs. Bessie Gist, the latter a widow, both of Somerset County. Children when their father left home in 1883, they have since married and have families of their own. The English Mrs. Emery is now over 70 years of age.

Defendant in the action brought by the English women is Mrs. Sarah Jane Emery of St. Thomas, named both in her personal capacity and as administratrix of the estate of George Emery. The other Mrs. Emery and her two daughters claim that they are the sole next of kin and heiresses at law of the man who died at St. Thomas.

Applying to County Judge Joseph Wearing, the English people obtained a temporary injunction, restraining the St. Thomas widow from in any way disposing of the estate for eight days. Emery died without making a will.

To Be Presented

MRS. PERCY GORDON

At present in England, Mrs. Percy Gordon of Regina is one of the many Canadians who will be presented at the court of St. James at the next drawing room. She will be accompanied by her daughter.

Rain Halts Blaze In Sudbury Forest

SUDBURY, Ont., May 22.—(C.P.)—Aided by a heavy rainfall yesterday the efforts to combat a serious brush fire in Moffat township, near Stupart, on the Canadian National Railways, succeeded to-day, and the blaze was under control.

The southern section of the burning area has not yet been extinguished, but is expected to be fully under control shortly. There are at present 90 men from Sudbury and the section where the fire started, fighting the blaze.

Ontario Forestry Branch officials said there would be no actual cash loss through the fire, as the whole sector where the fire is burning is a cut over area and no real timber has been destroyed. Heavy rain and thunder storms were general throughout this district last night but word has not been received if they affected the Stupart area.

Smith To Address General Meeting

A. E. Smith of Toronto, general secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence League, will address a public meeting in the Ashburnham Hall at the corner of Hunter and Mark Streets, on Wednesday evening at 7.30.

This meeting was annuonced by William Childs on the Market Square last Thursday night, and has been arranged by a group of unemployed who have been assisted by George Ashbrook, also of Toronto.

According to the Toronto newspapers, Mr. Smith was recently ratified as the candidate of the Communist Party in East York for the provincial elections, and in the bills announcing his Peterborough engagement he is described as a "fearless leader of the Canadian working class." The handbills also bear this advice: "Come early to secure a seat."

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The term "athlete's foot" has become popularized, and its symptoms are quite widely known.

As the advertising literature points out it does not occur exclusively in athletes, and as has been pointed out in these columns, it does not appear exclusively on the feet. The reason for this is that the term has really been applied to a group of diseases—that is to say, a condition caused by a number of different things. The cause is the infection of the skin with some form of yeast-like or microscopic fungus mould. The eruption may appear on the feet or hands, between the thighs—in fact, nearly anywhere on the body.

Before the name "athlete's foot" came in, it was usually called ringworm."

On the feet it manifests itself either by the appearance of blisters which have intense itching, or by a redness and cracking of the skin between the toes.

Many preparations have been used to help it, but in spite of their multiplicity it is inclined to be chronic and to resist treatment.

Perhaps the most hopeful method is that which has recently been reported of the use of a mercurial preparation known as "phenylmercuric nitrate", which is put up in an ointment in a concentration of 1 to 1500. The method of preparation is described in the Journal of the American Medical association for Dec. 30, 1933.

Reports from its use are very encouraging. For instance, one case reported it that of a woman who had had for twelve years a weeping, itching eruption between the toes. Nearly every form of treatment had been tried on it until the phenylmercuric nitrate ointment was used, with the result that she was cured in two weeks, with no recurrence within three months.

Of 261 cases of yeast or mould infection, 205 responded favorably to the use of this preparation. It is somewhat irritating in greater strength than the proportions given above, and even sometimes in that strength. Should this occur it can be weakened.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. F.: "(1) Is boiled sauerkraut more digestible than boiled cabbage? (2) Is it true that asparagus causes or promotes kidney diseases?

Answer: (1) Digestibility of these substances depends upon their fibrous content, which is about the same in both ceses. (2) It is not true that asparagus is the cause of any kidney disease, nor need it be avoided if the kidneys do become diseased.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

Perc Westmore, that famous Hollywood make-up expert, who works his magic on the faces of some of our greatest cinema sirens, claims that frown lines between the brows are one of the greatest of all detriments to facial loveliness. Frown lines, he says, give the face an angry, discontented expression that is anything but pretty. And they rob the facial expression of its charm and sweetness.

I certainly share Perc's opinion in this matter. For years immemorial, poets have raved of the loveliness of a smooth, marble-like brow. And today, a brow of this description is considered more important than ever. For what with our new off the face hats, our tricky, revealing evening hats, and the threat of our approaching hatless summer days, a smooth, flawless brow becomes most important.

According to Perc Westmore, however, today there's a new wrinkle to end all frown wrinkles. A good many of the damsels out in Hollywood are employing this method And it certainly is simplicity itself. According to Perc, before retiring at night, all you do is cut out a triangular piece of ordinary brown wrapping paper moisten it with your tongue, and stick it between your corrugated brows. The paper won't let you frown, and this is an excellent way of breaking you of this disastrous mannerism.

There are several cosmeticians that are now putting out preparations for just this purpose. They are more or less in pomade form, and when spread over the frown-line area, dry quickly and prevent you from distorting your face in any harmful manner.

The white of an egg also has often been advised for this purpose. If you have acquired the habit of frowning, after you cleanse your face at night, apply the stiffly beaten white of an egg to your brow. Permit the egg white to dry thoroughly, and then retire. The egg white will tone up your skin and prevent you from unconsciously practicing the detrimental habit of frowning. After any such treatment, however, it is wise to massage the wrinkled area lightly with a good, rich cream, in order to nourish the tissues and keep the skin smooth and supple.

Trees Are Destroyed In Armour Hill Park

Members of the Ashburnham Patriotic League have decided to take every means available to protect the young trees growing in the park on Armour Hill from further wilful destruction. Planting of these trees has been one of the chief activities of the League in its aim to beautify Ashburnham and have the park become a memorial to those who died in France, but a recent survey of the park disclosed that 16 young trees had been wilfully cut and broken down. Another tree had been cut down and apparently used as a Christmas tree. This destruction has been reported to police, and charges will follow any future vandalism in the park.

IRISHMEN START FREE-FOE-ALL.

LONDON, May 22 (C.P.-Havas).—A fight between two Irishmen in Camden Town (North London) was believed to-day to have been the origin of a free-for-all that brought 50 police to the scene to restore order. Two persons were injured and eight arrested.

County Gaol Visited By Dr. J. W. Heaslip

Dr. J. W. Heaslip, Government inspector, upon completion of an inspection of the County Gaol this morning declined to make any statement to the press. The regulations of the Department, he told a reporter, did not permit him to give newspaper interviews bearing upon his gaol inspections.

Asked how Peterborough County Gaol compared with other gaols in the Province under his juriadiction, Dr. Heaslip replied non-committally, "Well, some are better, and some are worse."

According to Colonel Dalton Johnston, the governor of the gaol, there were eight male prisoners in confinement at the time of the inspector's visit.

Before he left upon the completion of his inspection, Dr. Heaslip was in conference with Colonel Johnston, Dr. J. A. Morgan, gaol surgeon, and Sheriff F. J. A. Hall.

If the birth rate continues to fall it is estimated that the population of England and Wales will reach its peak in 1937.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The fresh fruit shortcake season is at hand and so today I am giving a recipe for this delicious dish. There are two kinds of fruit shortcake recognized today, although the name literally applies to but one, namely that in which the fruit comes between layers of shortbread rather than cake, however plain and simple.

* * * * * * *

The word short in culinary parlance is defined as crisp, crumbly, breaking easily. In the plural it is entirely different referring to a coarse bran mixture. Shortcake is a teacake similar to tea biscuit dough only made crisper and more crumbly or flaky with extra butter or other shortening. Here is an old-time recipe slightly altered to suit modern preparations of ingredients.

* * * * * * *

Four cups flour to which add before sifting, three rounded teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. One cup butter on other shortening. Two tablespoons sugar. Enough sweet milk (or water) to make a soft dough. Method: Mix and roll out almost as thin as pie-crust. Put a layer in a buttered baking pan, and spread with butter, dust with flour, and place on it another layer. Butter and flour top. Continue to so fill the pan until all the dough is used up. Bake in a hot oven over 15 minutes. Turn upside down and, using the top layer for the bottom one, place one layer on a serving dish. Spread "plentifully" with strawberries whole, or mashed if large or sour, which have been sweetened with pulverized sugar. Cover with another layer of shortcake and continue with alternate layers of shortcake and fruit, having the top one of the shortcake. The old-time recipe considers this a "handsome cake." Today we would cover the top with whipped cream and dot the top with some of the finest of the whole berries.

ARE CARD PROBLEMS MADE UP?

"Dear Mr. Shephard: Are the published card problems made up, or do they represent situations arising in actual deals which have been properly played by their holders It seems to me that none of them could have been solved without double-dummy study."

Perhaps the above extract from a letter represents the feeling of a majority of card players of average experience. Generations of players have studied problem hands without knowing how the problems happened to come into being.

No experienced player finds any difficulty in properly handling at the table the grand coup, Vienna coup, squeeze, strip or throw in the lead the player who is desired to lead up to a tenace. Most of the card problems are based upon one of those situations. The problem represents the play of the last few cards, after the expert has detected, his proper method of procedure, and has forced his opponents into the situation where he is able to oblige them to play as he wishes.

Guillaume Le Breton Deschappelles, the inventor of the grand coup, died in 1847, leaving 14 fine examples of this coup played at whist, which were vastly more difficult to work than at bridge, with the dummy exposed.

Probably Professor W. H. Whitfield produced the most original end problems. Ernest Bergholt was, I believe, the first to publish a book on the subject. The card problems of R. F. Foster, Louis J. Bruck and Sidney S. Lenz have baffled all except the most able solvers.

Many lesser lights have presented similar problems, by swapping suits and changing the cards slightly. My own experience leads me to believe, however, that the majority of good problems have arisen in actual play. Possibly the one presenting the problem has at times changed a card or two, so that no species of accidental adverse play might upset the result of proper play by the one seeking the desired situation to pull off his coup.

The last six cards of a hand are shown below. My partner (South) dealt the hand one evening last winter. Tomorrow's article will show in detail how the problem was discovered, and directed into the right channel.

Spades are trumps. North is to lead. He must win three tricks for game against the best defence of East and West.

The macaroni for luncheon may be canned. The good housewife usually has a few cans of fruit, vegetables and other things such as spaghetti or macaroni, soup, fish, etc., on her shelves for emergency. They are especially handy when house cleaning time comes.

Today's Recipes

Ham Slices en Casserole—Ham butt slices, one cup corn, one egg, one cup bread crumbs, two tablespoons butter, one cup celery, one cup milk, salt and pepper, one teaspoon sugar, two tablespoons flour. Chop the celery, onion, green pepper, mix and fry to golden brown in butter. Add well beaten egg, corn and bread crumbs, season with salt and pepper and sprinkle with sugar. Place ham slices in a buttered baking dish and spread the corn mixture over the top. Make a thick cream sauce in the fat in which the vegetables were cooked, by combining flour with butter and gradually adding milk, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Pour this sauce over the meat and vegetables. Bake in slow oven, 300 degrees, until meat is done.

IF YOU'RE ASKING WHY I USE PALMOLIVE...

I can give you four grand reasons!

My beauty specialist pointed out that the rich velvety Palmolive lather gets down deep into the pores and really cleans. He said that 20,000 beauty experts feel the same way about the lovely things Palmolive does for your skin!

Of course it's been known for hundreds of years that olive oil keeps skin smooth and soft . . . So you can understand why Palmolive (it's made from a blend of olive and palm oils, you know) is the only real beauty soap.

With evening dresses getting lower, backs and necks and arms just must be soft and smooth! That's why I always use Palmolive for baths. And of course I give my face a Palmolive treatment twice a day.

5¢ A CAKE Same Quality Same Size

INCREASED SALES and consequently lowered production costs, has made it possible to sell Palmolive Soap for 5c per cake.

Please understand: ● The formula of this famous soap is unchanged. ● The same amount of olive oil is used in its manufacture. ● Each cake is as large as it ever was. ● Nothing is changed but the price. ● Now everyone can use Palmolive.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Spent Long Winter Marooned In Canadian Northland

Shown here are the "Mountaineers" party of aerial pleasure-seekers and explorers from Chicago, who spent the winter camped on the upper Halfway river in northern British Columbia, 150 flying miles from the nearest civilization, while they rebuilt their Fairchild plane which cracked up in a forced landing on August 21 last. LEFT to RIGHT, as they arrived at the Edmonton airport, are shown: John "Born" Bonnell, pilot; Ernie Knudson, old-time trapper of Dawson Creek, nicknamed "Silver Tip" and known to the Indians as "Keewatin", the North Wind, who drove three of the party to Edmonton in his car; Mrs. Betty Rossbach, "mother" to the whole party; Captain Carl A. Simmons, leader of the expedition; Alton "Pete" Seamans; Herman "Hap" Hatfield, chief mechanic, and 17-year-old Paul Rossbach. Below at LEFT is seen Captain Carl Simmons as he arrived in Edmonton. He described the purpose of the journey as "a pleasure trip." Lower RIGHT shows plane as it lay after it cracked up in the wilds of British Columbia. The party had little knowledge of the north country, but proceeded to learn as rapidly as possible. Thus they were able to exist through the long winter.

Stop complaining about your feet

let the M. W. LOCKE SHOE help restore them to healthy condition!

Many women accept foot suffering as "inevitable".. They argue that just because they have never been able to find relief, there is none to be had!

Such reasoning might have been excused in the past, but no longer! For now the famous Dr. Locke of Williamsburg, Ontario, has personally designed and approved the M. W. Locke Shoe to properly support ailing feet and to assist in restoring the bones to normal position.

Each year thousands of foot sufferers travel to Dr. Locke's clinic in Canada, to receive his treatment. Now you need go no further than our store to be fitted to his scientific, corrective shoes. Come in today and try on a pair. They will bring you a degree of comfort you have never before known!

COMMITTEE WILL MAKE REPORT ON INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER

Alderman Sloan Makes Motion to Have Matter Studied.

NO OPPORTUNITIES LOST.

It was made clear last evening that the majority of members of the City Council are firmly of the opinion no opportunities to secure new factories for Peterborough have been neglected, but if any new policy to secure better results in the factory-seeking efforts can be pointed out then the Council is ready to adopt it.

Discussion concerning the city's efforts to secure factories arose when Alderman Max Sloan urged the appointment of a committee to consider the appointment of an industrial commissioner. He suggested that by the employment of such a commissioner the city would be more in direct touch with factory prospects and better results might be obtained. He named Mayor Denne, Aldermen Cotton, McIntyre and Hamilton to the committee to study the advisability of such an appointment being made.

Alderman Cotton, chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee, declared that "every effort humanly possible to secure factories has been made and is being made." Since last fall, he declared, City Clerk Armstrong "has written easily 150 letters" to companies which might be considering locating a plant in Ontario.

Mayor Denne stated that some factories could have been obtained for the city. "Yes, we could have had some if public-spirited citizens would have put up $35,000 to $30,000 to help finance them," he explained. "But I want to say that we haven't missed any real factories."

Alderman Sloan stated that he was not criticizing the Council, "I believe every effort has been made that was possible," he explained. "But I would like the committee to report on the possibilities of appointing an industrial commissioner."

Mayor Denne said: "Well, if you want to spend a lot of money, such a commissioner will do it for you, and you won't get any better results."

Alderman Cotton explained that the Manufacturers' Committee was informed instantly that any company was considering locating in Canada, and every effort was made at once to acquaint its officials with Peterborough's advantages. "But we haven't any plants to offer them such as some places have done," he concluded.

Aldermen Tuggey and McIntyre considered that consideration of the appointment of an industrial commissioner should be left to the Manufacturers' Committee.

Alderman Sloan then amended his resolution to read that the Manufacturers' Committee be requested to consider the appointment of an industrial commissioner.

Alderman Fitzpatrick—"It wouldn't do any harm for the committee to look into it."

Mayor Denne—"Ask Alderman Sloan to attend that meeting so that he can outline any suggestions he has on the subject. I can say here that I know positively that no stone has been left unturned in the effort to secure factories. Because we have not obtained any of late is not the fault of City Clerk Armstrong, the Council or myself."

Alderman McIntyre referred to the work he knew Mr. Armstrong did in this connection during his term as chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee.

It was decided that the Manufacturers' Committee would consider Alderman Sloan's suggestion.

The Council and city's sympathy to the bereaved families of the late Judge E. C. S. Huycke and Harry Huffman was expressed in two resolutions.

Mrs. George Benton and Mrs. W. J. Swanger were reappointed members of the Mothers' Allowance Board. A. G. Metheral, relief officer, will be instructed to secure necessary tools for John Harvey, who is going North under the land settlement scheme.

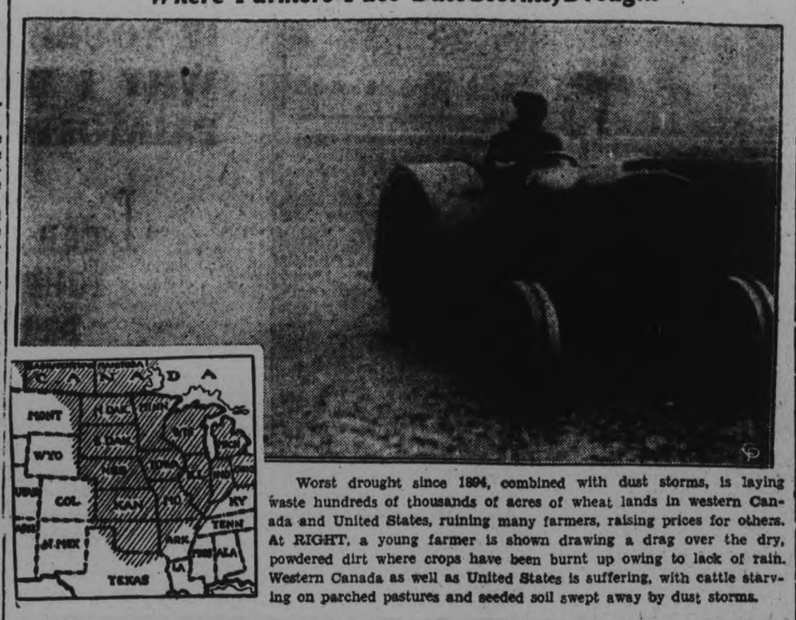
Where Farmers Face Dust Storms, Drought



Worst drought since 1894, combined with dust storms, is laying waste hundreds of thousands of acres of wheat lands in western Canada and United States, ruining many farmers, raising prices for others. At RIGHT, a young farmer is shown drawing a drag over the dry, powdered dirt where crops have been burnt up owing to lack of rain. Western Canada as well as United States is suffering, with cattle starving on parched pastures and seeded soil swept away by dust storms.

RELIEF PROBE AT STRATFORD

City Council Agrees to Investigation After Workers Go on Strike.

APPEAL TO GOV'T.

STRATFORD, Ont., May 22 (CP)—Stratford relief workers' request for a probe into the relief situation here has been approved by City Council. The workers went on strike a week ago after a number of them refused to work on a stone pile, claiming the job was dangerous and unnecessary because a stone crusher was available in the city.

City Council last night passed a motion requesting the Ontario Government to send a relief investigator to Stratford. Alderman D. E. Marks moved the resolution with Alderman A. Davis after some discussion.

Alderman J. A. Boyd charged the unemployed were attempting to intimidate the Council, and Alderman Davis, who is chairman of the Relief Commission. He described as "a bunch of hoodlums" a number of workless who waited for Alderman Davis outside the plant where he works so they could present their case.

Harry Rhodes, President of the Unemployment Association, promised the relief workers would appear next Wednesday to plant the community garden after Council had restored four men to the relief lists.

Madoc

Sagonaska Camp, Cottage Cove, Moira Lake has been opened for the season by the visit over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Fowlie of Niagara Falls, N.Y. They were accompanied by Miss Hope of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Ashley and Mrs. Robert Bristol spent Sunday in Whitby attending the christening of the former's grandson, John Archibald Ashley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Ashley of Whitby.

READY TO WITHDRAW

WINDSOR—A. A. (Tony) Marentette, recognized Liberal nominee in North Essex riding yesterday made a public offer to withdraw from the race if P. N. Gardner, also Liberal but not recognized by Provincial leader Mitchell F. Hepburn, would do the same and permit naming of a new candidate who would be supported by both Liberal factions.

Mr. Gardner has not expressed his readiness to do this.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

Sixty-three cents of every dollar goes for Wages.

The railways of Canada are among the largest employers of labour in the Dominion. In 1933 the Canadian National Railways paid wages to 70,625 employees, and in so doing disbursed $95,632,076.00. In terms of expenditure for operation, this means that of every dollar so spent by the Canadian National Railways, 63 cents was paid for labour. The balance was spent for fuel, material, etc., used in maintenance and operation, and, of course, these expenditures in turn contributed to the wages of those employed by the parties from whom the materials were purchased.

As the policy of the railways is not only to serve Canada, but to "buy Canadian", it follows that the railways, through direct payment of wages and indirectly through purchases, are of tremendous importance to the wage-earners of Canada and to everybody who is to any extent dependent on them—and that means practically everybody in the Dominion.

Yet, impressive as are the above figures, they are far below those of previous years. The number of employees is less and the payroll is smaller than hitherto. We want to change this. We want to restore men to their jobs and put their names once again on the payroll. In doing so we will be helping every form of business in Canada, and therefore feel entitled to the fullest co-operation of all citizens.

The railways are equipped for much greater service than they are presently called on to perform. Their standards of efficiency are higher than ever, and they are ready for and anxious to have additional business. The time of the year for vacations is here, and it will give additional pleasure to any holiday to have the knowledge that each dollar spent on railway travel has to the extent of well over one-half found its way straight to some employee's home.

But in patronizing Canadian railways you get more than the satisfaction—deep as this may be—of having helped to banish the Depression. You get railway service in all its varied branches at its best. Whether you have much or little to spend, whether you are going on a long journey or a short one, let a railway be your servant. And, of course, we would like to have the pleasure of your choice falling on us.

SHARPENING OF THE STRUGGLE FOR WORLD MARKETS IS SEEN AS LEADING TOWARDS STRIFE

Japan, Britain, France and United States Taking Part in Trade War.

RUSSIA SEEKS ALLIANCE

Nations Are Drastically Increasing Their Armaments.

By W. JOHN STEWART
Central Press Canadian Writer

NEW YORK, May 22.—The menace of war, not only in the Far East, but to the entire world, grows apace.

This last week many developments have taken place in the field of international politics that can not only be viewed with alarm, but form, on the face of them, a background for war.

All that seems to be needed now to complete the picture is an "immediate cause"—some sensational event to inflame the peoples of one national against another, such as the shooting of an archduke in Serbia immediately before the Great War.

Japan, as the culprit in the Far East, this week faced three major problems. Her foreign minister Koki Hirota, the man who failed in his examinations but who was selected for the foreign office post because he was soft-spoken, handled all three capably —from Japan's viewpoint.

Meanwhile came word from an unofficial spokesman in the office that heads the United States army, that the U.S. army does not want a war with Japan; that such an event would gravely damage both Japan and the United States to the benefit of Europe, and that a war with Japan is wholly impracticable because of the great distance that separates the two nations, neither of which has major bases close to the other from which to centre armed activities.

How The East Is Now Split Up

Won't Help Europe

In other words, says this spokesman, who is an internationally famous writer on military affairs, the United States "is not going to be made the cat'spaw to pull Europe's chestnuts outof the fire." He lauds Secretary of State Cordell Hull for his clever diplomatic handling of a note to Japan.

Europe's chestnuts are held by Britain and France. Britain last week declared a trade war with Japan, to which Japan replied in a soft - spoken manner, through smooth Koki Hirota. Then Sir John Simon, Britain's foreign minister, stated in the House of Commons that Britain would use no club against Japan's imperialistic plans in Asia without the aid of the United States. Such measures, he said, could not be applied without risk of war.

Japan has surpassed Britain in the production of cotton piece goods; she has surpassed France in the production of high-grade luxury silk. Needless to say these two nations are not going to sit idly by and see their trade taken away from them.

So Britain declared war—a trade war, often a fore-runner to armed conflict. Sir Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, declared quotas against Japan for England and the colonies.

Colonies Failed to Support

The colonies, however, supported this only half-heartedly for they supply much of the raw materials from which Japan manufacturers. Canada and Australia were particularly affected, and are not likely to carry out Britain's requests.

Meanwhile, the League of Nations was taking action in China to refinance that helpless nation. This called forth more investives from quiet Mr. Hirota, threatening action against any attempt on the part of any nation or international body which attempted the re-financing of Ohina. In other words, "keep off our front lawn."

Another problem was whether or not China would invoke the Nine Powers Treaty against Japan. In Nanking, where China's government is centred, they studied the treaty, made inquiries, and found that the nations who signed the treaty, principally England and the United States, were not anxious to take such an action. So no action was taken. She did, however, send her military experts across the world to visit munitions factories and military centres to get all the latest information on modern warfare.

Wars Fought for Trade

Wars are no longer fought over racial or religious strife. Wars are caused by a desire for trade. England, Japan, France and the United States all want the Chinese market. England cannot brook anyone tampering with her foreign markets for manufactured goods, yet Japan a nation similar to England, must live for foreign trade, too. Germany attempted to interfere with British foreign trade in 1914, and the result was war.

Meanwhile, many nations would like a piece of the Russian market. Russia knows this — knows the threat of Japan and Germany, and as a result is negotiating to be admitted to the League of Nations, and, more important, for an alliance with France. Such an alliance would join the two strongest military forces in the world and constitute a might force either for peace or war.

Japan's Empire In Asia

The struggle for market's becomes keener; as it sharpens, the nations increase their arms, the disarmament conference passes out of existence, nations dispatch threatening notes to each other cannot seem to decide upon common action and chaos results.

The situation in Europe cannot be considered without the situation in the East. Neither can the troubles of the east be studied without taking into account the chaotic condition of Europe wherein France opposes Germany, Italy opposes France, Russia favors France, opposes Germany — and England "sits on the fence" favoring (officially) no nation, opposing (officially) none.

BYRD IS LIVING 72 BELOW ZERO

Coldest Period of Antarctic Winter Darkness Before Explorer.

LONE OUTPOST.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, May 22 (A.P., via MacKay Radio).—The unenviable distinction of living in the coldest spot ever inhabited by man was in prospect today for Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

He had predicted before he isolated himself at a camp 130 miles by trail from the main base of the expedition for a winter of meteorological studies that the outpost might prove to be the coldest place ever inhabited.

Commander Byrd reported a temperature of 72 degrees below zero yesterday—and the coldest periods of the winter darkness are yet to come.

Nevertheless, his reports indicated progress in his studies of Antarctic weather, despite the difficulties occasioned by freezing instruments.

Four of the five tractors at Little America have been driven down the snow ramp into the dug-out garage.

One of the tractors burst into flames but Bernard Skinner, tractor driver, crawled under the machine, and with gloved hands ripped loose the blazing gasoline line to save the machine for spring operations.

PORT PERRY MEN FINED $10 COSTS

Found Guilty in Lindsay Police Court of Illegal Fishing.

LINDSAY, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence)—Two residents of Port Perry, who were charged by Fish and Game Inspectors McNaughton and McGillivray, with illegal fishing- were fined $10 and costs of $5.70 each by Magistrate Jordan. The case aroused considerable interest throughout the district in view of the fact that the men were not caught in the actual possession of the fish. The Magistrate in his judgment ruled that there was strong suspicion that the accused had some knowledge of the whole affair. When the officers expressed their intention of going down the stream to investigate, they were met with the statement: "If you find anything there, it is not ours." This expression, the Magistrate said, aroused the suspicion of the officers, and they found a bag with fish in it, spear head and handle detached on a stump, the fish heads in the water close by, apparently thrown in very recently. The whole scene appeared to be so realistic, said the Magistrate and the evidence of the officers was more convincing than that of the accused.

Child Fractures Arm

Little Ruth Webster, of Fenelon Falls was admitted to the Ross Hospital on Saturday suffering from a broken arm. The child met with the injury while trying to climb a fence near her home.

The Collegiate Institute cadet corps had its annual inspection yesterday afternoon at Agricultural Park. The inspecting officer was Captain Mann, of Military District No. 3, Kingston, The corps was highly praised for its efficiency.

The Provincial Police who instituted the investigation i n connection with the auto fatality at Sunderland on May 14, have discredited the report published to the effect that two bottles of liquor were found in the car driven by the Oshawa men. The car contained empty beer bottles only, and these have been satisfactorily accounted for. No date has been set for the inquest, as Mrs. Reesor, who was in the car when her husband was killed, is still in Toronto General Hospital.

OMEMEE SOCIETY HEARS MRS. EWART

Review of Provincial Meeting Given by Presbyterial President.

OMEMEE, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence) — The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's met on May 16th in the church.

Mrs. Ewart of Cobourg was the guest speaker. A group of ladies from St. Paul's, Peterborough were in attendance. Mrs. Ewart gave a resume of the provincial meeting held in Hamilton in April and a review of the work in general. Mrs. Barr then brought a short message of encouragement. The president and ladies served tea at the home of Mrs. O. G. Williamson, following the meeting.

DEPARTMENT OF HIGHWAYS

AN OPEN LETTER TO PEDESTRIANS:

Are motorists right when they say you are more than half to blame?

While figures cannot be depended upon to tell the whole truth, last year's accident records leave no room for doubt that there are reckless walkers as well as reckless drivers.

Last year 2,821 pedestrians were killed or injured in Ontario in automotive accidents. Many of these persons came to grief while violating a simple rule of safety . . . crossing a street between intersections . . . crossing diagonally at intersections . . . crossing against traffic signals . . . "hitching" . . . or coming from behind parked vehicles. Of the total number, 1,107 were children playing in the street.

Records show that in many of these cases the driver never had a chance. Accidents happened while he was doing his best to drive safely!

This department is more deeply interested in making the streets and highways of Ontario safe, especially for children, than in any other public duty. The conscientious motorist has been appealed to in many ways; several of his privileges have been restricted in an effort to make life safe in traffic for all. I know that this appeal to the pedestrian will find ready response among those who walk more often than they drive, and especially in the hearts of fathers and mothers of little children.

Will you co-operate? Will you help to stem the tide of needless bereavement and suffering by observing the simple rules of safe walking that make all the difference between safety and the jeopardy of life and limb? And you parents — will you not give your children a chance by teaching them the need of care for their own safety?

Life Sentence Given Kidnappers Of Gettle

Life sentence was given the kidnapers of William F. Gettle, Beverly Hills, Cal., millionaire, released without harm and before $60,000 demanded ransom could be paid. The victim is shown upper left, wearing dark glasses, being assisted into police headquarters at Los Angeles. June Ward, upper right, and Ann Williams, lower left, have been held in connection with the kidnapping. James Kirk (lower centre) and Roy Williams (right) confesed to the kidnapping.

Another One Of The Drake Heads?

When is a chicken not a chicken?—When it is half drake. And above is pictured such a creature, owned by Arthur Hullcoat of Leaside, Ontario, "Pop-Eye", part rooster, part drake. Sired by a drake—from a hen's egg—this strange creature is a favorite of Mr. Hullcoat's well-known racing stable. He has the head of a rooster, crows like a rooster, has a duck's breast, legs and partly webbed feet, a duck's back and he swims. He is friends with both ducks and hens, showing no preference. Added to all this, he has all the fighting qualities of a rooster.

As Parents Welcomed Girl Kidnap Victim

Here is the first close-up of June Robles, six-year-old daughter of Fernando Robles of Tucson, Aris., following her release after being held 19 days in a shallow grave in the desert by kidnappers. She is shown with her parents and younger sister. The photo was rushed to San Francisco from Tuscon by plane, and sent by radio across the continent. An unusually fine transmission.

First Photos Of Parents Of German Chancellor

Here are what are believed to be hitherto unpublished photos of the parents of Adolf Hitler dictator of Germany head of the Nazi regime and the most widely publicised personage in the world today. Below at left is Hitler as a child. These photos are from the film "Hitler's Reign of Terror" produced by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., which was banned in New York for a short time. Much controversy resulted from the banning but subsequent showing of the films in New York. Vanderbilt made a tour of Germany with a camera and unearthed much concerning the man Hitler and the doings of his storm troopers. The photos shown above are reputed to be the parents of the Chancellor. Much of the material obtained in Germany was confiscated when Vanderbilt atempted to take it out of the country.

Stratosphere Fliers Forced Down, Ontario

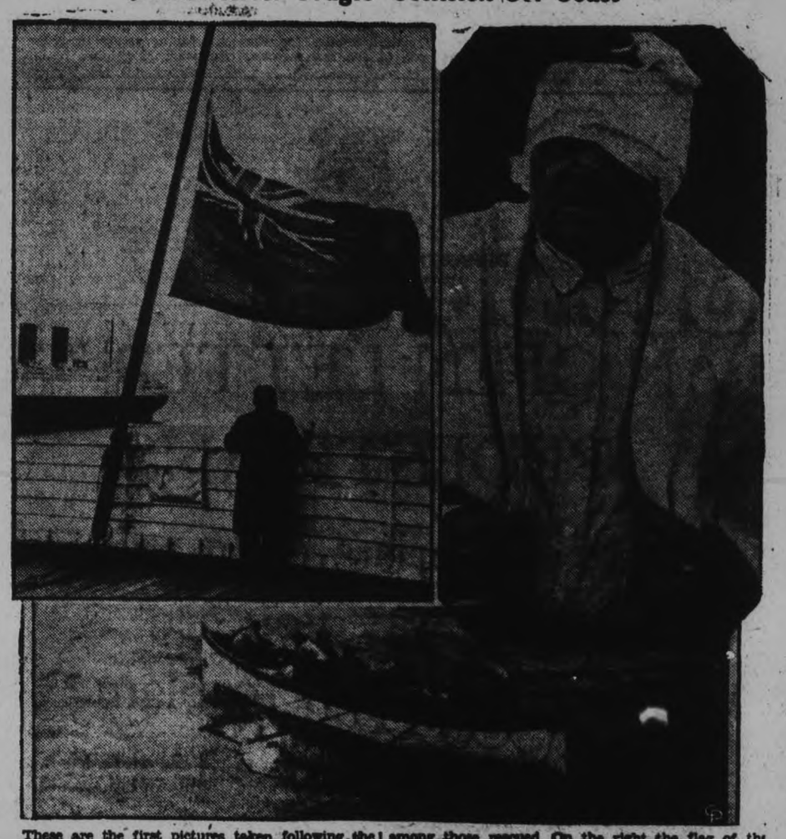
Scenes After Tragic Collision Off Coast



These are the first pictures taken following the tragic collision of the transatlantic liner Olympic with the lightship Nantucket in a fog off the New England coast in which seven members of the crew of the Nantucket met their deaths. Top, left is a close-up of Captain George W. Braithwaite, skipper of the sunken vessel, injured in the collision, but among those rescued. On the right the flag of the Olympic is shown at half-mast as she entered quarantine at New York. Below is a scene from the tragedy, showing the rescue of four members of the Nantucket's crew. The lifeboat is seen making its way back to the side of the liner through the fog. The Nantucket sank immediately.

Nazi Cruiser In Boston Arouses Storm Of Protest

Just to show how much the Nazis are disliked in the United States, particularly in Boston, the people in that august city have vigorously protested the official reception tendered to the officers and crew of the German cruiser Karlsruhe, shown above. Although the German warship, the first to enter Boston since 1914, flew the Nazi flag, it is significant to note the sailor at RIGHT does not salute in the traditional Nazi manner, nor does the ship bear the swastika emblem.

THREE CANADIANS TO RECEIVE FURTHER AWARDS AT CHICAGO

Winners of Scholarships in Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild.

FOR NAPOLEONIC COACHES

OSHAWA, Ont., May 22.—Three youthful Canadian graduates of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild will be further honored, next month, when the model Napoleonic coaches, with which they won the $5,000 Canadian scholarships in the 1933 Guild competition, go on display at the Chicago World's Fair this year.

The models, priceless examples of fine craftsmanship, are the handiwork of Joseph Olaffson, Leslie, Sask., and David Tennent and Richard Guthrie, both of London, Ont.

Olafson and Tennent won first honors in the senior Canadian section, each boy being given a scholarship when a dead heat in the competition made a duplicate tie award necessary. Guthrie who is just sixteen years of age, won the $5,000 scholarship offered in the junior division.

Of special interest is the fact that Olafson, a prairie farm lad, has been enabled to take advantage of the scholarship after five years' absence from school and is at present receiving special instruction on subjects necessary for his entrance into university. Tennent and Guthrie are expected to commence their university courses this fall.

The three miniature models are being shipped to Chicago, immediately, and will be featured at the Fisher Body exhibit in the General Motors building.

Started with a view of stimulating interest in craftsmanship among the youth of Canada and the United States, the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild has earned international recognition as an educational foundation since its inception three years ago. The formation of an Advisory Board, this year, comprised of the Directors of Technical Education in the various provinces, means that Guild activities, henceforth, will have not only the endorsation but the active assistance of the most prominent Canadian educational leaders.

Guild competitions are held annually, the awards being kept distinctly separate in the Canadian and American divisions. Scholarship awards in the Canadian section will be advanced considerably in the 1934 Competition. These scholarships, totalling $17,000, will be eight in number, four of which will go to the senior group and four to the junior.

The closing date in the forthcoming competition has been set at July 31st, midnight. Judging will be held in Toronto immediately following this date.

United States Fleet In Armed Vessels Puts In At Kingston On Way Up Lakes

KINGSTON, Ont., May 22 (C.P.) —The latest fleet of United States armed vessels to come up the St. Lawrence reached here yesterday from Montreal and continued on for their new stations in the Great Lakes.

Nine boats, in charge of Lieut. H. C. Moore, left New London, Connecticut about a week ago. They are part of the old rum fleet which the United States Government is now disbanding. Five of them came from the Gulf of Mexico, two from Florida, one from New York and one from Norfolk. They are bound for upper lake ports, chiefly in Lake Michigan.

The presence of these armed vessels in Canadian waters is believed to be a contravention of the Rush-Bagot Treaty but such are the friendly relations which exist between Canada and the United States that when the United States government asked permission to bring them through, permission from Ottawa was instantly forthcoming.

The Rush-Bagot Treaty does not permit armed vessels larger than 100 tons on the Great Lakes, but these ships are going through and will not be part of a naval detachment, their pursuits will be purely civil.

The boats were here only a short time, and continued on their way to Toronto.

PROSPECTS GOOD INSURANCE WEEK

New Ordinary Business for April and Year to Date Shows Increase.

TORONTO, May 22. — Heartened by an increase of over five per cent. in new ordinary life insurance sales in April last, as compared with April, 1933, and by total new business sales for the year to date which are in excess of the same period a year ago, committees in charge of life insurance "Financial Independence Week," from May 26 to June 2, are confident of pronounced success.

"We are more than gratified with the April sales record" said George H. Hunt, chairman of the National Committee, when interviewed today. "Both April sales and total sales for the first four months of this year not only reflect returning business prosperity in practically every province but they emphasize the increasing trend toward life insurance as the safest and surest way to financial independence."

April sales of new ordinary business, by nineteen companies having ninety-one per cent. of the business in force in Canada and Newfoundland, totalled $33,296,000, as compared with $31,666,000 of April, 1933. April sales were:

British Columbia	$ 2,106,000
Alberta	1,339,000
Saskatchewan	1,075,000
Manitoba	1,932,000
Ontario	14,096,000
Quebec	10,640,000
New Brunswick	879,000
Nova Scotia	1,152,000
Prince Edward Island	124,000

OFFICERS NAMED AT BELMONT W.I.

Mrs. Robert Anderson is Chosen President, Mrs. J. Seabrooke, Secretary.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, May 21.—Election of officers was the chief business in hand at the regular meeting of Belmont Women's Institute in session at the township hall on Thursday afternoon May 17th, when there was a splendid attendance of the members. Following are the newly elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Robert Anderson; first vice president, Mrs. Harry Tinney; second vice president, Mrs. H. L. Scott; secretary treasurer, Mrs. Jos. Seabrooke; directors: Misses Irene Tinney, Mary Anderson, Iva Smith, Lily Anderson; district director, Mrs. Harry Scott; auditors, Mrs. Chas. Kennedy and Mrs. Wm. Aimger; pianist, Miss Mary Anderson; lunch committee, Mrs. Leonard Keen, Mrs. Dunlop, Mrs. William Smith; sick and relief committee, Mrs. Charles Kennedy, Mrs. Harry Tinney; press reporter, Mrs. Geo. Hartin; representatives to district annual meeting to be held at Hall's bridge, Mrs. R. Anderson, Mrs. C. Kennedy, Mrs. H. Scott, Mrs. Jos. Seabrooke.

On motion it was decided to discontinue the ten cent collection for tea served at the regular meetings.

It was also decided on motion that a drive for membership be inaugurated and that each member try to obtain at least one new member for the year. The roll call was a contribution of flowers or shrubs to be placed in the community flower plot, and there was a splendid response.

After the business session was closed, a short period of community singing was enjoyed, and a social half hour was spent over the tea cups. Following were hostesses for the day: Mesdames H. Tinney, J. Seabrooke, W. Smith and Miss Lily Anderson.

The regular meeting of Knox Church W.M.S. was held at Havelock Mission Hall on Thursday afternoon, May 17th and proved a most interesting one.

Rev. Mr. Colquhoun was an honored guest speaker, and stressed the importance of the mission work to be carried on, in answer to the command of Our Saviour who bade His followers "Go ye forth into all the world and preach the Gospel".

Mrs. A. S. Thompson took the lesson most impressively, her subject "Our Religious Problem In the Far East."

A short musical program was then enjoyed and a dainty lunch served, hostesses for the day being Mesdames J. Griffith, R. Scott, L. Beaton and J. Kinnaird.

All Ready for the 24th!

HAVELOCK Y.P.L. VISITS TRENT RIVER

Program is Presented by Members of Visiting Society.

TRENT RIVER, May 22.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The Young People's League entertained members of the Havelock United Church League Friday night at the church with an attendance of about 75. After the devotional exercises the program was given over to Havelock members. Miss Barbara Fenell presided at the piano for the evening. The following members were most efficiently rendered. Vocal solo, Miss Edith Roberts; vocal solo, Everard Chiles; reading, Miss Edith Russell; selection from orchestra, members of which are Miss Barbara Fennell, Miss Helen Buchanan; Messrs. Ronald and Grey Kemp, Everard and Keith Chiles, Joseph Little and Fred Hill, all of Havelock. Miss Minnie Williams gave the topic. A geography contest was in charge of D. Walker, after which the company assembled in the dining hall where hot coffee, sandwiches and cake was served.

The Ladies' Aid of the United church have decided to hold their next meeting on Friday, June 8, instead of the usual date, Wednesday, June 6th, owing to the district annual of the Women's Institute being held that date at Hall's Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Goodman of Toronto were week end guests with Mr. D. Walterhouse at "Riverview."

Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd and Jackie of Foxboro were Sunday visitors of their uncle, Mr. John Boyd, Sr.

Miss Violet Chaplin returned Sunday from Hastings, where she has been a visitor with her sister, Mrs. Simpson.

Mrs. W. J. Collins and granddaughter, Miss Marion Elsie Parks, of Peterborough, were week end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Redden.

Mr. F. Dobecha of Puff Ball Inn has been confined to his home through illness suffering from a heart condition. His many friends wish him a good recovery.

The Misses Ethel and Fern Longmuir spent the week end in Toronto.

Mr. Oliver Garneau has purchased 13,000 raspberry bushes from E. D. Smith nursery at Winona and is having them planted on his farm, West Seymour.

KERRWOOD, Ont., May 22 (C.P.). — William Foster, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Foster, who reside two miles east of here, is in a dangerous condition to-day from injuries received when the roller struck a gate post and the team of horses bolted. His skull was fractured and his chest crushed as the heavy roller passed over him

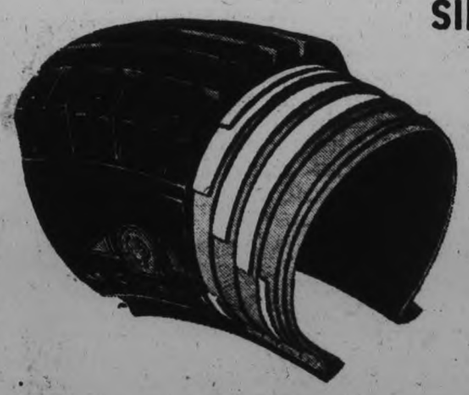
TWO DRIVERS ARRESTED

TIMMINS Ont., May 21 (CP) — Albert Fournier, Schumacher, and William Nerinchuk, Timmins, were under arrest to-day on reckless driving charges, and two Schumacher youth, Gino Narduzli and Adelpi Battiglio, were removed to hospital with severe injuries as a result of two week-end accidents.

THE Greatest Advance IN TIRE CONSTRUCTION SINCE THE BALLOON TIRE!



7 Built-In "SHOCK ABSORBERS"

Every Gutta Percha and Roadcraft Tire is built of the highest-quality cotton cords, every strand impregnated with and protected by rubber.

These protected cords are built into criss-cross layers for added strength, and are further protected at crucial points by broad pads of live gum rubber built-in between the plies to safeguard the cords from damage, as shown in the photograph at the left. See for yourself how blows on the tread or side-walls would be cushioned by these "shock-absorbers." There are 7 of them—the 5 you see in the photograph and 2 on the other side of the tire. Only Gutta Percha and Roadcraft Tires give you this safer construction at no extra cost.

REMINISCENT OF FABLE OF HARE AND TORTOISE

LONDON, May 22.—(AP)—Britain's two famous speed drivers, Kayne Don and Sir Malcolm Campbell, yesterday had to play second fiddle to lesser known racing-car drivers.

Don's car threw a tire, forcing him out of a 152-mile race, while Sir Malcom was led in by W. E. Harker in a six-mile mountain climb.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

DETROIT OPENED its long season on Thursday of last week and got away to a good start. One thing about this meeting is that it will give form players a chance to follow a horse on the same track for a long time. Much different from our country where a meet lasts seven days and then on to a new track. The Hun a recent winner at Kenilworth is now in Detroit and will soon be heard from. Another at the same place that is fit and ready is Flying Sailor. Stroll Along is also there and is sure to cop a race. This one has real class and need not take dust from the best of them.

WE SUPPOSE you noticed that on Thursday of last week at a meeting at the Hagerstown Track which is a half mile plant located near Baltimore that G. L. Stryker put over a two-year-old called Trycook at the juicy odds of $810.40 for a two dollar straight ticket. How is that for a long shot. It was in the very first race too, and anyone holding a ticket on that one must have spent a very pleasant afternoon. Stryker often races his horses in Canada so if he ships up here this year it might pay you to scan the entries closely as he might have another sleeper under cover. Before we leave Detroit we want to remind you that Art Halliwell has Polyp there and expects to do business with him in a big way. A word to the wise is sufficient. Remember when he put this one over in Texas about seven weeks ago at $48.95.

GETTING BACK to the Woodbine, they tell us that Swagger Stick is a sure thing in the near future, and to mark down on both your cuffs, Willie Morrissey's, Golden Spur and Lace Shawl. Last year Willie won plenty with this pair and he rested them all winter and has brought them around this spring to peak form. Altsheb the good plater breezed five furlongs recently in 1.02 which is picking them up and laying them down. He will crash the winner's circle and we don't mean maybe. The Brier Farms Stable have shipped their steeplechase horses to Woodbine and Jockey Arthur Kelly has arrived to ride them. It is dollars to doughnuts that he will pilot a winner over the jumps before the meeting closes.

THE BOYS that go out in the early hours and clock them tell us that they have old Fire Brigade going great guns this year. If his legs hold up he will just simply tin can a lot of the platers. The old boy is a stand out in plater company, and if it was not for his brittle underpinning would be a frequent winner in the handicap performances. Nothing has been left undone to give the Woodbine patrons a real week of racing. Every stall is occupied with the overflow being stabled up at Thorncliffe and vanned over for their engagements. There is no coughing epidemic this year such as there was last year which practically killed the Spring meeting by reducing the entries sometimes to four horses in a race.

Earl Averill Connects For Two Homers as Indians Win 9-7.

TIGERS-MACKS WIN.

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer).

All but invincible in their own bailiwick on the banks of the Harlem .New York Yankees have met with a warmer welcome on their first trip into the west than they have ever received.

The collapse of Joe McCarthy's pitching staff was further emphasized yesterday when Cleveland Indians hammered George Uhle out of the box in less than two innings, shelled his successor, Russ Van Atta, joyously thereafter, and handed the Yankees their fourth defeat in five games in the west, 9-5. More to the point, the Indians, in second place, shaved the losers' games.

Goes to Showers in Second

Once a Cleveland pitching idol, Uhle weathered a three-run attack, climaxed by Earl Averill's home run with two on, in the first inning but went to the showers with only one down in the second after the Indians had pushed over two more counters. Van Atta was freely peppered the rest of the way, Averill, solving him for a single that drove in one of the two runs the Indians scored in the fourth, and for his second homer of the game and fifth of the season in the sixth.

Manager Mickey Cochrane's single with the bases filled in the ninth gave Detroit a 6-5 decision over Washington and strengthened the Tigers' grip on third place, a game ahead of the Senators.

LAKEFIELD TEAM DEFEATS KEENE

Home Team Early Piles Up Big Lead in Opening Game of Kawartha League.

LAKEFIELD, May 22.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The local soft ball team scored a victory over the Keene nine in the first home game of the Kawartha League played on Friday evening with a big crowd in attendance. Darkness called the game during the last half of the sixth innings and it was urged that in future game start sharp on time so as to finish before the light becomes too dim. As this was the opening game J. R. Hill pitched the first ball to J. F. Harvey and T. W. Chaplin was catcher. Lakefield held a big lead at the end of the fourth but Keene tightened and if the game had run to seven innings it would have been anyone's. Garbutt had seven strike outs. Jewell and Wingett each got a home run for the locals and Lang showed that the Keene boys could get homers also by spinning around the bases after a long distance delivery that gave the local fielders work.

The score was 15-12. The line up was as follows:

Lakefield—Garbutt, p; Blewett, c; Wingett, 1b; Chittick, 2b; Morrison, 3b; Loyst, ss; Jewell, rf; Kingdon, lf; White, cf; Payne, Graham, subs.

Score by innings:

Lakefield	156 111—15
Keene	200 055—12

Canadian Davis Cup Team To Meet U.S. May 24

While Canada's Davis Cup team is not given much chance by the experts to win even a single game from the United States in the cup round which starts at Wilmington Del., on May 24, nevertheless, the team will be able to give a good account of itself. Composed of Gilbert Nunns, shown above (LEFT), who this year captains the team; Walter Martin (RIGHT), Canada's No. 1 ranking player; Marcel Rainville (CENTRE), veteran of many international tournaments; and Laird Watt (INSET), rising young Montreal star, the team is as strong as in past years. Who of the four will play in the singles is as yet undecided, the players having to playoff among themselves for that honor. Walter Martin has been handicapped in early season play with a badly strained ligament in his right arm; Nunns is also handicapped by lack of training; the other three having all been to the south to get into shape.

NOTED CRICKETER PASSES SUDDENLY

Mauriece Nichol, Worchestshire County Team Star, Found Dead in Bed.

LONDON, May 22. — The cricket world was shocked yesterday by the sudden death of Maurice Nichol, 29-year-old star of the Worcestershire County team.

Nichol, a forceful batsman and useful change bowler, played for his team against Essex on Saturday and was playing golf on Sunday. He was found dead in his bed at a Chelmsford hotel yesterday.

He qualified as a professional with Worcestershire in 1928, and scored his initial century in first-class cricket against the West Indies in that year. He became a regular in 1929, scoring 1,442 runs in that season, and in 1930 had his highest single score, 262 not out, against Hampshire. Last summer, his best date, he scored 2,154 runs.

Home Run Kings

KEITH FRAZIER BLANKS BISONS FOR 2 TO 0 WIN

Wings' Home Runs Prove Royals' Downfall for Rochester 9-8 Victory.

McGOWAN TO LEAVE.

Wally Gilbert is Given Temporary Charge of Baltimore Orioles.

(By The Associated Press)

Baltimore Orioles, struggling to get out of the cellar in the International League, were in the market for a manager to-day to replace Frank McGowan, heavy hitting outfielder.

McGowan, who took over the reins when Fritz Maisel quit last year, resigned yesterday and asked President Charles Knapp to "make some other connection" for him."

Pending the selection of a new leader, Knapp placed Wally Gilbert, former St. Louis and Rochester star, in charge of the club.

Poor Pitching Staff

Largely due to poor pitching the Orioles have been unable to rise higher than sixth place this year and since May 10 have been firmly entrenched in last place, an unusual position for a Baltimore team. The night game with Albany was rained out last night, leaving the team with a record of only eight victories as compared to 21 defeats.

In only seven games have Baltimore hurlers gone the route. Moore turned in three of the complete performances while Beryl Richmond, Cliff Melton, Pete Appleton and George Granger hurled one full game each.

"It would not be for the best interest of anyone for me to remain as a player," McGowan said in turning in his resignation. An effort will be made to locate McGowan with some other club.

Johnny Neun, now with Newark Bears as coach, and reserve first baseman is said to be in line for the job, if he desires it'

Only two games were played in the circuit yesterday. The pacesetting Rochester Redwings nosed out Montreal Royals 9-8 and Toronto Maplie Leafs blanked Buffalo Bisons 2-0.

Homers Count

Three home runs, two of them by Tom Winsett, were largely responsible for Rochester's victory. Estell Crabtree got the other homer.

While Keith Frazier was holding the Bisons to four hits, the Leafs made the most of their five blows off George (Lefty) Milstead and Bill Gould. They counted once in the second on a pair of singles and a base on balls and added another in the fifth on a pair of free tickets, a sacrifice and a fielder's choice.

Three Run Rally After Two Out Gives Cubs 10-9 Win at Brooklyn.

(By The Canadian Press)

Developments in the National League were marked by the return to second place of Pittsburgh Pirates after they had yielded that post for one day to St. Louis Cardinals. Arky Vaughan contributed a home run, double and two singles to Pittsburgh's 17-hit attack which ended in an 11-4 decision over the Phillies. Larry French, Pirate southpaw ace, went the route for the first time this season.

Fall to Giants

The Cardinals, meanwhile, dropped a 5-2 verdict to New York Giants as Joe Bowman pitched effective ball after a shaky start. Summoned for starting duty after Fred Fitzsimmons had been injured by a flying bat during pre-game practice, Bowman was picked for two runs and five hits in the first three frames but blanked the Cardinals with three hits the rest of the way.

Chicago Cubs remained in first place by winning a 10-9 victory over Brooklyn in a game that lasted 3 hours and 20 minutes. The Boston-Cincinnati duel was rained out.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Earl Averill, Indians.—Drove in five runs against Yankees with two homers and single.

Floyd Vaughan and Harry Lavagetto, Pirates. — Collected seven hits, including two home runs and three doubles, between them and drove in seven runs against Phillies.

Mickey Cochrane, Tigers. — Pinch single in ninth drove in run that beat Senators.

Blondy Ryan, Giants.—Singles in eighth to drive in runs that clinched victory over Cardinals.

Sugar Cain, Athletics.—Limited Browns to seven hits.

Chuck Klein, Cubs. — Singled home winning run against Dodgers in ninth.

Eddie Morgan, Red Sox.—Contributed home run and four singles to victory over White Sox.

RIVERDALE GRADS PLAY HERE MAY 24

Local Ball Fans Will be Treated to Two Exhibition Games on Thursday.

The strong G. and W. Riverdale Grads, generally rated as one of the best—if not the best—senior ball team playing this summer in Toronto, will be here Thursday, May 24th, to play the Petes two exhibition games in Stevenson Park. One will be at ten in the morning, and the other at 2.30 in the afternoon There will be no increase in the admission price, but a large crowd is hoped for at both fixtures since the local executive had to offer a high guarantee to get this team here for the holiday.

The Grads lead the strong Ulster Stadium League now and handed Oshawa two bad beatings to date, giving some indication of their class. They have Art Jupper, probably the best amateur southpaw in Ontario since Lefty Judd turned pro; and since Upper hasn't twirled lately, he will likely pitch one of the games in Peterborough. The Petes may be tackling more than they can handle so early in the season, the Grads having been playing league games for three weeks, but they hope to put up a good showing and perhaps splitting the double-header on the holiday. It should be a real ball attraction for the fans.

CANADIAN DAVIS CUP PLAYERS HOPE TO MAKE GOOD SHOWING

But Gilbert Nunns Refuses to Predict Victory Over U.S. in Week-end Matches.

FIRST TROPHY ROUND.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 22. — (AP). Members of the Canadian and United States Davis Cup teams meet to-day, the Yankees coming here from their training quarters at Ardmore, Pa., to try the courts on which the first round of cup play will be held the last half of the week.

Gilbert Nunns, captain of the Canadian Davis Cup tennis team, refuses to predict victory over the United States netmen in the matches Thursday, Friday and Saturday, but he does "hope to make a good showing."

"We have a fairly well balanced team" he declared yesterday as the Canadians awaited arrival of Philip D. Lyons, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

Light practice was held yesterday, with Walter Martin and Marcel Rainville dividing the only two sets in which score was kept, but to-day the Maple Leafs' captain says his outfit "will put on full steam to decide our lineup."

NINES PUT UP FLASHY FIGHT IN CITY LOOP

Currie Holds Tiremen to Seven Hits While Massey Allows Ten Safeties.

CLASSY DOUBLE PLAY.

Staving off a desperate rally in the last two innings, Brintons defeated Johnston's Tires, 9 to 1, in a classy softball contest before a huge crowd at Central last night. The fans were kept in a high state of excitement all through with a flashy fight, marked by almost open hostilities, in every inning. It was a much closer game than the score indicates most of the tallying being done just before the finish. Brintons had a shade the better of the pitching, and turned in smarter fielding.

Ross Currie hurled for the winners, holding the Tiremen to seven scattered hits as he fanned four and walked two. Don Massey went the distance for the losers, with a neat display, allowing ten safe hits while striking out six and issuing six walks. A neat Stanger-to-Creighton-to-Ellis doubleplay, featured the Johnston fielding, while a Weir-to-Calladine two-ply killing and Sturgeon's work in centre garden were defensive standouts for Brintons. Pat Calladine led the Carpetmakers with the willow, clouting out two doubles and a single, with Weir next with a triple and single. Chuck Dorrington topped the Deckmen with a double and two singles, with Montgomery hitting a double.

Johnston's Tires didn't score till the sixth when Dorrington singled and raced home on Montgomery's double. They started the eighth with two hits but were cut off without a run. The bases were full for them in the ninth with none out, but an infield out and a double-play finished them. Two walks and two outs gave Brintons one in the second. They didn't score again till the sixth, when three were counted on two walks, an error and two hits. A double, triple and single in the eighth gave them only two more, but they shoved across three in the ninth on a double, error and two singles, including one by Bill Calladine, pinch-hitting. Playford took the field for the last of the ninth. The teams:

Brintons: H. Dormer, 3b; Smith, 1b; G. Dormer, ss; Abbott, ss; P. Calladine, c; Bradshaw, 2b; Williamson, rf; Weir, lf; Currie, p; Sturgeon, cf; Playford, cf; W. Calladine (p.h).

Johnston's Tires: McQuade, cf; Dorrington, 3b; Montgomery, rf; Starr, c; Stanger, 2b; Massey, p; Creighton, ss; Ellis, 1b; Allen, lf.

Score by innings:

Brintons	0	1	0	0	2	3	0	1	2
Johnston's	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	7	3

Umpires—Batley at plate Weir on bases.

Lyons is expected to put in his appearance to-day.

With Wilmer Allison back on the courts and Sidney B. Wood's injuries diagnosed as nothing more serious than bruises the United States team has nothing left to worry it.

Neither Allison or Wood was nominated to play against the Canadians and they remained at the Merion Cricket Club, in Ardmore, to practice with John Van Ryn.

The rest of the squad—Frank Shields, George Lott and Lester Stoeffen—were to come here with Captain N. Richard Williams and trainer Hans Nusslein.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C. J. P.

No one can say that the Petes aren't plumb ambitious anyway—not when they want to tackle the Riverdale Grads here twice in the one day, May 24th! If you were to ask any baseball man anywhere in Ontario which team appears to be the classiest senior squad at present, and if he were to think it over carefully he'd either name the Riverdale Grads, or he'd at least consider them at some length before passing 'em by. The Grads, sometimes known as the G. and W.—and we wont go into the initials—Grads, seem to have it all over the other teams in the Ulster League, and that circuit is the strongest in Ontario right now. The C.O.B.L. will be about as strong after they've been playing a month, but hardly yet.

• • • • • •

Well, anyway, that team will be here Thursday and the locals are toiling hard to get in shape. They hope to make a good showing and maybe even knock the Grads off once or twice. But it's a lead pipe cinch they won't have the soft pickings that Cobourg provided last Saturday! No, they'll have real he-man competition. Any team that can lick Oshawa 11-0 in six innings—well, they're good enough to play in our ball orchard any old day in the week. We don't know who will pitch for the locals yet, but Art Upper is likely to hurl one game for ye Grads—and he's some chucker, that lad.

• • • • • •

Brintons took a nifty 9-1 nod over Johnstons' Tires at Central last eve and it was a nice game to watch—much closer than you'd guess from the score. Two good hurlers, two nice fielding teams, and some hard hitting. The Tiremen had tough luck on the bases the last two frames, but they had Brintons plenty worried at that. The biggest crowd of the year made the biggest racket in the exciting session, with the lads beginning to cast dirty looks at opponents and doing some real panning before it was over. No love lost between these outfits.

• • • • • •

Two senior ball players were injected into the Britons' lineup in the ninth—but only in order to put in one of the three league game appearances necessary for them to qualify for the playoffs. Bill Calladine didn't play, he just went in as pinch-hitter and conked out a timely single. Jack Playford didn't bat but went to centre for the half-frame having nothing to do. Incidentally, Lefty Sturgeon turned in a fine effort out in centre field, grabbing off four or five good catches.

• • • • • •

There was some dispute over two fielders going after a ball on the first base line and the runner being called out for bumping one. The ruling was correct and as it may occur again, we'll quote that part of the rule in the '34 book: "....provided that if two or more fielders attempt to field a batted ball, and the base-runner come in contact with one or more of them, the umpire shall determine which fielder is entitled to the benefit of this rule, and shall not decide the base-runner out for coming in contact with a fielder other than the one the umpire determines to be entitled to field such batted ball." It's a matter of the umps' judgement, and the runner should play safe by detouring around fielders.

Fashion-Crafts intend to take in the Omemee softball tournament May 24th, and maybe one or two of the other City Softball League squads. Oshawa, winners of the "A" class last year, will be back; and a senior team from Toronto is coming, too. A big bunch of entries is expected the last day or two, and there is still time to get in. Medals and good prizes will be given the winners in each class. This tourney is sanctioned by the O.A.S.A.

• • • • • •

We don't know how the ruling made by the City Softball Loop exec. at last night's meeting will affect games at the Omemee tourney. The one we're referring to bars any City Softball League player from playing with or against a Southend Loop one until the latter circuit changes its rule to permit its players to try out with a City League team. This seems rather drastic to us, but that's what they did. At that, we'd like to see Southend players allowed to try out for one game with a City League team without being barred from their former circuit. And Managers Russell, Deck and Newson tried hard to have the constitution changed in the Men's League so that all baseball players should be barred from playing softball this year. They admitted it was aimed at Manager Sturgeon's Brintons. However, it can't go through this year as it's a matter to be dealt with at the annual general meeting. The session was hotter than high noon on the equator.

• • • • • •

There wasn't such a big turnout at the City Lacrosse League gabfest last eve, and since there is trouble getting grounds here this summer, they decided to see if a couple of city teams could not be entered in the Inter-County League. These teams would consist of the local intermediate players split up, and also good City Loop performers. Wilf LeBarr was delegated to make application for two entries down in Millbrook Thursday. If it goes through, the local teams will try hard again to get grounds here for home games; otherwise, they'll have to play away from home. A pick-up team from here is playing an exhibition game in Millbrook May 24th.

C.G.E. and Brintons are billed to play at Central tonight.

TENNIS MEMBERS ELECT OFFICERS

Peterborough Club Hopes to Bring Canadian Davis Cup Team to This City.

The annual meeting of the tennis section of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling and Tennis Club was held last night in the club house. The unusual interest which is being taken in tennis this year throughout the city was reflected in the large and enthusiastic turnout of members.

H. A. Wilson, chairman of last year's committee, took charge of the meeting. In his opening remarks he pointed out how the membership of the Peterborough Tennis Club had doubled in the last three years, more than 100 applications already having been received by the secretary for this year. Mr. Wilson also mentioned the fact that the club hopes to bring the Canada Davis Cup team to Peterborough.

After a brief review of last year's activities, the election of the committee for the coming year took place, the following members being elected to represent the club:

Senior men—D. A. MacTavish, Jack Kirkwood, Walter Perks.

Ladies—Miss Violet Davidson, Mrs Dewart.

Junior boys—Gordon Kirkwood, Doug. McPherson.

Junior girls—Kay Caddy, Ann Macdonald.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presence of two of the city's older players, Dr. J. W. McPherson and F. D. Kerr, who spoke briefly to the members.

D. A. MacTavish, a member of last year's committee, said that if the club continued to grow it would soon be necessary to increase the number of courts.

After a short discussion of business at hand, the meeting was concluded with all members looking forward to the most active season since the organization of the club.

BITTER VERBAL TILT FOLLOWS PILOT MEETING

Allowing of Baseball Players in Softball League Bone of Contention.

SOUTH-END LOOP ON PAN.

Several important matters made for a redhot executive meeting of the Men's City Softball League in Duffus' last night. The biggest bone of contention was over allowing baseball players to play for softball teams in this league. Managers of three teams argued bitterly and insisted that the league constitution be changed to read: "No baseball players, whether senior, intermediate or minor league, be permitted to play in the City Softball League." They wanted this to take effect at once. The lone managerial exception was Lefty Sturgeon of the Brintons, who claimed they were aiming this ruling directly at his team. Hot words flew back and forth for considerable time.

It was pointed out that the constitution of the league could not be changed except at the annual general meeting, which was over for this year. With the three managers still persisting that it could be changed, the secretary was instructed to write to the O.A.S.A. and clear up this question.

Since no Southend Softball League representatives were on hand, the meeting passed an unanimous motion reading: "No City Softball League players shall be permitted to play with or against any Southend League player in any softball contest unless the Southend League rescind the ruling barring its players trying out with City League teams." This is to take effect at once.

It was decided to extend the league draw from June 3rd to July 3rd. The committee to judge the most valuable players in the circuit this season was named as follows: Rev. C. D. Daniel, Fred Gandy, Jim Harrison, Bud Craig and Fred Craig. The session then adjourned.

Soccer Notes

Deloro Football Club is expected to be well represented at the meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association this evening when important matters relative to the changes in the rules will be formulated. Lindsay will endeavour to arrange the Deloro fixtures for the city.

Ernie Hakin and J. Dart who played with the Packers, last season, are now resident in England. The former is still active in the football field.

There were eighteen goals scored in the opening fixtures with McMaster leading with three, Craig two, Evans two, Foster two.

Joe Bolton will be unable to play for the Canadian General for a long while owing to the serious operation he had during the winter months.

In the two teams—Packers and Calyes—there were eleven Canadian boys playing the soccer code. Also in the C.P. eleven the four Downer boys were prominent throughout and a brother-in-law, Tommy Foster, thereby being five relatives in one aggregation.

Jack McMaster is anxious to get back into the game but he is still giving his knee a good rest before testing it out again. He is one of the best inside rights in the city.

FRED PERRY TURNS TABLES AT PARIS

Andre Merlin Beaten in French-English Tennis Series Match.

PARIS, May 22.—(AP)—Fred Perry, apparently smarting under the defeat administered yesterday by Christian Boussus, today turned on Andre Merlin, Boussus' French Davis Cup teammate, and pounded out a 6-0, 9-7 victory in the French-English annual tennis series at Stade Rolland Garros.

Perry gave Merlin a tennis lesson in the first set but Merlin rallied all her forces to keep the English ace on the jump in the second.

H. W. (Bunny) Austin added another point for England with a 6-4, and 6-1 victory over Marcel Bernard and C.R.D. Tuckey won from Jacques Brugnon 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

First Inning Lead Wins For Park St.

Park Street Bantams went to work in their Church Softball Loop tilt last evening and grabbed fifteen runs in the first frame off Grose of St. James', and coasted home to an 18-16 victory. McMaster finished the twirling and held the winners almost helpless the rest of the way, while his teammates kept pecking away to almost draw up on even terms with them. Leether, Lawson, Self, M. Grose, L. Campbell and McDermid all batted effectively. The teams:

CHICK SEXING REDUCES FARM POULTRY COST

Industry Given New Deal, Profession Offers Remunerative Employment.

INTEREST CONTINENT WIDE

VANCOUVER, May 22. —(CP)— Enormous reductions in poultry farming costs and the opening of a new and highly remunerative profession in North America have followed the introduction of "chick sexing" in British Columbia.

By the expert separation of newly-hatched male and female chicks, poultry farmers of this province have reported saving thousands of dollars in the three months sexing depots have operated here. Many students have undertaken the study and applications have been received from all parts of the continent for experts to operate in poultry-farming districts.

Chick sexing has become an important profession in Japan since its discovery there by Dr. K. Masui. Last year, the Japan Chick Sexing Association held a championship contest, which was won by Hikasburo Yogo from among 300 competitors. The prize was a trip to the United States to demonstrate the new art.

Yogo gave demonstrations in Vancouver last summer in co-operation with the University of British Columbia. He gave other demonstrations in Pacific Coast centres of the United States. As a result, the Chick Sexing Association of America was formed, with headquarters in Vancouver.

British Columbia depots were opened at New Westminster and Cloverdale and on the international border, near Blaine, Washington. In three months, five Japanese experts have sexed more than 1,500,000 chicks of which a large percentage of cockerels have been destroyed. The men have proved 98 to 100 per cent accurate, sexing 700 to 1,400 each hour and 5,000 to 11,000 daily.

Through elimination of unwanted cockerels, poultry farmers have saved huge quantities of feed and have considerably reduced losses from disease. Pullets have been healthier and made better progress because they have not had the more aggressive cockerels to compete with under the brooders and in the run-yards.

Commercial poultrymen who grew pullet chicks sexed by Yogo reported they were able to procure pullets of higher average quality in appearance, laying from 10 to 15 per cent more during the fall and winter than pullets raised in previous years.

In addition, chick sexing tends to relieve the meat market of many thousands of young broilers the farmer does not want. Alternatively, farmers may purchase sexed cockerels and produce a higher-grade broiler. Prof. E. A. Lloyd, poultry department head of the University of British Columbia, declared the meat market already shows a distinctly beneficial effect from elimination of the surplus.

"This is a new deal in the poultry industry," he said. "It automatically reduces surplus and give greater efficiency all around."

Sexing is done by the study of anatomy, preferably when the chick is about 12 hours old and before it is fed and watered. The technique involves the inversion of the ventricle of the baby chick, where tiny folds of the inner lining of the Cloaca disclose to the expert eye types of small genital eminences differing slightly in males and female.

Consistent study of from four to six months is required before students are able to handle chicks properly with a high degree of accuracy. Several Canadian students have already developed accuracy of more than 95 per cent. Two of these are being trained to introduce chick sexing to other parts of Canada. Many requests for instructors have been received from Eastern Canada.

For Wednesday, May 23

A day of fine initiative and enterprise is the presage made from the dominant planetary influences. There may be unusual, even exciting, activities in promoting new propositions, carrying out bold plans and launching new projects. All may have a decidedly speculative angle, but are likely to gain the support and substantial co-operation of those in places of standing and power. All uncertain or speculative propositions should thrive as well as new contacts.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very active and progressive year, with the energies and faculties under high stimulus in launching new projects of possibly a bold and speculative nature. All involving the element of chance should flourish, attracting the support and financial co-operation of thsoe in influential places. New contracts may be renewed with increased benefit. Shun sarcasm and too hasty speech.

A child born on this day may be bold, courageous, constructive, with a tendency to large enterprises of a speculative nature, in which it may have influential support.

EMPIRE STRENGTH FOR WORLD PEACE

President of Empire Day Movement Sends Greetings to All Dominions.

LONDON, May 22.—C.P.)— In a message noting improvement in the economic situation throughout the British Empire and expressing hope for its expanding strength in the cause of world peace and prosperity, Admiral of the Fleet Earl Jellicoe, president of the Empire Day movement, has sent greetings to the British Dominions beyond the seas.

The message follows:

It is my privilege, as President of the Empire Day movement, once again to send a message of warmest greeting to all parts of His Majesty's Dominions. In doing so this year, it is with very real pleasure that I note the change that has taken place during the last 12 months in the economic situation—a change which has resulted in a steady improvement in trade and a gradual but sure diminuition in the figures of unemployment, the problem which has been the cause of such anxiety during the last few years, and which has given rise to so much distress.

The road to our old prosperity may still be lengthy, but the spirit which has enabled our people throughout the Empire to overcome the formidable difficulties which confronted us two years ago will unquestionably remain to enable us to meet any troubles yet before us. Unity, comradeship and sympathy between the people who compose our great Empire are, and ever will be, essential to its strength and prosperity.

The well-being and happiness of 493,000,000 people depend upon Empire prosperity, and undoubtedly the peace of the world is largely affected by the influence which the Empire can exert upon international problems. For this influence our combined strength is necessary.

The Empire Day movement exists to impress upon the people of the Empire their responsibility in these matters.

May this Empire Day be celebrated with one thought in each mind: that our Empire, with God's blessing, shall grow stronger and stronger in the cause of world peace and prosperity.

LAST YEAR, BRAY CHICKS WON 54 per cent. (more than half) of prize money, in public Chick-rearing other hatcheries. This year's reports, so far, show only 83 Bray Chicks lost, out of 2,640—most of them brooded through coldest weather of February and March—and Pullets weighing 3½ lbs. at 14 weeks old. What further proof do you need that it pays to buy Bray Chicks? Eight breeds. Prices reasonable. Write Bray Chick Hatchery, 4; Clayburn Avenue, St. Catharines, Ont. 3d-14,16,19-5320P

CHICKS HATCHED IN LATE MAY and June have got to be extra-vigorous and extra fast-growing, if the Pullets are going to give you many high-priced eggs in November and December. If you buy slow-growing Chicks at this time of year, you can't hope for much Fall egg-money. Bray "Foundation Grade" Pullets from our earlier hatches weigh up to 3½ lbs. each at 14 weeks old. That kind of growth gives you fully-matured layers at 5 months old. Write for full particulars and our reduced prices. Bray Chick Hatchery, 45 Clayburn Avenue, St. Catharines, Ont. 3d-21,23,26-5438P

ENUMERATORS START ON LISTS

Work Must Be Completed by Saturday Night—39 Polling Sub-divisions.

FOR PROVINCIAL ELECTION.

"Occasional showers" greeted the fifty-six enumerators who began this morning a house to house canvass of the city for the purpose of listing qualified electors for the provincial elections. Sheriff F. J. A. Hall had one more appointment to make in polling subdivision No. 16.

Some of the enumerators have had previous experience in this work which must be completed by Saturday night, calls being made today, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. England Has New Tennis Sensation For Wimbledon

Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King Shows Real Form in Early Season Play, Losing Only One Match.

By CHARLES A. SMITH
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

LONDON, May 22. — A short, stockily-built, recently married Englishwoman is making the local women lawn tennis stars play hard.

Her name appears on the tennis boards and in the newspapers as Mrs. M. R. King, but she is better known as Phyllis Mudford, ranked No. 5 in the British tennis list of 1933 and known as a plucky match player, good for a hard fight with any one at any time.

A week or so back she won an important local tournament by defeating Peggy Scriven, Britain's No. 3 and champion of France. Before that she had downed Dorothy Round, Britain's No. 1, in two swift sets.

Since the last Wimbledon meeting she has had the most triumphant run in tournaments of any English woman player for many years, and the result has been that Mrs. King is now being considered an important factor in British tennis.

She scored more than twelve victories in a row before beating Peggy Scriven and Dorothy Round, and since Wimbledon has only once been downed—by the English player, Katherine Stammers.

She is virtually a one-stroke star, for she relies mainly on her hard forehand drives. She is regarded as the most consistent hard-hitter since the American girl, May Sutton (Mrs. Bundy) came from America to show the English girls how a tennis ball ought to be flogged.

She races for everything, refuses to take a volley, hits with a round-arm action, and puts every ounce of her body-weight into the blow. And she upsets all the theories about finesse and subtle courtcraft.

Mrs. King has entered for all the local tournaments, and the fans are looking forward to the possibility of her being drawn against Helen Jacobs, the Californian girl and U.S. No. 1.

Such a match would be the best battle of hard-hitters in living memory, it is felt.

International. Canadian SPYING ON SPORTS

"GOSSIP AND SUCH

THE SPORT OF KINGS has become, with a vengeance, the Sport of Queens. One queen in particular, a society queen — Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, proud possessor of a collection of horses known to the racing programs as the Brookmeade stable.

Race followers no longer ask which entry won in an important stake race. It's now which horse from the Brookmeade stable won. A fact. The chic, smiling Mrs. Sloane's peppery three-year-olds have just about run the rest of the horses off the tracks.

And Mrs. Sloane, herself, must begin feeling like a movie star—she's been photographed as often, smilingly accepting silver cups—almost in wholesale lots.

• • •

HERE IS WHAT Mrs. Sloane's horses have done so far this year, in important stake races:

Time Clock, a three-year-old, won the Florida Derby.

Cavalcade, another three-year-old, won the Chesapeake.

High Quest, still another three-year-old, won the Wood Memorial, the same day!

Then Cavalcade raced to an easy win in the classic of the year, the Kentucky Derby.

Not to be outdone, High Quest nosed out Cavalcade to win the Preakness.

Enraged that these youngsters were getting all the congratulatory pats from their charming owner, Okapi, Brookmeade's star four-year-old, has just turned in a victory in the Toboggan.

Well, how's that for a way to start the racing season?

• • •

"LUCKY BROOKMEADE," a great many horse followers have been calling Mrs. Sloane's stable. Lucky? Turf experts, while disagreeing as to which is the best—Cavalcade or High Quest—appear unanimous in that these two Sloane three-year-olds are the class of their class.

Rarely has one stable had so many important stake races fall its way in such a short time.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES! By ALEX. J. MORRISON

One thing every golfer must learn is that the left hand will never stay in the proper position or function correctly without conscious direction.

Players using a grip where the left thumb presses against the shaft will find that this hand always turns toward the left. After it has turned so much that the back of the hand faces the hole I must force them to turn it toward the right until the back of the hand faces almost directly upward.

It's only when the hand is in this position that it can function properly during the swing. But, this corrective measure brings only temporary improvement.

The hand will soon turn toward the left. Adoption of the interlocking grip affords the only permanent cure.

LAKEFIELD-ST. JOHN'S BALL GAME POSTPONED

The Lakefield United-St. John's Junior Church Softball League game last night was postponed owing to wet grounds. Games tonight, weather permitting, will be: St. Paul's Seniors vs. Trinity, at King Edward Park; umpires from Mark Street and Knox. All Saints' Juniors vs. George Street at Queen Alex.; umpires from St. James' and St. John's. George Street Juveniles vs. Trinity, at Queen Mary; umpires from Knox and St. Andrew's; and Trinity Bantams vs. George Street, at Queen Mary School.

Colonel E. R. Bradley's Idle Hour and the Whitney's Greentree stables have won a lot of races in seasons past, but hardly so many big ones in so short a time as has Brookmeade.

Six important races won and such juicy stake events as the American Derby, the Arlington Classic and the Belmont are still to be run!

The Sport of a Queen—Queen Isabel who, with her horses winning everything in sight, won't need to pawn her jewels as did that other queen, Isabella, who made the mistake of buying boats for discoverers instead of race horses which could discover fat purses at the end of the home stretch.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

Knox Seniors Pull Out 12-9 Decision

Knox Seniors pulled out a 12-9 decision in a fine Church Softball League game at the Oval last evening, the losers leaving sixteen runners stranded on the bases with Alex Wedlock pitching good in the pinches. Knox hit more timely, with Allen and Gatfield helping to account for a dozen markers. Seger, Mitchell and Masters also hit well, while Wright drew four walks in five. The teams:

Knox.—Gatfield, 2b; Masters, c; A. Wedlock, p; Archibald, 3b; B. Wedlock, 1b; Charlton, lf; McDonald, cf; Morrison, rf; Allen, ss.

Knox	220 312 2—12
Mark Street	320 400 0— 9

Umpires—Rev. Daniel and E. Grant.

Queen Mary Easily Wins From Alex.

Queen Mary won a School Softball League game yesterday from Queen Alex by a score of 27 to 10, the winners receiving better twirling and hitting the ball hard and often. They got their runs in bunches, two in the first, six in the third, seven in the fourth and an even dozen markers in the sixth. The losers tallied once in the first, twice each in the second, fifth and sixth and three times in the seventh. Homers were hit by McGregor, Robson, Jones and Tully. The teams:

Queen Alex: King; Palmer, c; Bebee; Wilshaw; A. Packenham, p; Morrow; R. Packenham; Lewis; Atkins.

BEFORE SIGNING off we want to tell you that Young Kitty who was a double winner at Kenilworth looks like a repeater at this meeting. It was at Woodbine that she accomplished most of her major triumphs and it will be like getting back home for the nine-year-old Seagram flash to perform on the east-end oval. Jockey Sunny Workman, who rode Equipoise in all his engagements was suspended by the stewards at Belmont Park for the foul he committed on Saturday. It was a tough break for Equipoise as he had the $2500 purse at his mercy.

JANETVILLE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE SHOWS BALANCE FOR PAST YEAR

Mrs. William Hill is Chosen President at Election of Officers.

SPECIAL MEET MAY 29.

JANETVILLE, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Janetville branch of the Women's Institute held their annual business meeting in their club room "Janet Villa" on Thursday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Charles McNeil was in charge of proceedings with Mrs. George Heaslip acting as secretary in the absence of Mrs. Orvine McGill. An important announcement was made to the effect that the government speaker, Miss Harriet Greydon of Streetsville, would speak on the subject, "Making the Institute serve the community," on Tuesday, May 29, at an evening gathering when all women of the community are to be heartily welcomed. Miss Greydon is a graduate nurse with wide experience in hospital management, specializing in nerve diseases and has spent a term of five years in school medical inspection.

Mrs. E. A. Bradburn read the treasurer's report which showed a balance of $51.94, also the flower committee report showing balance of $10.71. Mrs. George Wilson, Mrs. William Hall and Mrs. Ed Bradburn each voiced appreciation of fruit and flowers sent to their homes during recent illnesses.

A letter of appreciation was read from Mrs. M. B. Annis of Lindsay, who was the lucky winner of the Institute quilt.

Membership of 44

The secretary's report showed a membership of 44 and the president in her remarks stressed the advisability of encouraging the young girls of the community to join the Institute in order to be fitted to fill the positions later vacated by senior members. It was also suggested that the Institute attend annually in a body some divine service on an appropriate occasion similar to that of last Sunday when the local branch went in a body to evening worship at the United Church. Rev. Smith addressed the women in connection with the story of the "Mother of Samuel."

1934 Officers

The election of officers took place with the following result: President, Mrs. William Hill; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Harry Heaslip; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Bert McMullen; treasurer, Mrs. George Bradburn; secretary, Mrs. Orvine McGill; district director, Mrs. Charles Deyell; branch directors, Mrs. Charles McNeil, Mrs. Annie Johnston, Mrs. Joseph Capstick and Mrs. George Wilson; annual convention, Mrs. Percy McGill and Mrs. George Heaslip; program committee, Mrs. Oswald McGill, Mrs. Mervyn Armstrong, Mrs. Thomas McMullen and Mrs. Annie Johnston; visiting committee, Mrs. Charles Deyell, Mrs. Orvine McGill and Mrs. Robert Wright; flower committee, Mrs. Walter Walker, Mrs. Byron Hyland and Mrs. Percy McGill; pianists, Mrs. M. Armstrong and Mrs. Wes Campbell; auditors, Mrs. George Heaslip and Mrs. George Wilson.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Armstrong to the retiring president and other officers who had carried on the work so successfully during the past year. The retiring president responded with thanks for the hearty co-operation of the members.

The Program

Mrs. Hill, the new president took the chair for the following program: song, "It's a good time to get acquainted"; reading, "House-Cleaning" by Isobel Marshal; chorus, "Stars of the Summer Night," by five high school girls; instrumental, Miss E. Malcolm; reading, "Nobody knows but Mother," by Edna Robinson; reading, "Spring, a health talk," by Mrs. Percy Crawford; chorus, "Three Little Pigs," by 5 girls. The institute creed and National Anthem brought the program to a close. Lunch was served by Mrs. (Rev.) Walker, Mrs. Charles McNeil and Mrs. Percy McGill.

Pupils completing their public school education in London this year will total 65,000, or 25,000 more than in 1933.

COUNCIL OF DOURO SETS ROAD SCALE

Twenty Cents an Hour for Men and Forty for Man and Team.

The Douro council met on May 15. Communications were tabled as follows; From the Hydro Electric Commission advising that at its meeting of April 13, approved of recommending to the municipalities that all existing and future contracts be for a period of five years instead of 20 years as at present. From J. Allen, sheep valuer, reporting the killing of four sheep by dogs, the property of V. Cranley. From Rural School Attendance Officer report for month of April.

From Hall and Hall solicitors for Mrs. G. Northey asking that the taxes on lot 22 con. 5 which were returned to the county for collection be written off otherwise legal action would be taken.

From Departments of Highways enclosing a summarized statement of expenditures made on roads for 1933 and the government subsidy on same amounting to $1,613.07.

From A. Allen, application for loan under seed grain act.

From Tax Collector advising that he had collected $332.34 since Apr. 9th.

Mahoney-Hayes—That no action be taken in regard to collecting damages for sheep belonging to George Bolton, which were killed by dogs. In our opinion the evidence being insufficients to warrant action.

Hayes-Bolton—That the assessor be authorized to secure the services of the Township Solicitor to assist him in procuring a proper description of the list of lands liable to be sold for taxes in the township for the year 1934.

Mahoney-Hayes—That the treasurer be authorized to pay $16.10 government subsidy to Mrs. Margaret Walsh, secretary of the Ladies' Auxiliary for fuel and clothing purchased through this society.

Mahoney-Bolton —That no more direct relief be given in the township of Douro after May 15, 1934.

Mahoney-Hayes—That complying with the wishes of the Department of Highways and considering that under the relief scheme an eight hour day only is allowed. It is hereby moved that from April the 9th 1934 until December the 31st, 1934, the rate of wages be 20c per hour for man and 40c per hour for man and team.

On motion the following accounts were ordered paid: Municipal Telephone System $2.42; A. E. Wilson & Co., road insurance premium $130; V. Cranley, sheep killed by dogs $43.00; J. Allen, valuing sheep, $1.50; P. G. Towns, relief accounts $40.62; road vouchers No. 3 and 4 amounting to $344.77.

Leahy-Bolton—That the council meet as a court of revision on Monday, May 28th at 11 a.m.

Trent River

A large transport truck from Norwood broke through the big bridge, over the Trent River, near the northern approach of the bridge. The hole caused by the accident was 6½ feet long by 4 feet wide, leaving passage for one-way traffic at this spot till repairs are made. The truck was able to proceed on its way after being jacked out.

COMPACT TRAILER IS BUILT IN CITY

Provides an Ideal Little "Home on Wheels"—Artistically Finished.

Combining lightness with strength, a compact and neat appearing motor trailer has recently been turned out in the carriage and wagon building shops of Fitzgerald and Company of McDonnel street.

For the automobile tourist it provides an ideal little "home from home" on wheels, in which meals can be prepared and eaten with convenience, and in which restful comfort might be obtained on the overnight stop.

The interior of the trailer artistically finished on light yellow and pale green enamel, is fitted up with a handy set of cupboards, an ice box, water tank, and sink, besides combining a handy little metal-topped shelf from which meals can be served buffet style. The trailer is entered from the rear by a spacious door, while at the opposite end is a cosy little alcove equipped with a bed couch. There is ample head room in the trailer for any person of average size.

Each of the windows on the trailer, may be lowered or raised by convenient leather straps, the opening of the windows being covered with a strong copper wire mosquito netting. The outside of the trailer is painted grey, with red as a smart contrasting color for the lining.

DIAL EXCHANGE READY IN JUNE

New Automatic Telephone Exchange Nears Completion in Norwood.

PUBLIC MEETING

NORWOOD, May 22 (Examiner Correspondence).—The new dial telephone system being installed in Norwood is nearing completion, and is expected to be ready for service about the middle of June.

This equipment is of the latest type and consists of an arrangement of automatic switches installed in a specially-designed building on Peterborough street, next door north of J. L. Squire and Sons store. To these switches will be connected all telephones of subscribers served from the present Norwood exchange.

Each telephone will be equipped with a dial, making it possible for each subscriber to call directly any other Norwood subscriber, or the operator, which will be located in Peterborough, who will handle all long distance calls.

The Bell Telephone Company held a public meeting in the Town Hall Friday night, at which the District Manager, H. H. P. Johnston, and Miss O'Brien of Peterborough explained and demonstrated the operation of new dial system and equipment.

Following the practical demonstration, two instructive reels of moving pictures were run off, showing the route of a message from Vancouver, B.C., across the continent to Montreal through the different city exchanges, out across the Atlantic to London, England, and the return route of the current.

Cavan

On Sunday evening in Cavan United Church the service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Lang. The Rev. Mr. Riding, M.A., graduate of Toronto University and Emmanuel College, preached an excellent sermon from the text Mathew 21:11.

Mr. and Mrs. Colin Arnott and family and Miss Grace Stevens of Toronto were in the district, because of the death of his aunt, the late Mrs. Johnson of Bethany, and visited friends on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Staples, Toronto called on Mr. and Mrs. R. Matchett on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Riding was entertained at the parsonage during his stay in Cavan.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hunter and Mr. T. Hunter, Springville called on Cavan friends on Sunday.

Mr. S Hunter and daughter, Miss Alma, Millbrook, visited Mr. and Mrs. R. Robertson on Sunday.

On Sunday morning a tree was struck by lightning and a window broken near Mr. J. C. Swain's house.

Mr. Eugene Touchbourne, Miss B. Touchbourne, of Ida and Mrs. Martin of Cavan, visited the latter's nephew, Mr. Cyril Moore, on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Matchett and family and Mr. Frank Matchett attended the funeral at Bethany of his aunt, Mrs. (Rev.) Robert Johnson. Interment was in the Presbyterian cemetery, Millbrook on Monday.

PREMIER ISSUES HIS MANIFESTO ON EVE OF TOUR

Land Settlement Scheme Proposed For Old and New Ontario.

LIGHTER ROAD BURDEN.

Minimum Wage Move For Men—Zoning Hydro Costs Suggested.

TORONTO, May 23 (C.P.).—Premier George S. Henry to-day prepared for his official campaign tour for the Ontario general elections, June 19. With his election manifesto completed and before the public. Benefits to the farmer, the jobless, and the widow were promised in the manifesto.

After nearly two weeks of preparation the manifesto appeared last night. Premier Henry reviewed his Government's expenditures and announced if returned to power it would inaugurate new legislation aimed at carrying the province out of its difficult position.

Old and new settlers will be bonused for clearing and ploughing virgin lands under a large settlement scheme. Jobless families wishing to take up land in the North be helped in this manner, and settlement on lands in Southern Ontario will be encouraged.

The fact Northern Ontario members urged at th elast session of the Legislature that the Government follow the land settlement scheme of Quebec gave rise to the belief it would be the Government's aim.

Ease Road Burdens

Premier Henry announced the Government proposed to assume 90 per cent of the cost of construction and maintenance of highways. The counties would bear only 10 per cent. At present the Government carries 80 per cent of the cost and the counties 20 per cent. Counties, it is estimated, would be relieved of an expenditure of $1,500,000 through this plan.

Farmers borrowing from the Agricultural Development Board would receive an interest rate cut of one-half per cent, the manifesto prom-

Lodge Member Admit Poison Liquor Gifts

OAKLAND, Calif., May 23 (AP)—Arthur J. Cleu, 40-year-old Oakland printer, faced a possible charge of attempted murder here to-day, authorities said, following his reported confession that he sent poison liquor through the mails to seven fellow lodge members.

Cleu was arrested yesterday at Ukiah, where he was attending the annual Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West, a fraternal organization. Comparison of his hand lettering with that on the poison liquor packages, was said by officers to have led to his detention.

In his purported confession, taken by police inspectors James Goodnight and L. M. Jewell, Cleu assertedly blamed a long-standing quarrel with his lodge brothers.

Manchurian Farmers Defy Jap Orders; Air Squadron Bombs 20 Towns, Kills 1,000

SHANGHAI, May 24.—(Thursday) (AP)—Chinese reports from Peiping today allege a Japanese air squadron bombed a wide area around Chinchow in Southeast Manchuria yesterday (Wednesday) killing 1,000 Manchurian farmers and destroying 20 villages.

These dispatches said the onslaught followed the farmers' refusal to comply with Japanese army demands that the Chinese give up their arms.

The allegations claim that the Japanese bombers had injured hundreds of persons in addition to those killed and that numerous villages were still burning from Japanese incendiary bombs.

The report was not confirmed from other sources.

County Temperance Association Meets in Convention in Legion Hall.

REV. WHATTAM SPEAKER.

Three Provincial Candidates Outline Stand in Letters to Body.

Take 1—Candidates give... ... .

Statements of their attitudes on the beer and wine amendments to the Liquor Control Act were submitted by the three candidates in the Peterborough riding: T. P. Lancaster, Conservative; James Hawthorne, Liberal, and Rev. John A. Sutherland, prospective C.C.F. representative, at this afternoon's convention of the County Ttemperance Association.

G. Arthur Brethen of Norwood, president of the Association, was chairman of the meeting which was attended by about one hundred men and women. Necessary work on the farm, Empire Day ceremonies and other activities accounted for the fact that the attendance was not larger.

Rev. R. A. Whattam, provincial organizer of the Ontario Temperance Federation, arrived from Woodstock where he spoke last night, and is going on to Orono this evening.

The purpose of this meeting was mainly to receive the expressed positions of the candidates regarding the new amendments to the Liquor Control Act, with the probability that the Association would declare its approval of one or more of the candidates from the standpoint of county temperance sentiment.

ST. PAUL, May 23 (A.P.)—Evelyn Frechette, sweetheart of desperado John Dillinger, and Dr. Clayton May, Minneapolis physician who treated his gun-shot wound, to-day were convicted by Federal Court jury of conspiring to harbor the Indiana outlaw. Mrs. Augusta Salt, co-defendant, was acquitted.

Federal Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye sentenced Dr. May to two years' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000.

Miss Frechette was sentenced to serve two years in the women's reformatory at Alderston, W. Va., and fined $1,000.

Both were granted a week's stay of sentence.

Mrs. Salt was released and taken from the courtroom by friends.

Attorneys for both Dr. May and Miss Frenchette announced they would appeal to the circuit court.

FARMER KILLED AS TEAM BOLTS

Martin Devine, 69, of Emily Township, Killed While Seeding.

SLIPPED UNDER SEEDER.

KING'S WHARF, May 23.—Martin Devine, aged 69 years, well-known farmer was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when a team of horses attached to a seeder ran away and Devine in attempting to stop them fell and was run over by the machine. Devine, a former resident of Lindsay had been operating a farm here for some years.

He was planting grain when his team became startled and bolted. The man who was walking behind the machine tried to get to the horses' heads to halt them but fell under the seeder. The accident was witnessed by Austen Sullivan who was working on an adjoining farm went to Devine's assistance and Dr. Kelly of Bobcaygeon was called. Devine thought to have suffered severe internal injuries died an hour and a half after the accident. The victim was unmarried. He is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Thomas Heenan of Downeyvile, Mrs. James Heenan, Mrs. Houlihan and Miss Maria Devine of Lindsay.

The funeral will be held from his late residence on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, to St. Mary's Church, with interment in Downeyville Cemetery.

The Weather

TORONTO, May 23. (CP).—The depression which was north of the Ottawa valley yesterday has moved northeastward to Ungava, with a trough of low pressure extending across the Maritime provinces and southward along the Atlantic coast. Pressure is high over the central and northern portions of the continent and to the eastward of Newfoundland. With the exception of a few scattered showers the weather in the western provinces has been fair and cool, while showers have occurred in nearly all districts from Central Ontario eastward to the Maritime provinces with heavy rains in the lower St. Lawrence valley.

Lower lake region and Georgian Bay—Moderate west to northwest winds; fair to-day and Thursday; cool to-night.

Northern Ontario—Fair and quite cool to-night. Thursday—Fair and cool.

Ottawa and upper St. Lawrence valley—Moderate to fresh westerly winds; fair to-day and Thursday; quite cool to-night.

Hepburn Replies to Manifesto Issued by Premier Henry.

NOT CONSISTENT.

Liberals If Returned Will Assume Whole Cost of Highway System.

TORONTO, May 23.—(C.P.)—Practically everything on Premier George S. Henry's election manifesto has been stolen from the Liberal platform," Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader declared today after reading the statement made public by Mr. Henry last night. Mr. Hepburn made his reply to the Conservative manifesto, in a statement handed out while passing through Toronto on his election campaign tour."

"He must have been reading through the Liberal manifesto pretty thoroughly at least" Mr. Hepburn continued. "The Liberal party always has advocated a minimum wage for men as well as for women."

Liberal Plank

He also said the premier's provision to change the Mother's Allowance Act to care for a widow with one child, "is a plank on our Liberal platform."

"Mr. Henry says the province now will assume 90 percent of the cost of King's higaway, leaving 10 percent to be borne by the counties, instead of 20 per cent, as at present. I have long ago said the Liberal party, if returned to power, will assume the whole cost of the King's highway system," the statement continued.

CARP GIRL DIES IN AUTO SMASH

Strikes Coaches at Arnprior Crossing—On Way to Hospital Duties.

FATHER BADLY HURT.

ARNPRIOR, Ont., May 23 (C.P.).—Carmelita Byrne, 20, was killed instantly and her father, P. A. Byrne of Carp, Ont., was seriously injured when the automobile in which they were driving crashed into a C.P.R. passenger train at a level crossing here to-day.

Mr. and Miss Byrne were driving from Carp to Pembroke, Ont., where Miss Byrne was to take over her duties in hospital there, and in passing through Arnprior, failed to notice the approaching train. The automobile collided into one of the coaches of the train which was slowing up for the station, killing Miss Byrne instantly, and Mr. Byrne was so badly injured little hope was held out for his recovery.

PORT HOPE, May 23.—Dr. Lorna Cotton of Toronto was presented and enthusiasticaly received as the C.C.F. candidate in Durham county at a meeting of between two and three hundred men and women in the auditorium of the town hall here last night.

It was the first public announcement of the entry of the C.C.F. in the riding where the Conservatives have already nominated Milton J. Elliott of Bowmanville against the recent Liberal member. W. J. Bragg

Dr. Cotton was selected as the Federation's candidate at a meeting of the constituency council of the C.C.F. at Bowmanville last Wednesday night.

Presumably the third party angle to the local sector of the provincial campaign was not only a surprise but a pleasant one to the rather large assembly who indicated with generous applause their satisfaction with the course adopted by the constituency representatives of the C.C.F.

Dr. Cotton has been actively engaged in promoting the C.C.F. from its inception. She is an attractive young lady with a cultured and adequately powerful voice for the hustings, and holds the degree of Doctor of Philosophy for which she specialized in economics and sociology.

Dr. Cotton was introduced as the C.C.F. candidate by O. R. Bragg of Bowmanville, president of the Durham constituency council of C.C.F. Clubs, who briefly reported that she had been chosen last week and presented her in the words: "The sweetheart of Durham."

The chairman of the meeting, Harry van Everdingen, president of the Port Hope C.C.F. Club, remarked as he followed Mr. Bragg: "The bomb is sprung, and you know whom you are getting, and I think

CRIME CAREER ENDS IN BLAZE RIOT-GUN FIRE

Desperado and Gunwoman Are Beaten to Trigger as Police Spring Ambush.

CAR REGULAR ARSENAL.

Bullet-riddled, Machine Speeding 85 Miles an Hour, is Wrecked in Crash.

BLACK LAKE, La., May 23.— (AP) — Clyde Barrow and his gun-woman companion, Bonnie Parker, were beaten to the trigger pull by Texas and Louisiana officers today.

Their crime career ended in a blaze of riot gun-fire when, disregarding a command to halt and unable to get their weapons into play, the desperado and his cigar-smoking girl crumpled up in the front seat of a car travelling at about 85 miles an hour.

The car careened into an embankment and was wrecked.

In the wreckage, the officers who had set the trap for the southwest's public enemy number one and the Parker woman found both bodies riddled with bullets. Bonnie's was almost doubled over the machine gun she had held in her lap. Barrow's broken body was twisted behind the steering wheel, a revolver gripped in one hand.

Regular Arsenal

The car splintered by gunfire, proved to be a speeding arsenal.

The trap was sprung by Frank Hamer, a former Texas ranger, B. M. Gault, a highway patrolman and Ted Hinton and Bob Alcorn Dallas county sheriffs. Hamer was recently commissioned as a highway patrolman for the special purpose of getting his man—and, in this case, his gunwoman. Hamer had learned of the highways frequented by the pair had been watching for weeks.

The bandits' trail was picked up this morning by Hamer in Bossier Parish, where Barrow was reported to have relatives residing.

The officers got ahead of the bandit car and lay in wait until Barrow ran his car into the ambush.

Barrow and his companion had led officers in a wild chase over half a dozen states. Frequently they were cornered but eluded their pursuers or shot it out. They replenished their funds by robbing banks and business houses.

One of Worst Killers

Barrow was regarded as one of the United States' most dangerous killers, shooting at the bat of an eye and fleeing in fast automobiles.

Air Train

KOKTEBEL, Crimea, May 23 (C.P.). — Soviet Russia's "air train" completed the first long distance flight of such a conveyance in the history of world aviation to-day, landing here at noon. Koktebel is 808 miles from Moscow, where the flight started.

The plane and its three gliders made a perfect descent. The gliders were detached from the piloting machine in the air and landed separately.

The hop to Koktebel was made from Zaporozhie, where the train was forced to land yesterday because of bad weather.

Flier Lapses Into Unconsciousness After Giving Meagre Details.

AGINCOURT, Ont., May 23 (C.P.). — A plane, piloted by T. T. Ahearn of Ottawa, crashed here today when he attempted to make a forced landing. Ahearn was injured.

The extent of Ahearn's injuries was not learned immediately. He is the son of T. Ahearn, M.P. of Ottawa.

Agincourt is about 2 miles east of Toronto.

The plane, which was badly wrecked, crashed on the farm of Thomas McKirskin, who notified a doctor. The plane is owned by Yvan Lemoyne of Ottawa

Ahearn was rushed to hospital in Toronto, where he was able to give the meagre details of the accident before he became unconscious. He was also able to send a message to his father in Ottawa, telling of the mishap.

BOLIVIANS ATTACK.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, May 23 (A.P.).—Bolivian forces were reported carrying the fight to Paraguay's positions to-day on the Chaco front in the region of Fort Ballivian.

It was learned extra-officially here that the Bolivians had concentrated reinforcements for repeated assaults upon the Canada and "strongest" positions held by Paraguayan troops.

WIDER CONTROL OF INDUSTRIES BY GOVERNMENT

President of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company Before Ottawa Probe.

NEW INDUSTRIAL SET-UP.

Dominion Should Step in and Aid Industries Adjust Conditions.

OTTAWA, May 23 (C.P.).—One of Canada's biggest manufacturers appeared before the Parliamentary Mass Buying Committee to-day and appealed for more Government intervention in business. It was C. H. Carlisle, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Toronto.

The rubber manufacturer, tall, grey-haired, and rangy, suggested industrial associations, supervised by the Government to control the prices, regulate wages and cost standards, and generally to establish fair business practices for the industry. The Carlisle plan would be revolutionary because it would mean repeal of Canada's Anti-Combines law, regarded for years as the bulwark against exploitation.

Depend on Government.

The strength of the Carlisle industrial set-up would depend upon the effectiveness of the Government supervision, its author candidly told the Parliamentary Committee There were inherent weaknesse in it but "there are certain conditions existing at present especially under the unsettled conditions in Canada and the world that cannot be handled unless you have policing by the Government."

The Dominion Government, Mr. Carlisle suggested, should step in and help industries adjust conditions which they apparently could not change themselves.

But he would not go so far as the American NRA. He did not believe industrial codes were necessary.

"I think they have gone too far—into the details of an industry. It is the difference between policing an industry and operating it. I think the NRA has gone too far, entering the operation of an industry."

The industrial set-up recommended by him would not increase prices, Mr. Carlisle insisted when questioned by E. J. Young, Liberal member for Weyburn. "My scheme is for the stabilization of industry and if established, I think the industries could operate profitably and will not increase prices."

Effect of N.R.A.

The effect of the N.R.A. had been to increase prices, interjected, J. L. Ilsley, (Lib., Hants-King). Mr. Carlisle agreed but that had been President Roosevelt's avowed purpose. It was not his intention nor did he believe it would be the result of his set-up.

From a life-time in big business, Mr. Carlisle offered a penalty for exorbitant profits. Sam Factor, (Lib., Toronto South-Centre) asked how the government could discipline a manufacturer who reaped big profits, mentioning tobacco factories.

"Reduce his selling price and increase the price of his raw materials," suggested the Toronto manufacturer. He did not agree a graduated income tax, based on profits, would be fair.

As the epitome of government-controlled business, Mr. Carlisle suggested men should not be permitted to enter an industry unless financially qualified. In addition, they should have proper equipment, agree to pay fair wages and maintain prices. And, if the government considered an industry was efficient and nearing the point where further competition might disorganize it—no more

MAGGOTS SUCCESSFULLY USED IN OPERATIONS FOR GANGRENE

French Surgeon Uses American Discovery in Serious Lung Disease.

EAT DEAD TISSUE

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Copyright by Central Press Canadian and The Examiner)

PARIS, May 23.—Maggots crawling about in a human lung, even squirming over the casing of the heart to eat away the gangrenous tissue but leave intact, untouched, the living flesh in an effort to save a man afflicted with gangrene of the lung.

Such is the operation that was performed on in a clinic in Neuilly for the first time in France—perhaps for the first time in the world—thanks to an American discovery and French surgical skill.

If the operation is successful, thousands of lives may be saved, notably in the United States for, it is said, many persons each year die from gangrenous lungs against which the only remedy, often ineffective has been cutting away of the tissue by surgical intervention, which occasions great suffering to the patient.

Larvae of the blowfly have been used for several years in the United States and in France too, as the result of the discovery by the late Dr. W. S. Baer of Johns Hopkins that these larvae ate away gangrene, but never attacked the living tissue. Heretofore all the operations of this sort have been con-

SHIPMENTS OVERSTRESSED

OTTAWA, May 23 (CP)—Cattle shipments from Canada are such a small part of the requirements of the United Kingdom that there was no real need of a cattle quota against this country at all. This opinion was expressed by A. I. Eastwood, prominent British cattle importer, who appeared before the Senate Agricultural Committee today.

During the discussion, Senator P. Burns expressed the view that the 63,000 cattle sent by this country to Britain last year would not feed the people of the United Kingdom one day.

SWEEPSTAKES BILL IS KILLED BY 2 TO 1 VOTE

Both Bennett and King Oppose Measure for Hospital Purposes.

COUNT GOES 105-57.

Chief Support Comes From Dupre—Guthrie Suggests Changes.

OTTAWA, May 23 (C.P.).—For the second time in as many years the House of Commons has turned thumbs down on a move to legalize sweepstakes Canadians who wish to gamble for large stakes with a small ante will have to find other means of staking their money than in home-grown lotteries.

By a vote of 105 to 57, which cut across party lines, the Commoners decided to give the traditional six-months' hoist to the bill sent down from the Senate which would have legalized sweepstakes for hospital purposes. Many and varied were the arguments advanced on either side of the issue as the House spent a full day debating it.

A. M. Carmichael, Progressive member for Kindersley, had the distinction of contributing twice to the rejection of lotteries. Last year it was he who moved the killing motion to the Senate bill and he did the same this year.

Both Leaders Opposed.

Leaders of the two major parties, Premier R. B. Bennett and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, declared their emphatic opposition, although the vote was on non-party lines and neither leader called upon his followers to vote against the bill on party grounds. Mr. Bennett explained he had promised a non-party vote on the question in the House when the matter was raised at the inter-provincial conference last winter.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, while opposed to the measure, thought two changes could well be made in the present law. The forfeiture of a prize to an informer should be done away with, and the prize made forfeit to the Crown as a fine. Likewise, he thought the $20 fine now imposed for passing lottery tickets might be increased.

Most of the support for the measure came from the Province of Quebec. Hon. Maurice Dupre, Solicitor-General, came out definitely in favor of the bill and recommended it be tried for a year at least. Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, declared the bill was ultra vires but was not wholly opposed to the principle of lotteries.

Cahan Favorable.

Mr. Cahan argued the bill from the Senate was ultra vires as the Dominion Parliament had no power to give directions to the Provincial Attorneys-General as to the conduct of sweepstakes. He said he would be inclined to support another bill on the order paper in the name of Pierre Casgrain (Lib., Charlevoix-Saguenay), which would exempt sweepstakes for charitable or educational purposes from the prohibitive clause of the criminal code.

A national lottery was proposed by Mr. Dupre with the proceeds to be divided between the provinces on a per capita basis. He thought a referendum might be held on the question in the fall.

The Senate debated the League of Nations withdrawal motion briefly yesterday and meets again to-day.

The Lower House to-day will take up the bill to establish a central bureau of Government translators which has been reported from the Civil Service Committee and afterwards will return to the marketing bill.

Slips

PHILADELPHIA, May 23. — (CP)—A 20-year-old girl's sudden appearance in pink silk underwear on a busy street led to her arrest and that of a policeman on charges of holding up a millinery store.

The attempted robbery failed yesterday because Mrs. Ruth Lebowitz, owner of the shop, defied a man with a pistol and tore the dress from his girl companion. A moment later the girl in the slip dashed up to a motorist and asked a 'lift home.' She was given it, but the motorist later led police to the apartment, where Patrolman Robert C. Wisterhood, 31, and Francis Walters were arrested.

TORY LEADERS ORGANIZE FAST FOR CAMPAIGN

Henry, Cabinet to Start Intensive Drive Over Whole Province.

HEPBURN HEADS NORTH.

Liberal Leader Promises No Entanglements With Financial Corporations.

TORONTO, May 23 (C.P.). — Conservative Party organizers today were forming their plans for a great campaign drive that they hope will return Premier George S. Henry and his supporters to power. With the Government's election manifesto before the party stalwarts Premier Henry and his Cabinet ministers are expected to start an intensive campaign tour throughout the province.

Before a huge Liberal rally in Hamilton last night Micthell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal Leader, renewed his charges against the Henry regime and left for Sharbot Lake and Cataraqui to address the meetings there. In Kingston last night Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, upheld the Government's record and challenged the Liberals to declare any constructive policy they had to offer the people.

W. D. Black, who has represented Addington in the Legislature for 23 years, was again chosen to carry the Conservative banner in the Ontario general election campaign for the riding. He was unanimously selected at the Kingston convention.

Pinard in East Ottawa.

J. Albert Pinard was the choice of East Ottawa Liberals at the Ottawa convention last night He represented the riding in the Legislature from 1914 to 1929, and will face Eugene J. Labelle, Conservative, in the voting on June 19.

Another Liberal candidate entered the campaign when Thomas R. Murray was named as the South Renfrew Liberal choice at Eganville convention.

Enumerators Busy In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Prior to the forthcoming election and to assure every citizen that is entitled to vote, that their name is on the voters' list, enumerators have started a check-up of all residents of the Town of Campbellford, working by wards. The appointees for this work are as follows: Ward 1, Mrs. William Smith; Ward 2, Free Clark; Ward 3, Franklin Linton; Ward 4, Jack Bygott.

The public is asked to give these officials all informtion necessary, and to make the work as speedy and accurate as possible, so that everyone entitled to a vote will have that privilege. Judge L. V. O'Connor will hold a public sitting in the Campbellford Public Library on June 1, at 10.30 a.m., for the purpose of placing omitted names on the voters' list. The date for this sitting for the Township of Seymour is June 2.

RUMOR LONDON PLANNING NEW WAR DEBT PROPOSAL

LONDON, May 23 (A.P.)—Indications were seen in circles closely in contact with the war debts controversy yesterday that the government may be planning a new approach to the problem in the June instalment due the United States.

Any such move, it was plainly seen, however, is contingent partially upon President Roosevelt's forthcoming message to Congress on the subject of debts.

Should the government take such action as is indicated it would represent a drastic chance in the policy manifest in recent days.

Until yesterday, official circles stoutly maintained that the first move in the debt situation must come from Mr. Roosevelt.

University Graduate At Age Of 15 Years About To Receive His Fifth Degree At 26

NEW YORK, May 23 (C.P.).—The Rev. Dr. Edward Roche Hardy, Jr., who matriculated at New York University when he was fifteen years old, will receive a fifth degree today, that of Master of Sacred Theology, at the commencement exercises of General Theological Seminary. He is now 26.

Dr. Hardy, who has taught Greek and history at the Seminary and is an assistant priest at St. Andrew's Church, Astoria, Queen's, passed the Harvard examinations when he was 10, entered Columbia at 12, won a Phi Beta Kappa Key at 14, received his Bachelor of Arts degree at 15 and his Master of Arts degree a year later.

Deciding to enter the ministry, he was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Theology from the General Theological Seminary at 18. Two years later he received his Doctor of Philosophy from Columbia. Too young to be ordained a priest, he had to wait until two years ago, meanwhile teaching at the Seminary.

SCOUT JAMBOREE ON VICTORIA DAY

Boy Scouts From Central Ontario Will Meet at Nassau.

Boy Scouts from all over Central Ontario district are to-morrow staging a big Victoria Day jamboree at the C.G.E. grounds at Nassau, under auspices of Peterborough Boy Scout Association, and the Association extend a cordial invitation to the general public to be present.

At a meeting of the Jamboree Committee, headed by Commissioner John T. Hornsby last evening, it was intimated that over 300 Boy Scouts are expected to gather here for a big afternoon and evening program of scoutcraft, sports, and games.

Besides some 150 Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs that comprise the membership of the local Association, invitations to attend have been accepted by Scout Troops and Wolf Cub Packs throughout the district bounded by Oshawa, Stirling, Lindsay and Cobourg. It is believed that about fifty outside organisations will be represented.

H. C. Sootheran, president of the local Scout Association, in extending the invitation to the public to attend, said he wished to point out that the program is planned to provide both entertainment and instruction not only for the spectators but for the boys themselves. It is to be a well-balanced program, he said, consisting of first aid displays, fire laying, distance judging contests, and other scout tests and games, and is to conclude with a big camp fire entertainment at dusk.

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit ?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy . . . to save . . . to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels . . . prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes . . . to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

CERTAIN irresponsible gasoline dealers have been selling low grade gasoline from pumps marked as leading brands. Motorists have suffered in unsatisfactory performance and costly repair bills from the use of this poor quality fuel. Shell dealers have suffered because of the suspicion this has cast over the entire gasoline retailing business. The sealing of Shell pumps positively prevents the substitution of any other gasoline in Shell pumps.

SHELL has devised a special tamper-proof filler cap for the underground tanks supplying Shell pumps. After filling a dealer's Shell tanks, the Shell Truck Salesman affixes to the tank cap a numbered Shell seal. On his next visit he removes this seal, checks the serial number, refills the tanks and affixes a new seal, noting the serial number for his next call. Seals cannot be removed without his knowledge. All seals must be accounted for to the Shell Company.

SEALING of all underground tanks supplying Shell pumps (a safeguard only Shell gives) assures the motorist that he always receives genuine Shell gasoline from Shell pumps—whether he fills up at a big city station or a country garage. Shell sealing also removes Shell dealers from suspicion of being classed with the irresponsible dealers who practise substitution. Shell sealing identifies Shell dealers as honest merchants.

A SAFE AND SANE HOLIDAY.

Victoria Day, the anniversary of the birth of the good Queen who sat so long on the British throne, is one of Canada's most popular holidays, coming as it does on the threshold of summer with the great outdoors calling upon the people of the Dominion to begin their program of warm weather activities.

It is the first day of picnics, the time of the first trip back to the summer cottage, a day of much travelling, and because of these things it can also become a day of tragedy for many unless care is the watchword of the public.

With the highways congested with holiday traffic, with thousands out on the water for the first time this season, with fireworks a feature of the day's celebration—these are all the ingredients for the producing of serious accidents unless the danger is averted by careful conduct.

Let us like sensible people make it a safe and sane holiday.

Let motorists drive with unusual caution, remembering the holiday conditions; let those who visit lake or river resorts be careful in their handling of boats, and let everybody who uses fireworks do so with due regard for their own safety and that of others.

If we all exercise proper precautions it will be a glorious holiday for Canadians generally, and there will be no tragic aftermath to cause mourning and suffering and to fill the newspapers of Friday with stories of Victoria Day accidents.

MUST BE LICENSED.

It might be well to draw public attention to the fact that at the recent session of the Legislature the Public Vehicles Act was amended so as to prohibit any persons but licensed public vehicle operators to advertise for passengers.

The following sub-section is the important part of the bill:

"No person shall solicit by means of advertising or otherwise undertake to arrange the transportation of passengers by means of a vehicle operated on a highway by, for or on behalf of any person who receives compensation for such transportation unless the person who, or for, or on behalf of whom the vehicle is operated is licensed under this act, or under any other act to operate such vehicle for compensation or hire."

Apparently this point has not been thoroughly understood; however, there is the law, and the newspapers of the province have been asked by the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Department of Highways to co-operate with the authorities by refusing advertisement from all save licensed public vehicle operators.

Those who are not in that category will save their own time and ours by not asking The Examiner to accept advertising that is under official ban.

SECTION 98 AND ARTICLE 58.

A. E. Smith, the Communist candidate in East York, who is billed to speak here to-night and will undoubtedly have something to say about Section 98 of the Canadian Criminal Code, a favorite subject of this vociferous advocate of a Canadian Soviet.

It would be interesting if Mr. Smith would at the same time tell his audience a little about Article 58 of the Soviet Criminal Code.

Under Section 98 eight Canadians after a trial by a jury of their peers have been sentenced to imprisonment.

Will Mr. Smith please say how many thousands of Russians have been executed and how many millions have been sent to concentration camps under Article 58? And this at the whim of the State Political Administrations or, in other words, the Ogpu without the semblance of a trial.

Mr. Smith usually howls to high heaven about freedom of speech in Canada.

Will he please tell his audience to-night how much freedom of speech there is in the country that he pictures as a second garden of Eden, and how long he would be permitted to attack Soviet institutions in Russia as he has been assailing the Canadian form of government in this country?

If Mr. Smith knows as much about conditions in the land of the Soviet as he professes to do, he should be quite well aware of the fact that anybody who agitated against the Russian Government, as he has against Canadian institutions, would find himself facing a firing squad or shut up for life in a Soviet slave camp.

PRISON CONDITIONS.

The attitude of the Globe toward the administration of Canada's penitentiaries is somewhat difficult to understand.

Months ago the Globe called for an investigation into prison conditions, and urged a number of reforms that it maintained were necessary.

Apparently some at least of these suggestions were carried out, and reports of impartial visitors to the penitentiaries were unanimous in the report that definite reforms had been made.

All at once a fresh riot breaks out among the inmates of the Portsmouth Penitentiary, and before order is restored a $50,000 fire is started by the convicts.

Once again the Globe calls for an inquiry, suggests that those in charge of prison administration have fallen down on their jobs and intimates that the reforms put into effect, many of them in line with its own suggestion, were a mistake.

There are many people who will feel that if there has been any mistake made it has been in making too many concessions to the prisoners, and who are certain that the latest riot is convincing proof that the hard-boiled type of criminal so numerous among our prison population does not understand or respond to generous treatment.

Those who hold this view will point to conditions in United States prisons where, in spite of many privileges, including radios, moving pictures and baseball games, riots and prison breaks are much more commonplace than in Canadian institutions.

Apparently the more we attempt to imitate prisons across the line in the matter of concessions the more we may expect riots and disturbances.

Prisoners are entitled to humane treatment, but after all they are behind bars because they have warred against society, and they cannot expect to be regarded as honored guests.

OUR NEW CITIZENS.

London this week gained twenty-five new citizens. This does not, however, indicate an increase in population. They came via the naturalization route.

Judge Wearing, before whom the applicants appeared for naturalization, was impressed with the class. They were about the finest group that had come before him for some time. A number of them were working hard and holding down good jobs, which prompted the judge to remark that they seemed to put some native Canadians to shame.

While these new Canadian citizens and British subjects will probably, for the most part, be able to stand on their own feet and make their own way in the land of their adoption, a gesture of recognition, a show of friendliness and an inclination to help on the part of those whose privilege it was to be born under the British flag will go a long way to make their lot easier and their pathway a little brighter.

It should be remembered that these newcomers did not always speak the English language. Some of them probably do not speak it very well yet, but that should be no barrier to our warmth of feeling for them. Indeed in some respects they are to be envied. They have the advantage of being able to speak two languages, and except for the people of the province of Quebec, comparatively few Canadians enjoy that advantage.

It may be well to remember that the reason some newcomers to this country have not made good has been traced to ignorance of the laws and customs of the country. We can do our part in helping them feel at home in their new land.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

FRANCE AND WAR DEBTS.

While the United Kingdom has tacitly recognized her obligations to the United States, France has simply done nothing. She has defaulted the last few payments, simply saying she cannot pay, and therefore, will not. But France is in a special position which is not sufficiently recognized.

The European allies having obtained munitions, material and foodstuffs in the United States to fight Germany until such time as the United States was ready to take an active part in the war—which was not until 16 months after she declared herself against Germany—afterwards decided that Germany must be made to repay these loans. Accordingly they fixed reparation payments which proved to be greater than Germany could pay, and Germany only paid for some years by borrowing heavily from the countries to whom she was owing reparations, and from the United States. When Germany could not borrow any more she could not pay reparations on the full scale.

Then President Hoover, in the interest, as he thought, of the American creditors, declared a moratorium on German payments, without consulting France. This move ended reparations, leaving France in the position of owing her war debt to the United States, but by the action of the United States, she was deprived of the income from which she would have repaid that debt. Great Britain was consulted by Mr. Hoover right along, she having been the country that did the borrowing for the others. And Great Britain understood that if the reparations payments were to be reduced some 90 per cent., then the United States would meet the debtors to the same extent. As events turned, however, the United States did not carry out the complementary plan so far as war debts were concerned.

France considers she has a moral right to have her war debt reduced, and as the United States refuses to discuss that aspect, she has a sense of grievance. The United Kingdom has a claim to consideration, too, but if anything, the French claim is just a little bit stronger.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The duty of the hour for every elector is to make sure that his or her name is on the voters' list.

Premier Henry predicts that there will be 225 candidates in the field for the 90 Ontario ridings at the coming election. Line up, folks; there is no deposit needed.

A. E. Smith, who speaks here to-night, is the candidate of the Communist party in East York. That fact alone should be enough to show the kind of leadership local unemployed are being asked to follow.

In these columns yesterday it was stated that the city enumerators would complete their canvass on Friday night. As a matter of fact the enumerators have until Saturday night to complete their lists, owing to the Thursday holiday.

The C.C.F. party in Ontario declares that it is running its own show and has nothing whatever to do with any other party. Surely no one has ever seriously contended anything to the contrary.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

Talking to her sister Etta, Alysia Naylor is resentful over the approaching marriage of their cousin John Tait and Lucy Burnham, a widow, because the sisters will have to leave Tait's home where they have been living. They relate the news to Reggie Claridge, Alysia's fiance. At Alysia's suggestion Reggie agrees to go to Vichy where their wealthy Aunt Norah is stopping with her stepson, Tait, and his fiancee. Reggie is to try to win Lucy's attentions away from John and prevent the marriage. Lady Tait, who is "Aunt Norah" to the Naylor sisters and their brother, Claud, is seated in the hotel lobby at Vichy. Lady Tait and her friend, Lucy, whom she has met through an automobile accident, discuss the Naylor sisters.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 5

Back at the hotel, Lady Tait settled herself in the lounge to wait for her stepson, who was to pick up Lucy Burnham and take her for a drive to the heights around the hot, close, little town.

Suddenly she saw the young English woman to whom she had spoken in the bathing establishment come into the hall. She moved to the manager's desk and stood a moment waiting. Now that she could study it through her powerful lorgnette, Lady Tait, unenvious of the youth that she would not have again, if she could, liked the face even less than she had before. Give and take is the law of life. This girl belonged to the takers. Lady Tait doubted if she could ever give—unless it were something which she herself no longer wanted. The girl spoke to the reception clerk. Her words reached the elder woman. "Madame de Souza likes the rooms. I will register now."

At that instant John Tait came into the lounge. He was a tall, well-set-up man, looking a good deal less than his age, which was between 40 and 50. It was a determined-looking face, and yet with something about it that suggested the possibility of some hidden weakness. Lady Tait made an instinctive gesture at sight of him. John Tait, her dead husband's only son, and since her own son had died, the only son of the house, was as fond of her as she was of him. He did not see her now, but stood a moment, buying some cigarets. Then turning, he caught sight of the face still bent over the register.

Tait stood as though rooted to the spot. His stepmother smiled a trifle grimly. John had once spoken of himself to her as a case-hardened bachelor but that was just after he began to avoid Lady Ida, and Lady Tait had never taken him at that valuation. Quite the contrary, her private conviction was that Ida Westmacott must have made some very stupid blunder, otherwise any woman who was not positively ugly could lead John on a string.

Fortunately, he had rather a severe look and manner that quite misled strangers. But he had generally irreproachable manners. This absolutely gaping stare and pause in the middle of the hall was only to be excused by the girl's extreme good looks, but even so, Lady Tait wondered at it—just now, with Lucy Burnham under the same roof. Then she wondered a great deal more. He came a step towards the girl, a step which brought him close to her. Without looking up, still fingering a pen, her lips moved. Lady Tait watched the scene intently. The moving lips said something—gave some message. Tait nodded, his eyes swept around the lounge. When they caught sight of his stepmother she was apparently reading a novel. A moment later he stood beside her, smiling and cheery as ever, but he was quite pale, as she noted with sudden, swift suspicion.

"The sun was hot on the links," he said, as though conscious of his pallor. "I think for once I'll share your pernicious cup of before-lunch tea."

"What a lovely girl!" Lady Tait said, as she beckoned a waiter and gave the order. She looked deliberately across to the receptionist's desk. "English, I fancy. Who is she? Do you know?"

"Not the faintest idea," Tait said, rather shortly, and, with his back to the vision, he began to talk politics, a subject which Lady Tait as a rule loved. She answered a trifle at random now, but if her stepson felt a chill in the air, he gave no sign, unless he exerted himself more than usual to be agreeable, and he had great charm when he chose.

Lady Tait was not over-fond of unnecessary frankness. She considered it a very tiresome virtue, but a deliberate lie, such as he had just told her. . . . However, perhaps it was just as well. But it was a most extraordinary incident. . . . She knew well that there were two strains in the man, as there had always been in the boy. He was fond of work, ambitious, and endowed with the sense of worldly values which, as much as principles, helps to keep a man straight. This was the larger strain. But in all the Carfilds, and his mother was one of that ill-fated family, runs another streak, hidden most of the time, but now and then cropping out, a wild, reckless strain that had led to some black pages in the family annals. Of course there was very little of this strain in John, his stepmother hastily told herself. Still there was, yes, she must acknowledge it, there was a certain incalculable twist to him, a wild kicking up of his heels after a long and seemly trot along the beaten track, which had twice before, to her knowledge—and therefore doubtless more than twice in fact—nearly ruined his career. But he had also a very keen sense of honor. Perhaps it was a narrow streak, but it was very rigid. And that, she told herself with the wisdom of 70, was what counted in the long run. Not how wide, nor how high, but how inflexible, were the standards.

A minute later Lucy Burnham appeared. There was a look in John's eyes as he jumped to place a chair for her that quieted Lady Tait's dim alarm.

"I met such a lovely girl just now," Mrs. Burnham began—she looked like a girl herself under her big hat—"coming out of the lounge. I wonder if she is staying here?"

Neither of the two others made any reply. Lady Tait turned the talk to the drive up towards Royat.

John rose, and with a laughing word of excuse about the American bar, left them. He did not go towards the bar, but to the ballroom, deserted at this hour except for "the lovely girl" whom Lady Tait and Mrs. Burnham had both noticed. She was at the further end, where the orchestra usually played, ostensibly looking at the new ceiling.

"Mr. Tait," she began earnestly, as John joined her, "first of all, I'm here by the merest chance—with Mrs. de Souza, you know. But I was just going to write to you. You must help me out again. I've got to send in another £50 or he'll tell Mrs. de Souza, and I daren't risk that!"

John Tait said nothing. He stood looking gravely, searchingly at her with tight lips and brooding eyes. "And it's not only my own future that's at stake," the girl went on, as though desperate, her eyes big and pleading, "it's my father and mother too. I told you, when I had to ask you to pay the first time he threatened me, that my salary just lets them live." Her lips trembled, but Lady Tait would have noticed that her eyes did not soften. They were as calculating as a croupier's. She must have known it herself, for she dropped her glance swiftly to her beautifully manicured hands, whose shape was not worthy of the rest of her, for there was something cruel about the deep valley that outlined each polished, orange nail.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

CHATHAM N.B.

William Pitt, the great English statesman, gave his name to this New Brunswick city. Pitt then known as the Earl of Chatham, was reaching the peak of his popularity and renown, and the citizens honored him in 1800 by naming their village for him.

Approximately one hundred years ago, a company was formed of the citizens of the town, called the Land Improvement Co., and this company really laid out the present townsite.

Chatham was formally incorporated as a town by special act of parliament in 1896.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

STRIVING IS LIVING

Somebody is always quoting, with approval, four lines written by a poet named Walter Savage Landor.

Quoting them as if they were wholly true and profound and contained a lesson for everybody. They were written when Landor, who lived from 1775 to 1864, was in his last years, a very old man who had lived a full life and was content. Here they are:

"I strove with none; for none was worth my strife,
Nature I loved and, next to Nature, Art;
I warmed both hands before the fire of life;
It sinks, and I am ready to depart."

This quatrain has one high virtue. It is easy to understand. The poet fought with no man, because he was never able to find any man worth fighting with. He loved nature—trees, flowers, the mountains, the sea. And he loved art—painting, sculpture, putting words together in shapely, truthful prose or poetry. You notice that he does not say lie lovedman, although he may not have thought it necessary to mention him, because man is a part of nature and the creator of art. For nearly 80 years he had warmed his hands before the flame of living, but at last it died down and instead of trying to build another fire he resigned himself to its extinction and, without complaint, said goodby.

The line that does not arouse my administration is the first: "I strove with none for none was worth my strife." And I wonder what was the poet's mind when he wrote these ten words. Did he despise men? Did he never meet his equal in this life never encounter some noble enemy, who challenged him to desperate battle? I don't understand just what he means by those words. I understand the small boy who comes up to his friend and says: "Want to wrestle?" But I don't understand who writes as his farewel message: "I strove with none; for none wah worth my strife."... Do you?

Straw Vote In Galt Goes Daylight Saving

GALT, Ont., May 23 (C.P.) — A straw vote on daylight saving for the months of July and August taken by the Kiwanis Club show a majority of 706 for the change.

The vote was an unsually heavy one for such a test of opinion, 2,341 for and 1,635 against. The vote resolved itself into a male-female affair, with the members of the fair sex providing the chief opposition. What action the City Council will take is unknown, but in view of the strong opposition, no change is expected.

Foreign Affairs

(By H. W. L. MAHOOD)

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

An article written by Dr. F. Pavlasck, Czechoslocak Consulate General, Montreal Quebec:—

On the 24th of May 1934 there will take place in the historic Vladislav Hall of Prague Castle a ceremoney rare it not unique in the history of European States. An old man of 84 will for the third time be elected head of the Czechoslovak State—an event which is not only greeted with enthusiasm by the Czechoslovaks but has the cordial sympathy of the numerically strong German minority in the country, and probably also has the concurrence of the Magyar and Polish minorities. For racial, political, class and religious differences disapear in face of the outstanding personality of Masaryk, in face of his noble political principles and his exalted moral tenets culminating in the purest humanity and service to the lofty ideals of truth goodness and justice.

The Grand Old Man of Europe—the personified ideal of Plato's head of a State—the champion of Truth—the apostle of Peace, Democracy and Humanity — the most perfect European — the Czech national Hero—a great man — all these and other epithets were applied in the world's press to President Masaryk on the occasion of his 80th birthday in 1930, and today it is scarcely possible to add more to these superlatives of administration and appreciation.

The life work of President Masaryk is truly stupendous. He will always be ranked among men who have made themselves famous, who have begun in poor and humble circumstances, who passed a youth full of hardships and trials, working their way through and upwards by their own powers, their amazing energy, their perseverance and determination, to ever higher aims. The son of an insignificant coachman on an imperial estate, himself starting life as a blacksmith's apprentice, he became a university professor, a member of Parliament and tribune of the people, the guide, the teacher, the philosopher of his nation whom he caused to pass through the stern school of self-criticism and self-discipline in order to prepare it for a struggle for liberty and independence and make it capable of taking its government into its own hands.

During the war Masaryk left his country and went aboard to organize there a revolutionary struggle against the obsolete Hapsburg Monarchy which had handed its subject peoples over to the domination of the Germans on the one hand and the Magyars on the other, and by its close alliance with Hohenzollern Germany had aggravated the menace to Europe and the whole world represented by Pan-German imperialism. The superhuman efforts of Masaryk were crowned with success. Just before Christmas 1918 he returned to his liberated country, the Czechoslovak Republic, as its first president, and a grateful nation bestowed on him the honorable title of "Liberator." The broad masses of the people never call him other than "Taticek Masaryk" (Dear Father Masaryk), expressing thus their love and filial affection.

For sixteen years Masaryk has directed the fortunes of the young Czechoslovak State with wise statesmanship, a firm will, and an endeavour to secure that the liberated nation shall remain faithful to the principles and ideals of democracy without which it would never have recovered its independence. The democracy of Masaryk is part and parcel of his personality, his conviction and world outlook, and therefore it is so profound, so unshakeable and so full of confidence in the future, even though the contemporary situation of Europe is under a cloud and would justify pessimism rather than optimism, especially in respect of the future of democracy. Masaryk is convinced that of all systems of government ever yet devised by man, democracy is the best and most suitable, that it is best fitted for mankind at a stage of general culture where respect for the individual, and for his inalienable personal, political and civic rights is practically axiomatic.

THALIA MASSIE RETURNS HOME

Refuses to Discuss Her Suicide Attempt on Voyage to Italy.

GREETED BY FATHER.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., May 23 (AP) —Close-mouthed, answering questions in monosyllables, Thalia Fortescue Massie, central figure in the sensational Honolulu attack case, returned from Italy to-day.

She was met by her father and mother, Major and Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and her sister Helene.

Major Fortescue threw his arms around his daughter, kissed her, and asked: "How are you, darling?"

Mrs. Massie declined to discuss her suicide attempt on board the Geno-bound steamship a few months after she was divorced from her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie.

Ship's officers said that Mrs. Massie appeared in good spirits on the voyage, playing cards and attending cocktail parties.

Inspector Orders Aged Cow Destroyed

On a recent visit to Havelock district, Dr. Thomas Johnston, V.S., Humane Society inspector, ordered an aged cow destroyed. He conducted a post-mortem, which showed a watery condition of the blood.

Owned by J. W. Stillman of Havelock, the animal was in the possession of Grant Clark, against whom a complaint had been laid in respect to the condition of the animal. The inspector told The Examiner he found no evidence of cruelty; the animal had been properly fed and cared for. The condition from which the aimal was suffering resulted after the animal gave birth to twin calves in March last. One of the calves survived.

Farmer Is Hanged For Murdering Wife

WINNIPEG, May 23 (C.P.) — Andrew Orichowski walked to the gallows yesterday to expiate the murder of his wife, Sophie, Oct. 23 last. He was hanged at Headingly jail at 7.35 a.m. C.S.T. (9.35 a.m. E.D.T.).

It was the second hanging to take place within two days. Soon after dawn Monday Julian Komarnicki went to the scaffold for the murder of Gilbert "Shorty" McQuade, lumberman.

Mrs. Orichowski was found, badly battered about the head, in the granary of the farm of Steve Woychyshyn, at Maleb, Man., with whom the Orichowkis were living. Witnesses at the trial said Orichowski admitted slaying his wife.

She was removed to hospital at Teulon, Man., where she died.

A jury under Mr. Justice A. K. Dysart convicted Orichowski.

F. J. AUDET IS PRESIDENT OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY

MONTREAL, May 23 (C.P.). — Delegates to the annual meetiig of the Canadian Historical Society were returning to their homes today following a two-day session. The convention was brought to a close last night with the election of officers for the coming year. F. J Audet, Ottawa, was elected president, and E R. Adair, McGill University, vice-president.

At the final session last night an address was given by Andrew A. Marchbin, Ottawa, who refuted the popular belief Sir Wilfrid Laurier was responsible for inducing Southern Europeans to immigrate to Canada. The idea first started with the Conservative Government of Sir John A. Macdonald, and the Liberals developed the plan, he said.

Papers were read by D. C. Harvey, archivist of Nova Scotia, and Prof. Duncan MacArthur, of Queen's University, retiring president.

GAS KILLS THREE

FLEMINGTON, N.J., May 23 (AP) —Three men were killed to-day by poison gas in a vinegar vat one had been assigned to clean.

Two of the men, employees of the New Jersey Cider Vinegar Works, died in rescue attempts.

The victims were Andrew Scharo, 25, of Croton; Fred Guta, 35, of High Bridge, and Otto Bock, 35, of Brooklyn.

LIGHT LOSSES AT LIST CLOSE

Distillery, Oil and Food Issues Display Firming Tendency.

TRADERS CAUTIOUS.

TORONTO, May 23 (C.P.). — Looking forward to the holiday tomorrow, traders on the industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange took on new commitments very cautiously to-day and the result was a slight preponderance of narrow losses at the close. Volume hovered around the lowest levels of the year. Distillery, oil, and food stocks displayed a firming tendency late in the session.

Interlisted leaders reflected mildly the hesitant movements on the New York market. Nickel worked down to 26.25, but recovered to 26.60, where it showed a net loss of 15 cents. Ford A took a loss of ⅝ and C.P.R. and Brazilian closed only ⅛ lower each. Consolidated Smelters eased down 1½ to 151½.
